Two analysts cut their earnings estimates for UNITED TELECOMMUNICATION INC. yesterday causing the stock to fall 3 1/4 to $40.875 in heavy trading but both analysts still have buy recommendations for the stock. JACK GRUBMAN of PAINEWEBBER INC. says, "I still think the stock is cheap. It's worth in the mid-50s."

JOEL GROSS of DONALDSON, LUFKIN & JENRETTE INC. says, "My estimates of $2.50 a share in 1990 and $3.50 in 1991 still show a 40% growth rate. With the stock trading at less than 12 times earnings next year that still looks like a buy ... to me." (WSJ, 6/18)

Earnings estimates for the S&P 500 in 1990 are $24 a share, leaving an estimated $12 per share to be earned in the second half. "It ain't going to happen," says CHARLES COMER of G.L. GLOBAL PARTNERS.

Avoid investing in industry groups and look for stocks "where the earnings are there," advises Comer who likes BRISTOL MYERS and CPC INTERNATIONAL. He's seen interest in CUMMINS and KODAK, but with these stocks "you might be running a little risk on the earnings."

COKE, PEPSICO, and consumer goods companies, may have run up a little far, says Comer, "I'd be cautious about chasing them." (CNBC "World Business", 6/15)

DUBLIN, OH (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Wendy's International Inc. (NYSE: WEN) and Carl Karcher Enterprises Inc. (OTC: CARL) today jointly announced the settlement of the litigation between the two companies.

On June 19, 1989, Wendy's filed suit against CKE and a Wendy's franchisee, Ronald Brown (Brown), as well as Brown's Company, Wendy's of Tucson Inc. (WTI). The suit was filed as a result of the purchase by CKE of Brown and WTI's interest in 10 Wendy's restaurant properties located in Arizona, for purposes of converting the properties to Carl's Jr. restaurants.

Wendy's contended in its suit that CKE's actions in purchasing the restaurant properties over the objections of Wendy's constituted an unlawful interference with Wendy's contractual and business relationships with Brown and WTI. Wendy's also contended that Brown and WTI's actions in closing the restaurants and selling their interest in the restaurant properties to CKE, without first obtaining the consent of Wendy's, violated the terms of Brown's franchise agreements. Wendy's sought substantial compensatory and consequential damages from each defendant, and punitive damages from CKE.

CKE contended the purchases of the restaurant properties were made in response to offers to sell extended by WTI and violations of Brown's franchise agreements were an inadvertent result of CKE's purchase of the properties. Wendy's, as a part of the settlement, approved the sale by WTI to CKE of these restaurant properties, and agreed to dismiss its claim against CKE, Brown and WTI regarding the purchase by CKE of Brown and WTI's interest in the 10 Arizona restaurant properties.

As a part of the settlement, CKE agreed that no future purchase of Wendy's franchise location would occur without the prior written consent of Wendy's International Inc.

Further terms of the settlement were to remain confidential; however, all parties were pleased that the matters raised in the lawsuit were resolved quickly.

HERNDON, VA (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - The Minerals Management Service today announced that a bulk phosphate sampling project will be undertaken as part of a continuing effort to investigate marine mineral resources located offshore Georgia.

The project is being coordinated through the Department of the Interior/Georgia Nonenergy Offshore Minerals Task Force.

The bulk sampling project will be conducted near the Savannah Light Tower offshore Georgia in late June 1990. A phosphate sample will be collected using a barge-mounted remote placer drill operated by the Continental Shelf Division of the Marine Minerals Technology Center. The project will involve drilling into the Miocene-age Tybee phosphate bed, forming a phosphate slurry by dissolving the phosphate water jets and then pumping the phosphate material into holding tanks. Approximately two tons of the bulk phosphate samples are expected to be extracted and made available to the U.S. Bureau of Mines Field Laboratory in Salt Lake City for detailed chemical analysis.

In addition, environmental monitoring and data acquisition will be conducted throughout the project. An underwater video recording will be made during an attempt to pump non-phosphatic material back down the drill hole before removal of the drilling equipment. This record along with surface observations will provide new and important data on sediment suspension and future requirements for what promises to be an environmentally compatible technology for recovery of phosphate.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN. (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Larry L. Bingaman, 40, of New Fairfield, Conn., has been appointed to the newly created position of vice president-marketing and communications for The Hydraulic Company (NYSE: THC), it was announced today by THC president and chief executive officer

Jack E. McGregor.

Bingaman will have overall responsibility for the company's marketing efforts and corporate relations program, which includes government relations, community affairs, media relations and employee communications.

Prior to joining THC, Bingaman served since February 1989 as director of communications for Sikorsky Aircraft. In 1988 he joined Sikorsky's parent company, United Technologies, as manager of corporate press relations. Previously Bingaman held various public relations positions of increasing responsibility with Texaco Inc., which he joined in 1973 after serving briefly as a labor relations specialist with Firestone Tire and Rubber Company.

"Larry Bingaman's broad background in the communications field makes him an ideal choice to lead our marketing and communications efforts as we position the company for strong growth in the regulated and unregulated water management fields in the 1990s," McGregor said.

THC is a diversified corporation whose core business is public water supply. Through THC's Bridgeport Hydraulic Company (BHC) subsidiary, which is one of the 10 largest investor-owned water companies in the nation, and BHC's Stamford Water Company subsidiary, it serves a population of some 460,000 in 18 communities in Fairfield, Litchfield and New Haven Counties.

THC is engaged in nonutility enterprises through its Hydrocorp, Inc. subsidiary, which operates analytical testing laboratories and other diversified water management services; through its Timco, Inc. subsidiary, which has forest products and electricity cogeneration facilities in New Hampshire; and through its Main Street South Corporation real estate subsidiary.

PITTSBURGH (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - USAir today introduced daily non-stop service between Pittsburgh and Frankfurt, Germany, the airline's first service to continental Europe.

"This is an exciting development, both for USAir and travelers from the 90 cities on our system with connecting service through Pittsburgh," said Edwin I. Colodny, USAir chairman and president.

"The new Frankfurt service will help establish the Greater Pittsburgh International Airport's reputation abroad. One of the fondest hopes of local economic planners is expansion of international air service as a magnet for new companies and the jobs they bring. This flight is an important tool for those trying to promote the Tri-State region as a good place to do business."

Greater Pittsburgh International Airport is one of the nation's largest airline hubs with 416 daily USAir and affiliated USAir Express departures. With more than 20 million passengers handled annually, Frankfurt is the busiest airport on the continent and offers numerous connections to cities in Germany, Europe, the Far East and Africa.

The flights will be operated with new Boeing 767-200ER aircraft, the first wide-body aircraft operated by USAir service at Pittsburgh. The cabin has 25 business class seats and 185 seats in coach. Container cargo service also is available.

The aircraft will depart Pittsburgh at 6:50 p.m. daily, arriving in Frankfurt at 8:45 a.m. the following day. The return flight leaves Germany at 11:50 a.m. and arrives in Pittsburgh at 3:14 p.m. On the westbound trips, travelers can expect to move quickly through customs, immigration and baggage claim since the flight avoids the crowded international gateways on the East Coast.

USAir recently received authority to fly non-stop between Philadelphia and Paris beginning April 1, 1991, and also has signaled its interest in Pittsburgh-London service.

The company also recently announced its first "code sharing" agreement with another airline. Later this year it will join with Alitalia to provide direct service between Washington National Airport and Philadelphia to Rome via Alitalia over the Boston gateway.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - The Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae) (NYSE: FNM) recently announced that it will add a five-year balloon mortgage to its extensive multifamily product line.

"In times of moderate-to-high interest rates, a five-year balloon mortgage will provide multifamily lenders with greater flexibility and liquidity in their marketplace," said Larry H. Dale, Fannie Mae's senior vice president for marketing and Mortgage-Backed Securities. "It will give lenders a more efficient option for refinancing multifamily properties, which will help make rental housing more affordable to low-, moderate- and middle-income families."

The new product, announced at Fannie Mae's third annual Delegated Underwriting and Servicing (DUS) Conference in Keystone, Colo., will be available under both Fannie Mae's multifamily DUS and prior approval programs. It will be added to a product menu that currently includes 7-, 10- and 15-year balloon mortgages, all with 35-year amortization schedules.

The five-year balloon mortgage is primarily designed for refinancing by borrowers who have extensive experience in their market areas, but may be available for acquisitions under certain conditions. Moderate rehabilitation transactions are not eligible for the new product.

Mortgages will be underwitten to conform with Fannie Mae's current guidelines, with some slight adjustments to loan-to-value ratios and debt-service ratios. There is a minimum interest rate of 9.5 percent, and loans will be subject to a three-year yield maintenance provision.

Yield information on the five-year multifamily balloon mortgage will be available during the week of June 18, and will be posted on all major financial information wires and on MORNET, Fannie Mae's lender communication system. At that time, Fannie Mae will begin issuing commitments for the new product.

Fannie Mae, the USA's Housing Partner, is a congressionally chartered, shareholder-owned company and the nation's largest investor in home mortgages.

FORT WORTH, TEXAS (JUNE 7) PR NEWSWIRE - The Western Company of North America (NYSE: WSN) today announced that it is studying, with the assistance of its financial advisor, Wertheim Schroder & Co., the advisability of separating, at least partially, its two principal business segments, pressure pumping services and offshore drilling. Among the alternatives being considered is a partial spin-off of the offshore business to existing stockholders of Western. No assurances can be given that the company's board of directors will decide to implement any such transaction.

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Sheldon R. Erikson stated that "The board's decision will depend upon whether separating the two businesses is determined to be in the best interests of Western and its stockholders."

The Western Company of North America provides pressure pumping services which include cementing, fracturing and acidizing, and offshore drilling internationally. Western's common stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol WSN.

TOKYO (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Nissan Motor Co. Ltd. today announced the start-up of operations for a new U.S. corporate finance subsidiary, Nissan Capital of America Inc.

Nissan Capital has been established to centralize capital markets activities for the Nissan companies in the U.S., a portion of which had previously been conducted by Nissan Motor Acceptance Corp. (NMAC), the company's consumer finance unit. Nissan Capital will be headquartered in New York City.

Nissan Capital will be engaged in the issuance of U.S. commercial paper and other securities.

According to Nissan, a commercial paper program for Nissan Capital has been authorized up to $3 billion. The program is expected to begin in late June.

Credit Ratings Issued: Standard & Poor's Corp. and Moody's Investor's Service have announced credit ratings today for Nissan capital's commercial paper. They are, respectively, "A-1" from S&P and "P-1" from Moody's.

Nissan Capital's establishment follows the creation of Nissan North America Inc. in January 1990, the umbrella company responsible for coordinating business strategy among the integrated automotive operations in the U.S. Within Nissan North America, Nissan Capital will serve as the company's group finance office.

Nissan Capital represents a U.S. link in the company's international financial network. With corporate fund-raising entities in the world's three major financial centers -- Tokyo, London and New York -- Nissan is efficiently positioned to source and deploy capital to meet its global funding needs.

As previously stated, the current capital markets activities of NMAC will be consolidated into Nissan Capital's activities.

Meanwhile, NMAC's existing debt will remain outstanding until maturity or redemption, in accordance with their terms of issuance, and are still rated at their prior levels.

This press release shall not be considered an offer to sell, or a solicitation of an offer to buy, securities of Nissan Capital of American Inc., nor shall there be any sales of these securities in a jurisdiction in which such offer, solicitation or sale would be unlawful prior to registration or qualification under the securities laws of any such jurisdiction.

CAMBRIDGE, ENGLAND (JUNE 14) PR NEWSWIRE - IXI Limited today announced that it has licensed X.desktop(tm) 2.0, an OSF/Motif(tm) conformant desktop manager, on a worldwide basis to three major Japanese computer vendors: NEC Corporation of Tokyo, Japan; Matsushita/Panasonic of Osaka, Japan; and Omron Corporation of Kyoto, Japan; and Tektronix(R) Inc. of Wilsonville, Ore., a leading vendor of graphics workstations.

"As our track record shows, we have been very successful in licensing X.desktop to world class vendors, such as IBM, Unisys, SCO, Dell, Uniplex and NCR. Our latest OEM customers are not only leaders in their markets, but are major worldwide players," said Anil Malhotra, IXI vice president of sales and marketing.

NEC, Panasonic and Omron have licensed the English and Japanese language versions of X.desktop and will be bundling the product across a range of UNIX systems. The Japanese version of X.desktop was developed over a year ago in collaboration with TOMEN Electronics Corporation of Tokyo, Japan.

NEC, a leader in the Japanese PC market, has a strong presence overseas, particularly in North America. The company also manufactures mainframes and supercomputers.

Omron will be bundling X.desktop on the Luna workstations, a series comprising Motorola 68030 and Motorola 88000 processors. Omron recently joined X/Open and is increasingly active in promoting open systems standards in domestic and overseas markets.

The Tektronix licensing deal makes X.desktop available on the new Tektronix graphics workstation, the XD88/35, announced on June 11th and also for existing Tektronix workstations, the XD88/10 and XD88/30 as well as Tektronix's full line of X terminals.

IXI Limited, founded in 1987, is a leading developer and supplier of X-related software products and technology. IXI's corporate objective is bring the power of UNIX to a wide range of users. IXI recently introduced X.deskterm(tm), a sophisticated terminal emulator that allows character-based applications to run in the graphical world of OSF/Motif and X Windows.

CHARLOTTE, NC (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Southern Bell announced today it will begin offering telephone bills printed in Braille for its North Carolina customers.

Bell is the first telephone operating company in the nation to provide the service for its blind and visually inpaired customers. It will implement Braille billing in the three other states in its service area later this year.

"We are very pleased to be able to provide this service for our blind and visually impaired customers," said Joseph P. Lacher, vice president for North Carolina operations. "There is a great desire among people with disabilities to become more independent, and we want to do everything we can to help bring that about."

Dr. James Selby, president of the Metrolina Association of the Blind, a United Way agency located in Charlotte, applauded Southern Bell's efforts on behalf of all blind and visually impaired people throughout the state.

"By providing the Braille billing service to this group of customers across North Carolina, Southern Bell has increased the ability of these people to maintain a more independent lifestyle," he said.

The Metrolina Association of the Blind will print the bills in Braille for the company.

Southern Bell will summarize customer bills and transmit the information by computer to Metrolina. The organization will convert the data into a shorthand-like language and then print the bills in Braille.

Blind or visually impaired customers in the state who read Braille and would like to receive a copy of their bill in that form should call the company's business office at 780-2355 and request the free service.

Southern Bell estimates that about 200 of its North Carolina customers will request copies of their bills in Braille. Approximately 10 percent of blind or visually impaired people read Braille, the company said.

Customers requesting Braille bills will continue to receive regular bills.

Southern Bell will publicize its Braille billing service through associations for the blind and visually impaired, the N.C. Radio Reading Service and bill inserts.

The company will offer Braille billing to its Georgia customers later this month. South Carolina and Florida customers will receive the service in the third and fourth quarters of the year, respectively.

DETROIT (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Ford Motor Company (NYSE: F) has notified dealers that, effective today, it is increasing the manufacturer's suggested retail base prices of selected 1990 and 1991 Ford, Lincoln and Mercury cars by an average of about three-tenths of a percent, or $49 per car.

The increases do not include the 1990 Ford Escort, Ford Probe, Ford Festiva or the all-new 1991 Escort, Mercury Tracer and Mercury Capri.

Also, the increases do not affect Ford's popular preferred equipment package discounts. Ford is the only manufacturer to offer these package discounts on a comprehensive basis.

"We are raising prices to partially offset increases in ongoing operating costs and product-related costs," said Robert L. Rewey, vice president - Ford North American Sales Operations.

Rewey pointed out that, even with these increases, "Ford Motor Company cars continue to provide greater value than those of our domestic and Japanese competition, especially when the preferred equipment package discounts are factored into the sale."

CHICAGO (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Amoco Corporation (NYSE: AN) today confirmed that it has been awarded a $600 million net cash settlement by the Iran-U.S. claims tribunal in the Hague. The award implements an agreement between Amoco and Iran that settles all claims and counterclaims between the parties.

Amoco filed claims against Iran in 1981 seeking compensation for seizure during the 1978-79 revolution of Amoco's two major operations in the country: oil development and production activities and a 50 percent interest in a petrochemical plant on Kharg Island. Iran had filed numerous counterclaims against Amoco, including a claim for crude oil shipments received by Amoco but never paid for.

Payment of the award will be made from a special account established for the satisfaction of tribunal awards and is anticipated by the end of June. A statutory fee of about $6 million will be deducted by the U.S. government, resulting in a net cash payment to amoco of about $594 million.

The company indicated that the award will be recognized in second- quarter earnings subject to receipt of the payment as anticipated. The net gain from the settlement is expected to be largely offset by the impact of related income taxes and a special charge to be recorded in the second quarter for future environmental remediation costs.

NEW YORK (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - John Wiley & Sons, Inc., (NASDAQ: WILLA WILLB) publishers, announced today that revenues for the fiscal year ended April 30, 1990 increased 9 percent to $281.7 million compared with $258.9 million for the prior year. Fourth quarter revenues increased 18 percent to $68.7 million compared with $58.2 million for the prior year.

Net income for fiscal 1990 was $2.7 million or $.60 per share compared with $4.1 million, or $.95 per share for the prior year. Operations for the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990 resulted in a net loss of $.3 million, or $.07 per share compared with a net loss of $.5 million or $.11 per share for the prior year's similar period.

Revenue increases for both the quarter and year-to-date were largely attributable to the Alan R. Liss life sciences publishing division acquired by Wiley in June 1989 as well as strong performances by the publishing group's professional and trade division and certain international operations. These increases in revenues were offset by the loss of revenues associated with Milady Publishing, which was sold in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1989, and the occupational and nursing lines sold during the second quarter of fiscal 1990, as well as shortfall in the company's domestic educational sector revenues.

Publishing's professional and trade revenues advanced 24 percent compared with the prior year. Overall educational sector revenues rose 3 percent, as the shortfall in domestic sales was more than offset by healthy revenue gains in the company's Canadian and Singapore operations. The training group's revenues advanced 2 percent for the year, attributable to its international operations.

Earnings declined for the year primarily due to increases in planned operating expenses coupled with revenue shortfalls in both the domestic educational and domestic training sectors. Also contributing to the decline was the financing and amortization of other acquisition costs related to Liss.

Charles R. Ellis, the company's newly elected president and chief executive officer stated, "With the exception of the disappointing performance of the domestic educational and training sectors, we are pleased with the progress made throughout the company. Remedial actions have been taken to improve the operating results of those businesses which experienced softness during the year. On a more favorable note, Liss' operating results are exceeding our expectations." He added, "The company's financial condition is stronger that it has been in recent years. This affords us the opportunity to focus our resources and energies on growth areas that are consistent with our overall global strategy."

MIAMI (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - The presidents of ABC Investments, Inc. ("ABC") of Detroit, and Miller Industries, Inc. ("Miller") of Miami announced today that the purchase agreement under which ABC was to have purchased the majority of operating assets of Miller has expired and will not be renewed at this time.

Though both ABC and Miller have indicated a continuing interest to consummate the transaction, current conditions at both companies preclude an immediate closing, and a definite future closing date continues to remain uncertain.

It was therefore mutually agreed as being in the best interest of both companies to continue on separate paths for the time being.

KANSAS CITY, MO (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - SAZTEC International, Inc. (NASDAQ: SAZZ), a world leader in information technology, today announced the successful completion of a $1.7 million private placement. The terms of the deal were disclosed as a subordinated convertible debenture agreement, bearing interest at 10 percent convertible into shares of common stock at $2.875 per share.

Some of the private investors are also principals in William Blair & Company, a prestigious Midwest investment banking firm.

According to Gary Abernathy, vice chairman of SAZTEC, the offering is the latest in a series of actions that will allow SAZTEC to take full advantage of the many growth opportunities as they become available.

"This offering provides SAZTEC with additional funds for expansion in the area of acquisitions and mergers, and for expansion of our current sales force. The agreement will also give the company the necessary funds to pursue new products and services including expansion of our Information Conversion Express (ICE(SM)) network," said Abernathy.

Among the recent actions taken by SAZTEC in the area of expansion is the restructuring of top management, the acquisition of Advanced Automation Associates, Inc., a Massachusetts-based information processing company, and a joint venture agreement with Imaginetix, a California-based research and development company.

SAZTEC, an international leader in the use of computer technology, provides comprehensive services to convert information for use on computer systems.

PHILADELPHIA (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - In what is regarded as a tribute to the technological capabilities of an area company, Sicom Systems Inc., a New Hope, Pa., firm, has entered into a marketing agreement with Casio Inc., a Japanese corporate giant in the electronics and computer fields, for exclusive rights to sell the Sicom 1600 System product line in North America under the Casio name.

The system is a PC-based computer terminal system with applications in the hospitality, restaurant and retailing businesses. It is already in use in fast food chains such as Mcdonald's and Burger King. Casio Inc., one of the largest distributors of Electronic Cash Register and Point of Sale Systems, will sell the 1600 System through its dealer organizations in the United States and Canada.

"To our knowledge this is the first agreement of its kind in North America " said Terry Doan, president of Sicom. "We are pleased by the growth opportunities this presents for our company and by the fact that a Japanese company would come to us for a proven product in a technology area they are perceived to dominate. Casio is also very well regarded in the industry and has high name recognition."

The marketing agreement will cover three years with automatic renewal if both parties are satisfied, according to Doan. In the first year, Sicom will supply a minimum of 1,500 terminals. That number doubles in the second year and increases to 4,500 in the third year. Company growth is expected to jump from $3 million in the first year to $9 million in the third year and production facilities are being expanded in Sicom's 18,000-square-foot plant to accommodate increases in shipment levels, according to Doan. Fifteen to 20 new positions are expected to be created which would more than double the current size of the operations.

Sicom Systems is a full-service point of sale company dedicated to the research, design, development, marketing, manufacturing and servicing of point of sale computer systems. It is an outgrowth of WTD, a product development company formed in 1972 by Doan. Sicom was born in 1989, capitalized through private investors, the Ben Franklin Technology Center and the Penn Venture Fund of Philadelphia Industrial Development Corp. (PIDC).

SHARONVILLE, OH (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Thomas M. McCaffrey, longtime manager of Ford Motor Company's Sharonville Transmission Plant, will retire effective July 1. He will be succeeded by Karl W. Watler.

McCaffrey has been employed by Ford for 40 years, 32 of those years in the Cincinnati area. He joined the company as an hourly employee at the now-closed Fairfax (Ohio) Transmission Plant.

He held a variety of analytical, supervisory and managerial positions in the material control and manufacturing areas at the Fairfax, Sharonville, and Livonia Transmission Plants, as well as at the Transmission & Chassis (T&C) Division General Office, before being named manager of the Fairfax Plant in 1978.

Following a short assignment as manager of the Canton (Ohio) Forge Plant, McCaffrey was appointed to his current post as manager of the Sharonville Transmission Plant.

During his tenure there, he faced major challenges when production of the plant's major product, the C5 transmission, was halted, and the plant was threatened with closure.

With McCaffrey at the forefront, joint efforts by management and the union to improve the plant's productivity and costs led to a decision to keep the plant open and to manufacture a new, state-of-the-art transmission at Sharonville.

Through those efforts, McCaffrey and the plant won international recognition for their work in the area of Employee Involvement (EI). The plant's EI program was the subject of a book called "The Sharonville Story " produced under the auspices of Work In America, Inc. The program became a model for EI programs around the world.

McCaffrey has been active in the Cincinnati community during his career, most recently as a member of the Board of Trustees of the United Appeal of Greater Cincinnati, a position he has held for 10 years.

He served as a pilot in the United States Air Force during World War II. Following his discharge, he attended Xavier University in Cincinnati, graduating with a bachelor's degree in physical education in January 1949.

McCaffrey and his wife, Florence, have four daughters. Following retirement, he plans to be a consultant in the area of labor-management cooperation and team building.

McCaffrey's successor, Watler, is currently manager of Ford's Sterling Plant, located in Sterling Heights, Mich.

Watler joined Ford's T&C Division in 1961 through the Ford College Graduate Program. Following a variety of supervisory and managerial assignments at the Sterling and Van Dyke Plants (both in Sterling Heights) he was named T&C Division's plant engineering manager in 1980. The following year, he was appointed manager of the Van Dyke Plant, and in 1985 he assumed his current position.

Watler is a former naval aviator. He holds a bachelor's degree in business administration from Valparaiso (Ind.) University, as well as an M.B.A. from Michigan State University.

Watler and his wife, Nancy, have three children. They plan to live in Glendale.

NEW YORK (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - An initial public offering of 7,000,000 shares of Transatlantic Holdings, Inc. common stock at a price of $27 per share is announced by Goldman, Sachs & Co. The selling stockholders have granted to the underwriters an option to purchase up to an additional 1,050,000 shares to cover overallotments.

All of the shares to be offered are being sold by selling stockholders; the company will not receive any proceeds from the sale. American International Group, Inc., which owns approximately 41 percent of the company's outstanding common stock, is not a selling stockholder.

Of the shares being offered, 5,800,000 shares are being offered in the United States and 1,200,000 shares are being offered concurrently outside the United States in an international offering. Goldman, Sachs & Co. is managing the United States offering and Goldman Sachs International Limited is managing the international offering.

On April 17, 1990, the company acquired Transatlantic Reinsurance Company through a share exchange. Through its wholly owned subsidiaries, Transatlantic Reinsurance Company and Putnam Reinsurance Company, the company provides property and casualty reinsurance on a treaty and facultative basis directly and through brokers to insurance and reinsurance companies, in both the domestic and international markets.

The company's principal lines of reinsurance include general liability (including professional liability), automobile liability, workers' compensation and medical malpractice in the casualty lines, and fire and inland marine coverages in the property lines. Reinsurance is provided for most major lines of insurance on both excess of loss and pro rata basis.

TULSA, OK (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Lowrance Electronics, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: LEIX) today reported record third quarter sales of $20,604,000 for the three months ended April 30, 1990, an increase of 9 percent from sales of $18,883,000 during the same period last year.

Net income for the quarter increased 16 percent to $894,000, or $.26 a share, compared to net income of $770,000, or $.22 a share during the same period last year.

Sales for the nine months ended April 30, 1990 were $49,933,000, up more than 23 percent from sales of $40,666,000 during the same period last year. Net income for the nine months was $1,223,000, or $.36 a share, compared to a net loss of $33,000, or minus $.01 a share last year.

Commenting on the third quarter, company President Darrell Lowrance credited an 18 percent increase in unit sales and continued demand for the company's new Eagle ULTRA and portable models, as well as the new LMS-10 and Eagle Nav-Guide Loran-C products, as major factors in the favorable third quarter results.

"Increased unit sales helped improve our revenue from sales by 9 percent over the comparable third quarter of 1989. Despite a 5 percent reduction in the average selling price of our products, margins have improved slightly compared to last year's third quarter. This resulted from a shift in our third quarter product mix toward larger volumes of our lower-priced Eagle products."

Lowrance further stated that he expects fourth quarter sales to be down from last year's because the company's current backlog of orders is significantly reduced from last year's unprecedented backlog. Additionally he expects the normal reduction of inventory by distributors and dealers during the fourth quarter in anticipation of the company's introduction of 1991 new products scheduled for late July. He added, however, that he remains confident that the company's year end results will reflect significantly improved sales and profits over last year.

PITTSBURGH (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Allegheny International, Inc. (AI) (NYSE: AG) today announced that its Sunbeam Corporation (Canada) Limited subsidiary by year-end will consolidate all sales, marketing, administration and warehousing functions of Sunbeam Canada's Solaray and Sunbeam divisions at its Toronto location. It will continue marketing a full line of products to Canadian markets.

In connection with the consolidation, Sunbeam Canada will end production of gas barbecue grills and lawnmowers at its Toronto facility, effective immediately. Production of electric and non-electric blankets, heating pads and humidification products will be phased out at Solaray's Brantford Ontario facility by mid-December.

AI noted that the consolidated Sunbeam Canada will employ about 160 persons and market a full line of products under the "Sunbeam," "Oster" and "Northern Electric" brand names. It added that the consolidation, combined with access to greater research and development resources, will allow products sold by Sunbeam Canada to keep pace with trends in technology and increase Sunbeam Canada's share of the Canadian market.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - A special edition of Freedom Magazine, released this week, uncovers Internal Revenue Service efforts to subvert protection granted churches by Congress.

The issue focuses on corruption within the IRS including abusive and illegal collection activities, internal corruption among high-level officials and the results of recent congressional hearings into these areas.

Copies of Freedom were distributed by members of the Church of Scientology which publishes the magazine, to passersby and IRS employees at IRS headquarters. Church members also distributed questionnaires asking IRS employees for information on IRS corruption and abuses.

"By coming forward and blowing the whistle, many IRS employees made it possible for Congress to step in and abolish abusive practices condoned by senior IRS officials," explained Church spokesperson Pat Jones. "We are here today to encourage those honest IRS employees and continue blowing the whistle until real and lasting reform is achieved."

CINCINNATI (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Susan H. Miller today was promoted to vice president/editorial for Scripps Howard's (NASDAQ: SCRP) newspaper/publishing division. The announcement was made by William R. Burleigh, executive vice president, who manages the newspaper/publishing division.

Miller has been director of editorial development for the Scripps Howard newspapers since 1985. In her new position, she will be involved in personnel development, budgeting, and strategic planning, as well as development of the editorial content for the company's 19 daily newspapers. Miller also will assume the duties of former assistant general editorial manager David F. Stolberg, who retired May 31.

"This promotion recognizes the outstanding contribution she has made, both in the company and the profession, in shaping the newspaper for today's reader," Burleigh said.

Miller, 45, joined Scripps Howard from The News-Gazette in Champaign, Ill, where she was executive editor from 1981 to 1985. Prior to that she served as assistant city editor and night city editor for The Peninsula Times Tribune, in Palo Alto, Calif., and news-features editor and assistant city editor for the Bremerton Sun, in Bremerton, W. Va. As a Sun reporter she covered Puget Sound Naval Shipyard, and the Trident nuclear submarine base at Bangor, W. Va.

Miller is a member of the boards of directors of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the Associated Press Managing Editors, the Washington Journalism Center and New Directions for News. She has written and spoken on numerous topics vital to the newspaper industry, including "Vanishing Readership: What newspapers need to know about women," "America's dailies and the drive to capture lost readers" and "Meeting readers needs in 2005."

Miller also authored several chapters and was overall coordinator of the American Society of Newspaper Editors Newsroom Management Handbook. She designed courses in professional ethics for journalists and designed and taught courses in news reporting, news editing, and lifestyle reporting.

MIDDLEBORO, MA (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - The Mayflower Co-operative Bank

(NASDAQ: MFLR) announced a net loss of $45,000 or 5 cents per share for the fourth quarter ending April 30, 1990, compared to earnings of $142,000 or 13 cents per share for the same quarter last year.

Net earnings for the fiscal year ended April 30, 1990, were $213,000 or 25 cents per share compared to $751,000 or 85 cents per share for the 1989 fiscal year.

William C. MacLeod, president and chief executive officer, stated, "The loss for the fourth quarter is a direct result of the depressed local and New England real estate markets and the bank's review of its loan portfolio which resulted in an additional provision for loan losses of $136,000, for a total provision for loan losses of $196,000 for the fourth quarter."

As of April 30, 1990, to bank's loans delinquent 90 days or more totaled $4.3 million or 5.63 percent of total loans and 4.74 percent of total assets. At April 30, 1990, the bank's reserve for loan losses totaled $501,000 which was 11.54 percent of loans delinquent 90 days or more and 0.65 percent of total loans.

The bank's earnings for fiscal 1990 represent a return on average assets of 0.24 percent and its net interest margin for the year was 3.50 percent. At April 30, 1990, total assets were $91.7 million, net loans were $77.0 million and stockholders equity was $10.6 million or 11.56 percent of total assets.

On May 8, 1990, the bank declared its regularly scheduled quarterly dividend of 5 cents per share, payable June 15, 1990, to stockholders of record May 25, 1990.

The Mayflower Co-operative Bank, with three offices in southeastern Massachusetts, is a state-chartered co-operative bank and has its deposits insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) and the Share Insurance Fund (SIF) of Massachusetts.

NEW YORK (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Witco Corporation (NYSE: WIT) announced today that it will expand sulfonate capacity at its Amsterdam facility in the Netherlands to include neutral and overbased calcium sulfonate production and that it has completed the expansion of sulfonation facilities in Elbeuf, France to manufacture sulfonic acids.

Witco President Denis Andreuzzi enumerated two major reasons for the investment in Europe, "First of all, the amounts of additives used in lubricating oils continue to grow and building Amsterdam into a world class facility for sulfonate manufacture will ensure our ability to take advantage of this growth. Secondly, our recently expanded sulfonation facility in Elbeuf will allow us to further increase our supply of sulfonic acid to the additives market. With these two units we feel better able to serve the lube oil additive industry with products manufactured in European facilities."

Amsterdam is operated by Witco Holland, a wholly owned subsidiary of Witco Corporation, with additional plants in Haarlem and Koog aan de Zaan. Elbeuf is operated by Witco France, also a wholly owned subsidiary of Witco Corporation. Witco manufactures special purpose chemical and petroleum products and engineered materials with annual sales of approximately $1.6 billion.

PHILADELPHIA (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Scott Paper Co. (NYSE: SPP) today announced that it and Feldmuhle AG, a German company, plan to form a joint venture to own and operate Feldmuhle's sanitary tissue business.

Scott plans to invest approximately $125 million for a 51 percent position in the joint venture, and, under certain conditions, will have the right to acquire the remaining 49 percent in the future. Scott is then obligated to pay to Feldmuhle an equivalent price for the remaining 49 percent at a later date.

This transaction is subject to the approval of various authorities including the German Federal Cartel Office, the Feldmuhle Supervisory Board and the Scott Board of Directors. Scott said it expects the joint venture to be formed in the fourth quarter of this year.

Feldmuhle markets consumer and commercial sanitary tissue products in the Federal Republic of Germany, the Netherlands, Belgium and France. The company manufactures its sanitary tissue products at three mills in Germany and one in the Netherlands.

Scott said it expects to fund this investment through a combination of internal funds and external debt.

Scott is Europe's largest tissue paper producer and marketer with 1989 sales of approximately $1.2 billion in the United Kingdom, France, Italy, Spain, Portugal and Belgium.

DALLAS, (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - International Telecharge, Inc. (AMEX: ITI) announced today that it welcomes the FCC action yesterday adopting a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking regarding the provision of operator services and believes that the result of such rulemaking will be a more equal application of requirements on all competing companies, including AT&T.

Steve Bickerstaff, executive vice president of legal and regulatory affairs for ITI, said, "The FCC has not yet released its order describing the full scope of this proposed rulemaking. However, it is clear that one commission objective is to assure that all operator service providers, including AT&T, comply with the commission's consumer protection guidelines."

Bickerstaff noted, "Equal application of rules to all competitors is both inherent to our system of laws and in the best interest of consumers. We believe that AT&T has enjoyed a competitive advantage in the past because it has ignored certain of the FCC's operator service requirements, which are applicable to ITI. This new FCC rulemaking should assure a more equal application and enforcement of these rules."

Among other issues, the commission's rulemaking will consider whether all carriers, including AT&T, should provide 800- and/or alternative forms of access for customers calling from payphones and hotels.

Bickerstaff observed, "AT&T's unwillingness to provide an 800 access number for customers' use while traveling has caused needless confusion and consternation among the calling public, and has forced many hotels and payphone owners to spend their own time and monies to solve a problem that is solely of AT&T's making."

ITI is a leading national telecommunications supplier of network- based operator and information services primarily to hotels, hospitals, institutions, payphone owners and other interexchange carriers.

MESA, AZ (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Four companies were named today to complete development of the McDonnell Douglas/Bell Helicopter SuperTeam's suite of computerized training devices for the U.S. Army's LH armed reconnaissance/attack helicopter.

The SuperTeam has selected Grumman Electronics of Bohemia, N.Y., and Loral Defense Systems of Akron, Ohio, to develop, build and integrate high-fidelity training devices for LH helicopter aircrews, and AAI Corp. of Maitland, Fla., and Hughes Simulation Systems of West Covina, Calif., to develop, build and test training devices for LH maintenance and support personnel.

These aviation training companies were chosen, as previously planned, from a team of six firms that has been working since 1989 to develop the SuperTeam's best technical approach and specifications for key training devices for the Army's LH Integrated Training System (ITS) requirement.

As currently envisioned, the LH ITS will be the largest integrated training system ever developed for an Army program and the first concurrently delivered with a new Army weapon system.

The ITS is predominately computer-driven and will be used for initial entry, recurring and requalification training.

"We have captured a great deal of leading edge technology and reduced technical risk through the synergistic efforts of six outstanding aerospace training companies to date and now will pick up the pace," said Allen C. Haggerty, McDonnell Douglas Helicopter Co. executive vice president and director of the SuperTeam's joint program organization.

"We will propose an LH training system that the Army can confidently use to provide high order instruction while reducing overall program operating costs," he said.

Haggerty described the SuperTeam's four-company training team as "the best of the best," recalling that the six semi-finalists had been selected from an initial roster of 45 companies viewed as "qualified and competitive" in the aviation training field.

"A well designed, properly focused training device system can reduce overall training costs by a third," Haggerty said. "It also will save hundreds of millions of dollars in expenditures for aircraft fuel, maintenance and repair, plus the cost of ordnance that can be effectively simulated with training devices.

"The training devices will more than pay for themselves in training efficiencies over the life-cycle of the LH program," Haggerty said.

The SuperTeam consists of McDonnell Douglas Helicopter Co. of Mesa, Ariz.; Bell Helicopter Textron of Fort Worth, Texas; and McDonnell Aircraft Co. of St. Louis.

KANSAS CITY, MO (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Hallmark Cards, Inc. and Willitts Designs have reached an agreement in principle for Hallmark to acquire Willitts, a California-based designer, importer and marketer of collectible gift items.

The sale, which is subject to the execution of a final agreement, is expected to be completed in July 1990. The purchase price was not disclosed.

"Willitts is an ideal match for Hallmark," said Tom Johnston, group vice president for the Hallmark Brand. "The firm's commitment to creating innovative products backed by high quality standards is consistent with our approach to business.

"We believe the combined marketing and design synergies of the firms will benefit both Willitts and Hallmark," Johnston said.

"The entire Willitts team is excited about joining Hallmark," said William G. Willitts Jr., president of Willitts Designs. "The chance to create a joint collectible vision with Hallmark is a tremendous opportunity for us."

The privately owned company was founded in 1961 by William G. Willitts Sr. and his wife Elda Willitts. Their son, William, was named president in 1979, and in the last decade the company has become one of the most innovative and fastest growing companies in the gift industry.

Willitts markets its products under the trademarks of Willitts Designs and Willitts Galleries. Its products include a broad line of gift and collectible items including music boxes, snow globes, porcelain figurines, kaleidoscopes, ceramic mugs, banks and plates.

Among the firm's best known collectible series is The American Carousel(TM) by Tobin Fraley.

In addition to its own design staff, Willitts has key licensing arrangements in the gift industry including Coca-Cola and the Coca-Cola Santa, Disney with the Classic Winnie the Pooh, and Peanuts.

The firm serves approximately 12,000 retail accounts in the United States and Canada and has approximately 100 employees at its Petaluma, Calif., headquarters 40 miles north of San Francisco.

Hallmark, headquartered in Kansas City, Mo., is the world's largest producer of greeting cards and related social expression products, with annual sales of about $2.5 billion.

ANAHEIM, CA (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - An Odetics digital magnetic tape recorder played an integral role in the transmission of data during the recent Galileo flyby of the planet Venus.

This was the first of several uses of the Odetics recorder scheduled throughout the Galileo mission, company officials announced today.

According to Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL) information, the Odetics recorder was used to record more than 80 images during the time Galileo passed within a million miles of Venus. JPL noted that certain down-link constraints allowed only three of the stored images of Venus to be replayed back to Earth. The images obtained showed patches of waves and convection clouds superimposed on the swirl of the planet's broad weather patterns.

Venus' images were transferred to the Odetics recorder at a rate of 806 Kbps. The recorder stored the data and translated it to a lower data rate for intermittent entry into the on-board computer memory. The limited capacity computer memory further smoothed and reduced the data rate to 1.2 Kbps for transmission to Earth. The low-rate images from Venus were reconstructed at JPL in Pasadena, Calif., a few lines at a time, until complete image frames were available.

Later in the Galileo mission the Odetics recorder will be used to store Io (the volcanic satellite) images and backup data from Galileo's probe. The probe is expected to separate from the orbiter in July 1995, about 150 days before the orbiter reaches Jupiter. When the probe enters the Jovian atmosphere, its on-board instruments will take the first direct samplings of Jupiter's atmosphere. These findings will be transmitted in real time to the Odetics recorder in the orbiter. Later, the recorded backup will be replayed to Earth. The probe will collect and transmit data for approximately one hour.

As it descends, the increasing atmospheric pressure and temperature will eventually crush and vaporize the probe. The Galileo mission, however, will continue. The orbiter will be injected into an elliptical orbit around Jupiter in order to study major Jovian satellites -- Europa, Ganymede and Callisto -- as well as Jupiter's magnetosphere.

During the six-year trip to Jupiter, which began last year, the recorder and the on-board imaging system will provide image resolution 10-times better than resolution of images received from the Voyager spacecraft. In addition, the Odetics unit is monitoring orbital corrections and maneuvers of the Galileo orbiter, as well as translating and storing high-rate Jupiter images for low-rate transmission to Earth.

The Odetics recorder offers five record rates within a range of 7.2 Kbps to 806 Kbps and four reproduce rates within a range of 7.2 Kpbs to 100 Kbps. The recorder's storage capacity is 900 Mb.

The Galileo Project is managed by the Jet Propulsion Laboratory for NASA's office of Space Science and Applications. Odetics has been supplying tape recorders to the world's major space programs for nearly 20 years. At least five Odetics recorders are on board every Space Shuttle mission.

Odetics' recorders are also collecting data on the Magellan mission to Venus, the SPOT French Earth resources satellites, and the recently launched Hubble Space Telescope.

CHICAGO (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - JMB Realty Corporation today said it will not intervene in the continuing dispute between the Service Employees International Union (SEIU) and International Service Systems (ISS) over the SEIU's efforts to unionize maintenance workers in the Century City complex in Los Angeles. JMB added that it abhors the recent violence at Century City and believes the union's planned "trash- in" of JMB is offensive and foolish.

"The SEIU certainly has the right to attempt to organize maintenance workers employed by ISS," the company said. "We also believe contractors are free to determine their own labor policies without interference from JMB.

"As a large national company, JMB makes a very inviting target," the company said. "We manage only a few of the buildings in the complex, yet JMB is the only company targeted by the SEIU's press release and advertising campaign. This is clearly an attempt to draw us into a dispute that's not ours."

JMB noted that it engages union contractors at locations across the country and has maintained excellent working relationships with each union including the SEIU. Responsible contractors are chosen based on competitive bidding, with union and non-union bidders treated equally in the process.

JMB condemned the violence at recent demonstrations at Century City, citing the June 1 action that involved property damage and physical assaults.

The company said the violence thwarts the democratic process and obscures the discussion of issues between labor and management.

"Picketers at Century City must remember that office workers have the right to a safe workplace," said the company. "There is no reason they should be dragged into this dispute too."

Referring to a national "trash-in" first announced by the SEIU in a June 6 news release and later publicized in newspaper advertisements, JMB said this form of protest is offensive and foolish. The union has asked people to "send your personal office trash" to JMB on June 15.

"In our opinion, there are much better ways to support the union's cause than participating in an action that disrupts a third party's operations," the company said.

MINNEAPOLIS (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Endotronics, Inc. (NASDAQ: ENDO) today announced results for its second quarter and six months ended March 31, 1990.

"We are pleased to report that revenues for the three-month period exceeded $1 million, compared to revenues of $758,000 for the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1989. During the three- and six-month periods ended March 31, 1990, revenues included grant revenue from three Small Business Innovation Research grants and sales of serum-free media and related products which the company began to market and sell in September 1989, through an exclusive three-year distribution agreement," said Richard E. Sakowicz, president and chief operating officer of Endotronics.

"Revenues from instrument and disposable sales decreased during the six-month period, primarily due to the absence of sales to major customers particularly in Japan. Additionally, revenues decreased from contract research and development due to completion of one of the projects in 1990. We believe our revenue base will be strengthened during fiscal 1990 through the continued expansion of our products and services, which is in line with our strategic objective of becoming a full-service bioprocessing

Endotronics also announced today that a provisional injunction order prohibiting importation and distribution of the company's product in Japan by Endrotronics' current Japanese distributor was rendered in a Japanese judicial proceeding. The provisional injunction is related to a patent dispute issue regarding cell culture instruments in Japan. "The company continues to believe the claim is invalid and has taken certain steps to appeal this injunction," said Sakowicz. "We are presently working on several alternatives which would allow us to continue to participate in the Japanese market. Endotronics is not named as a specific party of this action." Approximately 24 percent of the company's instrument and disposable revenues in fiscal 1989 were represented by sales to this distributor. The patent expires in May 1993.

The company had previously reported that in January and December 1988, the company received letters which stated that the company may be infringing on a Japanese patent relating to cell culture and demanded that the company discontinue sales in Japan of any cell culture apparatus which infringe on such patent. In May 1988, the company commenced proceedings in Japan to invalidate the claimant's Japanese patent based on the existence of prior art. In June and December 1988, the company also filed certain documents with the Japanese Customs Office for the purpose of preventing the claimant from taking action which could prevent the company from importation of its products into Japan. In July 1989, a request for temporary injunction was filed against the company's distributor in Japan. The company anticipated this action and had taken steps as mentioned above in its nullity filing to maximize its ability to overturn any such request for injunction to import its products. In August 1989, the discovery hearings on the injunction request commenced in Osaka, Japan. In May 1990, a provisional injunction order was issued against Endotronics' Japanese distributor.

TORONTO (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Cineplex Odeon Corporation (NYSE TSE: CPX) today announced that its wholly owned subsidiary, Plitt Theatres, Inc., has entered into an agreement to sell the Corporation's interest in 38 motion picture theatres with 150 screens in the states of Utah, Idaho, Minnesota, Oregon, and Washington (excluding the Seattle/Tacoma/Bellevue area) to Plitt Amusement Company, Inc. of Los Angeles, a company controlled by Henry G. Plitt. The purchase price of US$31,750,000 is subject to post-closing adjustments which are not expected to be material. The transaction is also subject to U.S. regulatory approval. It is expected to close on our about July 31, 1990. The proceeds of the transaction will be used to reduce long-term debt.

Assets sold include: 21 screens in five locations in Idaho, 49 screens in 12 locations in Utah and one theater under construction in Utah; 31 screens in seven locations in Minneapolis; 43 screens in 13 locations in Washington; and six screens in one location in Oregon. In addition, Cineplex Odeon has entered into leases, which will be assumed by the purchaser, for a total of three projects, located in Minneapolis, Portland and Salt Lake City. Excluded from the transaction is one fee property in the Minneapolis area which the corporation intends to sell.

"Cineplex Odeon will remain the market leader in the Seattle/Tacoma/Bellevue area, where we continue to operate 49 screens in 14 locations. Our withdrawal from other locations is consistent with our previously stated intention of focusing our activity on our primary exhibition markets," said Allen Karp, president and chief operating officer of Cineplex Odeon Corporation.

Cineplex Odeon is one of the largest theater circuits in North America and after giving effect to the transaction described above and other announced transactions, includes approximately 1,550 screen in 390 locations in Canada and the United States.

MIAMI (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Southeast Banking Corporation (NYSE: STB) announced today a series of steps designed to improve the company's position in light of current economic conditions.

First, the board of directors of Southeast declared a quarterly dividend today of 10 cents per common share, payable on July 17, 1990 to shareholders of record June 25, 1990. The dividend for the previous quarter was 28 cents per share.

Second, Southeast announced that it has reached a preliminary understanding with Sears Mortgage Corporation, a member of the Sears Financial Network, for the sale of certain assets of Southeast's subsidiary, Southeast Mortgage Company (SEMCO), which will strengthen Southeast's balance sheet.

The letter of understanding provides for the sale of SEMCO's residential mortgage servicing portfolio, a number of branch offices and other assets, was well as creates certain related contractual arrangements. The price will be paid in cash under a formula which Southeast presently expects will result in a payment of up to $100 million. The transaction is subject to negotiation of a definitive agreement and required approvals.

Third, in light of the concern about when Florida's credit quality problems will peak, Southeast is also assessing ways to produce significant cost savings by expense reduction programs, including deferring initiation of some planned capital projects.

Southeast also announced that it expects total nonperforming assets at June 30, 1990 to range from approximately $600 to $620 million, up from the $474 million at Mar. 31, 1990. The reserve for loan losses at June 30 1990 is expected to range from $260 million to $280 million. The company presently expects that the second quarter, and 1990 as a whole, will not be profitable.

The board of directors also declared dividends on the company's Series A adjustable rate preferred stock and its 8.75 percent Series E cumulative convertible preferred stock. The dividend on the Series A is $.939 per share, and on the Series E, $2.1875 per share. Both are payable on June 29 1990 to shareholders of record June 22, 1990.

Southeast Banking Corporation is the parent company of Southeast Bank, N.A. Southeast Banking Corporation had total assets of $17.1 billion and total deposits of $13.2 billion at Mar. 31, 1990. Southeast Banking Corporation provides financial services at more than 225 locations throughout Florida.

Other Southeast businesses include: First National in Palm Beach, a division of Southeast Bank, N.A., providing full commercial, private banking and trust services; Southeast Bank Leasing Company, with commercial leasing and financing services; Southeast Bank Brokerage Service Inc., providing discount brokerage services; Southeast Credit Insurance Company, which reinsures credit insurance policies on loans made by Southeast Bank; and Southeast Mortgage Company.

IRVINE, CA (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Technology Marketing Inc. (NASDAQ: TMKT) announced today the financial results for the fourth quarter of fiscal year 1990. Consolidated revenues in the fourth quarter ended Feb. 28, 1990 were $1,877,299, and a net loss of $680,077 for this period. This compares with sales of $2,379,633 and net profit of $268,281 for the same period a year ago. Net loss per share for the current quarter was $.22, versus a profit of $.09 for the same quarter a year ago.

For the fiscal year ended Feb. 28, 1990, TMI recorded a net loss of $1,059,977 on consolidated revenues of $7,958,458, compared to a net profit of $1,162,956 on revenues of $11,117,025 for the same period last year. The net loss per share in fiscal 1990 was $.35, compared to a net income per share of $.38 for fiscal 1989.

The company expressed disappointment with the performance of the last two quarters which resulted in losses for the year, but noted that corrective action was taken in January and February to reduce operating expense in line with lower sales revenues. The management initiated these cost reductions, along with additional sales and product development efforts, as measures taken to reduce losses and return the company to profitability.

SEATTLE (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - The Chilean airline LanChile will add five Boeing 767 extended range jetliners to its fleet over the next 13 months, Boeing Commercial Airplane Group confirmed today.

The additions include: Two 767-200ERs obtained under a lease/purchase arrangement from Ansett Worldwide Aviation Services. One of these airplanes was delivered in May 1990 and the other in June 1990.

Two 767-300ERs leased from GPA Group of Ireland, scheduled for delivery in February and July of 1991.

One previously announced 767-200ER from the leasing company GATX to be delivered in January 1991.

LanChile has been operating two 767-200ERs on routes throughout the Americas and to Europe. The additional 767 twinjets will be used to replace other airplanes currently in the fleet and to expand the airline's route structure.

The airline has expressed its intention to service all of its international routes with Boeing 767s in the future.

To date, 43 airlines worldwide have ordered 487 Boeing 767s. In the Americas, other Boeing 767 operators include Varig, Transbrasil, TACA, Avianca and several major U.S. and Canadian carriers.

COSTA MESA, CA (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - The Food and Drug Division of the Department of Ireland has authorized ICN Pharmaceuticals Inc. (NYSE: ICN) to market the antiviral drug ribavirin "for use in the management of patients infected with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV), CDC groups III and IVA, in order to prevent or delay progression of the disease process to full blown acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (AIDS)."

Ireland is the first country to authorize the antiviral drug ribavirin for treatment of HIV-infected patients. ICN has filed submissions in several countries outside the United States for permission to market ribavirin for treatment of HIV patients.

Marketing authorization was based on two six-month, double-blind, placebo-controlled clinical trials with ribavirin conducted with 379 patients in ten clinical centers in the United States in 1986 and reported on in 1987, as well as a review of other clinical experience with the drug against HIV. Ribavirin is not authorized for use in HIV-patients in the United States.

With the action of the Irish government, ribavirin is now authorized in Ireland for the early stages of AIDS, specifically persistent generalized lymphadenopathy (CDC group III) and the occurrence of systemic disease, i.e., fever, night sweats, fatigue, dyspnea, and diarrhea, persisting for more than three months (CDS group IVA).

The drug will be available by prescription only. The oral dosage will be 200 mg capsules taken four times for a total of 800 mg daily. ICN said it was keenly sensitive to the needs of HIV-infected patients and the price of ribavirin in Ireland would be less than the competitive antiviral drug on the market. It said the drug would be available to HIV patients in approximately 90 days.

Ribavirin is authorized in the United States only for the aerosolized treatment of infants and young children hospitalized with severe lower respiratory tract infection caused by respiratory syncytial virus (RSV).

It is also authorized in 16 other countries, including seven European countries, for RSV and in over 30 countries outside the United States for treatment of a number of other viral infections, including influenza, measles, herpetic infections, and hepatitis.

The company said the use of ribavirin in HIV-infected patients in Ireland will be monitored in AIDS specialist units so that additional data can be collected to continue to assess the long-term safety and efficacy profile of the drug.

ICN Pharmaceuticals, headquartered in Costa Mesa, makes and markets a broad range of prescription pharmaceuticals, medical diagnostics and biotechnology research products throughout many parts of the world. The patent for ribavirin is held by ICN's 83-percent owned pharmaceutical research and development subsidiary, Viratek Inc.

ROMULUS, MI (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Secom General Corporation (NASDAQ: SECM) announced today that it signed a letter of intent to acquire the assets and operations of a tool manufacturing company located in the Detroit area in a transaction valued at approximately $700,000.

The company expects to close the acquisition on June 25, 1990, and is unable to disclose the name of the operation being acquired until that time.

"We expect this acquisition to add a minimum of $2 million annually to our sales volume and, since the company operates in the same line of business as our other operating companies, we will be able to direct additional sales to it that we would otherwise refer elsewhere, thus further increasing our sales and overall profitability," said Roy A. McKnight, president and CEO. The operations being acquired posted sales of approximately $1.6 million for its prior fiscal year.

McKnight further stated that the company will continue to aggressively seek acquisitions that will improve operating results and provide long-term sales growth. He said the company could possibly complete the acquisition of two additional companies by year-end.

Separately, the company previously announced this month that it had acquired the land and buildings occupied by its two principal operating subsidiaries, L & H Die, Inc. and Form Flow, Inc. "The land and buildings acquisition assure L & H and Form Flow with the use of modern, conveniently located manufacturing space, and will provide the company with increasing equity in the real estate along with the elimination of annual rent expense," said McKnight.

Secom General Corporation and its wholly owned tool manufacturing subsidiaries, L & H Die, Inc. and Form Flow, Inc., are headquartered in Romulus. For the quarter ended March 31, 1990, the company recorded a profit of $200,199 ($.005 per share) on sales of $2,178,164 in comparison to a profit of $120,362 ($.003 per share) on sales of $1,932,769 for the same period last year. For the six months through March 31, 1990, the company has recorded a profit of $291,177 ($.008 per share) on sales of $4,232,544 compared to a profit of $208,690 ($.005 per share) on sales of $3,749,841 for the same period last year.

Additionally, the company has available more than $2 million in federal tax-loss carryforwards to use against future net income.

LIVINGSTON, NJ (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Valley National Bancorp ("Valley") (NASDAQ-NMS: VNBP) and Mayflower Financial Corporation ("Mayflower") (NASDAQ-NMS: MFFC) announced today that they have executed a definitive merger agreement pursuant to which Valley will acquire all of the issued and outstanding shares of Mayflower. Consummation of the transaction is subject to approval by the shareholders of Mayflower and bank regulatory authorities.

Under the terms of the acquisition, Valley will pay $15.75 in cash plus a fraction of a warrant (.3606 warrants per share) to purchase Valley common stock at an exercise price of $27.50 per share for a period of five years after closing. Valley will pay approximately $18.9 million in cash and issue approximately 450,000 warrants to acquire Mayflower which has approximately $17.8 million in shareholders' equity as of March 31, 1990.

Valley is a bank holding company with assets totalling $1.82 billion and shareholders' equity of $175,641,000 as of March 31, 1990. Valley conducts a commercial and retail banking business through its 27 full service offices located throughout the northeastern New Jersey counties of Passaic, Bergen, Hudson, Essex and Morris.

As of March 31, 1990, Mayflower had total assets of $123,664,409. Mayflower Savings Bank, Mayflower's subsidiary, has two offices in Livingston, N.J.

Gerald Lipkin, chairman and chief executive officer of Valley, said, "Mayflower Savings is a well-managed and profitable institution which fits precisely with our acquisition strategy of broadening our franchise in attractive markets. They have excellent loan quality and earnings performance records and the affiliation will enhance Mayflower's growth and earnings potential."

Norman Goldfarb, president and chief executive officer of Mayflower, said, "The proposed transaction with Valley will be advantageous to all of our constituencies -- our shareholders, our employees, and the market that we serve. We bring to Valley a strong customer following and a solid earning record."

LAKE WORTH, FL (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Cenvill Development Corp. (AMEX: CVL) today reported operating results for the second quarter and six months ended April 30, 1990.

Revenues for the second quarter of fiscal 1990 were $30,059,000 and net income was $1,033,000 or seven cents per share, compared with $31,457,000 in revenues and $550,000 or four cents per share of net income for the second quarter of fiscal 1989.

Revenues for the six months ended April 30, 1990 were $58,068,000 and net income was $1,293,000 or nine cents per share, compared with $68,883,000 in revenues and $2,966,000 or 21 cents per share in the 1989 period.

Richard Siemens, president, said "The 1990 six month results reflect delivery of 480 homes in our community and other residential developments. In addition, Oceania, our 50 percent joint venture which we also manage, commenced delivery of its first units in February, and through April had delivered a total of 99 units. During the comparable 1989 period, 478 homes were delivered, the two remaining bulk land parcels at the Polo Club were sold to builders, and unimproved land which was approved for 400 units was sold at a gain of $1.7 million. There were no similar land sales in 1990."

Siemens added, "A total of 645 new sales contracts were written at our projects during the first half of 1990, compared with 709 during the comparable 1989 period. Our April 30, 1990 backlog of units sold and not yet delivered stood at 997, representing $121 million in sales value. This compares favorably to a 791 unit backlog valued at $95 million last year. Included in the 1990 and 1989 backlog are 192 units valued at $47 million and 175 units valued at $40 million, respectively, or sales by the Oceania Joint Venture."

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - In an effort to overcome a major stumbling block to the rebuilding of Eastern Airlines, pilot union officials today told management negotiators that they will grant amnesty to most of the union pilots who crossed picket lines before the Air Line Pilots Association called off its sympathy strike.

The resolution passed this morning by the Eastern pilots 17-member Master Executive Council (MEC) states that "No pilot should be subjected to any harassment, intimidation, recrimination or discrimination by Eastern or the association, it being the Eastern Airlines MEC's intent to establish a peaceful, safe and orderly working environment."

"The court appointed trustee, Martin Shugrue, has said emphatically that labor peace is essential to the rebuilding of Eastern," said Capt. Skip Copeland, chairman of the Eastern pilots' Master Executive Council. "One of the principal ingredients of peaceful labor relations at Eastern is how to resolve the fate of some 600 pilots who honored the picket lines for most of the strike and went back to work only when, in their opinion, it became useless to continue striking," he said.

"While we were disappointed by those pilots who crossed back to the company before the sympathy strike was officially ended Nov. 22, 1989, we understand that those who held out until Aug. 6 and later all gave it their best effort. Given the concerns voiced by Mr. Shugrue, we felt that if the future relationship between these pilots and ALPA at all jeopardizes the rebuilding of Eastern, we need to remove that stumbling block. And that's exactly what the amnesty will do once a mutually acceptable back-to-work agreement is reached," said Copeland.

"The MEC resolution also gives pilots charged with violating union strike rules the option of resigning retroactively to the time of the violations. Taken together, the amnesty and the resignation option sweep clear the threat of union disciplinary action and fines against pilots who did not honor the full term of the strike. This provides a solid foundation for peaceful labor relations at Eastern, which in turn removes all obstacles for the company and the pilots to move forward in the contract negotiations and resolve the remaining issues so that we can all concentrate on saving our airline," Copeland said.

Capt. Henry Duffy, president of ALPA, said "In many ways, for us this was the ultimate concession, and it was motivated by Mr. Shugrue's own stated concerns. For the good of Eastern, its employees and customers, I hope that management responds quickly and gets us back on track to rebuilding Eastern."

BOCA RATON, FL (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Computer Products, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: CPRD), an electronics company based in Boca Raton, Fla., announced today the appointment of Richard J. Thompson as the company's new vice president and chief financial officer.

Thompson succeeds John Mitchell, who has left the company to pursue other interests.

Thompson comes to Computer products from Minneapolis-based Control Data Corporation, where he served as the group controller for the company's Technical Services division. He also held a variety of positions with Fairchild Semiconductor, including a post as the financial and management information systems manager for the company's Far East operations in Singapore. He has 18 years of experience in operations, finance, management information systems and strategic planning.

"I'm counting on Dick to help Computer Products develop the financial strategies and operating systems that will accelerate the growth and profitibility of our company through the next decade. He is an able successor to John Mitchell, who played a key financial role during the restructuring of our company," said John N. Lemasters, Computer Products' chairman, president and chief executive officer.

Computer Products, Inc. develops and manufactures power supplies and measurement and control electronics. Power supplies are used in computers and other electronic systems; measurement and control devices are used for process-control, simulator training and data communication. The company is headquartered in Boca Raton, Fla., and employs 1,800 people in the United States, Hong Kong and the Republic of Ireland.

Computer Products is listed on the NASDAQ national market system under the symbol CPRD.

MEDINAH, IL (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - From the U.S. Open: Anyone -- players, officials and golf enthusiasts -- at the U.S. Open can get a nice freebie from Ameritech Mobile Communications -- phone calls anywhere in the world. More than 64,000 minutes of phone calls will originate from the country's most prestigious golf event during tournament play.

The U.S. Open's communications network is complete, with 54 mobile phones, distributed among 42 U.S. Open security, medical and golf officials and at five locations for the public, including the Ameritech Mobile Message Center. The message center phones are operating for 64 total hours during day-time play with 15,360 minutes originating from there alone.

"Mobile communications is invaluable and a necessity in our high tech 1990s era, as evidenced by the intense demand at the U.S. Open for telephones," said Patricia Graham, Ameritech Mobile's director of marketing management. "The message center is the communications hub and a convenience for club members and spectators alike."

Ameritech Mobile Communications is the Midwest's first and largest provider of mobile communications with 260,000 cellular subscribers in a 5-state region including Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Ohio and Michigan.

GEORGETOWN, GRAND CAYMAN, BRITISH WEST INDIES (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - The Florida Employers Insurance Company (NASDAQ-NMS: FLAEF) announced today that approximately $6,000,000 of its funds have been frozen in an account in British & Commonwealth Merchant Bank (Guernsey) Limited ("B & C Guernsey Bank"), formerly Carolina Bank (Guernsey) Limited ("Carolina Bank"), as a result of the recent placement into administration of British & Commonwealth Merchant Bank PLC ("B & C Bank"), an affiliate of B & C Guernsey Bank. Since 1986, certain assets of the company have been held for the company in custody by Carolina Trust (Guernsey) Limited ("Carolina Trust"), a subsidiary of NCNB Corporation.

A bank account for the company was opened at Carolina Bank at that time.

Carolina Bank was a subsidiary of NCNB Corporation in 1986, but, according to information from Carolina Bank at the time, NCNB Corporation sold Carolina Bank, subsequently renamed British & Commonwealth Merchant Bank (Guernsey) Limited, to B & C Bank on Dec. 21, 1988.

Based on conversations with a representative of the administrators of the B & C Bank administration and a representative of The Bank of England, at present it appears reasonably likely that the company will receive all or a significant portion of its funds on deposit, although the company cannot predict with certainty whether or when it will receive such funds on deposit.

However, it is expected that there will be some delay because no amount is likely to be received until, at the earliest, such administrators issue their report, which is due no later than early September.

In a letter dated June 13, 1990, the administrators explained that although the deposits are currently frozen, "interest will accrue at (the) one month (London Interbank Bid Rate)." In addition, the company has been told that B & C Bank's Bank of England license has been reconfirmed. The company will monitor developments on this matter on a daily basis with a view to recover all of its funds as promptly as possible.

OCALA, FL (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Mid-State Federal Savings Bank (NASDAQ-NMS: MSSB) today announced that MSF Management Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary, has closed on the sale of Phase II of the Ocala Jockey Club real estate project for $1,200,000 to Meadowbrook Farms, Inc., of Ocala, Fla.

Mid-State Federal financed the purchase following a 20 percent cash down payment. Meadowbrook previously purchased the 22 remaining dwelling units in Phase I of the project for $2,250,000 in cash on May 15, 1990.

Meadowbrook had options to purchase the undeveloped Phases II and III of the project, for $1,250,000 per phase, until November 30, 1990. Meadowbrook elected to exercise its option to purchase Phase II now, in exchange for a $50,000 reduction in the purchase price and a waiver of interest on the mortgage through November 28, 1990.

Mid-State Federal estimates that MSF Management will receive net sales proceeds in the transaction approximately equal to the $1,100,000 current book value of Phase II.

Meadowbrook still has the option to purchase Phase III of the Ocala Jockey Club at a purchase price of $1,250,000. The purchase price for the remaining phase may be paid in cash or with a 20 percent down payment and seller financing. MSF Management has retained the right to contract to sell Phase III to third parties at any time during the option period, but has granted the buyer a right of first refusal with respect to any proposed sale to third parties during the term of the option. The buyer's option to purchase Phase III expires on Nov. 30, 1990, and any such purchase must be closed by that date.

The Ocala Jockey Club interests are among the properties which, if disposed of by a specified date, could increase the $54.2 million, or approximately $25.07 per share, base purchase price payable to Mid-State Federal shareholders under its previously announced acquisition agreement with First Florida Banks, Inc.

However, the amount of increase, if any, will depend upon the net proceeds received by Mid-State Federal in disposing of the Ocala Jockey Club interests and various other assets. Under the acquisition agreement with

First Florida, the maximum additional amount payable to Mid-State Federal's shareholders for the disposition of certain assets, is $5.5 million, or approximately $2.34 per share, making the total potential price payable in the acquisition $59.7 million, or approximately $27.41 per share.

Mid-State Federal is a publicly held, federally insured and federally chartered stock savings bank with its common stock traded over-the-counter and quoted on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol "MSSB". With its home office in Ocala, Fla., the thrift has assets of approximately $1 billion and operates 26 branch offices within a five county area in west central Florida.

SIOUX FALLS, SD (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - The following release is being issued by Arlo Sommervold of Woods, Fuller, Shultz & Smith P.C., attorney for the estate of Ethlyn Davis:

The Eighth Circuit of the U.S. Court of Appeals affirmed a $2,100,000 jury award against Merrill Lynch & Co. for churning (see note) the account of a 91-year-old widow. The estate of Ethlyn Davis tried the case against Merrill Lynch in federal court twice. The first trial in federal court resulted in a $2.27 million award in May 1987. The second trial in Sioux Falls Federal Court awarded the Davis estate $2.1 million in August 1988. It was the second award, which included $100,000 in compensatory damages and $2 million in punitive damages, that the U.S. Court of Appeals affirmed.

The $2 million award is the largest punitive damage ever awarded against a stockbroker in South Dakota. Arlo Sommervold, the attorney for the estate of Ethlyn Davis, said, "You can't stop people from robbing banks if the only punishment is to give the money back."

Sommervold said that the account was handled by Merrill Lynch brokers Stephen Ulrich working under Edward Marks. Between February 1982 and August 1984 Ulrich made 141 trades totalling $2,000,000 in the Davis account with an average equity of only $144,000. Ulrich was terminated by Merrill Lynch in August 1984 after other customers complained of unauthorized trading of their accounts.

ATLANTA (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - The Nuclear Regulatory Commission staff has proposed a $6,250 civil penalty against Industrial NDT Co. Inc. of North Charleston, S.C., for alleged violation of NRC safety requirements at a facility in Richmond, Va.

The NRC said that on March 3 a violation occurred at the company's Richmond, Va., facility involving an unplanned personnel exposure to radioactivity. The agency said a company radiographer failed to lock a sealed, radioactive source inside its shielded position, and, when a crank assembly fell off a chair, the source was moved out of the shielded position. The agency said it was fortuitous that an assistant came in when he did and alerted the radiographer when he saw a warning light on a gamma radiation alarm.

The radiographer was exposed to 2.52 rems but could have received a significant exposure from the 48-curie, iridium-192 source being used when the event occurred.

The NRC said the base civil penalty for this violation was $5,000 but that the proposed fine was increased by 25 percent because of prior NRC notification to materials licensees of the importance of proper control and surveys of radiography sources.

The NRC also said the company was cited, but not fined, for a source disconnect incident at Woodland, Maine, on Feb. 13, 1989. The agency said that event was of lesser safety significance and involved failures to adhere to various regulatory requirements.

The company has 30 days from receipt of the notice of violation to either pay the civil penalty or to protest it, in whole or in part.

BALTIMORE (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - The Baltimore Gas and Electric Co. (NYSE: BGE) reported common stock earnings of $46,315,000 for the five months ended May 31, 1990, equivalent to $.57 per common share.

This compares with earnings of $78,591,000, equivalent to $.99 per share, for the five months ended May 31, 1989. For the 12 months ended May 31, 1990, earnings on common stock were $211,634,000, equivalent to $2.62 per share. This compares with $262,867,000, or $3.31 per share, for the 12 months ended May 31, 1989.

The decreases in utility earnings for both periods are attributable to the effects of higher operations and maintenance expenses and increased financing costs.

Kilowatt-hour sales of electricity for the five months ended May 31, 1990, increased 1.1 percent from the comparable period last year. Residential sales increased 3.2 percent, reflecting an increase in the number of customers partially offset by warmer winter weather, while commercial and industrial sales were essentially unchanged.

PENNSAUKEN, NJ (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - J & J Snack Foods Corp. (NASDAQ: JJSF) announced today that it appears sales will be higher for the third quarter ended June 30, 1990, than last year's third quarter but that earnings will be lower.

Higher costs and disappointing retail supermarket sales have negatively affected earnings.

"We are in the process of developing and implementing new marketing and sales strategies for our retail supermarket business," said Michael Karaban, J & J's new director of marketing. He added, "While retail supermarket sales of soft pretzels have leveled off during this period of change of strategies, we are confident that the implementation of our new marketing approaches will result in significant growth of this category in the future."

In last year's third quarter, J & J had sales of $21,256,000 and earnings of $1,667,000 or $.21 a share. The fourth quarter is J & J's most significant earning period.

J & J Snack Foods manufactures and markets nutritional snack foods to the food service and retail supermarket industries. Its principal products include SUPERPRETZEL(R) and other brand soft pretzels, ICEE(R) frozen carbonated beverages, frozen treats and desserts, churros, cookies, muffins and baked health foods. J & J has plant facilities in Pennsauken; Scranton and Hatfield, Pa.; Vernon (Los Angles) and Santa Fe Springs, Calif.; and Chicago Heights, Ill.

MINNEAPOLIS (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - The chief executive officer of the world's leading supercomputer producer praised today's formal exchange of letters between the United States and Japan, intended to eliminate the obstacles that have shackled American supercomputer manufacturers in competing for business in Japan's public sector market.

At the same time, John A. Rollwagen, chairman and chief executive officer of Cray Research Inc. (NYSE: CYR), based here, emphasized that the acid test of the agreement's value will be whether or not it results in actual orders within the Japanese market.

Rollwagen called the agreement "a prelude to competitive justice" and praised U.S. Trade Ambassador Carla Hills for her leadership in making today's revised Supercomputer Procurement Agreement possible.

"While this agreement is encouraging, procedural changes alone are not enough," Rollwagen said. "The last agreement, in 1987, contained procedural changes too, but we know from experience that it produced no real change in the marketplace and allowed Japanese manufacturers to clearly circumvent the spirit of that agreement. The only true test of the revised agreement will be ongoing sales resulting in a significant increase in our share of the supercomputer installed base in the Japanese public sector, commensurate with our public sector marketshare outside of Japan.

Under terms of the revised agreement, purchase decisions in the public sector must be based on value and performance, not simply on the lowest price. Additionally, benchmark tests of real workload, not the so-called theoretical peak performance tests often used by Japanese procurers, should be the basis for bids, so that a supplier cannot bid a future model or "paper machine."

Rollwagen noted that Cray Research has achieved success in Japan's private sector market. Seventeen of the company's supercomputers have been purchased by 15 major Japanese corporations, including all the major Japanese automobile manufacturers.

The Cray Research CEO said he is encouraged by language in the letter from Japan's Trade Ambassador Ryohei Murata stating that the Japanese government has requested, in its 1990 budget request, "sufficient funds to enable public procurement of supercomputers based on prices for similar supercomputer systems in similar working environments in the private sector."

"We know from our discussions with Japanese scientists and engineers that there is a pent-up demand for our products in the public sector there," Rollwagen said. "To quantify that demand, we believe there is at least $100 million of immediate business for our supercomputers in the public sector market in Japan."

Cray Research Inc., designs, manufactures and supports the large-scale, high-speed computer systems for scientific and engineering applications.

NEW YORK (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Sutton Holding Corp. has informed DeSoto Inc. (NYSE: DSO) that pursuant to the provisions of the April 5, 1990, letter agreement between them, Sutton has elected to require DeSoto to include William Spier, Michael Zurawin and Giorgio Arra on the slate of nominees to be recommended by the board of directors of DeSoto for election as directors at DeSoto's annual meeting to be held on July 16, 1990. Spier, Zurawin and Arra are all officers and directors of Sutton.

Spier, chairman of Sutton, and Zurawin, senior vice president of Sutton, said, "We are taking this action because of our frustration that DeSoto has get to produce a transaction that provides meaningful value for shareholders, or to even advise shareholders of the status of DeSoto's efforts in this regard. Hopefully, with representation on DeSoto's board of directors, we will be able to influence in a positive manner DeSoto's efforts to maximize shareholder value, which so far have been unsuccessful for over 3-1/2 months."

As an alternative to its outstanding $50 tender offer, Sutton also announced that it has submitted a bid to DeSoto for Sutton or an affiliate of Sutton to purchase at a cash price of $45 million DeSoto's detergent business through an acquisition of all outstanding DeSoto common shares immediately following DeSoto's sale of all of its other businesses or, alternatively, to purchase DeSoto's surfactants business and detergent business if DeSoto is unable to arrange the sale of the surfactants business alone at a cash price of at least approximately $90 million. Spier and Zurawin indicated that Sutton submitted this bid to DeSoto because of rumors that DeSoto was having difficulty selling certain businesses in a timely manner. Spier and Zurawin stated that Sutton was hopeful that this proposal would help facilitate a transaction in which DeSoto shareholders would receive all cash for their shares rather than be subject to a transaction involving continuing public ownership of all or a portion of DeSoto's businesses.

Sutton also announced today that it has extended the expiration date of its cash tender offer for all of the outstanding shares of common stock of DeSoto (including the associated preferred share purchase rights) at $50 per share, until midnight, New York City time, on Monday, June 25. The offer was previously set to expire at midnight, New York City time, on Friday, June 15. Sutton stated that it remains willing to work with DeSoto to seek to consummate the offer, but that DeSoto continues to fail to actively cooperate with Sutton.

Sutton was advised by the depositary for the tender offer that as of 3 p.m., New York City time, on Friday, June 15, 2,018,855 shares of common stock had been validly tendered and not withdrawn which, together with the shares beneficially owned by Sutton and its affiliates, collectively represent approximately 64 percent of all outstanding DeSoto shares.

VANCOUVER, BRITISH COLUMBIA (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Malcolm F.W. Todd, vice president of Prairie Pacific, announces acceptance by the Alberta Stock Exchange of Prairie Pacific's (Alberta: PRP) notice of intention to make a normal course issuer bid.

Prairie Pacific will commence with the normal course issuer bid to acquire up to 200,000 common shares on July 1st, 1990 and will continue until June 30th, 1991, or until the maximum number of shares sought are purchased. Presently there are 4,269,540 common shares issued and outstanding, of which the public float is approximately 3,245,315, therefore the maximum number of shares to be acquired represents 4.7 percent of the total issued and outstanding or 6.2 percent of the public float.

The purchase of any common shares through this normal course issuer bid will be effected through the facilities of the Alberta Stock Exchange. Prairie Pacific's shares also trade through the facilities of NASDAQ in the United States. There will be no purchases made through NASDAQ in this regard. Prairie Pacific expects to purchase shares as available at such prices as Prairie Pacific believes practical and in the best interest of Prairie Pacific.

A copy of the notice will accompany the mailout of Prairie Pacific's interim consolidated financial statements for the six months ended March 31st, 1990.

PALO ALTO, CALIF. (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Reflecting strong growth and efforts to enhance competitiveness, Ford Aerospace, Space Systems Division today broke ground for a new 100,000-square-foot building that will consolidate existing satellite engineering operations.

The new facility will optimize efficiencies and help SSD fulfill its record satellite backlog.

The mayors of Palo Alto and East Palo Alto, local dignitaries, and Ford Aerospace executives joined in the ceremony along with many of SSD's 2,300 employees. Ford Aerospace President Donald B. Rassier told the crowd, "Our presence here today is testimony to Ford Aerospace's relentless pursuit of excellence and commitment to our customers around the world."

Robert E. Berry, vice president and general manager of SSD, asserted, "The quality and productivity of our employees, especially our engineers, will be greatly enhanced in this new facility."

Scheduled for completion in the fall 1991, the $14 million building will house various activities including antenna, spacecraft, and systems engineering; advanced systems, flight assurance and program management offices. Some 430 people will work in the new facility, which will be built on five acres adjacent to SSD's current location.

SSD, one of Ford Aerospace's largest operating units, is responsible for design, development and production of advanced communications and weather satellites.

Founded more than 30 years ago, SSD has built more than 80 satellites, which have logged over 400 years of on-orbit operations and achieved over 95 percent of performance objectives. Thirteen advanced satellites are now in various stages of production.

Ford Aerospace, a wholly owned subsidiary of Ford Motor Company (NYSE: F), is a leader in command, control, communications and intelligence systems; tactical weapon systems; satellites and space systems; and professional and technical services. The corporation is headquartered in Newport Beach, Calif., with major operations in California, Colorado, New Mexico, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas and the Washington metropolitan area.

TRENTON, NJ (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - New Jersey Banking Commissioner Jeff Connor today approved the appointment of the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) as conservator for United Savings & Loan Association of Trenton, located in Lawrenceville, N.J., effective immediately. Connor approved the action after receiving information from the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) which indicated that the institution has insufficient capital to operate in a safe and sound manner without special government assistance.

"The bottom line is that the institution is insolvent in terms of tangible equity and they continue to suffer losses," Connor said. "It is imperative, however, that people who bank in New Jersey understand that our banking system is strong. Approving this action is just part of the department's ongoing responsibility to constantly monitor and guide the financial system in New Jersey, assuring depositors an environment of safety in banking." The commissioner also stressed that the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation fully insures all deposit accounts of up to $100,000.

United Savings & Loan of Trenton posted losses as of Dec. 31, 1989, of $9.7 million, and first-quarter 1990 losses of nearly $2 million. The institution, which has assets totalling $277.7 million, will be converted from a state to a federal charter, and a managing agent will be appointed.

United was founded in 1915 as a state-chartered mutual savings and loan association (a mutual association is one that is owned by its depositors, instead of stockholders). The association operates six branch offices in New Jersey and five wholly owned service corporations, also in the state.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) today placed First Federal Savings Bank of New Orleans, Metairie, La., in receivership and chartered a new federal mutual institution to takes its place.

The new institution, First Savings Bank of New Orleans, F.S.B., will assume certain assets and liabilities of the old thrift, and will operate in conservatorship under the oversight of the Resolution Trust Corporation.

The conservatorship did not result in any interruption of First Savings' day-to-day operations. The institution and its four branches in Metairie, Mandeville and New Orleans will remain open for business as usual. Holders of insured accounts are not affected by the action, which was taken by OTS to protect insured depositors and the interests of the thrift insurance fund. Deposits remain insured to the $100,000 legal limit.

OTS initiated the action because First Federal was operating in an unsafe and unsound condition and has suffered losses that have depleted all of its capital, with no prospect of replenishment without federal assistant.

First Federal's insolvency is due primarily to a significant writedown (from $13.1 million to $1.2 million) in goodwill in the quarter ending March 31, 1989, as well as an excessive amount of non-earning assets, substantial loan losses, real estate owned and a depressed local economy.

As of March 31, 1990, First Federal reported assets of $156.3 million, liabilities of $171.51 million and tangible capital of negative $16.09 million, for a tangible capital-to-assets ratio of negative 10.3 percent.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) today placed United Savings and Loan Association of Trenton, Lawrenceville N.J., in receivership and chartered a new federal mutual institution to take its place.

The new institution, United Savings and Loan Association of Trenton, F.A., will assume certain assets and liabilities of the old thrift, and will operate in conservatorship under the oversight of the Resolution Trust Corporation.

The receivership did not result in any interruption of United's day-to-day operations. The institution and its six branches will remain open for business as usual. Holders of insured accounts are not affected by the action, which was taken by OTS to protect insured depositors and the interests of the thrift insurance fund.

OTS initiated the action because United was operating in an unsafe and unsound condition and has suffered losses that have depleted all of its capital, with no prospect of replenishment without federal assistance. The institution is insolvent in that it has negative tangible capital.

United's condition is due primarily to a low net interest margin, and to declining asset quality brought about by poor underwriting on acquisition, development and construction (ADC) loans.

The erosion of asset quality has led to significant writedowns and the establishment of loan loss reserves, which further weakened United's capital position. Approximately 15 percent of the institution's total assets have been classified as substandard, doubtful or loss.

Although new management has reduced liabilities significantly and has made progress in working out troubled loans, the institution does not have the resources to operate within regulatory requirements.

As of Feb. 28, 1990, United reported assets of $278.8 million, liabilities of $288.1 million and tangible capital of negative $9.3 million, for a tangible capital-to-assets ratio of negative 3.24 percent.

FLINT, MI (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Flint-based Action Auto (NASDAQ: AAST) today announced that it has filed for a voluntary petition for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code in U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the Eastern District of Michigan in order to continue the company's restructuring and consolidation program.

C. James Sabo, chairman and chief executive officer of Action Auto, said, "We regret having to take this action, but we believe that it was absolutely necessary for the overall well-being of the company."

Chapter 11 allows a company to operate under court supervision while seeking to put together a reorganization plan. Action Auto recently announced losses for its third quarter and for the nine months ended March 31, 1990.

Sabo also stated that the Chapter 11 filing should not affect the efforts under way by the investment banking firm of PaineWebber Incorporated to restructure the company. "Indeed," Sabo said, "we believe the protection afforded by Chapter 11 can assist Action Auto and its financial advisers in the restructuring."

Action Auto currently operates 56 auto parts stores in Michigan. It also offers service and sells gasoline.

DALLAS (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Metro Airlines Inc. today announced that the company's symbol on the National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotation (NASDAQ) System will be changed temporarily to "MAIRC " effective June 19, 1990. Metro's common stock will continue to be included for quotation in the NASDAQ National Market System, and the company's convertible subordinated debentures will be quoted on the NASDAQ system under the symbol, "MAIGC."

Metro's stock symbol was changed after the company sought, and received, a temporary exception to the capital and surplus maintenance requirements at a National Association of Securities Dealers administrative hearing in New York on June 14. While Metro failed to meet these requirements as of Jan. 1, 1990, the NASD has granted a temporary exception from this standard subject to Metro's meeting certain conditions. While the company believes that it can meet these conditions, there can be no assurance that it will do so. If at some future date the company's securities should cease to be quoted on the NASDAQ System, they should continue to be quoted in the over-the-counter market.

Metro told the NASD examiners that the company's operations have been affected by significant non-recurring problems, including uncertainties regarding Eastern Air Lines, for which Metro flies as Eastern Metro Express from hubs in Atlanta and San Juan, Puerto Rico, and damages from Hurricane Hugo in the Caribbean in the fall of 1989.

The company has achieved a significant turnaround in the three months ended May 1990. The Atlanta operation is now profitable. Passengers' and travel agents' confidence in Eastern is increasing daily, and Metro's traffic and advance bookings at the Atlanta hub have been running at all-time highs for the last several months. All of metro's other operations have improved significantly in recent months, and, based on present traffic and advanced bookings, the company projects profitable results for the fiscal year ending April 30, 1990.

Metro Airlines Inc., one of the nation's largest regional airlines, operates 110 turboprop aircraft serving 71 cities in the southwestern and eastern United States and the Caribbean, with hubs at Dallas/Fort Worth, Atlanta and San Juan.

LA JOLLA, CA (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - After months of research and analysis with investment bankers and major agencies that shape the scope of single family lending, American Residential Mortgage Corporation (ARMC) is offering a strong solution to slowing housing sales and prices that have outdistanced many would-be homeowners.

"Our new MORCAT(tm) program, or Zero Coupon second, offers a superior alternative to both the homebuyers and the builder when contrasted with virtually all other buydown subsidies available on the market today," announced Frank Martorano, 38, vice president of ARMC's national builder sales.

"We allow selected builders to negotiate commitments for their single-family detached projects where they carry a second mortgage of 15 to 20 percent of the sales price with absolutely no interest or payments for a full two years. The mortgage has payments in months 26-36 that go strictly to principal, then fully amortizes over the remaining 12 years to complete a 15-year term, " added Martorano. ARMC guarantees to qualify borrowers based on the payments of the 30- year fixed rate first mortgages only. "The homebuyer automatically gets more than a 20 percent boost in purchasing power."

ARMC is working on a program which will allow them to fund the second mortgages at closing for the builder, thereby cashing them out at discounts that are comparable to 3/2/1 buydowns.

Martorano indicated that ARMC's program offers buyers the chance to get financing up to $600,000 with as little as 15 percent down payments and no mortgage insurance requirements. In addition, there are no indexes, margins, or deferred interest for the buyer to worry about.

ARMC's chairman since 1983, John Robbins recently led a buyout from its former parent, First Nationwide Bank, with the New York- based investment firm Welsh, Carson, Anderson and Stowe. The buyout included over $800 million in loan servicing and 33 production branches in 14 states.

Robbin's group has been an aggressive performer for many major homebuilders throughout the West Coast, and the company forecasts single family closings of $2.7 billion for calendar year 1990, down slightly from 1989's $3.2 billion.

The new program will be available to mid-size and larger homebuilders in most states. While noting a slightly declining market in general for mortgage lending, Robbins indicated, "There will always be opportunity for lenders who are able to offer improved products for the homebuyer while maintaining strong quality control standards for major agencies and investors."

ARMC's loan volume places them near the top of annual funding volume among the nation's mortgage bankers.

HOUSTON (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - One week before the official start of summer, Continental Airlines today announced a multi-million- dollar package of summer service improvements including the addition of 400 summer interns and more inflight amenities.

"Our research shows that what vacation travelers want most is a hassle-free airline trip," said John W. Nelson, executive vice president-marketing. "Therefore we are making changes this summer that will make the airport and airline experience more enjoyable."

Continental has hired 400 summer interns, dubbed "Go-Getters," who will assist travelers at more than two dozen major airports. Attired in bright red shirts and khaki shorts, these temporary employees will help carry baggage, fetch a forgotten item, assist disabled travelers, and help airport agents with other special customer needs.

Customers will also see a change at curb-side check-in locations at major airports. Continental plans to have "traffic managers" to help alleviate vehicle congestion at the point where travelers are dropped off for their trip. Traffic managers will not try to shoo away cars, but will help organize and orchestrate vehicle activity in the standing zone.

Other Continental staff have been designated to assist customers in getting out of line at major airports. Surveys show that many travelers stand in line when they don't need to. Continental is adding more staff at ticket counters and gate podiums to speed up the check-in process.

On certain flights Continental will offer special summer fare, including root beer and Blue Bell ice cream. First class customers will be served cookies baked fresh in flight.

Flight attendants have greater leeway to help resolve customer service discrepancies by issuing a voucher, the "Customer CARE Certificate," good for a future purchase or OnePass mileage.

A children's inflight activity kit has been expanded and will be more widely available. Additionally, more domestic flights will feature inflight movies.

NEWARK, NJ (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - First Fidelity Bank, N.A., New Jersey, (NYSE: FFB) announced today that it had resigned as trustee for the 13-3/4 percent First Mortgage Bonds, Series A-1, due June 15, 1997, and the 7 percent First Mortgage Bonds, Series A-2, due June 15, 1999, of Trump's Castle Funding, Inc. and for the public bonds of Trump Plaza Funding, Inc.

First Fidelity said that, while the bank can continue to administer these trusts under the trust indenture without any conflict of interest, it had tendered its resignation to the issuing bodies to avoid the appearance of any conflict. First Fidelity is a lender to the Trump Organization.

First Fidelity said it will assist in the appointment of a successor trustee and will continue to administer the trusts in the role of retiring trustee until such successor is appointed.

First Fidelity said that it intended, as called for in the indenture, to send notice of default to Trump's Castle Funding, Inc. if good funds were not received by midnight Friday, June 15, 1990, to meet the $15,592,500 interest payment due on the 13-3/4 percent First Mortgage Bonds, Series A-1, and the principal payment of $22,680,000 due on the same issue and the interest payment of $4,375,000 due on the 7 percent First Mortgage Bonds, Series A-2. An event of default will occur if payment is not received within 10 days of the delivery of the notice of default.

The Trump Organization announced earlier Friday that, pending the outcome of ongoing negotiations with its lenders, it would not meet these obligations

First Fidelity said that the $16,095,000 interest payment due Friday, June 15, 1990, on the bonds of Trump Plaza Funding, Inc. had been received and transmitted to the bondholders.

LOUISVILLE, KY (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Glenmore Distilleries Company has learned that pieces of broken glass have been found in a small number of bottles of 200 ml size of Fleischmann's Vodka produced in California and sold in California and Arizona.

Any consumer who is in possession of a 200 ml bottle of Fleischmann's Vodka purchased in California or Arizona is asked to return it, unopened, to the retail store where it was purchased. The labels show the production site as San Jose, Calif.

Stores are being instructed by telephone to remove the product from their shelves immediately. The problem is related only to the 200 ml size in California and Arizona, and the company has instituted additional inspection procedures designed to prevent a recurrence of this situation.

IRVINE, CALIF (JUNE 15) PR NEWSWIRE - United Leisure Corp. today announced that its revenues for 1989 were $1,670,622 compared to $1,799,945 for fiscal 1988. The decline in revenues of approximately $129,000 was mainly as a result of a decline in the revenues of one of the subtenants. The expenses for 1989 were $2,200,200 compared to $1,697,187 for fiscal 1988. This increase was occasioned by the increased legal costs that the company incurred in its lawsuit against The Irvine Company and the need to readjust its occupancy cost to allow for the adverse ruling that the company received from the court relating to the percentage rent payable to the Irvine Company from the waterpark.

The company reported an overall profit for 1989 of $216,466 which included an extraordinary gain from modification of debt in the amount of $669,644. In fiscal 1988 the company reported net income of $101,258.

Harry Shuster, chairman and president of United Leisure Corporation, stated that Lion Country Safari Inc.-California (Lion Country), a wholly owned subsidiary and its primary operating arm, has been engaged in substantial litigation with the landlord of the company's California property, The Irvine Company, since 1985. In the litigation, which was commenced by one of Lion Country's sub- lessees against The Irvine Company Lion Country has claimed substantial damages on the basis that the landlord has been engaged in a long-term effort to damage its operations and to put it in a position where it must vacate the premises. The matter is set for trial on Sept. 4, 1990. The success or failure of this litigation is material to the company as its claims are substantial. Lion Country is not in a position to comment as to what would result from an adverse decision in the litigation. Accordingly, the company's management is devoting a substantial part of its time and the company's resources in preparing for the trial.

During the pendency of the litigation, The Irvine Company has consistently utilized its superior financial resources in an effort to force Lion Country out of business and thus off the leased premises. Every effort has been made to destroy Lion Country's ability to carry on its litigation effectively. During August, 1989, The Irvine Company filed a motion to attach Lion Country's income pending the outcome of the litigation. The court granted the motion, however, after the filing of third party claims by Shuster and Executive Life Insurance Company, one of the company's lender, a stipulation was entered into among the parties that allowed Lion Country to retain certain of its revenues on the condition that the remaining revenues would be paid over to satisfy the attachment. To date, approximately $289,262 has been paid over in connection with this attachment, severely restricting the company's ability to carry out its operations.

Recently, as part of its continuing efforts to cripple Lion Country's ability to operate and to prosecute the all important litigation, The Irvine Company filed another similar motion to attach all of Lion Country's revenues. This motion was similarly granted by the court. The attachment that will follow would prevent Lion Country from carrying on its business and Lion Country would possibly not have available to it the financial resources which will be required to effectively prosecute its substantial claims against The Irvine Company.

Management of the company intends to take all actions and all steps as may be necessary to insure that the litigation continues to conclusion and that its shareholders and creditors are protected to the full extent possible, including, if necessary, seeking protection of the United States Bankruptcy Court under Chapter 11 under the Bankruptcy Code. The company's management believes that there is a reasonable likelihood that the trial of all the issues among the parties will result in significant judgment in favor of Lion Country, although there is no assurance that this will be the case. Management has resolved that the company will not be forced into a position where the superior financial strength of The Irvine Company forces it to give up its substantial rights, or its day in court.

LOS ANGELES (JUNE 15) UPI - Elizabeth Taylor, hospitalized since early April with a near-fatal bout of pneumonia, went home Thursday night.

The actress waved to a throng of reporters and photographers and sped off in a red car shortly before 8 p.m. PDT.

''I am finally glad to be going home,'' Taylor, 58, said in a statement released by her publicist in New York. ''My sole concern at this time is focused on my getting well and carrying on with my life.

''Throughout this experience I have learned how precious life is, how much I love it and yearn to live more of it. I am grateful to everyone who supported me through this difficult period. Their caring will be an essential part of my total recovery.''

The Academy Award-winning actress entered a hospital April 9 for a persistent sinus infection and fever. When her condition worsened, she was transferred to Saint John's Hospital and Health Center in Santa Monica, where tests revealed she was suffering from viral pneumonia.

Her doctors said the pneumonia nearly killed her. She then began recovering, but developed a bacterial pneumonia and yeast infection of the blood that kept her hospitalized far longer than originally anticipated.

Lisa Del Favero, one of Taylor's publicists in New York, said the actress would have a long recuperation at home.

Throughout her hospitalization, there were recurring reports she was suffering from a variety of illnesses, including cancer and AIDS. Taylor, through her publicists, denied she was suffering from either disease.

Taylor has had a long history of health problems, dating to her childhood, when she injured her back in a fall from a horse during filming of the 1945 movie ''National Velvet.''

She nearly died of pneumonia in the early 1960s and admitted to a long dependence on alcohol and such drugs as Demerol and Valium.

Taylor won Oscars for best actress for her performances in ''Butterfield 8'' and ''Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf.''

She has been married seven times, twice to the late actor Richard Burton.

NEW YORK (JUNE 15) UPI - A man shot and seriously wounded a teenager who was following him and a girlfriend Thursday when he saw the youth reach for what he thought was a gun while on a subway platform in Grand Central Terminal, transit police said.

The 15-year-old boy was shot in the neck. The woman companion of the unidentified shooter was then robbed by a gang of youths in a strange sequence of events that began about 2:35 p.m., officials said.

Authorities later arrested the suspected gunman, identified as Pierre Nelson, 17, of the Bronx, on attempted murder and criminal weapons possession charges.

No weapon was ever found on the teen, who witnesses said was shot when he reached into his clothing as if to pull out a gun, Transit Police spokesman Al O'Leary reported.

A spokesman at Bellevue Hospital said the youth underwent surgery and was listed in serious but stable condition late Thursday.

Earlier, officials believed that the shooter fired and struck one gang member who was attempting to rob his woman friend of a gold chain, but later O'Leary said the robbery happened only after the shooter fled and a gang of youths who were on the train decided to take advantage of the stranded woman.

The incident began when the shooter and his woman companion, said to be Hispanic, were walking into the subway terminal.

''We originally believed that they were followed into Grand Central by a group,'' O'Leary said. ''Now, we believe they were followed by one individual who they were suspicious of.''

The couple boarded a northbound No. 6 train in one of the city's busiest subway stations and when the doors closed, the teenager who was following them was left standing on the platform.

''For some reason, the witnesses indicate that the guy on the platform made a motion like he was going for a weapon,'' O'Leary said. ''There was a commotion and the conductor opened the doors again. That's when the man, who was with the girl, fired one shot from inside the train to the platform at the suspicious character.''

After the teen fell down, ''the shooter fled, put the weapon back into the bag that he had removed it from and dropped the bag'' while running.

''At this point, a group of teenagers on the train robbed the shooter's girlfriend of the goldchain,'' O'Leary said.

Nine youths ranging in age from 18 to 14 were being held Thursday in connection with the robbery.

(JUNE 15) UPI - A defiant Senate Thursday ignored threats of a veto from President Bush and gave final congressional approval to a bill that requires businesses with more than 50 workers to provide 12 weeks of UNpaid family and medical leave. Bush has said he will veto the bill, which conservatives claim takes away the right of businesses to choose worker benefits.

Hundreds of club-wielding coal miners are roving the streets of Bucharest, Romania, indiscriminately stopping passers-by and occasionally attacking people they suspect oppose the government. The vigilante groups responded to Romanian President Ion Iliescu's call to restore order Thursday. Two days of bloody UNrest have claimed the lives of at least five people.

A Boston man is scheduled to be arraigned Friday on two counts of murder and two counts of assault with a gun. Police say Nicola Colafella burst into the apartment of tenants he had tried UNsuccessfully to evict bearing a gun and an axe. He killed the father and son, and wounded the mother and another son before being disarmed.

Officials at Atlanta Hospital in Georgia say everything went well Thursday for a 38-year-old AIDS patient who underwent a radical treatment to combat the deadly virus. Tony Mascio is the second person to undergo the so-called hyperthermia therapy, which pumps the patient's blood through a dialysis-type machine and heats it to 115 degrees Fahrenheit.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - The Bush administration is discussing with key senators possible compromises in the proposed Civil Rights Act of 1990, hoping to avoid a battle in the Senate while Nelson Mandela visits the United States, The Washington Post reported Friday.

Unidentified administration officials told the newspaper that debate over a formal compromise position is still going on in the White House and the Justice Department. But officials also said a multi-page document that outlines some changes in the bill has been drafted after weeks of internal debate.

The document is being used as the foundation for talks with Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., one of the authors of the Civil Rights Act of 1990. The bill seeks to reverse the effect of five Supreme Court decisions making it harder for workers to bring successful discrimination suits and easier to challenge the legality of affirmative action plans.

A major issue being decided is whether the legislation will encourage employers to resort to hiring by quota in order to avoid costly, complex lawsuits, the newspaper said.

The issue stems from last year's decision in the ''Wards Cove'' court case which essentially shifted the burden of proof in discrimination cases from the employer to the employee. The administration maintains the bill would move the burden back to employers and impose such stringent standards that companies would resort to quotas to avoid the lawsuits if the work force does not reflect significant hiring of minorities and women.

There has been no date set for debate in the Senate on the bill. Civil rights groups are pressing the Senate to begin debate late next week, when Mandela, the African National Congress leader, is touring the United States. Mandela was released from prison in South Africa last year after more than a quarter century of incarceration.

PORTLAND, OR (JUNE 15) UPI - Move over Bill Russell. Step aside, George Mikan and Magic Johnson. The Bad Boys have bullied their way into your exclusive neighborhood.

The Detroit Pistons gained entrance into the elite club of repeat champions Thursday night, defeating the Portland Trail Blazers 92-90 to complete a record-tying road sweep in the NBA Finals.

Vinnie Johnson, dormant in the first three quarters, nailed a 15-foot jumper with seven-tenths of a second left to snap a 90-90 tie as Detroit won the best-of-seven series 4 games to 1 to join the Celtics and Lakers as the only franchises in league history to capture the crown in consecutive seasons.

''When I was in college (at Baylor) I used to hit them all the time,'' said the man nicknamed 'Microwave.' ''But never in the pros.''

Johnson scored 15 of his 16 points in the final period, including 7 of his team's last 9 points, as the Pistons stormed back from a 90-83 deficit with two minutes to play.

Pistons playmaker Isiah Thomas, who averaged 27.6 points a game in the series, was a unanimous choice to receive the Most Valuable Player award in the Finals.

Detroit, which swept the Lakers last year, needed only nine games in the championship round to win back-to-back titles. That bettered the previous record of 10 set by Boston in 1964 and 1965.

''We believe we are one of the best teams ever to play the game of basketball,'' said Thomas, who had 29 points on 13 of 20 shooting.

The Pistons joined the 1953 Minneapolis Lakers as the only teams to win three road games in the Finals. The two also are the only clubs to capture the middle three road games in the 10 title series to feature the 2-3-2 format.

''Any team that can come into this arena and win three in a row is a great team,'' Detroit Coach Chuck Daly said. ''I really wanted to get it over with. I did not want to play another game (in Detroit).''

What made this all so amazing was the fact Detroit had entered Game 3 at Memorial Coliseum with a 16-year, 20-game losing streak at Portland. And the Trail Blazers had won their first nine home games in the playoffs.

Portland, though, faltered after winning Game 2 in overtime at the Palace, and thus failed in its bid to win its second NBA title and first since 1977.

''In the last two minutes they made every difficult shot they had to make '' Trail Blazers Coach Rick Adelman said. ''That's why they're the world champions.''

The Trail Blazers lost three straight home games for the first time since Jan. 1989. The Pistons set a Finals record with their fifth straight road victory dating to last year.

After Buck Williams concluded a 9-2 Portland burst with a jam with 2:07 to play, Thomas came off the bench after a six-minute rest - he suffered a bloody nose when elbowed by Jerome Kersey - and Detroit began its comeback.

Johnson struck for 5 quick points before a Thomas jumper - his only points of the fourth quarter - tied it 90-90 with 36.5 seconds left.

After Portland's Terry Porter threw the ball out of bounds 16 seconds later, Johnson took a pass from Thomas, backed into Kersey, then pulled up to swish his game-winner.

''I held it for a couple of seconds,'' Johnson said. ''I dribbled in and let it go. It was great. I've never hit a shot like that.''

Porter was then short on a baseline jumper as time expired, and the delirious Pistons began to celebrate on the court.

Kevin Duckworth and Porter led the Trail Blazers with 21 points apiece and Clyde Drexler added 20. Bill Laimbeer grabbed 17 rebounds for the Pistons.

Porter's foul shots had given the Trail Blazers their largest lead at 76-69 with 8:59 left, but Johnson, who hit 6 of his last 7 shots, suddenly caught fire. Held to just four shots to that point - he missed them all - the 6-foot-2 fireplug nailed 3 in a row and added two foul shots to put the Pistons ahead 77-76 with 6:34 left.

The game could mark the end of the coaching career of Daly, who is considering taking an analyst's job with NBC next season. Daly, 59, took Detroit to the Finals three straight years and is 431-236 in seven seasons with the Pistons.

''I like coaching; I'm getting pretty good at it,'' he said. ''I'm going to try to enjoy this. There's no timetable on my decision.''

The Celtics won eight straight NBA championships from 1959-66 and took two more in 1967-68. The Lakers took titles in 1949-50 and 1952-54 in Minneapolis, then won back-to-back in 1987-88 in Los Angeles.

Porter, 3 of 16 from 3-point range entering the game, had three baskets from long range in the third quarter as Portland erased a 46-42 halftime deficit to take a 69-65 lead into the final quarter.

Porter connected from beyond the arc to break a 55-55 tie with six minutes left in the period. Drexler then scored 7 of Portland's next 9 points - 3 coming on a spectacular reverse baseline slam and free throw - and Porter sank another bomb with just 3.8 seconds left in the quarter.

Unlike Game 4, Thomas displayed his championship form early. He dropped in 15 points on 7 of 9 shooting in the first quarter, and the Pistons led 26-22. The Trail Blazers missed 8 of their last 10 shots in the period.

Thomas then scored 5 more in an 11-2 burst that produced the game's largest lead to that point at 37-29 before sitting down for a five-minute rest.

While the Pistons struggled to score without their star, Duckworth - who had 10 points on 5 of 5 shooting in the second quarter - triggered a 12-4 run that put Portland even at 41-41.

Joe Dumars, though, countered with his first of only two field goals after five misses, and Detroit led 46-42 at the intermission.

MONROVIA, LIBERIA (JUNE 15) UPI - Some 5,000 people marched chanting and singing through Monrovia's rain-soaked streets and called on the government, the rebels and the United States to end the 6-month-old civil war.

The demonstrators Thursday also demanded that the government take steps to assure internal security and requested that an international peacekeeping force be sent to Liberia.

Ignoring calls from the military not to hold the march, Moslem leaders and heads of the Liberian Council of Churches led the crowd, made up mostly of women, in a 4-mile march through the city to deliver an impassioned appeal for help at the gates of the U.S. Embassy.

''This is an SOS,'' said Bishop W.N. Dixon, acting president of the Liberian Council of Churches, which is sponsoring peace talks between the government and the rebels in neighboring Sierra Leone.

The emotional crowd waved palm fronds, sang ''We Shall Overcome,'' and chanted, ''No more war; we want peace,'' as it swayed and danced through the humid drizzle that hung over Monrovia.

Many carried banners and placards saying, ''America come to our aid,'' ''Stop Tribalism,'' ''Unity in Christ'' and simply ''Cease-Fire.''

The Rev. J. Samuel Reeves read a four-page joint statement by Moslems and Christians demanding immediate peace and calling ''on the international community, especially the United States government, to intervene in this unwholesome situation by providing a peacekeeping force that will protect lives and properties.''

The statement also demanded that the government halt the disintegration of military discipline in Monrovia. ''We continue to be hunted by harassment, sexual molestations, intimidation and killings,'' it said.

Thousands of soldiers and civilians have been killed since rebel leader Charles Taylor led a force of a few hundred men across Liberia's eastern border in December to challenge the 10-year rule of President Samuel Doe.

Refugees in Monrovia have reported widespread atrocities by government and rebel soldiers. For the past three weeks, Monrovia has been the scene of mutilations, decapitations, rapes and harassment believed to have been carried ouit by renegade army units bent on a tribal war.

''We come representing every tribe and every sector of this nation to demand that the government of Liberia and the (rebel) National Patriotic Front agree immediately to a cease-fire to be monitored and supervised by an acceptable peace-keeping force,'' Reeves read over a loudspeaker to the assembled crowd.

The U.S. charge d'affaires, Dennis Jett, accepted the statement on behalf of Washington, thanked the religious leaders and said he would transmit their message to the U.S. government.

To loud cheers he assured the crowd that the United States ''will continue to do what it can to help Liberians achieve the peace they want.''

''But I must also point out that it is Liberians who are killing Liberians '' Jett said.

''It is time for those Liberians who said they would do anything to bring about peace to do it,'' he called, in apparent reference to a pledge by Doe to end the bloody conflict.

ALGIERS, ALGERIA (JUNE 15) UPI - The government declared the Moslem fundamentalist Islamic Salvation Front the winner in the first multi-party elections since independence from France 28 years ago.

Interior Minister Mohammed Salah Mohammdi said Thursday the fundamentalists had obtained 55 percent of the municipal vote to the governing National Liberation Front's 31.64 percent.

The government said the Moslem fundamentalists won 32 provincial departments, or wilayas, to 14 for the ruling National Liberation Front, or FLN.

The official results gave the fundamentalists an even larger victory than had been predicted by early returns Wednesday, which showed the Islamic Salvation Front winning in 25 provincial departments.

The fundamentalist victory over the ruling National Liberation Front heightened concerns in France about a sharp increase in Algerian immigration and the strengthening of Jean-Marie Le Pen's anti-immigrant National Front movement.

President Francois Mitterrand, on an official visit to Maurice Island in the Indian Ocean, said France's immigration laws would not be applied any differently because of the elections.

Many French are also afraid the results in Algeria could encourage fundamentalist tendencies among the 700,000 Algerians who already live in France.

The Algerian results were also likely to raise concern in neighboring Morocco and Tunisia, where budding fundamentalist movements have picked up strength in recent months.

The official Algerian media played down the extent to which the ruling party was trounced. The French-language National Liberation Front newspaper El Moudjahid headlined its front-page report on the elections: ''Delay due to the complexity of the scrutiny.''

For the second day running, the newspaper hit the streets several hours late because of a mysterious strike in its distribution network to newsstands around the capital, Algiers.

News that the Islamic Salvation Front had obtained a majority in 327 municipalities compared with only 208 won by the FLN was buried in small print.

Political experts said although it was a humiliating defeat for FLN President Chadli Bendjedid, the government was trying to put a brave face on the outcome, portrayed as a protest against outdated party policies.

The FLN has held power since Algeria gained independence from France 28 years ago.

The political analysts said in some ways Chadli hoped to turn the results to his own advantage by purging many of the old guard from the party.

They said it was unlikely the Moslem fundamentalists could muster a similar victory in upcoming national elections for the Popular National Assembly, or Parliament.

(JUNE 15) UPI - Elizabeth Taylor went home from the hospital after nearly two months Thursday night. The 58-year-old actress suffered from a viral pneumonia that nearly took her life. In a statement released by her publicist, the Academy Award-winning star said she was ''glad to be going home.'' A spokeswoman for Taylor says she will have a long recuperation.

U-S Trade Representative Carla Hills Thursday refused to link a free-trade agreement with Mexico to improved cooperation in the drug war. The Bush administration on Monday announced it will begin negotiations with Mexico to remove all trade barriers between the countries. But Democratic Representative Charles Rangel of New York says the trade issue should be used to make Mexico work to keep drugs from crossing into the United States.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - Scientists reported they have found the route the most common herpes virus uses to invade cells, paving the way for new treatments for cold sores and possibly more serious diseases like shingles or chickenpox.

Until the discovery by a team headed by Dr. David Hajjar of Cornell University Medical College in New York City, researchers did not know precisely how herpes simplex virus type 1 got into cells.

Herpes simplex type 1 causes cold sores, painful blister-like sores on the lips and inside the mouth that afflict an estimated 98 million Americans.

The advance could lead to the development of ways to stop the virus from infecting cells, possibly in the form of a rub-on cream that would be used daily, researchers said Thursday.

The virus is the most widespread member of a family of eight herpes viruses. The other herpes viruses cause a spectrum of diseases that includes genital sores, chickenpox, shingles, mononucleosis and even life-threatening brain inflammation.

''Most Americans have had a cold sore once in their lifetime,'' said Hajjar, noting that stress and sunlight are known to trigger cold sore outbreaks in people who are chronically infected with herpes simplex 1. Unlike most other viruses, herpes viruses can remain dormant in the body for long periods and then become active, causing symptoms.

In a study published in the journal Science, Hajjar and his colleagues said they have identified the molecular door, called a receptor, that herpes simplex 1 uses to enter human cells.

Using human cells grown in the test tube, the researchers found herpes simplex 1 apparently hooks up with a protein called fibroblast growth factor and then enters cells through a fibroblast growth factor receptor. Furthermore, in laboratory experiments, scientists were able to prevent herpes infection using protein fragments that blocked the receptor entrance.

The discovery raises the possibility that scientists may be able to develop drugs - perhaps in the form of a cream - that would use synthetic versions of the fibroblast growth receptor to act as decoy and mop up herpes simplex 1 before it causes infection, Hajjar said.

If the work is confirmed, Dr. Niza Frenkel of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases said it would be ''a great contribution'' to efforts to understand and treat diseases caused by herpes viruses.

In addition to exploring new treatment strategies, Hajjar's team is now trying to determine whether other herpes viruses, like the herpes simplex 2 responsible for most cases of genital herpes, use the same or similar pathways to invade cells.

''I speculate that herpes simplex 2 probably would go in by a similar route,'' Hajjar said.

''The discovery of the fibroblast growth factor receptor as the basic portal of entry for herpes simplex 1 is quite logical,'' he added. ''An excellent source of fibroblast growth factor in the body is the nervous system, and herpes simplex 1 infection typically localizes itself in the nerve.''

The biochemistry professor also noted blood vessel cells have fibroblast growth factor receptors, supporting his hypothesis that there may be a link between herpes infection and hardening of the arteries.

Previous work by the Cornell team indicated herpes virus type 1 infection of the blood vessel wall reduces the disposal of artery-clogging cholesterol and also makes the vessel lining more vulnerable to the formation of blood clots.

''More than likely coronary artery disease has many causes, and herpes virus may be but one contributor,'' Hajjar said. ''After all, many Americans have been exposed to herpes simplex 1 and not everyone who has a cold sore has a heart attack.''

ANTIGUA, Guatemala (JUNE 15) UPI - A federation of Central American business organizations sent a joint proposal to their heads of state meeting in Guatemala Friday urging them to form a regional trade bloc that would compete with the world's other common markets.

The proposal is the first concrete agreement by the region's private sector on forming a common market, and the topic was expected to be high on the agenda of the presidents of Panama, Guatemala, Honduras, El Salvador, Costa Rica and Nicaragua. Secretary of State James Baker also planned to attend.

In a letter signed by the 12 organizations that make up the Federation of Private Entities of Central America and Panama, the group Thursday called on its member presidents to initiate plans for a common market at their weekend economic summit in Antigua, 28 miles southwest of Guatemala City.

''Today more than ever, especially with the changes in the Eastern European countries, it is obvious that the only fundamental philosophy and doctrine is economic liberty,'' the five-page letter said.

The call for a Central American trade bloc that would compete with other world cooperatives has been echoed by public and private officials in recent months, especially since the change of government in Nicaragua opened that country to more favorable Western trade.

Foreign and economic ministers met Thursday in advance of the summit, and Guatemalan Deputy Foreign Minister Julio Martini said regional disarmament would also be a key theme.

A Nicaraguan government source said Thursday that Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro, already expected to announce drastic cuts in Nicaragua's military, was ready to present a plan at the weekend summit to demilitarize all of Central America.

Either before or during the summit, Chamorro was expected to announce details of reductions in the Nicaraguan army, controlled by the former Sandinista government.

She had been scheduled to announce the reductions last Sunday delayed it to study a plan for the cuts submitted by Gen. Humberto Ortega, commander of the army and brother of former President Daniel Ortega.

A Nicaraguan government source told United Press International that at the summit, Chamorro would propose the eventual demilitarization of all of Central America.

Asked to confirm that Chamorro would propose such a plan, Nicaraguan Foreign Minister Enrique Dreyfus smiled and said, ''It's possible.''

The six presidents also were scheduled to discuss progress in the establishment of the Central American Parliament, a 100-member forum intended to further the peace process and foster regional integration and development.

With Guatemalan and Salvadoran rebels agreeing to peace talks with their governments and demobilization of the Nicaraguan Contras under way, the Central American leaders have decided to forge ahead and work toward resolving the economic crisis that has plagued the region.

A plan to demilitarize Central America was likely to face intense opposition from some of Nicaragua's neighbors. El Salvador and Guatemala, for example, maintain strong armed forces that wield considerable influence over their respective civilian government and are notorious for human rights abuses.

For more than 40 years, Costa Rica has been the only Central American country without a military, relying on the United States for protection from without, and a Civil Guard for protection from within.

(JUNE 15) UPI - For the Toronto Blue Jays, baseball has become a migratory sport - they have to fly south to become winners.

The Jays clobbered the Minnesota Twins 7-1 Thursday night to complete a three-game sweep in the Metrodome and go 6-1 on their current 10-game road trip. Though they only play .500 ball at the Toronto Skydome, they've won 11 of their last 13 road games and are 18-11 overall away from home.

The team has flown right into first place in the AL East during this road trip, but nobody can explain why.

''It's generally tough being on the road,'' said Toronto Manager Cito Gaston, ''but when you're winning you don't feel it as much.''

The Blue Jays were feeling no pain in Minnesota, outscoring the Twins 22-4 and sending Minnesota to its seventh straight loss.

Pat Borders hit a three-run homer, Junior Felix knocked in three runs and Dave Stieb pitched seven strong innings in Thursday's victory.

''Even though we're winning, you still get a little weary on the road,'' said Mookie Wilson, who went 2 for 4. ''If we can keep it together for three more days against the Yankees, we'll be alright.''

Stieb, 9-2, struck out three and did not yield a walk in posting his fourth straight win. His last loss was May 18 to the California Angels.

Jim Acker and Duane Ward pitched an inning each to finish up.

''I had a pretty good curve ball and was throwing my slider for strikes,'' said Stieb, who lost twice to the Twins last year. ''I threw a lot of breaking balls to them early so I could go to my fastball later in the game when I needed the outs.''

Twins starter Allan Anderson, 2-9, matched him almost pitch for pitch over the first five innings. He eventually gave up 10 hits in 6 2-3 innings. He walked one and struck out two.

In other AL games, Detroit pounded Cleveland 7-3, Milwaukee blasted Baltimore 8-5, New York topped Boston 3-1, Chicago nipped Oakland 3-2 and Seattle edged Texas 5-4.

In the NL, it was San Francisco 6, San Diego 2; Cincinnati 4, Atlanta 3; Montreal 3, St. Louis 2; New York at Pittsburgh and Chicago at Philadelphia were postponed by rain.

-- AROUND THE AL --

Tigers 7, Indians 3

At Detroit, Cecil Fielder hit his major league-leading 24th home run, a two-out, two-run shot in the fifth, to power the Tigers. Frank Tanana, benefiting from his best run support in five starts, raised his record to 5-4. Sergio Valdez, 2-3, walked Tony Phillips in the fifth, and one out later, Fielder lined his second home run in as many nights into the left field seats. Mark Salas and Lloyd Moseby also homered.

Brewers 8, Orioles 5

At Baltimore, Robin Yount delivered a sacrifice fly that scored Bill Spiers with the go-ahead run in the seventh inning. Bob Sebra, 1-0, earned the win in relief, allowing one hit over 2 2-3 innings and Dan Plesac notched his 12th save. Brian Holton, 2-2, took the loss.

Yankess 3, Red Sox 1

At New York, Jesse Barfield scored the go-ahead run on a wild pitch by Jerry Reed in the seventh inning to lift New York. Barfield led off the seventh with a double, chasing Boston starter Dana Kiecker, 1-3. Chuck Cary, 3-2, allowed four hits over seven-plus innings for the victory and Dave Righetti earned his 13th save.

White Sox 3, Athletics 2

At Chicago, Lance Johnson scored on a sacrifice fly and hit an RBI single to back Eric King, 6-1, and pull the White Sox to within one game of the American League West leaders. Bobby Thigpen pitched the ninth for his 21st save in the first game of the four-game series matching the two teams with the best records in baseball. Dave Stewart, 9-4, took the loss, his third in his last four starts.

Mariners 5, Rangers 4

At Seattle, Jeffrey Leonard capped a three-run ninth-inning rally with a two-out RBI single. Keith Comstock, 2-2, who entered the game in the ninth picked up the win. Rogers relieved in the eighth and fell to 2-2. Pete Incaviglia and Jack Daugherty had given the Rangers a 4-2 lead with eighth-inning RBI doubles.

(JUNE 15) UPI - The San Diego Padres found themselves short one catcher and infielder Joey Cora came to the rescue.

In the seventh inning of San Francisco's 6-2 pounding of San Diego, catcher Benito Santiago was hit in the forearm by a Jeff Brantley pitch while pinch-hitting for the Padres' other catcher, Mark Parent.

Santiago was unable to continue and manager Jack McKeon searched for a replacement. Cora, who never caught before in the major or minor leagues, volunteered.

''To be honest with you, I was scared at the beginning,'' said Cora. ''I thought the first guy (pitch) was going to hit me, but when the ball stuck in the glove, I said, 'Hey, I guess it's not so bad.''

Cora solicited the support of home plate umpire Eric Gregg.

''Hang with me, man,'' he said to Gregg. ''I've never done this before.''

X-rays revealed Santiago suffered a cracked ulna bone in the arm and is expected to be out of action at least 45 days. The Padres placed the catcher, who is leading the All-Star balloting, on the 21-day disabled list and called up Ronn Reynolds from their Las Vegas farm club of the Pacific Coast League.

McKeon was impressed by Cora's performance and now knows who he can count on in the future.

''The little guy did a good job. We didn't know who it (the catcher) would be if we needed an emergency catcher, but we found out today. I just went to the dugout and asked, 'Who can catch?'''

San Diego starter Bruce Hurst, 3-6, had problems with the Giants' lineup, allowing seven hits and three runs in six innings. After a sluggish start to the season, San Francisco has been on a tear, posting a 12-1 record in June and winning 14 of their last 16.

''This offense can explode and, sure enough, it did,'' said Giants first baseman Will Clark. ''We've established ourselves as a winner over the past few years. This team has too much offense to go into a prolonged slump. We knew when we came out of it, we'd come out of it with a vengeance.''

In his first National League start, rookie Francisco Oliveras allowed four hits and two runs in five innings. He struck out five and walked one in his first start since June 24, 1989, for Minnesota against Boston.

''Oliveras did a good job,'' said Clark. ''In the dugout, we kept telling him, 'Keep us right there. Keep us right there.''

Ed Vosberg, 1-1, who relieved in the sixth inning, picked up the victory.

In other NL action, Cincinnati edged Atlanta 4-3, Montreal nipped St. Louis 3-2, and New York at Pittsburgh and Chicago at Philadelphia were rained out.

In the AL, it was: New York 3, Boston 1; Milwaukee 8, Baltimore 5; Detroit 7, Cleveland 3; Chicago 3, Oakland 2; Toronto 7, Minnesota 1 and Seattle 5 Texas 4.

-- AROUND THE NL --

Reds 4, Braves 3

At Cincinnati, Barry Larkin singled with two out in the ninth inning to drive in the winning run and lift Cincinnati. Rob Dibble, 4-1, the Reds third pitcher, worked the last 1 1-3 innings for the victory. Atlanta reliever Joe Boever, 1-3, took the loss.

Expos 3, Cardinals 2

At St. Louis, Tim Raines drew a bases-loaded, ninth-inning walk to lift Montreal to victory. Bill Sampen, 5-0, allowed two hits and no runs over two innings of relief, and Dave Schmidt pitched the ninth for his sixth save. Reliever Tom Niedenfuer, 0-2, gave up one hit, one walk and two runs in 2-3 of an inning.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - With the spotlight on Mayor Marion Barry shifted from his political future to his current legal difficulties, supporters pressed for a plea agreement that would end his trial on 14 drug and perjury counts.

Prosecutors and defense lawyers were expected to finish choosing members of a final jury pool by midday Friday and then begin seating the 12 jurors and six alternates to hear the trial in U.S. District Court.

Meanwhile, pressure mounted for U.S. Attorney Jay Stephens to reach a plea agreement with Barry before testimony in the case begins next week. Jesse Jackson, after a meeting with about 15 ministers Thursday, accused the government of spending $10 million to pursue Barry, now a lame-duck mayor following his announcement Wednesday that he will not seek a fourth term.

"We certainly hope, in light of this new position, there will be a move towards the bargaining table," Jackson said. Stephens, who has called Barry's political status "irrelevant" to the charges or a possible plea bargain, had no comment.

Barry's announcement that he would not seek another mayoral term had been urged by some supporters who told him a withdrawal from the race would facilitate a plea agreement to settle the charges against him.

But there were indications Friday that more legal troubles could be on Barry's horizon. The Washington Times reported that federal prosecutors were extending their investigation into alleged drug use and corruption by Barry and other officials in the District of Columbia with a new grand jury.

The Times, quoting unidentified law enforcement sources, said Barry and other city officials could face charges of fraud in an investigation focusing on alleged kickbacks sought or offered during contract negotiations. Stephens declined comment on the new grand jury, which the newspaper said could begin hearings as early as July 2.

About 40 Barry supporters, wearing black wristbands and calling themselves the Coalition for Equal Justice Under the Law, held a vigil Thursday outside the federal courthouse, carrying signs reading: "Entrapment is illegal. Who should be on trial?" and "Conspiracy. Conspiracy. Conspiracy."

Many remained silent. Others said they were protesting Barry's prosecution. "Damn right I'm angry," said Johnnie Johnson, 75. "They gave him illegal drugs to entrap him." About 40 others, including Barry's mother, later joined the vigil.

Barry was allegedly videotaped smoking crack cocaine in the Jan. 18 undercover operation that led to his arrest. He was indicted on 14 drug and perjury counts and his trial is finishing its second week of jury selection.

Barry, only the city's second elected mayor, is charged with three felony counts of perjury for allegedly lying to a grand jury, ten misdemeanor counts of cocaine use, and one misdemeanor count of conspiracy to possess cocaine dating back to 1984. He could face 26 years in prison and $1.85 million in fines if convicted on all counts.

Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson has said a jury will be seated Monday, and opening statements given Tuesday. Seconds after the judge recessed for lunch Thursday, a spectator held up a small packet and yelled: "This is cocaine and marijuana given to me by the U.S. government in San Francisco." He was immediately escorted from the court by U.S. Marshals. Sherman Hill Jr., 48, was later charged with possession of cocaine and marijuana.

MANILA, Philippines (JUNE 15) UPI - Authorities Friday searched for 50 people reported missing after flash floods ravaged the southern Philippines, killing at least 36 people, officials said.

The flash floods Wednesday in Zamboanga del Norte province, 450 miles south of Manila, were caused by a tropical storm that lingered for a week before moving into the South China Sea Friday.

The military Office of Civil Defense said 36 bodies were recovered from the towns of Manukan, Bacungan, Jose Dalman, Siayen and Sindangan.

Workers were still searching for some 50 people reported missing, said office spokesman Esmeraldo Sagrado by telephone from Zamboanga City.

Sagrado said 59 houses were damaged and more than 500 people in 100 families were evacuated. Damage to crops and property was estimated at about $300,000, he said.

KUALA LUMPUR, MALAYASIA (JUNE 15) UPI - More than 8,500 Vietnamese boat people have been turned away from Malaysian shores despite a pledge by the country to offer the refugees asylum, international observers said Friday.

The officials said they fear the practice of turning away the Vietnamese, called boat people because they flee Vietnam in boats, could spread the growing refugee problem to other parts of the Pacific.

''What we experience in this part of the world now with the Vietnamese boat people, I believe could have a contagious effect,'' U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees Thorvald Stoltenberg said Friday.

Stoltenberg, who is making his first visit to the region since assuming office in January, said he feared an accord adopted last June at the Conference on Indochina Refugees was in dannger of collapsing.

Under the accord, southeast Asian countries agreed to offer asylum to all refugees while efforts continued to stem the flow of people from Vietnam.

Reports from Malayasia and other countries, however, indicate they have been turning away the refugees, leaving them adrift to try their luck elsewhere, because the countries are overburdened by the thousands of Vietnamese refugees already housed in crowded camps.

''I believe there have been redirections of boat people from several countries,'' Stoltenberg said.

Since the communist invasion of 1975, thousands of Vietnamese have fled their homeland in an exodus that has not abated over the years.

Hong Kong has forcibly repatriated some Vietnamese and offered money to others to return home voluntarily.

COLUMBUS, MS (JUNE 15) UPI - Federal and local investigators say they believe an explosion that ripped through a fireworks factory and killed two people was accidental and began with a small fire where employees were assembling a display.

A 13-member team from the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms started the investigation Wednesday and reported findings to the local sheriff Thursday afternoon.

''We're satisfied that it was accidental and we're packing up and going home,'' said Jerry Rudden, a Nashville assistant special agent who led the BATF team.

Agents were unable to determine the actual cause of the fire that triggered the explosion.

Rudden said the conclusion is based on interviews with witnesses and with evidence taken from the rubble of the plant about 12 miles south of downtown Columbus. The BATF licenses and inspects all U.S. fireworks plants.

Preliminary findings also show the plant, owned by Gene Beatty of Columbus was following federal standards for handling and storing explosives, Rudden said.

Beatty and a visitor were in an office about 100 feet from the explosion and were able to flee. Two employes, Herman Hallman, 65, and Frank Young, 37, were killed.

Another employee remained hospitalized in stable condition Friday recovering from severe cuts and bruises.

BEIJING (JUNE 15) UPI - Officials overseeing China's first door-to-door census Friday urged couples who have violated a strict one-child policy to report all their children, but assured them honesty would not prompt a visit from the authorities.

The State Statistical Bureau officials also vowed that the forthcoming national population census would not suffer the political irregularities of three previous surveys and asserted that personal data would be held in strict confidence.

The government will deploy 7 million census takers, officially beginning July 1, across the world's most populous nation to count its estimated more than 1.1 billion people.

State Statistical Bureau Director-General Zhang Sai, at a news conference, said the census enumerators were receiving rigorous training to assure the census would meet international standards and avoid political interference.

Although the census, China's first full door-to-door survey, is scheduled to start July 1 in most of the country, it already began June 1 in remote western reaches of Tibet and Xinjiang province.

The census is the first nationwide measure of China's strict decade-old fertility law, which restricts virtually all couples to one child. The measure has worked well in cities, but enforcement has fallen off markedly in the countryside, where children are seen as a hedge against hard times.

Zhang said accurate reporting of family size is critical even if it means families must face penalties for having exceeding the one-child limit.

''Those families with babies outside the family plan have already made one mistake,'' Zhang said. ''If they continue in this mistake by not reporting their children then their mistake is even more serious.''

Zhang stressed, however, that the Census Office is proscribed by law from tipping off family planning officials about multi-child couples, who face an escalating range of fines, penalties and losses of privileges for each additional birth.

Census enumerators are being trained to give special attention to the number of children in each family, looking for an unknown number of unregistered offspring informally known as ''black babies.''

Estimates of the number of unregistered children range from ''millions to the tens of millions,'' Zhang said.

Zhang adamantly denied suggestions that zealous officials from China's pervasive public security and family planning agencies could gain access to the raw census data for their own investigations.

''We will assure that data for individual families will not be provided to any government agencies,'' Zhang said.

Punishment of families with more than one child ''is the business of the family planning office,'' he said. ''It is not the affair of the population census.''

The census also comes at a time of growing complexity and transience in Chinese society, as uneven rates of economic development have given rise to a so-called ''floating population'' of job-seeking temporary migrants.

Zhang said it is crucial that China obtain an accurate picture of its population, which government leaders had hoped to stabilize at about 1.2 billion by the year 2000 but has continued to grow.

''In China's three previous population censuses, for political and economic reasons prevailing at those times, it is true that there were irregularities in the way they were conducted,'' Zhang said.

Census Senior Statistician Sun Jingxin said personal data from the 1982 census had been maintained in confidence, saying it would remain so in perpetuity.

''It will be kept for a very long time. It will never be released to the public,'' Sun said.

Sun declined to estimate the budget for the population survey, by definition the world's most extensive.

MIAMI (JUNE 15) UPI - Manuel Noriega's prosecutors must either justify the freezing of millions of dollars in the deposed dictator's bank accounts or free some of those moneys to pay for his defense, a federal judge says.

U.S. District Judge William Hoeveler warned the federal government Thursday that it will have to be ready to turn over any seized funds needed to pay for a ''reasonable'' defense for Noriega against drug charges, if it cannot justify freezing the assets as ordered.

A hearing on the matter is scheduled for Wednesday.

Defense attorneys have asked Hoeveler to let them withdraw from the case, saying Noriega is unable to pay them since U.S. officials have frozen all of his assets in the United States and presuaded foreign governments to do so also.

Prosecutors contend the funds seized are proceeds of Noriega's alleged drug trafficking activities.

Defense attorney Frank Rubino has accused the prosecution of freezing all of the assets so Noriega cannot obtain an adequate defense.

Hoeveler sided with defense attorneys in Thursday's 13-page ruling, finding that the government's action jeopardized Noriega's constitutional right to select the defense attorneys of his choice.

''Certainly, the government has an interest in combating the drug epidemic which plagues this country,'' the judge wrote. ''But this effort must never be at the expense of an accused's constitutional rights.''

Hoeveler said about $20 million has been frozen in banks around the world by the U.S. government and $5.8 million in property has been handed over to the new Panamanian government without a hearing for Noriega.

The judge also said the government has not demonstrated that the seized assets are the profits of illegal drug activities.

The judge's order delighted Noriega's defense lawyers.

''I would characterize this as a stinging defeat to the government's efforts to deprive General Noriega of his assets to pay his counsel,'' lawyer Jon May said.

Diane Cossin, a spokeswoman for the U.S. attorney's office in Miami, said the government would not comment on the ruling.

''We will be reviewing the order over the next few days,'' she said.

(JUNE 15) UPI - Prime Minister Chatichai of Thailand concluded two hours of talks with President Bush in Washington, D-C... urging increased U-S efforts to bring a cease-fire to Cambodia's bloody civil war.

Thailand has emerged as a key mediator in the conflict. Although the United States has taken a less direct role than Thailand... Bush pledged to continue diplomatic efforts to end the violence.

Assistant Secretary of State Richard Solomon said Cambodia dominated the talks between Bush and Chatichai yesterday. Solomon hinted at slight differences in approach to solving the crisis.

The United States favors a strong role for the United Nations... while Thailand promotes talks among the four factions in Cambodia.

The two leaders also discussed trade between the United States and Thailand. They announced the creation of a joint committee on commercial co-operation to promote increased trade and investment. The suit says Marine Shale posed as a recycler of toxic wastes while actually making most of its money from waste disposal fees. Toxic waste incinerators are in some cases exempt from stringent federal controls.

The suit also asks the court to halt Marine Shale operations until the alleged violations of toxic waste laws are resolved... and all wastes stored at the site are transfered to a permitted disposal facility.

The federal complaint seeks penalties of up to 25-thousand dollars a day against Marine Shale.

Environmentalists, several members of Congress and industry officials say Marine Shale is the biggest of many such ''sham recyclers'' around the country.

(JUNE 15) UPI - The General Accounting office reported last year that a number of vast farms have reorganized themselves on paper in order to get federally subsized water. The House is out to plug the loophole.

The House voted yesterday to close the loopholes in federal water law. The measure was sponsored chiefly by California Democrat George Miller. He says his measure is aimed at a ''handful'' of wealthy corporate growers who have circumvented restrictions on the size of farms that can qualify for cheap, federally subsidized water.

The measure was adopted 316-97 as an amendment to a bill authorizing an expansion of the Buffalo Bill Dam in Wyoming and six other Western water projects. The overall bill was later passed on a voice vote.

A number of Western lawmakers, some representing largely agricultural districts, vigorously opposed Miller's measure. They argued it could have the unintended effect of disrupting thousands of family farm operations.

Hajjar and his colleagues say they've identified the molecular door, called a receptor... that herpes simplex-1 uses to enter human cells.

Herpes simplex typelike sores on the lips and inside the mouth that afflict an estimated 98-Million Americans.

BY NEIL FLEMING - UPI

MONROVIA, LIBERIA (JUNE 15) UPI - It's not a bad beach, the beach that fronts the Barclay Training Camp on the south side of Monrovia, facing out into the Atlantic Ocean.

The current is a little too strong and the waves are a bit rough for swimming, but the sand is the right color and the sun comes down strong through the Liberian haze and shines off the blue-black clouds far out to sea.

But no one goes sunbathing there. It is a dark place, even in the morning.

Sometime in the coming days, unless something extraordinary happens, men will likely come and set up tall posts here. Then they will bring four soldiers, tie their hands around the posts and behind their backs, and shoot them dead.

The golden beach is Liberia's place of execution.

In April 1980, ten days after Master Sgt. Samuel Doe and a few cronies had burst into the Presidential Mansion and shot President William Tolbert in his bed, 13 of his advisers and ministers were led down onto the beach and riddled with bullets in front of television cameras and the assembled international press.

Ten years later, the imperilled government of Liberia is conducting the trial of four men accused of murdering Monrovia citizens. Their crime, if they committed it, was part of a wave of renegade killings by a demoralized and undisciplined army squeezed into the capital by 5 1/2 months of steady advance by Charles Taylor's National Patriotic Front rebels.

Maj. Henry Johnson, 44, 1st Lt. Andrew Gaye, 37, and 2nd Lt. Arthur Nyenabo, 42, allegedly killed the mayor of Clay-Ashland, an exclusive Monrovia suburb, and three others. Pvt. James Grear, little more than 18 and accused of murdering someone on a different beach, has been lumped into the court-martial with the rest.

A former minister of justice, Col. Isaac Nyeplu, is the presiding judge.

In 1989, Nyeplu's conduct of the trial of Gen. Gray D. Allison for the witchcraft murder of a former policeman was sharply criticized by the human rights group Amnesty International, which claimed he ignored procedure and assumed throughout the trial that Allison was guilty.

Allison was sentenced to death and taken away, but neither Nyeplu nor any of his fellow military legal experts seems to know what became of him.

''Sometimes they kill people in secret and nobody ever tells us,'' chuckles Col. Alfred B. Fromo, prosecuting counsel in the current court-martial.

Sometimes, according to a 1986 report by the U.S.-based Lawyers Committee for Human Rights, those convicted are first castrated and dismembered.

In the case of Gen. Thomas Quiwonkpa, who led an abortive coup in 1985 against President Samuel Doe, the castration and dismemberment came after his death. Bits of him were then eaten in public for good measure.

It is sometimes difficult to distinguish crime and punishment in Liberia, the report observes.

Nyeplu began the current trial saying he was determined to prove it would be ''free and fair.'' He welcomed the press to watch his every move.

But the government is keen to find a scapegoat for the mutilatory murder of Clay-Ashland Mayor Vahnjah Richards, Liberia's most prominent sculptor, last weekend. There has been too much international attention focused on the spate of killings in Monrovia.

Within 24 hours of the trial's start on Wednesday, the press had been excluded and a Ministry of Information spokesman told United Press International: ''We say 'if,' but we know they will be convicted.''

Another spokesman told journalists that it was better they not attend because their incomprehension of the heavy Liberian dialect would lead to their misreporting of proceedings.

One of the accused, Johnson, told journalists he knew he would be shot, but claimed that he had not been present at the scene of the crime.

''May I say something, sir?'' he asked Wednesday as the court discussed his request to be granted a civilian lawyer and Nyeplu harangued him for treating the trial as if it were a ''football game.''

''Go ahead,'' growled Nyeplu.

''Let's just proceed with the case.''

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - Consumer prices rose 0.2 percent in May as energy and apparel prices eased and food costs were flat, the Labor Department reported Friday.

The increase, which was less than the 0.3 percent expected by several economists, offered an indication that the sharp rise of inflation during the first three months of the year has eased.

The department said its index for energy and apparel prices declined 0.7 percent and 0.3 percent respectively while food prices remained unchanged. Shelter costs rose 0.2 percent.

Prices for medical care continued to rise sharply during May, as did prices for other goods and services.

For the 12 months ended in May, inflation rose at a rate of 4.4 percent. During the first five months of the year, consumer prices rose at an annualized rate of 5.8 percent, down from a 6.3 percent rate during the same period last year.

Food prices, which declined 0.2 percent in April, gained 0.1 percent last month. Although food on grocers' shelves continued to drop in price, the drop was offset by higher costs for restaurant meals and alcoholic beverages, which also are factored into the food index, the department said.

Grocery prices dropped 0.2 percent last month largely from a steep decline in prices for fresh fruits and vegetables, which dipped 3.7 percent and 4.7 percent respectively.

Dairy prices decreased 0.4 percent in May for the third consecutive monthly decline. Consumers paid less for eggs, fish and seafood in May but more for meat and poultry.

Shelter costs gained 0.2 percent in May after rising 0.1 percent the month before. Prices for home fuels declined. Fuel oil prices were down 1.4 percent and natural gas prices dropped 2.7 percent. But electricity costs increased by 1 percent.

Other home-related costs, including cable and trash collection, increased while telephone prices decreased.

(JUNE 15) UPI - Detroit officials say two people died in the overnight celebrations of the Pistons' N-B-A championship. Officials say one person fell from a four-story apartment building and the other was hit by a car. Thousands of Detroit residents danced in the streets and honked their car horns wildly as they drove around the celebrate the Pistons winning their second N-B-A title in a row. Officials say at least 20 other people were hurt... including five police officers... before the revelers quieted down.

(JUNE 15) UPI - The federal agency in charge of failed thrifts is running out of money. Treasury Secretary Brady says the Resolution Trust Corporation will need more cash than what Congress authorized. Brady says the 50-BILLION dollars originally authorized for the agency, which was intended to last until August of 1992, could run out by the end of this year or early next year.

Indicted former Vernon Savings owner Donald Ray Dixon surrendered to federal authorities in Dallas yesterday. DUBLIN, IRELAND (JUNE 15) UPI - Environment ministers from the European Community will meet Saturday with their Eastern European colleagues to discuss the former communist bloc's nightmarish environmental problems, officials said Friday.

''It's the first time the full EC council has met their counterparts in Eastern Europe to discuss problems in any sector,'' said a spokesman for Ireland's Environment Department.

The daylong meeting in medieval Dublin Castle includes representatives from the Soviet Union and Sweden. The Swedish official will represent the six-nation European Free Trade Association.

The conference was designed to discuss how the 12 European Community countries can assist emerging democracies in Central and Eastern Europe ''to tackle the formidable environmental problems which they now face,'' said Irish Environmental Minister Padraig Flynn, host of the meeting.

Areas under discussion for future East-West cooperation include toxic waste disposal, technology transfer, dealing with outdated nuclear plants and possible codes of conduct for European Community countries locating in Eastern Europe.

The European Community is coordinating aid for Eastern Europe from 24 rich nations, and the conference is expected to look at environmental programs that could benefit from the assistance.

The aid program was launched last year to assist Poland and Hungary, but is expected to soon be expanded to most of Eastern Europe. All Eastern European countries except Albania were invited to the Dublin conference.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - The American merchandise trade deficit dropped 17 percent in April to $6.9 billion from $8.4 billion in March, due to strength in exports and lower imports, mainly of cars and oil, the Commerce Department reported Friday.

The April figures, adjusted to account for seasonal factors, mean that the U.S. trade deficit is at an annual average of $92.2 billion for 1990, down from $109 billion for 1989 and $118.5 billion for 1988, according to the department's Census Bureau.

The April $6.9 billion in red ink was the lowest since $6.1 billion in February, and the second lowest since $ 5.7 billion in December 1983, a Commerce economist said.

The merchandise trade numbers were better than the $7.5 billion expected by most private analysts.

During April, imports fell to $39.2 billion from $41.9 billion in March, reflecting lower purchases abroad of oil, cars and auto parts and engines, industrial supplies and materials, food, feeds, capital goods, consumer goods and other merchandise, the Census Bureau said.

Imports of oil and cars dropped by $1 billion each during April, a Commerce economist noted.

Exports dropped in April to $32.3 billion from $33.5 billion in March, reflecting lower sales abroad of capital goods, cars and parts and engines food, feeds, and other merchandise, while exports of consumer goods increased. Exports of industrial supplies and materials were virtually unchanged.

Exports of computers, telecommunication equipment, and aircraft declined in April, the department said.

The United States had a $4 billion merchandise trade deficit with Japan during April, up from $3.6 billion in March.

The April trade shortfall was $1.4 billion with the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, $800 million with Taiwan, $600 million with China, $400 million with South Korea, $300 million with Brazil, and $100 million with Mexico.

With Western Europe, the United States enjoyed a $1.4 billion trade surplus in April, up from $700 million in March.

The bureau said that April exports of manufactured goods, at $24.9 billion were $2 billion lower than in March. Imports of manufactured goods, at $31.1 billion, were $2.1 billion lower than in March.

The numbers are not seasonally adjusted.

The Commerce Department said that April exports of advanced technology products reached $7.4 billion, and imports were $4.7 billion, for a surplus of $2.7 billion, $900 million less than the March surplus of $3.6 billion.

GENEVA (JUNE 15) UPI - Polish Solidarity leader Lech Walesa said Friday he will run for his nation's presidency ''if really forced,'' although he would prefer a break from political life.

''Quite simply, I wouldn't like to be the president, just like I didn't want to be a trade union leader,'' Walesa said at a news conference after addressing the International Labor Organization in Geneva.

''But fate has gone against me before and maybe I will just have to keep on going making reforms,'' he said when asked if he would accept a nomination to be president of Poland.

''I am not ready to fight (for the nomination or the position), but the more and more experience I have, the more my hands are tied,'' Walesa said.

''As president, I would be a slave,'' he said, noting that in 25 years of politics he has missed many things in life, ''like running after girls and having fun.''

''But if I am really forced, I will carry out the duties forced upon me,'' Walesa said, making it clear he would run for the presidency if Solidarity and the people want him to.

''Presently, though, I would like to sit on the grass for a while,'' he said.

Walesa travelled to Geneva to thank the annual assembly of the ILO, a U.N. specialized agency dedicated to worker and free trade union rights, for backing Solidarity from the beginning.

''Solidarity does not want to be just another political party or a supra-party or political movement, but rather to strengthen its positon as a strong modern trade union,'' he told the 2,000 government, employer and worker delegates.

''We support radical reforms,'' he said. ''But there are ways to more effectively prevent a significant drop in the standard of living and the growth of unemployment.

''To accept radical reform does not exclude opposition to several of the consequences which do not benefit the working people.

''Although we need a market economy, a return to the wild capitalism of the 19th century is out of the question,'' Walesa said.

''Solidarity,'' he said, ''is still the main force of democratic reform in Poland.''

(JUNE 15) UPI - Stock prices on the Tokyo Stock Exchange closed lower Friday in sluggish trading as investors became discouraged by the yen's sharp fall and retreated to the sidelines.

The blue-chip Nikkei Average of 225 selected issues, which gained 296.34 points on Thursday, lost 129.71 points to end the week at 32,538.40.

The broader-based Tokyo Stock Exchange Price Index of all listed major listed shares slipped 3.65 points to 2,396.32.

An estimated 450 million shares changed hands, compared with 456 million shares Thursday.

Declines edged out advances 477 to 443, while 198 issues remained unchanged.

Elsewhere in Asia, stock prices posted mild gains in active trading on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange, as consolidation among the blue-chips regulated most action to secondary stocks.

The blue-chip Hang Seng Index, which gained 6.41 points Thursday, added 9.97 points to 3,201.52.

Among the narrower indexes, utilities gained 5.20 points, financials lost 8.85, industrials climbed 20.91 and properties added 21.63 points.

Volume was fairly heavy at an estimated 1.96 billion shares, up from Thursday's turnover of 1.66 billion shares.

In Singapore, stocks closed slightly higher in light trading on the Singapore Stock Exchange ending a week of steady losses.

The key Straits Times Industrial Index, which eased 4.01 points Thursday, rose 1.21 points to 1531.29. The narrower All Singapore Index rose 1.21 points to 432.81.

An estimated 47.9 million shares changed hands, compared with 54 million shares Thursday.

In Australia, stocks closed mixed in moderate trading on the Sydney Sharemarket.

The key All Ordinaries Index, which fell 8.0 points Thursday, eased 0.5 point to 1,502.5.

Gold's collapse on global bullion markets chased investors out of the metal and sent the Gold Index down 42.7 points or 3.3 percent, to 1,249.8.

An estimated 95.8 million shares changed hands, compared with 103.7 million shares Thursday.

BANGKOK, Thailand (JUNE 15) UPI - Talks between China and Vietnam to improve relations and settle differences over the 11-year-old Cambodian conflict have ended in failure, Chinese Assistant Foreign Minister Xu Duxin said Friday.

''Even though our side made great efforts, the talks with Vietnam on the Cambodian issue have not reached any bilateral agreement,'' Xu said on his arrival in Bangkok from Vietnam.

''The gap between China and Vietnam has not been narrowed. There was no progress in the talks,'' he said.

China in the principal backer of the Khmer Rouge, the insurgent group fighting along with two other rebel factions to oust the Vietnamese-installed Cambodian government.

The other two rebel groups agreed at peace talks in Tokyo recently to a cease-fire and a peace plan that calls for the establishment of an interim council to rule Cambodia until U.N.-supervised elections can be held.

The Chinese-backed Khmer Rouge, which ruled Cambodia for four years until ousted by the Vietnamese in 1979, broke with its partners and refused to agree to the plan.

The Vietnamese-backed government and the two rebel groups are proceeding, but observers said it was unlikely the agreement could be implemented without the support of the Khmer Rouge, the strongest of the rebel factions.

Xu said Friday Vietnam would not agree to a role for the United Nations in an interim Cambodian administration even though Hanoi has previously indicated it would accept such a role.

He said Vietnam objected to China' proposal of a Supreme National Council which would be comprised of representives from all four Cambodian factions to administer the country prior to general elections.

''The desire of Vietnam is for the (current) Phnom Penh government to continue its administration,'' he said.

The Phnom Penh government was set up by an invading Soviet-backed Vietnamese army when it overthrew the pro-Chinese Khmer Rouge regime in 1979.

The differences over Cambodia have remained the largest obstacles to improved relations between the two Communist neighbors.

''I told the Vietnamese that their stands are not acceptable to China,'' Xu said.

He said China proposed that all troops of the four Khmer factions be moved to sites supervised by the U.N.-sponored International Control Mechanism as part of a cease-fire, but Vietnam rejected the idea.

Xu said Vietnam accepted an international presence, but rejected an international peacekeeping force to verify that all foreign troops had left Cambodia.

The Chinese minister said the meeting on Cambodia set for next month by the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council should include the four Cambodian factions.

''The political settlement must include the four Khmer groups. We can not exclude any one of them,'' he said.

The United States and several other Western countries want to limit any Khmer Rouge role because of the radical group's brutal rule from 1975 to 1979, during which more than 1 million Cambodians died.

Xu said there was no reason to hold talks among Thailand, Vietnam and China, as Thailand has proposed.

''The Sino-Vietnam meeting ended without progress. I think that, in this current situation, there should not be a meeting among Thailand, China and Vietnam in the near future,'' he said.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - Industrial production rose 0.6 percent in May the Federal Reserve reported Friday.

The Fed attributed the May increase in industrial production to a rebound from April's sharp decline in motor vehicle production. Excluding motor vehicle production, the overall increase for industrial production would have been a modest 0.2 percent last month. During the past year, industrial production has gained 1.34 percent to 109.7 percent of its 1987 annual average, the Fed reported.

The boost in motor vehicle and parts production sparked a significant increase in the indexes for durable consumer goods, business equipment and durable goods materials, the Fed said. But excluding automobile and truck manufacturing, the production of consumer goods was unchanged in May and has been flat since last fall.

Advances in the production of information processing equipment helped boost overall business equipment production one percent in May. The production of energy materials dropped 0.8 percent last month due to declines in electricty generation and crude oil extraction.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - Industrial capacity gained 0.3 percent the Federal Reserve reported Friday.

Manufacturing production rose 0.8 percent in May to bring the operating rate of the nation's factories up 0.4 percent to 83 percent, the Fed said. Mining output was unchanged during the month while utilities production fell 1.1 percent.

In the manufacturing sector, the capacity utilization for advanced processing industries gained 0.6 percent largely from the rebound in motor vehicle production.

Capacity gains also were posted by the non-ferrous metals, fabricated metals, plastics and rubber industries. The Fed noted that the gains have only brought these industries back to their utilization levels of late last year.

Construction-related industries, including makers of lumber, clay, glass and stone products, have weakened significantly since the start of the year, the Fed reported.

MADRID, SPAIN (JUNE 15) UPI - Exiled former King Michael of Romania urged the Romanian people to ''keep up the fight'' for democracy, saying in an interview published Friday that ''it is difficult to believe'' Romanian President Ion Iliescu is not still a communist.

''The Romanian people must have the courage to say what they think and to demand that a true and free democracy reign in Romania,'' said Michael, who was forced into exile by the Communist regime in 1947.

Michael's comments appeared in an interview from Versoix, Switzerland, published in the Friday edition of the Madrid newspaper ABC.

''I do not know if (Iliescu) has sincerely changed,'' he said, ''but given his long studies of communist ideology (in Moscow and elsewhere), it seems to me difficult to believe. I truly hope he has changed, but we shall have to wait and see.''

The interview took place as 10,000 Romanian coal miners heeded Iliescu's call to come to Bucharest to put down demonstrations by students and others who oppose the current government, which they claim improperly includes many high-ranking former communists, including Iliescu. At least five people have died in the violence since Wednesday.

Michael added that intimidation of the opposition extended not only to the leaders but to their families, ''including children.''

The situation in Romania saddened him, he said, but it did not surprise him.

''The Romanian people have lived in a concentration camp for 40 years and (a mere) four or five months (of freedom) is not sufficient to open their hearts,'' he said.

Whether the overthrow of dictator Nicolae Ceausescu was a popular revolt or a palace coup arranged by leading communists is ''difficult to know'' without more facts, he said.

But he said it seems clear that the people and students were influenced by events in Hungary, Poland, East Germany and Czechoslovakia, and that, after the execution of Ceaucescu, the ''nomenclature of the Communist Party stole the revolution from the people.''

Michael, now 68, was forced to sign an abdication document December 30, 1947, after threats by the new Soviet-backed government that if he did not sign, his supporters would be killed. He left Romania four days later.

''My family had reigned since 1866, and, in that time, we modernized Romania,'' he said. ''But in 40 years, the Communists have ruined everything.''

He said he hopes the monarchy will be restored in Romania, ''not for me but for the benefit of Romania.''

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - President Bush will veto the family and medical leave act, his spokesman said Friday, setting the stage for another battle with Congress as Democrats argue the move would be wrong for working Americans and break his campaign pledges.

Bush, at the top of an early morning Oval Office meeting with Paraguay President Andres Rodriguez, refused to answer questions on the legislation passed by the Senate late Thursday.

But his press secretary, Marlin Fitzwater, said the president would indeed veto the bill, which would require employers with more than 50 workers to offer 12 weeks of unpaid leave in one year to care for a newborn, adopted child or seriously ill parent, child, spouse or themselves.

''Yes,'' Fitzwater responded when asked if the president would veto the bill, as the administration indicated earlier. Bush has so far vetoed 11 pieces of legislation, with Congress unable to override any of them.

The Senate gave final congressional approval to the measure on a voice vote late Thursday. It is identical to one that cleared the House last month on a 237-187 vote.

Supporters of the measure - mostly Democrats but a few Republican members - say the bill is actually a pro-family bill that tracks conservatives' views that parents should be with their children in their first weeks of life. And they say the bill is sensitive to small businesses and only affects employers with more than 50 workers - just 5 percent of all businesses.

But Bush, who has threatened a veto, has contended businesses should negotiate worker benefits with their employees and government should stay out of the decision.

Democratic sponsors of the bill scheduled a news conference Friday to pressure Bush to sign the bill.

''There's no question we're going to lay down the gauntlet and shift the debate to the political arena,'' said a key Senate aide. ''He's got to stop paying lip service to all his pro-family pledges and start delivering.''

Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine and the Women's Legal Defense Fund reminded Bush of a campaign statement about the need for job protection when employees take time off to care for a family member.

''We need to assure that women don't have to worry about getting their jobs back after having a child or caring for a child during a serious illness. That is what I mean when I talk about a gentler nation,'' Bush said as vice president.

Supporters have noted with disgust that the United States and South Africa are the only industrialized nations not to have parental leave laws.

CHICAGO (JUNE 15) UPI - Drugs and economic issues promise to be hot topics during the 58th annual meeting of the U.S. Conference of Mayors. Some 220 mayors were expected to begin arriving Friday for preliminary meetings, with the opening session of the conference scheduled Monday. The meeting continues through Wednesday.

Meetings of the mayors' task forces on drug control, hunger and homlessness were scheduled for Friday, with standing committee meetings on urban policies, community development, health, and economic policy set for Saturday. A "Say No to Drugs" parade was set for Saturday morning.

Chicago has planned a series of tours to its major attractions for the visiting mayors. "It's an opportunity for the city of Chicago to demonstrate, not only to the visiting mayors, but to the United States, what a tremendous city Chicago is," said Terry Levin, spokesman for the Mayor's Office of Special Events.

Workshops on water purification, children, and the nation's future workforce were scheduled for Monday, with drug abuse treatment and economic uses of the "peace dividend" the top topics for Tuesday. Policy resolutions will be presented during the closing session Wednesday.

MINNEAPOLIS (JUNE 15) UPI - The Star Tribune Friday called on Sen. David Durenberger to step down because he has forfeited the public trust in declining to admit the impropriety of some of his business deals.

The newspaper said in an editorial that Durenberger has been a good senator but his bad judgment in making deals for monetary gain stands against him.

Durenberger, 55, appeared before the Senate Ethics Committee earlier this week in a two-day hearing into charges of violating Senate rules by exceeding Senate income limits for honoraria through a questionable book deal.

The senator chose to forgo a detailed public defense, and the committee abruptly ended its public inquiry into the matter Wednesday.

The committee will review evidence from both sides - 450 exhibits from Bennett and 112 exhibits from Hamilton - as well as a final report by Bennett.

The committee began public hearings Tuesday to investigate the allegations which include charges that Durenberger used a publishing deal to evade limits on outside income and accumulate about $100,000 more than the rules allowed.

He forfeited public trust Wednesday when he offered the Senate Ethics Committee apologies for his mistakes but failed to admit various actions were simply wrong, the Star Tribune said.

''Our admiration continues undiminished for his dedication to public service, his leadership on tough issues of domestic and foreign policy, his ability to build bipartisan Senate coalitions,'' the editorial said.

It added, ''Durenberger can weather the criticism almost sure to be forthcoming from his Senate colleagues. But to continue serving his constitutents well, he would need the public trust that he now has forfeited. The forfeiture came Wednesday in the opportunity that Durenberger had long awaited to tell his side of the story. After so many months' accumulation of charges of wrongdoing, culminating in Tuesday's harsh accusations by the Senate Ethics Committee's special counsel, this was his golden hour. In some ways he made the best of it. It was a senatorial Durenberger who spoke, not the flippant Durenberger too often heard in recent times. He was cogent, intense, eloquent, sincere. he offered heartfelt apologies for mistakes. But he could not bring himself to say these simple words: 'The book deal was wrong. The condominium deal was wrong. The limousine rides were wrong.'''

''He does not contest the evidence, only its interpretation,'' the paper said. ''The evidence says to us that his own bad judgment made these unsavory deals possible. His lawyers say that they were legal. The senator should have seen that they were unethical. He can now serve Minnesota best by stepping down.''

Durenberger is accused of using two of his books and a Minneapolis publisher, Piranha Press, to exceed limits on outside income. He is accused of sidestepping the limits by calling his speeches ''book promotions'' and having the money paid to the publisher, which then turned it over to him.

Durenberger also is accused of improperly claiming reimbursements for use of a Minneapolis condominium, failing to report reimbursement for travel expenses and improperly accepting limousine service for personal use during trips to Massachusetts in 1985 and 1986.

The 12-year Senate veteran who is paid $98,500 a year has said he expects to be cleared by his colleagues and has no intention of resigning.

(JUNE 15) UPI - Downtown Detroit is covered with litter- but the city is finally calm after wild celebrations. The Pistons' victory over Portland for their second straight N-B-A title set off tumult in Detroit last night. Most of the celebrating was harmless... but officials say four people were killed and 20 others injured before the joyous melee ended NOT long before dawn.

A 500-day plan was unveiled today for the Russian Republic. Boris Yeltsin's candidate for Russian prime minister unveiled the plan to privatize the government-dominated economy and introduce a market system in the Soviet Union's largest republic. He says the plan could be operational in 30 days if the Russian republic's parliament chooses him as prime minister.

Central American presidents plan to gather in Guatemala today for a regional conference. Secretary of State Baker also plans to attend. A proposal for a regional trade bloc will be high on the agenda. Nicaragua's president also is expected to propose the eventual de-militarization of all of Central America.

Officials have evacuated some people in east-central Nebraska where torrential rain forced some creeks out of their banks. A Platte County sheriff's dispatcher says it rained buckets. Cars floated down one creek. More than two-and-a-quarter inches of rain fell this morning around Grand Island.

A jury could be seated to hear cocaine and perjury charges against

Washington, D-C, Mayor Marion Barry before the end of the day. Prosecutors and defense lawyers are expected to finish choosing members of a final jury pool by mid-day... then begin seating the 12 jurors and six alternates.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - President Bush gave a glowing Rose Garden sendoff Friday to 121 Peace Corps volunteers who are departing for the agency's first assignment to Poland and Hungary.

At a ceremony attended by representatives of the two countries, administration officials and members of Congress, Bush said, ''Our mission and the desire for peace has no international boundaries.''

''History is made up, not simply by nations, but by their people,'' he said.

Many of the Peace Corps volunteers, leaving for Eastern Europe Saturday, will be teaching English. Bush said that ''English literacy has become the key to progress.''

Bush said the volunteers also will be spreading new ideas and that their service represents ''America's investment in the consolidation of democracy and independence in Eastern Europe.''

''It is another tangible evidence of the U.S. commitment to Eastern Europe's transformation to democracy ... to make Europe whole and free.''

Peace Corps Director Paul Coverdell called the Eastern European tour a ''historic mission of profound proportions.''

Bush noted that the Peace Corps has served in 70 nations with some 120,000 volunteers since the agency was established in the Kennedy administration.

CONCORD, N.H. (JUNE 15) UPI - A federal court jury Friday deliberated for a second day charges that a physician married to a Bush administration official smuggled skins from rare and endangered animals into the United States from Mexico.

Constantine ''Gus'' Hampers of Dublin, N.H., and Weston, Mass., faces 53 years in prison and a $2.5 million fine if convicted on 13 charges of smuggling six jaguar, ocelot and mountain lion skins into the United States. The jaguar and ocelot are considered endangered species.

Hampers is married to Joyce Hampers, assistant secretary for economic development in the Commerce Department and a former Massachusetts revenue commissioner.

She has sat behind her husband in the U.S. District courtroom throughout the trial. Their three sons also have been in court.

Hampers is a former Harvard University professor who worked to improve the dialysis machine used by kidney patients.

Defense attorney W. Michael Dunn told jurors in his closing argument Wednesday that the ineptitude of the federal investigation into the skin smuggling made the charges against Hampers ''cuckoo'' and ''bull.''

But prosecutor Suzanne Hayden argued that about 95 cassettes of recorded conversations involving Hampers help prove that he knowingly smuggled the big cat skins from Mexico into the United States.

The jury began its deliberations Thursday.

Prosecutors must prove that Hampers knew he was breaking the law when he had professional hunter Tony Rivera smuggle the pelts into the United States in January 1987. He pleaded guilty last year to two counts of smuggling and violation of import laws.

Defense attorneys do not dispute that import and export laws were broken. They argue that Hampers did not break the law on purpose.

A Colrado taxidermist hired by Hampers and his friend of 30 years, Edward B. Hager of Lyndeborough, N.H., provided the taped conversations to police. The taxidermist, James Bensley, began making the tapes after he found out about the illegal activity, prosecutors said. Hampers was indicted in April 1988.

Hager, who ran unsuccessfully for Republican U.S. Senate nomination in 1980, pleaded guilty in late May to one count of knowingly importing illegal pelts. He is on probation for one year and must pay a $75,000 fine.

Hager and Hampers hunted the cats on two Mexican safaris in March 1985 and April 1986 which cost a total of $14,000.

(JUNE 15) UPI - Jurors in New York City are deliberating a verdict in the civil trial of jailhouse author Jack Abbott. He urged the panel to NOT give one cent to the widow of a budding actor he stabbed to death. A judge

DETROIT (JUNE 15) UPI - Tumultuous street celebrations of the Detroit Pistons' second consecutive NBA championship turned deadly early Friday, killing at least six people and leaving more than 20 injured, including five police officers, authorities said.

Thousands of fans danced wildly in the streets, shot off firecrackers and guns and drove around with blaring horns into the early morning hours after the Pistons' 92-90 victory Thursday night over the Trail Blazers in Portland, Ore.

But scattered looting, smashed storefront windows, and numerous fights, some involving police, marred the celebration, despite an order that all police officers on the afternoon shift Thursday remain on duty past their midnight quitting time, authorities said.

The dead included four people struck by a hit-and-run driver who plowed into a crowd of celebrants at an intersection in northeast Detroit, a man who fell from the roof of a Detroit apartment building and a four-year-old boy who was struck by a car during a disturbance in suburban River Rouge.

A total of 65 people were arrested - 35 in Detroit and 30 in River Rouge, a nearby working class community - according to police reports. Most were charged with disorderly conduct, a police spokesman said.

In northeast Detroit, a speeding car plowed into a crowd of people celebrating the Pistons' victory, killing four people - three of them children - and injuring a fifth.

The victims included a nine-year-old boy, a ten-year-old boy, a 15-year-old girl and a 21-year-old man, police said. An 18-year-old man was listed in serious condition with a broken leg at Detroit Receiving Hospital. Police were seeking the driver.

A 21-year-old Detroit man was attempting to set off a Roman candle firecracker when it flared up and he fell backwards from an apartment building four stories to the pavement. He died at Detroit Receiving Hospital.

In River Rouge, a four-year-old boy was struck by a car and killed during a disturbance early Friday involving some 300 people in the downtown area, apparently sparked by the Pistons' victory.

"I would say (the accident) was (related to the disturbance) but I don't have all the details," said River Rouge police spokesman Dennis Zwiwgalski. "They were breaking glass and tearing up the town, mostly," he said.

In northwest Detroit, two people were shot and wounded when a large crowd of people attempted to break into BB's Party Store. A 17-year-old boy was in critical condition with a gunshot wound to the head and a 21-year-old man was in stable condition with a gunshot wound to the left leg. Police said the 60-year-old store owner was in custody pending further investigation into the shooting.

A spokeswoman at Henry Ford Hospital, the city's largest, said six non-fatal shooting victims and 15 assault victims were brought in overnight. All were believed related to the celebration, she said. Authorities said at least five police officers were injured.

One of those treated at a crowded Receiving Hospital emergency room was WDIV-TV reporter Anne Thompson, who suffered a gash in her forehead when the windows of one of the station's vehicles were smashed.

The downtown area calmed after sunrise Friday, with only a few commuters wandering the litter-strewn streets. Police squad cars made periodic sweeps through the area where the violence occurred hours earlier.

At the Pistons' home court in the Palace in Auburn Hills, about 30 miles north of Detroit, 21,454 had gathered Thursday night to watch the game on a giant television screen. Fans leaped up and cheered as Vinnie Johnson's last-second shot gave the Pistons their fourth win in five games and the championship in the best-of-seven series.

In the background, the song, "We are the Champions" could barely be heard over the screaming throng. "It was really, really wild," said Scott Heitman, marketing assistant for the Pistons, who was at the Palace. "The emotional level was really higher than last year. The way the Pistons came back (from a 90-83 deficit), the fans gave them a standing ovation for a good half-hour after the final buzzer."

Officials announced a parade and a rally for the 1990 NBA world champions will be held Monday. "The city of Detroit is proud to celebrate with the Detroit Pistons on their second straight NBA championship," Mayor Coleman A. Young said early Friday. "This team is something our city and Detroiters are very proud of."

QUANTICO, VA (JUNE 15) UPI - The Marine Corps Friday granted an administrative discharge to a Cleveland man who deserted and fled to Canada 21 years ago to avoid the Vietnam War.

Chief Warrant Officer Eric Carlson said Ron Jacko, 42, was given the less-than-honorable discharge Friday morning and said he was on his way back to Cleveland.

A base spokesman, Lt. Col. Robert McClain, said Jacko submitted a request Thursday for separation in lieu of a trial by court-martial. Had the Marines decided to court-martial Jacko, the maximum penalty for desertion with the intent to avoid hazardous duty is a dishonorable discharge, forfeiture of all pay and allowances and a five-year confinement.

Jacko decided to return to the United States from Toronto to see his ailing mother who still lives in his boyhood home on Cleveland's west side. Jacko has reportedly lived in Canada since he deserted in May 1969.

"While Jacko is a little unusual in that he has been in that status a very long time, it's not uncommon to get deserters in periodically," McClain said.

Six deserters turned themselves in to the Marine base last year, he said. "The Marine Corps still has 174 individuals listed in a deserter status from the Vietnam era (1965-74)," McClain said.

Jacko joined the Marines in the belief he stood a better chance of avoiding combat if he enlisted rather than wait to be drafted. Jacko said he longed to come home many times, but felt the risk was too great. He said he never felt more lonely than when his father died eight years ago and Jacko, an only child, dared not attend the funeral.

When his mother became seriously ill recently and underwent three operations, Jacko decided it was time to come home. "He's suffered enough for what he did when he was a young man," said his 72-year-old mother, Marge Jacko. "He was young and he got scared like a lot of them at the time. Don't you think after all those years being kept away from his family, he's been punished enough?"

Three years after graduating from high school, Jacko tried to enlist in the Navy, but failed the entrance test. He then reluctantly took a recruiter's advice and joined the Marine Corps.

He thought that by volunteering he would qualify for some speciality that would keep him from combat. That belief evaporated in boot camp. "This was no TV show or movie," he said. "I was being trained to kill or be killed." On leave after boot camp, he fled to Toronto.

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM (JUNE 15) UPI - The European Community may delay a trade agreement and other aid for Romania due to this week's crackdown on protests in Bucharest, EC officials said Friday.

The agreement was initialed last week, but the violent suppression of anti-government protests makes signature of the pact ''an open question,'' an EC spokesman said.

The 12 EC foreign ministers, meeting in Luxembourg next Monday, will discuss the Romanian unrest and decide whether to delay formal conclusion of the trade agreement.

The EC executive commission will also consider the crackdown in determining whether an aid program for Poland and Hungary should be extended to Romania. The commission is coordinating the program on behalf of 24 rich nations.

''The commission is shocked and disappointed at the use of violence by the authorities, which is contrary to explicit commitments made at the highest level to Community representatives,'' said Bruce Millan, the EC commissioner for regional policy.

The agreement initialed with Romania calls for dismantling trade restrictions, along with broad cooperation in agriculture and other sectors. It would significantly broaden an industrial accord reached between Romania and the EC a decade ago.

Similar pacts have been signed in the past few months with Poland, Hungary East Germany, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria.

(JUNE 15) UPI - Detroit lived up to its reputation for violent celebrations of sports victories last night and early today. After the Detroit Pistons claimed their second straight N-B-A championship in Portland, Oregon, street celebrations in the Motor City turned violent... leaving four people dead and 20 injured. Detroit also went wild after the Tigers won the 1984 World Series... and suffers extensive arson every Halloween.

The Commerce Department has some good news this morning. According to the department's Census Bureau... the U-S merchandise trade deficit fell 17 percent in April... from eight-point-four BILLION dollars in March to just under seven-BILLION dollars. The bureau cited reduced U-S purchases of foreign oil, cars, consumer goods and other merchandise.

The Labor Department reports that consumer prices rose a less-than-expected two-tenths of one percent last month. Officials cited a seven-tenths of one percent drop in energy costs. The modest overall rise in consumer prices means that for the 12 months ending in May, inflation rose at an annual rate of four-point-four percent.

The Pentagon says it's sending a forensic expert to Malaysia to examine seven barrels of bones that Vietnamese refugees claim are the remains of some 30 American soldiers from the Vietnam War. LONDON (JUNE 15) UPI - A fire alarm triggered by a malfunctioning air conditioning system caused a Trans World Airlines pilot to abort a takeoff

Friday, leading to minor injuries to 12 people who exited the plane down emergency escape chutes.

TWA spokesman Patrick Bading said the mishap occurred at London's Heathrow Airport at 10:48 a.m. when TWA flight 709 embarked on a scheduled flight to New York's John F. Kennedy Airport.

''When the flight got onto the runway, the captain had a door warning indication,'' Bading said. ''He pulled off the runway and had a fire warning indication. The flight was evacuated.''

Bading said the fire warning was caused by an ''air conditioning sytem problem,'' but could not elaborate. He had no details on what caused the door warning.

He said the 222 passengers and 14 crew used emergency escape chutes to clear the Lockheed L-1011 aircraft. Investigators were at the plane to try and determine what caused the two warning signals, he said.

Bading and the London ambulance service said it treated 12 people for slight injuries - mostly cuts and bruises - sustained during the evacuation. They were all later discharged, and Bading said most of the passengers had been transferred to TWA flight 701, which was to depart for New York later Friday.

BOGOTA, COLOMBIA (JUNE 15) UPI - The army prepared to send 500 more troops to Medellin and authorities considered slapping a curfew on the city Friday after 15 people were killed in overnight gunfire.

Medellin Mayor Omar Florez told a Bogota radio station that authorities were considering imposition of a curfew following a night of killings of the kind that have become commonplace in the headquarters city of the Medellin cocaine cartel.

Medellin, 160 miles northwest of Bogota, is considered one of the most violent cities in the world.

Police said 15 people were killed by gunmen in various attacks late Thursday and early Friday. Seven died together in a single incident.

Gen. Oscar Botero, the defense minister, said 500 more soldiers would be sent to the city to reinforce the troops already patrolling the streets.

The mass shootings took place hours after the two occupants of a car loaded with dynamite set off the charge at a police checkpoint, killing themselves, a police officer and a passerby and wounding more than 40 other people.

MOSCOW (JUNE 15) UPI - A strong earthquake along the Soviet-Chinese border killed two people and toppled hundreds of houses in a sparsely populated area on both sides of the frontier, reports released Friday said.

The official Soviet news agency Tass said 247 houses were destroyed and another 290 damaged in Thursday evening's quake, which was centered near the town of Zaisan in the republic of Kazakhstan, about 2,000 miles southeast of Moscow.

The official Chinese news agency Xinhua said some houses also collapsed in western Xinjiang province, but did not give figures.

Chinese seismologists measured the quake at 7.3 on the Richter scale and U.S. earthquake monitors registered it at 6.8. The Soviet Union, which does not use the Richter scale, said the quake measured 7 or 8 on the Soviet 12-point scale.

CHARLESTON, WV (JUNE 15) UPI - An elderly couple died Friday when their small plane crashed a mile short of a runway in what was to be their next-to-last stop on a 48-state tour of state capitals, airport officials said.

Yeager Airport Assistant Manager Danny Huffman said the plane took off from Columbus, Ohio, earlier Friday, and had been due to arrive at Charleston at 8:30 a.m.

The crash occurred about 8:35 a.m, he said. The victims were identified as Marjorie Van Vliet, 67, of Warwick, R.I., and Frank Martineau, 69, of Bethesda, Md. The two had taken off from Providence, R.I., on May 29, announcing their intentions to visit every state capital with the exception of Alaska and Hawaii.

Huffman said the couple was trying an instrument approach to the airport because of heavy fog and rain.

Huffman said the airport received a letter from the pair a week ago, stating their intentions were to stop in Charleston to refuel and then fly on to Washington, D.C., ending their nationwide tour.

The cause of the crash was not immediately known. The plane landed in a section of Coonskin Park, grazed a tree, flipped around and crashed into the ground tail-first, Huffman said.

NEW YORK (JUNE 15) UPI - Beleaguered developer Donald Trump said he will miss payments due Friday on bonds used to finance his Trump Castle casino in Atlantic City, N.J.

''Certain principal and interest payments required to be made today on the 13.75 percent first mortgage bonds, series A-1, due June 15, 1997, and the interest payments required to be made today on the 7 percent First Mortgage Bonds, series A-2, due June 15, 1999 of Trump's Castle Funding Inc. are not being made,'' the Trump Organization said in a statement.

About $30 million in principal and interest was due Friday.

Earlier in the day, the American Stock Exchange halted trading on three classes of Trump gambling empire bonds for his three Atlantic City casinos pending the announcement.

Trump's June 15 interest payment on his Trump Plaza in Atlantic City ''is being made in full,'' while an interest payment on his lavish new Taj Mahal casino due May 15 ''has been made in full,'' the statement said.

As the missed payments were disclosed, Trump, who celebrated his 44th birthday Thursday with his estranged wife, Ivana, was actively negotiating with banks to restructure his debt and business empire.

''The Trump Organization is in ongoing negotiations with its lenders to obtain additional financing and restructure certain of its outstanding debt,'' the statement said.

Observers have speculated that Trump's failure to make the payments could trigger a chain reaction that may force the flamboyant businessman into seeking bankruptcy protection.

Trump's ability to meet payments on the Taj Mahal bonds, however, indicated that the worst may be averted.

Trump's major lending banks - Citicorp, Bankers Trust New York, Chase Manhattan and Manufacturers Hanover - agreed June 10 on a $2 billion bailout plan that would buy much needed time for the overextended dealmaker to restructure his vast empire, including trophy New York real estate and the Trump Shuttle airline.

Smaller lenders, however, could play a key role in Trump's fate.

First Fidelity Bancorp. and Midlantic Banks Inc., two New Jersey banks that did not take part in the June 10 agreement, have not yet decided whether to accept a suspension in some interest payments in exchange for increased collateral and a stake in some of Trump's properties.

Trump's empire, valued at $100 million in 1982, grew to an estimated $1.7 billion last year but now is believed to be worth less than $500 million.

He has failed to attract buyers for the properties he recently put on the auction block, including his Trump Princess yacht, valued at $40 million, the Trump Shuttle, which has an estimated $350 million pricetag, and New York's famous Plaza Hotel, worth around $400 million.

CHARLOTTE, NC (JUNE 15) UPI - Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., in a new fund-raising push, is trying to tie his Democratic opponent, Harvey Gantt, to "the powerful homosexual lobby" and is complaining he is under attack from gays, artists, liberals, and unions.

The fund-raising letter was one of the first signs that the race between Helms and Gantt, who is trying to become the state's first black senator, could be one of the most bitter contests in the nation this year.

Helms, seeking his fourth term, is considered an arch-enemy by many liberals who are upset with his efforts to fight various civil rights bills, AIDS legislation and federal support of certain arts projects. Some polls indicate that his race against Gantt, a former mayor of Charlotte, may be virtually even.

However, national Democratic strategists have said they will need considerable out-of-state money to defeat Helms and hope the fact that Gantt is black will help his effort to attract funds and fight the staunch conservative.

"My opponent is Harvey Gantt," Helms said in a letter asking supporters to send him $17 apiece so he can buy media time. "His campaign is backed by the powerful homosexual lobby. "With the primary over, the homosexuals, the so-called arts community, the ACLU and the union bosses are really on the attack," Helms wrote.

Gantt could not be reached for comment. His spokeswoman, Susan Jetton, said she was not surprised by the tone of Helms' letter. "He uses fear and hate-mongering," she said. "That's just been his standard practice. I suspect there are a lot of good Democrats out there who voted for Harvey Gantt who would be interested in knowing how he (Helms) characterizes their support of Harvey."

Also Friday, a Miami-based coalition called Cure AIDS Now called for an international boycott of all North Carolina products because of Helms. Ironically, one item produced in North Carolina is the AIDS drug AZT, manufactured by Burroughs-Wellcome in Research Triangle Park.

"In the last decade, from (former President Ronald) Reagan to (President George) Bush, from (the Rev. Jerry) Falwell to Helms, it's been one consistent attack upon gays and people living with AIDS, instead of going after AIDS itself," group spokesman Bob Kunst said in Atlanta.

"The bottom line is that money talks," Kunst said. "Morality and human kindness are not a consideration of the Bush-Helms attacks." Kunst urged Americans to boycott corporations he said support Helms. Specifically, Kunst named: Philip Morris cigarettes, Kraft Foods, Miller Beer, Oscar Meyer meats, AT&T, Bank of America, Amoco, Shell Oil, RJR-Nabisco, Burlington Industries, American Airlines, Brown & Williams Tobacco, Kimberly Clark, and Food Lion.

Helms' campaign has raised at least $5.7 million already, but the senator said in his letter he has "spent every penny" and needs $125,000 to buy television time.

"We can't buy the ads we need now unless we raise the money," Helms wrote. "That's why it's so urgent that you send your $17 by June 13. We have to make payments to TV and radio stations by that date."

Officials at television stations in Raleigh and Charlotte said they have received no money from Helms thus far, and a Helms spokeswoman said that was because he does not have the money for the ads. Bush plans to appear with Helms next week to help him raise money. Homosexual activists have said they plan to protest the visit.

TYRE, LEBANON (JUNE 15) UPI - Masked gunmen killed a high-ranking Palestinian official Friday inside a Palestinian refugee camp in southern Lebanon, security sources said.

The sources said gunmen wearing hoods over their heads fired at Ahmed Selim Draz, a senior official of the Fatah Movement of Palestine Liberation Organization Chairman Yasser Arafat. Draz was killed instantly in the assault at Rashidiyeh camp, near Tyre, 46 miles south of Beirut.

The assailants fled to an unknown destination, the sources said. They added that following Draz's assassination, fighting broke out inside the camp between fighters of various Palestinian factions.

A PLO spokesman in Tyre, known by his nom de guerre, Al Jamal, accused ''Israeli agents'' of carrying out the assasination and said, ''This cowardly action is aimed at inciting inter-Palestinian clashes.''

It was the second such incident in three months inside Rashidiyeh. Last April, PLO representative Lt. Col. Sultan Abul Ainan escaped an attempt on his life when hooded gunmen attacked him near the entrance of the camp, severely wounding one of his bodyguards.

Rashidiyeh is the second-largest camp in southern Lebanon, housing more than 10,000 Palestinians, including 5,000 fighters of various Palestinian factions. About 50,000 Palestinians live in the Ein El Helweh camp in the vicinity of the port city of Sidon, 24 miles south of Beirut.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - The government netted only $57,000 on the disposal of more than $3 million in assets from a group of failed savings and loans because of bad planning and poor management, according to a report released Friday.

Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., who released the sharply critical General Accounting report, said it "reflects the negligent attitude of this administration throughout the course of the current multibillion-dollar savings and loan fiasco."

The GAO report examined how the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. disposed of furniture, fixtures and equipment from 101 failed thrifts in the Southwest, primarily Texas, between May and December 1988.

Under the FSLIC's "Southwest Plan," $18 million in furniture and equipment was sold to acquirers of the failed thrifts, leaving $3.3 million to be disposed by the FSLIC.

"After deducting expenses, FSLIC received about $57,000 on the sale of Southwest Plan furniture, fixtures and equipment ... suggesting that it may not have maximized revenue or minimized expenses," according to the GAO report.

The GAO found that in handling the sale, the government agency paid four firms a total of $2.05 million for services including communications equipment, inventory and appraisal, moving and warehousing. GAO investigators learned all four firms had a single owner and the contracts were let without competition.

The investigators also found the FSLIC failed to plan for disposal of the assets until a year after they had been acquired and ignored the fact that projected warehousing costs exceeded the value of the assets.

"While the FSLIC had many responsibilities in managing and liquidating assets of failed thrifts, it had not fulfilled its responsibility of the management and liquidation of furniture, fixtures and equipment," the GAO said.

The work of the FSLIC has since been taken over by the Resolution Trust Corp., charged with handling the government bailout of failed thrifts, which the administration currently estimates will cost some $130 billion. Other estimates place the cost at as high as $500 billion.

"Some people may think that the money involved in this case amounts to small potatoes," Pryor said of the GAO report, "but there is a greater principle at stake here. ... We should be attempting to recoup something for the depositor or the taxpayer in the wake of this fiasco.

"Instead," he said, "under this atmosphere of neglect, people are being allowed to plunder the remains of our failed savings and loans and pick the carcasses clean."

(JUNE 15) UPI - The Soviet Union reportedly wants the superpowers to hold talks this autumn to eliminate short-range nuclear forces in Europe. NATO officials in Brussels say Moscow made the proposal to the United States today. A spokesman for the U-S NATO delegation says the talks are ''long overdue,'' but American officials are NOT ready to negotiate elimination of all ground-based short-range missiles. The spokesman says the issue will be discussed by the NATO heads of state and governments at their summit meeting in London next month.

Flash floods fed by a thunderstorm surged through a trailer park in Shadyside, Ohio, last night... toppling homes, sweeping automobiles into swollen creeks and killing at least five people. Authorities say about 60 others are UNaccounted for. Captain Todd Graham of the Belmont County Sheriff's Department says the thunderstorm hit shortly after 8 p-m, sending area creeks rampaging over their banks. Graham says the surging waters collapsed the walls of a local bar... trapping people inside.

The Labor Department pegged a two-tenths of one percent rise in consumer prices last month... less than the three-tenths of one percent most financial analysts predicted. The government says its index for energy fell seven-tenths of one percent and the clothing index shed three-tenths of one percent. Food prices remained UNchanged in May, but medical care prices continued to rise sharply, as did prices for other goods and services.

Strong exports and lower imports sent America's merchandise trade deficit 17 percent lower in April to six-point-nine-BILLION dollars. That's down from eight-point-four BILLION dollars during March. Most private analysts expected red ink of seven and one-half BILLION dollars during April. The latest trade figure put the deficit at an annual rate of 92-point-two BILLION dollars for 1990... a drop from 109-BILLION dollars in 1989.

A Federal Reserve report shows factory production jumped six-tenths of one percent during May as industrial capacity rose three-tenths of a percentage point. The Fed attributed the increase in industrial production to a rebound from a sharp drop in motor vehicle production during April. Excluding cars, the overall rise in factory output would have been a modest two-tenths of one percent last month.

EAST BERLIN (JUNE 15) UPI - East German police arrested seven suspected West German terrorists in a 24-hour period ending Friday, bringing to nine the number of such apprehensions made during the past 10 days.

The East German Interior Ministry said one of the suspected former Red Army Faction members captured Thursday, Christine Daemlein, 41, was released after a few hours because the international warrant for her arrest had expired two years ago.

The eight other suspects, currently held in East Germany, are among about 30 extremist suspects wanted in West Germany for a string of violent attacks, including kidnappings, assassinations and bank robberies.

The list of crimes in which they were allegedly implicated reads like a chronology of extremism in West Germany and includes the kidnapping of Italian politician Aldo Moro and the assassination of West German banker Juergen Ponto, both in 1977.

Speaking at a news conference Friday, East German Interior Minister Peter-Michael Diestel said several of those arrested had lived in East Germany for about 10 years.

Diestel said the now-disbanded secret police of the former communist government had given them false identities.

The West German News Agency DPA reported that Susanne Albrecht, who was arrested last week, was regularly seen in the Syrian capital of Damascus, leading Western intelligence services to believe she lived in the Middle East.

The news agency, attributing its information to an intelligence source in Bonn, said the West German investigators had searched for Red Army Faction members in Yemen, Syria and Iraq, but had not believed the extremists were living in East Germany.

''If we had openly claimed that members of the Red Army Faction were staying in (East Germany), we would certainly have got major political trouble,'' the news agency quoted the official as saying.

The Interior Ministry said that, in addition to Duemlein, Monika Helbing, 36, Ekkerhard Freiherr von Sekkendoff-Gudent, 49, and Werner Lotze, 38, were arrested Thursday. Barbara Meyer, 33, her husband Horst Meyer, 34 and Sabine Callsen, 29, were arrested Friday.

Albrecht, 39 was arrested June 6 and Ingrid Viett, 46, on June 12.

Diestel said it was becoming increasingly evident that the Stasi, the secret police of the former Communist authorities, had helped West German extremists on the run to get East German citizenship and a new identity.

He said that, although the former authorities did not support the methods used by the Red Army Faction, they agreed with the organization's stated ''anti-imperialist'' goals.

At an earlier news conference, Diestel condemned what he said were ''devilish links'' between the now-disbanded Stasi and the West German extremists.

But former East German intelligence chief Col. Markus Wolf denied that his department had known of any links between the Stasi and the Red Army Faction.

Wolf, who during his 30-year career became known as the most successful East Bloc agent, said he first learned of Albrecht's presence in the country from press reports published after her arrest.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - Recent reports indicate inflation has cooled from its overheated pace at the beginning of the year but economists said Friday the economy is expected to remain sluggish through the summer.

On Friday, the Labor Department reported that consumer prices rose a modest 0.2 percent in May, the same increase as the month before and lower than several economists had expected.

Combined with Thursday's report of an 0.3 percent rise in wholesale prices for May, the consumer price report indicates that inflation has stabilized after a weather-related spike earlier this year.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said inflation "remains low and under control" and noted that the May increase was "subtantially lower" than the 0.7 percent average montly increase recorded in the first quarter.

Economists said the inflation reports are likely to dampen the concerns of the Federal Reserve, which has been under pressure from the Bush administration to slow down its inflation-fighting efforts by lowering interest rates.

"There is certainly a case that can be made for easing, but the Fed didn't ease yesterday and it appears they are waiting for more information," said Robert Dederick, chief economist at Northern Trust Co. in Chicago. The Fed could be prompted to move after reviewing June employment statistics, which will be released July 6, economists said.

"People are worried about their job picture. There is a real softness in jobs and that will eventually prod the Fed to ease," David Jones, an economist at Aubrey Lanston & Co. in New York.

The easing of inflation gives the Fed an opportunity to lower interest rates, which would perk up the economy, but some economists believe the Fed may not move on rates for other reasons.

"The last holdout consideration is that by keeping rates up they are forcing the hands of politicians to come up with credible fiscal policies " said Stacy Kottman, an economic forecaster at Georgia State University.

On Thursday, Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan told the House Banking Committee that interest rates could decline if the adminsitration and congressional leaders reach a "credible" compromise on the budget.

"I think Greenspan is reminding them that there is a linkage between Fed policy on interest rates and political progress on deficit reduction," Kottman said.

Turning to the economic reports, the Labor Department said lower energy and apparel prices and flat food costs helped cool inflation's rise in May but economists urged caution in reading the report. "It's good news but we are still recovering from the big price spikes earlier in the year. We can't expect that to continue," Kottman said.

The government's index for energy and apparel prices declined 0.7 percent and 0.3 percent respectively while food prices remained unchanged. Shelter costs rose 0.2 percent.

Prices for medical care continued to rise sharply during May, as did prices for other goods and services, notable medical care, which gained a sharp 0.8 percent and rose nine percent above year-ago levels. "Medical prices seem to be immune to economic fluctuations," Kottman said.

For the 12 months ended in May, inflation rose at a rate of 4.4 percent. During the first five months of the year, consumer prices rose at an annualized rate of 5.8 percent, down from a 6.3 percent rate during the same period last year.

Consumers received some good news from another Labor Department report that showed average weekly earnings rose 0.3 percent, slightly higher than last month's inflation level, an up from an 0.2 percent gain in April.

In a separate report, the Commerce Department said the U.S. merchandise trade deficit dropped 17 percent in April to $6.9 billion from $8.4 billion in March, due to strength in exports and lower imports, mainly of cars and oil.

The April figures, adjusted to account for seasonal factors, mean that the U.S. trade deficit is at an annual average of $92.2 billion for 1990, down from $109 billion for 1989 and $118.5 billion for 1988. The Fed also reported that industrial production picked up steam last month, rising 0.6 percent while industrial capacity gained 0.3 percent.

The Fed attributed the May increase in industrial production to a rebound from April's sharp decline in motor vehicle production. Excluding motor vehicle production, the overall increase for industrial production would have been a modest 0.2 percent last month.

During the past year, industrial production has gained 1.34 percent to 109.7 percent of its 1987 annual average, the Fed reported. Manufacturing production rose 0.8 percent in May to bring the operating rate of the nation's factories up 0.4 percent to 83 percent, the Fed said. Mining output was unchanged during the month while utilities production fell 1.1 percent.

LONDON (JUNE 15) UPI - LaToya Jackson, singer and sister of superstar Michael Jackson, returned to London from Italy with two black eyes, sparking a variety of reports that the singer was either beaten up, the victim of a kidnap attempt or both, it was reported Friday.

The London tabloid Daily Mail said Jackson was injured while in Milan with her husband and manager, Jack Gordon, who said she was the target of a kidnap attempt Tuesday in the northern Italian city.

It quoted LaToya as saying through her spokesman Richard Rubinstein: ''I was beaten up in Milan two days ago. I don't want to talk about it.''

Italian police have denied any reports of violence against Jackson, the Mail said.

''LaToya also said 30 to 40 percent of her body is covered in bruises and it is very difficult for her to move,'' Rubenstein told the Mail.

The newspaper showed a picture of the singer, who has not reached the heights of stardom of her brother, Michael, or sister, Janet.

Wearing a naval cap, LaToya sported two black eyes, the left eye appearing to be more heavily bruised than the other.

COLOMBO, SRI LANKA (JUNE 15) UPI - Tamil guerrillas executed 49 captured Sri Lankan police officers as they knelt in a row before a rebel firing squad Friday, a Defense Ministry source reported.

The latest wave of fighting brought to more than 150 the number of government security force police killed since a cease-fire was shattered early this week, touching off the heaviest fighting between the rebels and government forces in more than a year.

Violence over the past four days has claimed at least 450 lives in northern and eastern provinces, authorities said.

Bitter battles between the guerrillas and Sri Lankan security forces left at least 97 people dead Friday, including the 49 officers executed by the rebels, the Defense Ministry source said.

A government negotiator, meanwhile, met with leaders of the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam to discuss ways of ending the violence.

Justice Minister Shahul Hameed flew by military aircraft Friday morning to the port town of Jaffna, 180 miles north of Colombo, for the meeting.

He was to report to President Ranasinghe Premadasa on his return to Colombo. Hameed met with Tiger leaders in a heavily guarded guerrilla office. As the two sides talked, however, fighting raged in other parts of the country.

The worst incident of the day occurred in the northeast coastal town of Kinniya where 49 of 60 police officers captured Thursday by rebels were executed Friday morning, said a source in the Defense Ministry's operations headquarters.

''The men were lined up in a row, ordered to kneel down and shot dead,'' the source said.

The government learned of the slayings from one of the abducted police officers who managed to escape, he added. The whereabouts of the other 10 police officers was not known, the source said.

In the nearby town of Marathadi, nine other police have also been killed but the source did not say when their deaths occurred or provide other details.

Sri Lankan police and military sources claim at least 117 other policemen captured by the Tigers earlier in the week have been killed. The fighting is the worst since peace negotiations with the government began in May 1989.

Thousands of people have died in ethnic violence since 1983 when Tamil militants began waging a blody campaign to establish in the northeastern province an independent homeland for the 3-million mostly-Hindu Tamil minority.

The Tamils demand a separate state because of years of alleged discrimination by the majority Buddhist Singhalese, who control the Colombo government.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - President Bush conferred Friday with Paraguay President Andres Rodriguez, telling him the United States was ''very pleased with this noble beginning'' in his nation toward full democracy.

Rodriguez, stopping in the United States en route to Taiwan and South Korea, met with Bush in the Oval Office in a sign of warming relations between the two countries.

He also met later with Vice President Dan Quayle, who recently visited the Latin American country.

Speaking through an interpreter, Rodriguez told Bush he was certain the United States would continue to support his efforts to bring democracy to Paraguay.

''I am very sure and I feel very confident that the leader of the world's democracies will help me in Paraguay to implant democracy in this transitional period that we are going through,'' he said.

Bush responded, ''We've been very pleased with this noble beginning you've made and watched it with great interest.''

Relations between the United States and Paraguay have improved since Rodriguez overthrew longtime dictator Alfredo Stroessner in a coup and held democratic elections in May 1989.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Bush privately heralded Paraguay's ''first truly open and free'' election last year, as well as the country's moves to restore press freedom and allow opposition groups to form.

But an administration official, speaking anonymously, said the White House was not yet ready to fully endorse a request pressed by Rodriguez Friday that special trade benefits be restored to his country.

Congress holds hearings at the end of the month on whether the General System of Preferences for Paraguay, cut off largely because of human rights violations, should be resumed. The move is opposed by the AFL-CIO, primarily because government workers have been fired for attempting to organize.

Asked if the United States was ready to support Paraguay on the trade question, the official said, ''Not overtly, but we'll assure them that they'll get a fair hearing.''

Rodriguez, speaking to reporters before a meeting and luncheon with Quayle said he was pleased by the reception he had received and that Bush had appeared ''favorable'' to his country's demand.

''There are always possibilities,'' he said. ''Where there is good will, there are always possibilities.''

Rodriguez said he also discussed his country's plan to establish a nature preserve to protect tropical rain forests as part of a deal with the World Bank to retire debt.

Fitzwater said Bush also made the case for more intensive cooperation between the countries ''to prevent drug traffickers from establishing a foothold in that country.''

Quayle was expected to press Rodriguez on the Paraguay Air Force's largely unsuccessful efforts to close down more than 100 landing strips in the undeveloped northwest part of the country being used by drug runners.

''We're willing to talk about'' more U.S. aid for those efforts, one official said.

Bush, speaking at a picture-taking session before heading to the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., for the weekend, noted the thaw between the countries, thanking Rodriguez for the hospitality he showed Quayle on his March trip to Paraguay.

The trip by Quayle, the White House's unofficial Latin American envoy, was ''a rather historic first in recent times,'' Bush said.

But the visit created a stir when Rodriguez presented Quayle with two jaguars, which are protected as endangered species in the United States. The minor flap was eased when Rodriguez said he freed the animals into the wilderness.

Bush plans his own six-nation swing through the region in September but Paraguay is not on the itinerary.

(JUNE 15) UPI - Authorities from Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania are using helicopters to search for survivors of flash floods that swept through towns along the Ohio River. At least six people are confirmed dead and another 62 are UNaccounted for in the eastern Ohio town of Shadyside after torrential rains hit last night and caused several creeks to surge beyond their banks.

Flooding also hit Nebraska, where more than 100 people were evacuated this morning in the town of Platte Center. Some two feet of water has inundated the area, causing one resident to comment that it looks ''like a disaster area.''

President Bush has vetoed legislation that would have relaxed restrictions on political activity by federal government employees. In slapping down congressional efforts to amend the 1939 Hatch Act, Bush said he wanted to prevent the ''re-politicization of the civil service.'' The White House says Bush also will veto the newly approved family and parental leave act.

UNION PARK, FL (JUNE 15) UPI - The doughnuts are overpriced and coffee refills cost $1, but business is booming at the almost-topless Erotic Donuts shop.

The waitresses wear bikini bottoms and pasties.

''Not pasties in the old stripper sense, cute little round things with tassels. They wear round things,'' said Harry Stewart, the Orange County attorney who has been trying in vain to figure out a way to prosecute shop owner Kevin Welch.

''They're not exposing anything,'' Stewart said.

The waitresses wear a different pair of designer round things every day.

''We autographed one today, (for) a probation officer who took it back to the office,'' said waitress Lillian Guillen, 36, of Orlando.

''I have one pair with red and white hearts. They're cute,'' said waitress Maura McNamara, 21. ''That's my real name and my real age. In the newspaper they put quote marks around it like I'm a hooker.''

What she is is an actress/model/waitress with a fun, easy, good-paying job and she loves it, she said.

When the shop opened May 30, it was besieged by customers.

''It was a zoo,'' said Welch, 30, who gave up his job driving a juice truck to start the business.

Doughnuts cost $1 each, three times what you would pay if you bought them from the Orlando bakery 6 miles up the road where Welch buys them every morning. Coffee also is $1 - no refills.

But customers flood into the small shop, sometimes so many they form a line out the door.

Elliott Pardee, 33, a computer programmer from Chuluota, has stopped in three times in less than two weeks.

He likes the idea of an almost-topless doughnut shop.

''Why not? Doughnut shops, hardware stores, whatever,'' he said.

However, Orange County Commissioner Bill Donegan is not amused. He has received 108 complaints about the shop - more than any other matter during his 18-month tenure on the commission.

''There's no question that he slipped under every adult entertainment ordinance that we have. He doesn't serve any liquor. He doesn't allow anyone under age 18 in there. He tinted all the windows. It's one of these times we'll have to be more creative in writing ... ordinances for these places.''

Welch admits his inspiration came from R'Donuts, a 5-year-old topless doughnut shop in Fort Lauderdale, but to comply with county ordinances, he had to have his waitresses wear pasties.

Another doughnut shop used to occupy his building, and neighbors were surprised when they saw ''Erotic Donuts'' plastered over the old sign.

LONDON (JUNE 15) UPI - Stock prices closed lower in moderate trading Friday on the London International stock exchange, dragged down by news that Britain's annual inflation rate climbed to 9.7 percent in May.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which slipped 2.4 points Thursday, lost 10.7 points to 2,392.3. But for the week, the key index, which measures the value of Britain's largest 100 companies in terms of market capitalization, posted a gain of 25.7 points.

The narrower top 30 industrial average slipped 2.9 points to 1,925.7 but gained 33.0 points for the week. Volume amounted to around 401 million shares, compared with the 554 million that changed hands Thursday.

On the economic front, the Central Statistical Office reported Britain's retail price index rose 0.9 percent in May from April and was up 9.7 percent from a year earlier.

The government attributed the jump in the index mostly to rises in costs of food, housing, alcohol and tobacco, partly reflecting the impact of tax increases announced in the March budget.

The underlying level of inflation, excluding mortgage interest payments and the municipal change introduced in April, was up seven percent in May, compared with 6.5 percent in April.

Government officials have indicated that this underlying measure is closest to the measures of inflation used by most other members of the European Community.

The underlying inflation index in May was 120, compared with 118.9 in April and 112.2 in May 1989. These figures are measured against a base of 100.0 in the index set in Janaury 1987.

Economists said the 9.7 percent annual rate was higher than they expected and predicted inflation would break through the psychological ten percent barrier this summer.

The underlying rate was even more alarming, considering other European Community nations had an average of between four and five percent, they said.

"These are very disappointing figures," said David Smith, an economist with Williams de Broe Ltd. "This certainly suggests we have a very deep-seated, long-run inflation problem."

On the trading floor, among the most widely traded stocks, Globe Investment Trust gained eight cents to $3.28 after Britain's Secretary of State for Trade and Industry announced the proposed bid by British Coal Corp.'s pension fund for Globe would not be referred to the Monopolies and Mergers Commission.

Elsewhere, Burton fell 15 cents to $2.68, Marks & Spencer fell 11 cents to $3.80 and Kingfisher lost 19 cents to $5.63 after a series of downgradings by brokerages, suggesting the stock prices were inflated.

SHADYSIDE, OH (JUNE 15) UPI - A flash flood sent a wall of water 15 to 20 feet high rampaging through hill communities along the Ohio River, killing at least nine people and leaving 62 others missing, authorities said Friday.

Capt. Todd Graham of the Belmont County Sheriff's Department said the thunderstorm hit shortly after 8 p.m. Thursday, sending area creeks rampaging over their banks.

''We now have nine confirmed dead,'' he said. ''And we still have 62 people missing.''

As the wall of water roared through the rural hill communities, ''houses and foundations ... washed away, mobile homes washed away and cars and trucks washed into the creeks,'' Graham said.

''There was one local bar on Weegee Road where the walls collapsed and trapped people inside. There was a mobile home sitting next to the bar that washed down the creek with people in it.''

Graham said two people from the bar were rescued, but authorities did not know many were inside when it was demolished.

''We do have one report of good news: a 7-year-old girl was washed away in the Glencoe area and she was found at the Ohio River, about 7 miles away '' he said. ''She survived and is in the hospital, suffering from abrasions and contusions, but nothing real bad for what she went through. She reportedly did see her babysitter drown.''

The Ohio Emergency Management Agency said Shadyside received 5 inches of rain in four hours.

''We had a torrential downpour that started about 8 p.m. and progressively got worse,'' Bruce Fink, a Shadyside police officer, said. ''We had three creeks that overflowed their banks by about 20 feet.''

Weegee Road, Graham said, reportedly was hit with a 15-foot wall of water. ''That same report said it was even worse - up to 20 feet - on Pipe Creek Road.''

Graham said a makeshift morgue had been put up in Shadyside, a village of about 4,300 across the Ohio River from Wheeling, W.Va. The flooding creeks inundated numerous hill communities, including Cumberland Run, Pipe Creek and Glencoe.

''I talked to one fellow who got out of his car because it washed away,'' Graham said. ''He got on a tree and it washed away. He was able to get on another tree and waited for about two hours before being rescued.

''He was still worried about his $50 car and I had to explain to him that we were busy trying to find people this morning, not $50 cars. He said he was concerned about the fishing pole he left on the front seat.''

Graham said hundreds of people from area law enforcement agencies, as well as local detachments of the Ohio National Guard and the Army Reserve, were helping with the search and cleanup. Another 50 guardsmen, with heavy equipment, were en route from Columbus.

Helicopters from the Ohio Highway Patrol and from Pittsburgh and Charleston, W.Va., were searching for more victims Friday morning. Gov. Richard Celeste was to visit the area later as part of a helicopter tour of the flooded counties.

In Madison County, west of Columbus, lightning struck a beach shelter at Madison Lake, injuring two. Virginia Summer, 62, of Columbus was in serious condition at Doctor's North Hospital in Columbus and Nettie Chafins, 16, also of Columbus, was in fair condition at the same hospital.

More than 3 inches of rain fell in Licking County, east of Columbus, where several hundred people were evacuated in floods earlier this month. Columbus was hit by 2 inches of rain, flooding streets and knocking out power to about 35,000 customers of the Columbus Southern Power Co.

MOSCOW (JUNE 15) UPI - The Soviet Union announced Friday it was easing the blockade of Lithuania and was ''ready for negotiations'' with the tiny Baltic republic over its bid for independence.

Wednesday, Lithuanian Prime Minister Kazimiera Prunskine said Soviet officials had agreed to supply more natural gas, but she gave few details of the easing of the economic blockade imposed two months ago by Moscow.

She also said that Lithuania's Parliament would consider freezing implementation of its March 11 declaration of independence as demanded by Moscow to get talks started.

Yuri Maslukov, chairman of the Soviet Gosplan central planning agency, told a news conference that Soviet authorities will send an additional 123.6 million cubic feet of natural gas daily to Lithuania ''as a goodwill gesture to promote talks.''

At a separate news conference, Soviet Vice President Anatoly Lukyanov said that the total blockade of oil and natural gas will be lifted once Lithuania's Parliament freezes the implementation of its independence act.

Lukyanov said suspending the implementation of the declaration of independence would meet the constitutional requirements set by the Congress of People's Deputies in March when it declared Lithuania's actions invalid and illegal.

''We are ready for negotiations and political dialogue but first the mandate of the Congress of People's Deputies must be fulfilled,'' Lukyanov said.

The blockade's end ''will happen when the implementation of the declaration adopted March 11 by the Lithuanian Parliament is suspended,'' he said.

Nikolai Medvedev, a Russian legislator in the Supreme Soviet who represents a district in Lithuania, told United Press International Thursday he believes Lithuania's Parliament will soon freeze the declaration so talks can start.

The Soviets announced on April 18 that they were slashing natural gas supplies to Lithuania by 85 percent and cut all oil supplies because the Baltic republic had not complied with Moscow's demand to rescind its declaration of independence.

Prunskiene met with Soviet Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov on Wednesday to discuss the blockade a day after the presidents of the three Baltic republics sat down with President Mikhail Gorbachev to discuss the stalemate over independence.

Soviet and Baltic officials said after Tuesday's meeting the blockade could be lifted and negotiations on secession could begin if Lithuania agreed to temporarily freeze its independence proclamation.

The presidents of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia said they were encouraged by their meeting with Gorbachev Tuesday and brought home compromise proposals that might end the deadlock on Baltic independence.

JERUSALEM (JUNE 15) UPI - Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, in an interview published Friday, said any distancing between Israel and the United States ''almost automatically generates dangerous tension in the Middle East.''

Shamir, who received a congratulatory message from President Bush Friday on establishing his new government, also told The Jerusalem Post that Israel did not nurture any thoughts on attacking Arab countries.

Asked about claims that the influx of tens of thousands of Soviet Jews will make Israel less likely to make peace with Palestinians, Shamir said, ''Today,everyone knows that a weak Israel won't come to any settlement with them.''

''Only a strong and confident Israel will be able to make peace agreements with the Arab world,'' the 74-year-old former underground leader said.

Military sources, meanwhile, confirmed an Army Radio report that Israel had increased observation posts along the Israeli-Jordanian border, but said the measure had ''nothing to do with any specific incidents.''

''It's nothing out of the ordinary,'' a military source said. ''In my opinion,these things change all the time. It's nothing in response to anything in particular.''

Army Radio reported Israel had no interest in Jordan as long as it did not pose a threat and worked to keep the border quiet. Jordanian soldiers had recently captured guerrillas coming from Syria and attempting to cross into Israel to carry out attacks, the radio reported.

In his message to Shamir, who won approval Monday from Israel's Parliament of a Likud-led coalition government whose partners include right-wing and religious parties, Bush said he hoped it would be possible now to move forward with the peace process.

Shamir rejected a proposal by Secretary of State James Baker on how to begin Israeli-Palestinian talks, a move that triggered the collapse March 13 of Israel's Likud-Labor ''national unity'' government.

In the Jerusalem Post interview, Shamir described the peace process as ''so complex and difficult that one sometimes must stop and take time out together to think how to proceed.''

''It can't go along at what is known as an 'American tempo.' Here we sometimes have to fortify ourselves with patience,'' he said.

Shamir indicated that the PLO and Arab nations received encouragement from European positions, which he described as increasingly hostile to Israel, and any appearance of a divide between Israel and its No. 1 ally, the United States could encourage hostile trends, he said.

''When they (Arabs) see any sort of misunderstanding between Israel and the U.S., they try to exaggerate it and present it as a serious dispute. ... There's new hope for the success of their aggression against Israel,'' Shamir said.

''I would say, therefore, to international circles, mainly in the U.S., that giving emphasis to any distancing between Israel and the United States almost automatically generates dangerous tension in the Middle East.''

Shamir repeated his belief that a dialogue between Israel and Palestinians from the Isreali-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip cannot succeed without prior agreement between both sides that the goal is autonomy. Palestinians want an independent state.

On the issue of Soviet Jewish immigration, Shamir also said that, if the Soviet Union was interested in peace in the Middle East, it would tell Arab countries to stop ''these artificial outcries ... that immigration leads to war.''

He said immigration would not harm Arab interests but would strengthen Israel and bring greater stability to the region.

''They have nothing to fear,'' he said. ''But those who do not want a strong Israel and are toying with the illusion that they can liquidate Israel, it is they who are opposed to immigration.''

STRAUSBERG, EAST GERMANY (JUNE 15) UPI - East Germany's defense minister said Friday German unification should wait until Sept. 1 1992 - the anniversary of the start of World War II triggered by the Nazi invasion of Poland.

The suggestion by Defense Minister Rainer Eppelmann clearly clashes with the Bonn government's view that unity will be reached later this year or early 1991.

Speaking at a news conference after a meeting of Warsaw Pact defense ministers, Eppelmann said unification should take on the 53rd anniversary of the 1939 German invasion of Poland marking the beginning of World War II.

''I am a person who values symbolic acts, that is why I like September 1 '' he said at Strausberg, outside East Berlin, where the meeting was held.

Eppelmann, who also holds the disarmament portfolio, admitted that waiting so long might test the patience of Germans both in the East and the West.

His suggestion is also likely to anger conservative politicians in the Bonn government, who have been calling for early unification and have suggested the two German states could merge later this year or early next year.

Eppelmann argued that more time was needed to prepare the framework for a pan-European security system.

''I call on all Germans in East and West Germany to have political patience and to think as Europeans and not as Germans,'' He said. ''German unity must support and not hamper European unity.''

The first stage of unification is due to begin July 1, with the establishment of an economic, currency and social union between the two German states.

Eppelmann questioned the suggestion made by his West German counterpart, Gerhard Stoltenber, that both nation's armies will merge immediately after unification, to form a single German army.

He said the rapid unification of the armies would not only present political but also technical problems as the two were equipped with completely different equipment and weapons.

PLANT CITY, Fla. (JUNE 15) UPI - A man driven out of California after serving a prison term for raping a teenage girl and hacking off her arms will be tried on a petty theft charge July 30, a judge ruled Friday.

Lawrence Singleton, 62, of Tampa, who was accompanied by a woman and his attorney, said nothing during a two-minute hearing, and quickly exited to avoid reporters after his appearence before Hillsborough County Judge Debra Behnke.

Behnke rescheduled the trial date from June 25 at the request of Singleton's public defender, Ron Gabriel, who said he needed more time to prepare his defense. Gabriel would not comment after the hearing.

Jury selection, which will take place in Tampa, will begin July 30, with opening statements set for July 31 in Plant City.

Singleton, who pleaded innocent last month, was arrested by sheriff's deputies April 8 at a Brandon drugstore and charged with trying to steal a $10 disposable camera.

Assistant State Attorney Ronald Darrigo has said he would seek a sentence of 60 days in jail and four months probation, the maximum penalty for the second-degree misdemeanor, if Singleton is convicted.

Singleton was released in 1987 from a California prison amid angry protests after serving eight years and four months of a 14-year sentence for raping a teenager, hacking off her arms and then leaving her for dead along a roadside in 1978. His one-year parole ended in 1988.

California authorities had difficulty finding a town in which Singleton could serve out his parole without generating protests and threats from residents.

Singleton was arrested in Brandon after a security guard at a Phar-Mor drugstore spotted him tearing a Fuji Quicksnap camera from its package.

According to a sheriff's report, Singleton took the $9.98 camera and headed for the store exit. Guard Debra A. Love stopped him before he could leave.

A twice-divorced former merchant seaman, Singleton arrived in his hometown of Tampa in May 1988. When he registered as a Florida citizen, he told authorities he was fully disabled and living on Social Security.

Singleton did not receive a warm reception in Tampa. Shorlty after his arrival, a homemade bomb was tossed on the front lawn of his brother's house, where he was staying. No one was injured, and there were no arrests.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - Adminstration officials told a Senate committee Friday they oppose trade sanctions against Iraq despite its ''abysmal'' human rights record and its use of chemical weapons, saying such measures would hurt U.S. farmers more than the Baghdad government.

Both Democratic and Republican members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee reacted angrily to the administration position - with even a senator from a grain-producing state calling for stronger action.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., said Amnesty International reports that Iraq has tortured and executed children left her in tears, and that just because U.S. sanctions might not work is no reason not to give them a try.

''I have never believed we should use food as a weapon. On the other hand, when it reaches the point as it has with our relationship with Iraq, I think we have to be prepared ... to take some sort of action,'' said Kassebaum.

''It would hurt wheat sales in Kansas, that's very true,'' she said. ''But sometimes I think we have to stand up and be counted.''

The United States does not give Iraq money, but does give it credit guarantees that help it buy U.S. farm products. Last year, the guarantees, which provide insurance for lenders, totaled $700 million.

Iraq, which has never defaulted on the guarantees, is the largest export market for American rice, buying 23 percent of total U.S. exports, and also purchases products including cattle, eggs, chicken, lumber and tobacco.

John Kelly, assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern and South Asian affairs, told the committee the administration opposes proposals before Congress to cut off the credit guarantees or impose other sanctions because other Western countries would simply provide the same goods and services.

''None of our friends and allies among the industrial countries is willing to impose either sanctions or an export embargo against Iraq,'' he said. ''It would be the American farmer and the American exporter who would be punished.''

Kelly testified that Iraq's human rights record ''is abysmal'' and that U.S. concern is growing about Iraqi programs to obtain nuclear, biological and chemical weapons. Earlier this year, for example, an attempt to send nuclear weapon triggers to Iraq was foiled by U.S. and British authorities.

Joshua Gilder, principal deputy assistant secretary of state for human rights and humanitarian affairs, said the Iraqi use of chemical weapons against its Kurdish population during its war with Iraq killed thousands, and he estimated that tens of thousands of Iraqis have been political prisoners.

''Human rights, as such, are not recognized in Iraq,'' he said. ''The ordinary Iraqi citizen knows no personal security against government violence.''

Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., said that the Iraqi use of chemical weapons was the first since World War I and the 1925 Geneva Protocol, and that the whole idea of law ''is being frittered away'' if violators face no punishment.

''Does it mean anything to violate a treaty?'' Moynihan asked Kelly, his voice rising in anger. ''Where will we take a stand?''

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (JUNE 15) UPI - Federal Express Corp. said Friday it had acquired a French courier firm and inaugurated Boeing 747 service connecting Asia, the Middle East, Europe and the United States.

Federal Express said it acquired on June 13 for an undisclosed amount Transports Transvendeens Chronoservice. The French company has annual sales of 178 million French francs and employs more than 400 people in 14 facilities throughout France.

The company has 250 trucks and vans and operates a next-day trucking service, as well an international and domestic express bus service.

Chronoservice started business in 1929 using passenger buses to carry parcels. Since 1980, the company has focused on next-day trucking service within France.

The new name of the company will be Federal Express-Chronoservice S.A., fully owned by Federal Express France SARL. Pierre Adida, managing director of Federal Express France, has been appointed chief executive officer of the new firm, the company said.

The thrice-weekly Boeing 747 flights will complete the last link of a global encircling network of regularly scheduled flights.

Originating in Taipei, the flights will include intermediate stops at Bangkok, Dubai, Frankfort and Stansted near London, terminating in New York.

Federal Express has provided direct service between these points via its polar route, but had never before offered scheduled flights connecting Asia, the Middle East, Europe and the United States.

NEW YORK (JUNE 15) UPI - The Soviet Union, beset by declining oil production, has recently cut oil exports to North Korea by half, U.S. government sources said Friday.

''They were cut by half about six weeks ago,'' said one official, commenting on condition of remaining unidentifed.

''No one knows why. But the speculation is that the Soviets could make more money selling oil on the outside for hard currency than selling to North Korea in exchange for barter goods,'' the official said, commenting on condition of anonymity.

The well-regarded Platt's Oilgram reported Friday that the president of a South Korean oil company earlier this week said there are strong indications the Soviet Union has cut oil supplies to North Korea.

Platt's quoted Hongsun Chang, president of Kukdong Oil, as saying in Singapore that the supplies were cut after Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev met Roh Tae Woo, his South Korean counterpart, in San Francisco last week on his way home from the Washington summit meeting with President George Bush.

Chang was quoted as saying the Soviet Union supplied 40 percent of North Korea's oil needs, with the rest being supplied by China and Iran.

The U.S. officials, however, dismissed the notion that the reduction in supplies to North Korea was an outgrowth of the San Francisco meeting.

They said the reduction predated the meeting by at least several weeks.

No immediate comment could be obtained from the Soviet Union. ''I just don't know,'' a spokesman at the Soviet embassy in Washington said.

Robert Ebel, a former U.S. intelligence analyst of Soviet affairs who is vice president for international affairs of Enserch Corp. in Washington, said he had not heard of the reduction of Soviet oil exports to North Korea.

''The question is whether a cutoff is a deliberate political act or (reflects Soviet) inability to respond to North Korea's needs because of difficulties at home, particularly if North Korea is paying in barter goods rather than hard currency the Soviets need,'' Ebel said.

Ebel said there have been recent published reports of Soviet oil production for the first five months of 1990 being down 5 percent, or 600,000 barrels a day, from the same period last year.

The International Energy Agency in Paris also reported earlier this month that daily Soviet production fell to 11.8 million barrels during this year's first quarter from 12.35 million in 1989's first quarter.

The world's largest producer of oil, the Soviet Union earlier this year announced that 1989 output averaged 12.4 million barrels a day - 340,000 barrels below 1988 and the level Moscow had targeted for 1989.

Gorbachev is being pressed for a higher pay and living standard by Siberian oil workers, who have proposed selling their oil directly on foreign markets for hard currency to buy food and other goods.

Earlier this year, they proposed the workers' collective take 10-15 percent of the oil and gas produced and sell it domestically and abroad at negotiated prices without paying anything to the state budget.

In addition, Soviet officials are actively seeking Western technology they need to exploit the potential of their oil fields.

Last month, France's state-owned ELF Aquintaine became the first foreign company to get a contract for oil exploration and production in the Soviet Union.

U.S. oil companies such as Texaco Inc., Chevron Corp. and Amoco Corp. are also actively engaged in discussions with the Soviets.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - Democrats warned Friday that if President Bush follows through with his promise to veto the family and medical leave bill he will have to explain why the action conflicts with one of his campaign promises.

The day after the Senate passed the measure on a voice vote and sent it to the White House, Democrats dared Bush to veto the bill.

''Yes, Mr. Bush. We read your lips and you said you were for it,'' said Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo. ''We certainly hope that he is not wrapping himself in the flag and coming out against parenthood, because parenthood and family issues are the very basis of how he got elected.''

Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., the measure's chief Senate sponsor, said, ''He's going to have to explain the contradiction.''

Bush told a group of Republican women during the presidential campaign,

''We need to assure that women don't have to worry about getting their jobs back after having a child or caring for a child during a serious illness. That is waht I mean when I talk about a gentler nation.''

But Bush's press secretary, Marlin Fitzwater, said the president would veto the bill, which would require employers with more than 50 workers to offer 12 weeks of unpaid leave in one year to care for a newborn, adopted child or seriously ill parent, child, spouse or themselves. Workers would receive health benefits and job protection during the leave.

Veto override attempts could prove difficult. The House vote of 237-187 fell 46 votes shy of the two-thirds needed to override. And Dodd conceded the Senate is ''short at this juncture'' of prevailing over the White House.

Bush feels worker benefits should be negotiated between employers and employees and that the government should play no role in those decisions.

But Dodd said not all workers have the opportunity to negotiate benefits.

''The fact is that 85 percent of working Americans do not belong to a collective bargaining unit and do not have the ability to negotiate this benefit,'' Dodd said.

As passed, the bill affects 5 percent of all businesses and 44 percent of all workers.

Schroeder complained that supporters of the bill - Republicans as well as Democrats - have not been able to get into the White House to talk with Bush or high-ranking officials about the bill's merits.

''We had hoped that with (Chief of Staff John) Sununu in Russia, maybe we'd have been able to get in,'' Schroeder quipped about the conservative official.

The White House confirmed a report Thursday that Sununu had agreed to travel to the Soviet Union at some time in the future to advise the Kremlin on White House management techniques.

''Mr. President,'' Rep. Bart Gordon, D-Tenn., said, ''don't let rigid ideology triumph over common sense.''

NEW YORK (JUNE 15) UPI - Texas' Hunt brothers, who tried to corner the world silver market and failed a decade ago, will sell their multi-million dollar collections of ancient silver and gold coins next week to pay back taxes and creditors.

Four sales at Sotheby's auction house June 19-22 are the first of a year-long series that will dispose of the collections of Nelson Bunker Hunt and William Herbert Hunt, including Greek, Roman and Byzantine coins, bronze sculpture and ornamental objects, and Greek ceramic vases.

Sotheby's experts estimate the collections will bring as much a $20 million, with next week's sales alone realizing $10 million to $15 million. The sales are the result of reorganization plans agreed to by the brothers in Federal Bankruptcy Court, Dallas, last winter.

The Hunts were ruined financially by attempting to manipulate the prices of silver futures contracts and silver bullion so they could control the silver market. They were charged with federal violations by the Comodity Futures Trading Commission in 1985 and settlements were later reached.

Under the bankruptcy court's plan, virtually all of the Hunts' personal assets, including their art collections, were placed in liquidating trusts the contents of which are to be sold within six years to pay back taxes, fines and interest to the Internal Revenue Service and to recompense their creditors.

''The great range and historical importance of the Hunt collections make them one of the finest groupings of ancient art in private hands today,'' said John L. Marion, Sotheby's chairman.

''These sales are the most execeptional series of ancient art sales in auction history.''

Top lots coming to the block are the only complete run of the Athenian silver dekadrachma denomination of coins in private hands, examples of gold coins and medals from virtually every Roman emperor, Greek vases decorated by Euphronius and the so-called Berlin painter, and a magnificent Etruscan bronze horse figurine, expected to bring as much as $175,000.

Two museum quality Roman bronze portrait busts are among the most valuable lots in the sale. The bust of a man who lived in the reign of Caesar Augustus carries a pre-sale eveluation of $500,000 and the bust of an elderly Augustan woman is valued at $300,000.

To arouse the interest of collectors worldwide, Sotheby's showed the Hunt collections in Los Angeles, Chicago, London, Frankfurt, Munich, Monte Carlo, Zurich, Geneva, Hong Kong, Singapore, Tokyo and Osaka before the sale.

The Hunts began collecting when they were children, William Hunt recalled at a sale preview. He said their collections were mostly stamps and Indian head pennies.

''I collected coins as a kid and got Bunker's collection when he quit,'' he said. ''He went off to school and I took over - expropriated it, you might say.''

They began collecting antiquities in a big way in 1977, William choosing to specialize in Roman bronzes and Byzantine coins so as not to compete with Nelson, who focused on Greek and Roman coins and Greek vases. Their collecting spree ended in 1979 when they began manipulating the silver market.

In that short time Nelson put together a vase collection of such high quality that it has been compared to the William Randolph Hearst Collection now owned by New York's Metropolitan Museum.

The signed Euphronios vase, a restored two-handle krater with scenes from the Hercules legend, is valued at $600,000, and an amphora wine vessel that was created as a prize in the Panathenaic athletic games of 500 B.C. is valued at $300,000.

''I just wanted a nice vase collection,'' Nelson Hunt said. ''I was told that outside of museums there were very few vases owned privately so it would be a nice thing to collect.''

Some 355 lots of coins spanning 1,000 years of history will be sold at the Tuesday, Thursday and Friday sales.

(JUNE 15) UPI - Rescue efforts continue in eastern Ohio after rain-swollen creeks rushed over their walls last night and today. The worst damage appears to be in Shadyside, where six people are dead and 62 others are missing following flash flooding. Shadyside police officer Richard Fink says the town of 43-hundred was deluged by three creeks that ''overflowed their banks by about 20 feet.''

Captain Todd Graham of the Belmont County Sheriff's Department says rescuers have one positive report. He says a seven-year-old girl was rescued from the Ohio River after being washed seven miles down the surging waterway. She is hospitalized with abrasions and contusions.

Authorities in the Detroit area say exhuberant celebrations of the second-straight N-B-A championship last night turned bloody early today. At least six people died and more than 20 others suffered injuries in post-victory processions. Four people died... three of them children...

when a hit-and-run driver plowed into a crowd. Detroit police say they took 35 people into custody during the early morning melee, while police in the nearby blue collar town of River Rouge arrested 30 people.

Russian President Boris Yeltsin suffered a setback today when the republic's parliament rejected the candidate he supported for prime minister. The Russian Supreme Soviet backed the central government's candidate after Yeltsin's man UNveiled a radical plan that would transform the state-subsidized economy into a market-based system. Today's activities leave the future of Yeltsin's economic plan UNclear.

Several economists hailed as ''good news'' a Labor Department report showing a modest two-tenths of one percent rise in consumer prices last month. Georgia State University economist Stacy Kottman says the report shows the nation is recovering ''from the big price spikes earlier in the year.'' WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - President Bush vetoed legislation Friday that would ease restrictions on political activity by federal employees, saying the measure would lead to the ''repoliticization of the civil service.''

Bush said Congress' effort to amend the 1939 Hatch Act would ''convert the present rule that partisan politicking by federal civil servants is prohibited into a presumption that such partisan campaigning should be encouraged.''

The White House issued a copy of the president's letter to Congress vetoing the measure just minutes after Bush left Washington for a weekend at the presidential retreat of Camp David, Md.

Press secretary Marlin Fitzwater also reaffirmed that Bush plans to veto the family and parental leave act, which was passed by a voice vote by the Senate Thursday.

The two vetoes would bring to 13 the number of bills Bush will have vetoed since he took office 17 months ago. Thus far, all have been sustained.

Bush, in his letter to Congress, wrote: ''I am firmly convinced that any appreciable lessening of the current protections afforded to civil servants by the Hatch Act will lead to the repoliticization of the civil service.''

Three major unions representing federal workers called for a veto override. James Peirce, president of the National Federation of Federal Employees, said in a statement that Bush's veto ''is a bitter disappointment to federal workers'' and called on members of Congress to ''stick with their principles and vote to override the veto.'' John Sturdivant, president of the American Federation of Government Employees, said, ''The time has come to make federal government employees first class citizens with the same basic constitutional rights as every other American citizen.''

Robert Tobias of the National Treasury Employees Union said members of Congress ''must maintain their courageous support of reform and not trade their collective conscience for White House cuff links or breakfast with Bush.''

Sen. William Roth, R-Del., said, ''Through his veto, President Bush has sent a strong message to Congress of the need to continue to protect federal employees from coercive pressures to be involved in partisan activity.

''I am optimistic that when his veto message returns to the Senate for a vote, we will have the votes to sustain it,'' Roth said.

Rep. William Ford, D-Mich., chairman of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee, has called the measure ''the political emancipation of 3 million federal workers'' who would be allowed to hold office in a political organization and work in a political campaign if it becomes law.

The House voted 334 to 87 Tuesday to ease the prohibitions against political involvement by federal employees. The Senate passed the bill May 10 by a 67-30 vote, giving the measure the minimum 67 votes needed to override a veto.

''If that (Senate) vote holds, we'll override the president. I have no reason to believe that it won't hold,'' Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said.

However, Sen. William Roth, R-Del., who mounted a campaign against the changes, has indicated he believes he can corral enough votes to back the president's veto.

The Hatch Act was passed in 1939 to prevent government workers from being coerced to work in presidential campaigns. A set of regulations has emanated from the law to bar civil servants from taking part in politcal activities.

The Justice Department has opposed the legislation, declaring the act's ban protects federal workers from coercion and patronage abuse.

While the bill would lift restrictions on off-duty political activity, it would continue to prohibit workers from running for partisan political office and from soliciting funds from the public.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - The State Department said Friday that brutal suppression of demonstrations in Romania "strike at the very heart of Romanian democracy," and that it will withhold all non-humanitarian economic aid until the abuses stop.

The government protested the brutal crackdown by vigilante groups made up of coal miners bused in to the Romanian capital, and said Thursday there would be no consideration of most-favored-nation tariff treatment for Romania until the organized attacks on democratic opposition groups stop.

Spokesman Richard Boucher said, "The actions authorized by President (Ion) Iliescu and his government in the past few days strike at the very heart of Romanian democracy.

"Organized attacks against the offices of opposition political parties and independent newspapers and beatings of political figures who pursue democratic goals through peaceful means, by workers summoned to Bucharest by President Iliescu himself, threaten to return Romania to authoritarianism." Ilescue, whose Socialist Party won the parliamentary elections, is a former member of the Ceaucescu government and Communist Party.

Boucher said, "We call upon President Iliescu and his government to halt immediately any further action against Romania's fledgling democratic process. Specifically, he should clear all worker vigilantes from the streets and publicly pledge that they will not be encouraged or allowed to return."

Boucher said that Ilescue should also provide public guarantees of safety for members of all political parties and he should reopen all independent newspapers and magazines that were attacked on Thursday.

"Until the democratic process is restored," Boucher said, "the United States has decided to withhold all non-humanitarian economic support assistance." That ban will not affect $81 million in food and medical aid that has already been announced.

The department spokesman said Ambassador Alan Green, who was in Washington this week on consultations, has been instructed to return to Bucharest "to convey to the Romanian leadership the seriousness of our concerns about recent events."

The State Department has not yet decided on a level for development aid for Romania but Boucher said the whole process has been put on hold until Ilescue responds by halting the suppression of political opponents.

NEW YORK (JUNE 15) UPI - Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said Friday the United States ''stands ready to pick up where we left off'' in the Middle East Peace process, but that Israel and others ''have to want to move the process forward.''

Addressing a Jewish audience from the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, Cheney pressed the administration's case for Middle East peace talks two days after Secretary of State James Baker publicly blamed the Israeli government of Yitzhak Shamir for the breakdown in the Middle East peace process.

In Washington Wednesday, Baker described the danger of a Middle East war as at its highest since the 1967 conflict and, for the first time, he blamed the Israeli government for the failure to hold peace talks.

''It will take a good faith affirmative effort on the part of our Israeli friends (to get the peace process restarted),'' he said. Baker then recited the telephone number for the White House switchboard and added, ''When you're serious about peace, call.''

Some members of Congress criticized Baker for his remarks.

Cheney, answering questions from the audience after his speech, was asked about the failed peace efforts.

''What we've done is work very hard ... over the past 18 months to advance the peace process in the Middle East,'' he said. ''Ultimately the Israeli government came apart, fell.

''The fact of the matter is, we stand ready today to pick up where we left off in that process a couple of months ago,'' Cheney said.

But, he added, ''I think there has to be understanding on the part of folks in the region that they have to want to move the process forward as well.''

Earlier in his speech, Cheney dismissed the flap over Baker's remarks by comparing it to a marital spat and said Israel's future security depends on negotiations with the Palestinians.

''Israel must remain strong to secure ... peace, but weapons and technology alone are not sufficient,'' Cheney said. ''Real security can only come through successful negotiations with Palestinians and Arab states that leads to a durable peace.

''Yes, we have had our differences of opinion about how to pursue this objective,'' he added in an indirect reference to Baker's remarks. ''There is not an ally in the world with whom we have not had an occasional disagreement. Show me a marriage in which there have never been disagreements and I'll show you a couple with no personality.''

While Cheney received a warm reception before and after his address, the audience interrupted his speech with applause only twice:

Once when he said, ''We understand that no country can be expected to take risks for peace unless it feels secure,'' and again when he added the United States ''will continue to support Israel's qualitative military edge in the region.''

CAIRO, EGYPT (JUNE 15) UPI - Israeli Premier Yitzhak Shamir's hardline toward the Middle East peace process is harming Egypt's moderating role and pushing the PLO closer to radical Arab states such as Iraq, Arab diplomats said Friday.

The diplomats said the Israeli stance, if it continues, could provide the spark for another war in the region which would cost Israel more casualties than previous conflicts.

''Egypt is the only Arab country to have signed a peace treaty with Israel and maintains close ties with the United States and the PLO,'' one Cairo-based senior Arab envoy told United Press International.

''But if Israel continues to reject talks with Palestinians, and offers no other alternative to peace, then Egypt will lose its reason for mediation and the PLO will be at the mercy of radicals such as (Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein).''

Saddam, whose relations with the United States soured more than two months ago when British customs foiled an alleged Iraqi plot to smuggle U.S.-made nuclear triggers, has in the past threatened to wipe out half of Israel with chemical weapons if faced with an attack on its territory by the Jewish state.

Despite Saddam's recent fiery rhetoric against Israel and the United States, Iraq has pleased Egypt by not questioning the almost defunct U.S. and Egyptian-backed Middle East peace process.

But Palestine Liberation Organziation leader Yasser Arafat's predicament was highlighted May 30 when a radical faction, the Palestinian Liberation Front (PLF), apparently seized on the lack of progress in peace talks to launch an abortive seaborne raid against the Israeli coast.

Pressure from radicals, who are either frustrated at Shamir's avowed policy to crush the Palestinian uprising and settle as many Soviet Jews as possible, or seek an excuse to destroy any U.S.-backed peace process, forced Arafat to issue only a veiled condemnation of the raid.

Arab frustration at the lack of progress in peace talks was also echoed in Washington, where Secretary of State James Baker in testimony Wednesday before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, implored the new Israeli government to engage in dialogue with Palestinians.

Shamir, who received a congratulatory message from President Bush Friday on establishing his new government, said in an interview with The Jerusalem Post that Israel did not nurture any thoughts on attacking Arab countries.

But asked about claims that the influx of tens of thousands of Soviet Jews will make Israel less likely to make peace with Palestinians, Shamir said, ''Today everyone knows that a weak Israel won't come to any settlement with them.''

''Only a strong and confident Israel will be able to make peace agreements with the Arab world,'' the 74-year-old former underground leader said.

Military sources, meanwhile, confirmed an Army Radio report that Israel had increased observation posts along the Israeli-Jordanian border.

Cairo-based Western diplomats said that despite the Soviet Union's reduced profile in the region, Iraq had enough military supplies left over from its 8-year-long war with Iran to cause Israel ''heavy casualties.''

Despite Egypt's peace treaty with Israel, frustration over what Egyptian Foreign Ministry officials describe as the instransigence of the right-wing Shamir adminstration has prompted the harshest remarks to come out of Cairo in a decade.

A statement attributed to an unnamed spokesman in President Hosni Mubarak's office Tuesday warned that if Israel had changed its strategic goals in the region and was contemplating a possible first strike against an Arab country, Egypt ''cannot ignore'' this change.

Egypt is allied with Iraq within the Arab Cooperation Council, which also groups Yemen and Jordan, but it has used its good offices to moderate Arab resolutions on the peace process.

The last example was at the May summit of Arab leaders in Baghdad, when Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Morocco succeeded in toning down an Arab communique delivered to President Bush and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev before the two men held their Washington summit.

''If the PLO has to rely only on Iraq, and is forced into a corner by (radicals), that means trouble,'' the Arab diplomat said. ''(Saddam's) domestic situation is such that he loses little by adopting a hard-line stance ... he would lose even less if it came to a fight with Israel.''

Even Syrian President Hafez Assad, locked in a 20-year-old feud with Saddam, offered to help the Iraqi leader in case of confrontation with Israel.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - Washington clothing chain Arthur A. Adler will go out of business by the end of the summer, ending a 48-year tradition of servicing presidents, Supreme Court justices and members of Congress, the company's president said Friday.

"We got caught in a situation with over-expansion in a soft economy," said John B. Adler, son of the store's eponymous late founder. The upscale men's haberdashery will close its three remaining stores by August, he said. A fourth store, located at F Street in Northwest Washington, closed earlier this year.

Arthur A. Adler, well-known for providing conservative styled suits for the city's power brokers, initially began heavily discounting items and running ads that virtually pleaded for business in an attempt to keep the company's four stores afloat.

"We tried a couple of different tactics to try and combat low sales," said Adler. "But we decided the best thing to do was to close the entire corporate entity." "In general, areas like Washington are becoming oversaturated with competition, regardless of the quality level," said Adler.

The company opened its first store in 1942, on the corner of 15th and H streets in Northwest Washington, but closed that outlet less than two years after it opened because hoped-for business there did not materialize.

Subsequently, it opened stores elsewhere in the metropolitan area, both in Washington proper and in suburban locales like Chevy Chase, Md., where one of the last three Adler stores is located.

A recent Commerce Department report showed that retail sales declined the past three months, but Adler said increased competition from more innovative and aggressive national stores did more damage to company survival.

Surrounding Arthur A. Adler's downtown store are men's clothier Brooks Brothers and J. Press. In addition, traditional department stores have expanded and upgraded their men's departments. "Retail is so competitive now, that the retailer is constantly acting defensively as opposed to offensively," said Adler.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - A computerized screening technique for potential AIDS drugs has found that compounds related to a common psychiatric drug may help combat the AIDS virus, a researcher reported Friday.

At a meeting at the National Institutes of Health, Irwin Kuntz Jr. of the University of California-San Francisco said his team has discovered haloperidol, a prescription drug widely used to treat psychotic disorders, can block the action of a protein that the AIDS virus needs to reproduce.

However, the levels of haloperidol needed to effectively fight the AIDS virus would kill human patients, Kuntz said. The drug is sold under the trade name Haldol by McNeil Pharmaceutical of Spring House, Pa.

The California team is now making changes in Haldol's structure in the hopes they can retain its AIDS-fighting power, while lessening its toxicity.

The researchers made their discovery using a computerized screening system to search for compounds with a shape that would fit into a ''groove'' of protease, a protein essential to AIDS virus replication, and thereby block its activity. That approach differs from most past drug development efforts, which looked primarily at a compound's chemical makeup not its shape.

Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan praised the NIH-funded work, calling it ''a major step forward in the application of basic resarch to disease-targeted strategies.''

''In a remarkably quick time, this work has located a compound that may lead the way toward useful new drugs for AIDS,'' Sullivan said in a statement.

In recent months, several major pharmaceutical firms have used shaped-based strategies similar to Kuntz's to design protease-blocking compounds that have the power to halt AIDS virus reproduction in the test-tube.

STRAUSBERG, EAST GERMANY (JUNE 15) UPI - The Warsaw Pact will maintain its ''defensive'' military doctrine, defense ministers of the organization said in a statement Friday after a two-day meeting to discuss the alliance's future.

The ministers of the seven member states also called on the NATO to ''accelerate and deepen'' changes within its structure, a move they said would ''confirm its sincerity and goodwill'' in efforts toward the creation of a common European security order.

They said that as a result of growing trust between the Warsaw Pact and NATO, ''there are real possibilites that both organizations will be conferred with a non-confrontational character and will be able to make a positive contribution to the development of pan-European security structures.''

The ministers said that ''during the meeting it was stressed that the member states of the Warsaw Pact will continue to be led in their military policies by the defensive doctrine.''

Ministers from Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Hungary, Poland, Romania and the Soviet Union attended the meeting, which was held at the East German defense ministry in Strausberg, near Berlin.

They said among the issues discussed during the meeting were basic reforms of the organization, arms reductions and troop cuts as well as the withdrawal of Soviet troops from Eastern Europe.

At a news conference, the Soviet Commander of the Warsaw Pact forces, Gen. Pyotr Luschev, said members will have to respect their committments as long as the pact, which created the military alliance in 1955, remains in force.

He said the question of unification was something for the Germans to decide. ''This has been made clear by Moscow,'' he said.

''Naturally, member states of both the Warsaw Pact and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization have different views on German unification,'' he said.

He said internal differences had been openly discussed at the meeting.

''In many questions we found unity but differences were also discussed, especially over the future and organization of the Warsaw Pact,'' he said.

The Hungarian Parliament Thursday moved ahead with efforts to withdraw from the Warsaw Pact. In Budapest, the legislature's foreign affairs committee adopted a proposal which would authorize Parliament to begin negotiations with other Warsaw pact members to revise bilateral treaties.

The proposal must still be approved by the full legislature.

East German Defense and Disarmament Minister Rainer Eppelmann said both the Eastern and Western alliances were ''relics of the Cold War.''

''But we still need both structures in order to bring about a dialogue,'' he said.

He said the defense ministers favored the view that the Warsaw Pact should remain in force until a common European security system comes into existence.

Speaking at a news conference, the minister also said that for the first time at such a meeting, controversial actions of Pact forces had been openly discussed - particularly the 1956 Soviet invasion of Hungary and the 1968 invasion of Czechoslovakia by joint Warsaw Pact forces.

Czechoslovakia's Defense Minister Miroslav Vacek said ''the countries which were involved in the 1968 invasion have apologized.''

NEW YORK (JUNE 15) UPI - Union leaders at the New York Daily News launched a campaign Friday to gain support for their contract battle with newspaper's management, vowing to lead a boycott of the paper in the event of a strike.

George McDonald, president of the Allied Printing Trades Council, said New Yorkers would be asked to sign petitions saying they will not buy the paper if the Council's ten unions decide a boycott is needed to speed negotiations.

Pinning a button onto the shirt of Newspaper Guild member and union steward Frieda Gibson, McDonald said 20,000 similar buttons proclaiming support for the unions will be given out to all Daily News employees, their families and the public.

The rectangular buttons resemble the tabloid's front page with a bold-faced headline saying "Working to Save the Daily News" under a masthead that reads "Real News." A black banner across the top bears the word "final."

The 1.2 million circulation newspaper's contracts with the unions expired April 1. Since then, the paper has laid off 52 production workers from its unionized workforce of 3,200.

The paper's management is trying to win millions of dollars in contract concessions that it says are necessary to keep the nation's second-largest metropolitan daily newspaper alive.

Union members also began gathering signatures for petitions urging the Daily News and its parent Tribune Co. to negotiate fair contracts and pledging not to buy the paper if the unions ask for a boycott.

"We want the people to know when the unions gave up $100 million in wages since 1982 so management could install new equipment, they reneged, giving us a paper with pictures you can't see and print you can't read," McDonald said.

The paper has said the layoffs were meant as cost-cutting moves to eliminate $70 million in "excess" labor costs but McDonald said they were designed to intimidate and divide union members.

NEW YORK (JUNE 15) UPI - Neo-Nazi skinheads are a violent menace across the country but the frequency and ruthlessness of their attacks seem to be on the decline, a report said Friday.

It was the first sign of slackening activity by the groups since they first emerged with names like Rocky Mountain Confederate Hammer Skins, in Denver, and the American White Aryan Resistance in Portland, Ore.

The national survey was the fifth on skinhead activity by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith in New York, which published its first study of the groups in November 1987.

In releasing the report, ADL Associate National Director Justin Finger said, ''The upward spiral of Skinhead growth has been stemmed for the first time since 1985.''

However, youngsters, some as young as 13, continue to be recruited to the violent gangs, whose members' usual trademarks are shaved heads or closely cropped hair, heavy boots, jeans and suspenders, the report said.

Not all skinheads engage in racist violence, and in many areas, ''Skinheads are growing their hair to avoid police attention and public hostility,'' the report said.

The survey, ''Neo-Nazi Skinheads: a 1990 Status Report'' credited law enforcement efforts that resulted in removal of gang leaders for curbing violence by skinhead gangs. Many skinhead leaders have been imprisoned or left their gangs, the report said.

In Dallas, for example, jail sentences ranging from four years to nearly 10 years were handed down on May 2 to Sean Christian Tarrant and four other members of the Confederate Hammer Skins, the report said.

They were convicted in a federal trial March 1 of chasing and assaulting blacks and Hispanics in a city park and of vandalizing a synagogue and a Jewish community center.

At the trial, gang members who cooperated with prosecutors told of a scheme to pump deadly cyanide gas into the synagogue through the air-conditioning system, the report said.

A lawsuit in Portland, Ore., is pending on behalf of the family of an Ethiopian immigrant, Mulugeta Seraw, who was beaten to death by three neo-Nazi skinheads in November 1988.

In a state-by-state breakdown of skinhead activity, the report said there are about 3,000 skinheads in 34 states. The same number existed in 31 states last year, it said.

They are scattered predominently thoughout the entire West, except for Utah, Alaska and Hawaii, and this year, skinheads appeared for the first time in Delaware, West Virginia, Mississippi, Montana, New Mexico and Idaho, the report said.

The report said that in New Jersey, contrary to national trends, activity was up sharply, with 300 to 450 racist skinheads.

One brutal attack occured Jan. 28, when Atlantic City, N.J., Skinhead James Keating, 19, was kicked and burned with a cigar in an attempt to remove his tattoos allegedly because he wanted to defect from the group, the report said.

BOSTON (JUNE 15) UPI - A federal court jury Friday began deliberating evidence against three people accused of conspiring to smuggle advanced weapons to the Irish Republican Army.

Richard Johnson, 41, of Nashua, N.H.,, formerly an engineer with the Mitre Corp., in Bedford, Mass., Irish national Martin Quigley, 27, and Christina Reid, 25, of Sunnyvale, Calif., are accused of helping the IRA obtain weapons to fight the British military in Northern Ireland.

In his closing arguments Thursday, a federal prosecutor said there is ''no innocent explanation'' for the activities of the defendants charged in the weapons supply scheme.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Stearns said an unexploded bomb found in Northen Ireland in 1985 is linked to ''11 matching components'' found in Johnson's basement workshop.

Defense attorneys disputed the government's case, saying the defendants were involved only in hobbyist activities, such as building models.

The jurors received 2 1/2 hours of instruction from the U.S. District Judge A. David Mazzone on Friday morning and began deliberations about noon.

A fourth defendant, Gerald Hoy, 39, of Easton, Pa., pleaded guilty to related charges. A date for his sentencing has not yet been set. A fifth suspect, Irish national Peter Maguire, remains at large.

The FBI arrested the defendants last year after a lengthy investigation into the alleged weapons smuggling.

Johnson, Quigley and Reid are accused of conspiracy to violate the Arms Export Control Act and conspiracy to destroy property belonging to a foreign government.

Johnson allegedly designed remote-contolled detonation devices and advised the IRA on electronic countermeasures to combat the British military in Northern Ireland.

During the trial, two FBI agents described wire-tapping several 1988 telephone conversations between Johnson, Reid and Quigley. In one of the conversations, Johnson and another man discussed weapon systems designed to shoot down British helicopters.

''If you want to go into production then I'll tell you how to handle it,'' Johnson said. ''As a matter of fact, I probably have some of those parts around my house I can start experimenting with.''

LOS ANGELES (JUNE 15) UPI - More than 160 members of the two notorious Los Angeles-based gangs, the Crips and Bloods, were arrested in an 11-state sweep involving local authorities and the military, federal agents announced Friday.

Authorities had also seized an unspecified amount of firearms, drugs and cash in the sweep that began Thursday and was scheduled to end Friday, Stephen Higgins, director of the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, said at at a news conference.

''It's a long season and we're trying to get victories against them anyway we can,'' Higgins said, acknowledging those arrested represented only a small segment of the gangs' operations.

At least an additional 100 gang members were expected to be arrested by day's end, he said.

Andrew Vita, agent-in-charge of the ATF office in Los Angeles, said the loosely knit Crips and Bloods have staked out a large portion of the nation's cocaine trafficking and have been identified in 32 states and 69 cities outside California.

Vita said 134 of the more than 160 gang members arrested were picked up at various locations in the Los Angeles area, including ''crack houses.'' Higgins said the arrests in other states were expected to yield ''intelligence'' on how the two gangs have established their nationwide operations.

''Drugs, unfortunately, go hand in hand with firms,'' Higgins said, adding the Crips and Bloods were targeted because of the wanton violence they have exhibited, including drive-by shootings that at times kill bystanders.

ATF officials said hundreds of agents and local police officers participated in the sweep, and the Air Force aided the operation by flying federal agents from Dover, Delaware, to Los Angeles.

Along with California, the other states involved in the sweep included Louisiana, Arizona, Missouri, Oklahoma, Oregon and Washington. The four remaining states involved in the sweep were not immediately identified.

CHICAGO (JUNE 15) UPI - Grain and soybean futures broke sharply late Friday and were lower to sharply lower at the close on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Corn was the price leader, as it had been most of the week. When corn made session lows about midday, the weakness carried across the floor.

December corn broke through $2.75 per bushel, which traders said was a technical support level, and closed at $2.74. Sell-stops were triggered on the way down.

Uncertainty over weather conditions in the coming week tended to keep corn and soybeans on the defensive, as did positioning ahead of the weekend.

Trading in soybeans was very choppy and closing prices were sharply lower in the nearby contracts. The prospect of good growing weather for several days also weighed on soybean values, as did the weakness in soybean oil and meal.

Wheat was lower on the likelihood of increased harvest activity during the weekend coupled with the lack of export business.

Country movement was very light.

At the close, corn was off 4 to 6 1/2, soybeans down 2 1/2 to 6 1/2, wheat off 2 to 5 1/4 and oats down 1 1/2 to 2 1/2.

PRAGUE, CZECHOSLOVAKIA (JUNE 15) UPI - Czechoslovak and Soviet army officials disagreed Friday over the cost and extent of environmental damage caused by Soviet troops during their 20-year stay in Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovak Lt. Gen. Rudolf Duchanek, who is supervising the Soviet troop withdrawals, said it would cost $2.1 million just to survey the damage caused to ground water by Soviet troops, and untold billions to clean up the mess.

''We can only begin to estimate the damage now,'' Duchanek told a news conference.

Martech USA, the Anchorage, Alaska, firm that helped clean up the Exxon Valdez oil spill, is working with a Czechoslovak company to treat some of the most heavily damaged areas.

Soviet Col. Gen. Eduard Vorobyev, commander-in-chief of Soviet troops in Czechoslovkia, disputed the charge.

''We don't share the Czechoslovak's concern,'' Vorobyev said. ''The contamination of groundwater by oil products is on a local level - not a mass level. We are still prepared to do our level best to help clean up.''

The Soviet troops entered Czechoslovakia the night of Aug. 20-21, 1968, at the head of a five-nation Warsaw Pact invasion to suppress the ''Prague Spring'' reforms of Alexander Dubcek, then Communist Party leader and now chairman of the Federal Assembly, or Parliament.

One of the first diplomatic moves of the government that came to power after the November ''Velvet Revolution,'' which overthrew 42 years of communist rule, was to ask the Soviets to remove their troops.

President Vaclav Havel signed a withdrawal agreement in Moscow Feb. 26.

The Soviets turned Czechoslovakia into one of their forward bases for a potential European war, stockpiling ammunition, fuel and supplies in addition to approximately 75,000 troops.

Much of the damage is to ground water from leaking oils, solvents and toxic chemicals used by the Soviets to maintain their equipment.

There is also concern about woodlands and farms that were turned into tank training grounds and artillery ranges, as well as the garbage dumps that sprang up around the 77 Soviet bases in Czechoslovakia.

In Milovice, the Soviet headquarters about 20 miles west of Prague, a huge garbage dump smolders day and night, filled with everything from old boots and band uniforms to unmarked chemical containers, burned-out chuck wagons tires, building debris, champagne bottles, caviar tins and gas masks.

Disputes continue over how to calculate the damage.

The costs will be settled by teams of experts who may still be meeting long after the last Soviet troops have left the country by mid-1991.

The first stage was completed May 31 and led to the withdrawal of 26,184 troops, 11,231 family members, 551 tanks, 859 combat vehicles and armored personnel carriers, 440 guns, 19 planes, 92 helicopters and eight unmanned reconnaissance aircraft.

Nine garrisons with 2,820 apartments were handed over to the Czechoslovaks.

The Soviets have asked that the original timetable be extended because they lack housing for returning troops.

Vorobyev noted, for example, that of 1,163 families sent home from Bruntal former headquarters of the 31st tank division, only 87 received apartment on their return.

Another 698 families went to live with their relatives, while the officers went to barracks. Some 228 families went to hostels - each in a single room - and 150 had to rent rooms.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - The United States rejected a Soviet proposal Friday to begin fall negotiations on reducing superpower short-range nuclear missiles.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater declared that the administration agrees with the position taken by NATO and believes such talks should be held off until after an agreement is reached on reducing conventional forces in Europe.

The Soviet Union proposed Friday that negotiations be held in the fall to eliminate all short-range nuclear weapons from Europe, said NATO officials in Brussels, Belgium. Short-range nuclear missiles are those with ranges of less than 300 miles.

In a written statement, Fitzwater noted President Bush has said the short-range nuclear forces talks, or SNF, should begin after the conclusion of a conventional forces accord, known as CFE.

At the same time, Fitzwater said ''the Soviet offer of unilateral cuts ... would be welcome since it would parallel NATO's actions.''

''NATO has significantly and unilaterally reduced its nuclear forces over the past decade,'' he said. Fitzwater also pointed out that the United States is canceling the next generation Lance missile ''and will not be progressing with the modernization of nuclear artillery in Europe.''

He said that Moscow has a ''preponderance of forces'' in the short range category in Europe ''and any unilateral reduction can help enhance predictability and stability.''

''The position of NATO ... is that negotiations on U.S. and Soviet SNF systems in Europe should begin shortly after a CFE agreement is concluded '' he added.

He explained that NATO strategy is based on maintaining an adequate mix of nuclear and conventional weapons.

NATO, he reported, will be discussing its approach to SNF negotiations over the next few months, particularly at the NATO summit meeting July 5-6 in London to be attended by Bush.

NATO delegation said talks to address the Soviets' large advantage in short-range missiles are ''long overdue,'' but stressed that American officials are not ready to negotiate elimination of all ground-based short-range missiles.

The United States refers to ''short-range'' nuclear weapons as only ground-based systems, which exclude a new tactical air-to-surface missile, or TASM, now under development.

The air-launched TASM is designed to protect NATO aircraft by firing self-propelled missiles capable of reaching the Soviet Union from outside Soviet airspace.

U.S. strategists consider TASM the successor to obsolete Lance ground-based missiles and artillery shells, which will not be modernized under a decision announced by Bush last month.

However, TASM will not be ready until around 1995, so NATO is seeking to keep some of the outdated land-based systems in place for the time being. The deployment issue also has not been settled - Britain says it will accept TASM-equipped aircraft but West Germany has been balking.

The NATO summit in London is expected to review a wide range of Atlantic Alliance doctrine, including the controversial policy of ''flexible response'' - which calls for the first use of nuclear weapons if necessary to repulse an overwhelming conventional attack.

NATO officials, reiterating a position taken last month by Bush, said they were ready to begin talks on short-range nuclear forces as soon as a CFE agreement is signed, rather than waiting until such a pact is implemented.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL (JUNE 15) UPI - China apparently is ignoring trade agreements with the United States by selling rockets at unfairly low prices, a practice that must be stopped to ensure a healthy commercial launch industry, space advocates charged Friday.

In a letter to U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills, the National Space Society, an organization of pro-space advocates, said if China continues to sell its Long March rockets at such cut-rate prices, American companies will not be able to compete in the world marketplace.

''Beginning over two years ago, the Chinese government has offered launches on its Long March vehicle at prices of $20 million to $30 million - about half the price of a comparable commercial launch on a U.S. or European vehicle,'' wrote Lori Garver, executive director of the National Space Society.

''Such pricing is below cost and constitutes an unreasonable, unjustifiable burden on United States commerce.''

The NSS said a continuation of such practices would violate trade agreements between the United States and China and urged Hills to ''end the Chinese practices immediately.''

In 1988, the United States reached an agreement with China that would limit commercial Chinese launches to no more than nine over a six-year period and ''to price those launches on terms 'on par with those ... prevailing in the international market,''' Garver wrote.

''It appears, however, that the Chinese are not abiding by this agreement. Published reports suggest that the recent Chinese bid to launch (a communications satellite) for the Arabsat consortium is again in the $20-$30 million range.''

Commercial launches by U.S. rockets and the European Ariane system cost anywhere from around $50 million to more than $100 million, depending on the ground services required, the weight of the satellite and other factors.

In the July issue of Scientific American magazine, Elizabeth Corcoran and Tim Beardsley came to a similar conclusion about Chinese launch pricing in an article titled ''The New Space Race.''

''The Chinese ... are still apparently offering cut-rate prices, which would violate their pledge to the U.S. to sell services at prices comparable to those charged by the West.''

The article quoted Douglas Heydon, president of the U.S. subsidiary that markets Ariane boosters, as saying the Chinese bid to launch the Arabsat communications satellite ''was about half of what we ... would have to charge.''

The magazine said the Department of Transportation ''was investigating the concerns.''

The National Space Society said Hills should take action to prevent unfair competition from China and that ''sanctions'' should be imposed, if necessary, to show the Chinese government ''the United States is serious about this matter.''

''If China were to abide by its international commitments on fair pricing and number of launches, NSS would not be concerned,'' Garver wrote. ''If China refuses to abide by those commitments, however, the impact will be severe not only for the U.S. launch industry, but ultimately for the payload sector and the future of the entire U.S. commercial space industry.''

In the wake of the 1986 Challenger shuttle disaster, NASA was banned from launching commercial satellites in a bid to develop a competitive private-sector launch industry in the United States.

Three major U.S. rocket companies currently are marketing unmanned boosters on a commercial basis to compete with the French-built Ariane rockets, the Chinese Long March and the Russian Proton launch vehicle.

In a major coup for the infant Chinese rocket program, President Bush approved the launch of a communications satellite built by Hughes Aircraft Co. aboard a Long March earlier this year.

The high-profile flight marked the return to space of a satellite that originally was launched from a space shuttle in 1984 but stranded in a useless orbit by a booster failure. That satellite and another were returned to Earth during a subsequent shuttle mission.

HOUSTON (JUNE 15) UPI - Steel imports for the first seven months of the government's new Voluntary Restraint Agreement Program were 17 percent of consumption, below the 19.1 percent target, the American Institute for International Steel reported Friday.

Steel imports averaged 1.3 million net tons per month for a total of 9.2 million net tons between October 1989 and April 1990, said John Griffin, president of the Institute and president of Maurice Pincoffs Co. in Houston.

"The revised voluntary restraint program which began Oct. 1, 1989, permits steel imports to account for 19.1 percent of consumption through December 1990 and 20.1 percent of consumption until the program ends March 1992," Griffin said. "Cost, availability and quality advantages of steel imports continue to benefit domestic steel users and distributors," he said.

In the first four months of this year, American steel exports were 1.4 million net tons, or 3.4 percent below the same period last year, the institute reported. Imports in the same period were five million net tons, down 12.4 percent from last year.

GUATEMALA CITY (JUNE 15) UPI - As Central American presidents gathered for Saturday's economic summit, optimism that the region was finally on its way toward peace was tainted by a continuing wave of kidnappings and killings in the host country.

Guatemala has the reputation of being home to the longest ongoing armed insurgency in Central America - and of having one of the worst human rights records in the Western hemisphere.

In the past 30 years, more than 80,000 people, mostly peasant farmers, have disappeared and are believed dead. Another 40,000 Guatemalans have abandoned their homeland in search of safe haven, many fleeing to neighboring Mexico.

In recent months, with negotiations to end El Salvador's civil war under way and the Contra war in Nicaragua ended, Guatemala has been probing possible political solutions to the armed insurgency of the Guatemalan National Revolutionary Union.

Many Guatemalans who have lost relatives in the conflict doubt this negotiation process is serious.

''These actions (the kidnappings and killings) follow an approach taken for national security. These acts were carried out by the army and the government's security forces as one more way to repress the Guatemalan people,'' said human rights activist Nineth Montenegro de Garcia, leader and founder of the Mutual Support Group, known by its Spanish acronym GAM.

The armed forces have denied the charges and attribute the accusations to ''a negative propaganda campaign'' by organizations with economic interests.

Army spokesman Col. Luis Isaacs insists only 7 percent of the accusations of disappearances against the army in 1988 have any validity. He says most of the mutilated bodies found strewn along highways are the result of crimes of passion or other motives.

''One guy will kill the other just because he was looking at his girlfriend,'' Isaacs told United Press International in an interview.

''Before they would just slap him around a bit. Then they used machetes. Now with all the pistols floating around he'll turn up dead. Then groups with particular interests say that it was the security forces,'' Isaacs said.

Montenegro de Garcia claims both the National Police and the army have units specially trained in kidnapping and torture.

The human rights activist, who narrowly escaped injury when the GAM headquarters was bombed Aug. 15, said she has received testimony from people who escaped from secret prisons, where they heard men and women screaming and saw people near death hanging from meat hooks.

GAM has repeatedly asked the government of President Vinicio Cerezo to establish a special commission made up of government groups, human rights organizations and others to deal with the problem.

Montenegro de Garcia said Cerezo initially warmed up to the idea when he was running as a candidate, but later dropped it and instead established the Human Rights Attorney's Office last December to investigate reports of violations.

In the past 10 weeks, the office has received 124 reports of illegal executions and 87 cases of disappearances.

''Yes, there are forced disappearances. Yes, there are extrajudicial executions, yes there is torture, this is a fact ... This is not just a matter of crimes of passion,'' said assistant Human Rights Attorney Gen. Fernando Hurtado Prem.

Hurtado Prem said although it is difficult to change the collective mentality of a society that has been molded by more than three decades of war, the investigative agency has made some headway in correcting the problem.

''We have had the opportunity to penetrate where no one else had gone before, that is to say within the very infrastructure of the army, to tell them that some things are bad and there are things that have to be corrected,'' he said.

An end to the armed conflict, which has been contained since the early 1980s but never totally eradicated, would be a major step in reducing the kidnappings since the army has used the insurgency as an excuse for repressive tactics.

In an accord signed March 30 in Oslo, Norway, the rebels agreed to hold talks with Guatemalan political, business, religious and social sectors, and eventually with the government and the army.

Another accord signed between the rebels and political parties May 31 in Madrid, Spain, called for a halt to all sabotage operations of the country's infrastructure and a promise not to disrupt upcoming elections.

(JUNE 15) UPI - The White House offered NO immediate comment on a Soviet proposal to begin talks this fall aimed at removing short-range nuclear weapons from Europe. But the U-S NATO mission in Brussels says the move is ''long overdue'' because of a large imbalance of short-range missiles in Europe in favors of Moscow. An American spokesman in Brussels says NATO leaders will consider the Soviet offer when they gather next month in London.

Supporters of the bill say it would be hypocritical of Bush to call himself pro-family if he killed the bill.

(JUNE 15) UPI - The death toll from flash floods that swept towns in eastern Ohio rose to at least nine Friday, flooding in Nebraska forced residents from their homes and powerful winds whipped Kansas, blacking out power for thousands of people.

In Charleston, W.Va., two people died Friday when their small plane crashed in heavy fog and rain a mile short of the main runway at Yeager Airport.

The victims were identified as Marjorie Van Vliet, 67, of Warwick, R.I., and Frank Martineau, 69, of Bethesda, Md. The two had taken off from Providence, R.I., on May 29, intending to visit capitals of every state but Alaska and Hawaii.

The Ohio flooding was fed by a fierce thunderstorm that hit the town of Shadyside - across the Ohio River from Wheeling, W.Va. - on Thursday night

''There was one local bar on Wegee Road where the walls collapsed and trapped people inside,'' Capt. Todd Graham of the Belmont County Sheriff's Department said. ''There was a mobile home sitting next to the bar that washed down the creek with people in it.''

Thunderstorms packing winds of up to 80 mph blew out of southern Nebraska before daybreak Friday, downing power lines and tree limbs and causing other damage. The winds then marched across eastern Kansas.

KPL Gas Service spokesman Tom Taylor said about 10,000 people in Topeka, Kan., were without power after the storm. He said most electricity would be restored later in the day.

A large warehouse at Robertson Lumber Co. in Silver Lake, about 8 miles northwest of Topeka, Kan., received ''severe'' damage when strong winds hit about 9:50 a.m. CDT, a store employee said.

''We have sheds down and roofs down and lumber everywhere,'' employee Suzie Yates said. ''It's a mess.

''The store itself is fine but the warehouse itself has severe damage. There is less than half a roof on it and there's holes in the wall and the garage doors are gone,'' she said.

No one was injured.

In Nebraska, rising floodwaters forced the evacuation parts of Platte Center early Friday and rain on saturated ground in the eastern, south-central and southeastern part of the state drove creeks out of their banks and closed roadways.

The worst flooding was in Platte Center, where an estimated one-third of the residents of the town of about 400 were evacuated to higher ground. Shell Creek south of Platte Center flowed out of its banks when about 5 inches of rain fell early Friday.

''It looks like a disaster area,'' said Andrew Jarecki of Platte Center. ''Propane tanks floated away. I have never seen the water get this high in town.''

Up to 2 feet of water flooded some businesses in the town, he said. When the water receded, floors were covered with mud and silt.

Jarecki estimated ''a good third of the town'' was evacuated. Residents went to the homes of neighbors who were living on higher ground, he said.

In Ohio, Shadyside police officer Bruce Fink said the thunderstorm Thursday evening had dropped about 1 inch of rain in just 45 minutes.

''We had a torrential downpour that started about 8 p.m. and progressively got worse,'' Fink said. ''We had three creeks that overflowed their banks by about 20 feet.''

''Numerous trailers were toppled,'' Fink said. ''Numerous houses (were knocked) off their foundations. Numerous cars and trucks are in the creeks.''

A makeshift morgue was set up in Shadyside, a village of about 4,300. The flooding creeks inundated numerous hill communities, including Cumberland Run, Pipe Creek and Glencoe.

Helicopters from the Ohio Highway Patrol and from Pittsburgh and Charleston, W.Va., were searching for more victims. Ohio Gov. Richard Celeste arranged a helicopter tour of the flooded areas.

At least 12 counties in eastern and central Ohio were hit by flooding in Thursday's storms, officials said.

Elsewhere, the National Weather Service said tornado watches were posted in Texas overnight as funnel clouds whirled through the state, powerful thunderstorms blew into Oklahoma and heavy rains drenched west-central Iowa.

In the West, isolated showers and thunderstorms pushed away from the coast as fair weather headed into Washington state. Showers dampened the Cascades on Thursday; clouds and more scattered showers were expected for the weekend.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - The World Bank Friday announced a $150 million concessionary terms loan to help China increase agricultural production and job opportunities in Hebei province.

The International Development Association, the World Bank's concessionary terms lending affiliate, will provide the $150 million loan, which the bank said would help expand agricultural output in Hebei by $222 million a year.

The bank said that production will increase in foodcrops, fruits, fish, shrimp, and livestock, and that the incomes of 540,000 families will more than double as a result of the project.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - Prime Minister Chatichai Choonhavan of Thailand met with reporters at the National Press Club Friday and lived up to his billing as the ''no-problem prime minister'' with a stream of laugh-provoking one-liners.

Chatichai turned lighthearted before the press after meeting Thursday with President Bush on such weighty subjects as ending the civil war in Cambodia and stopping heroin trafficking in his country.

In a speech, Chatichai said he had been warned Washington reporters were the ''heavyweights'' of their profession and he ''would be well-advised to keep my guard up.'' The 68-year-old prime minister then broke into a boxer's stance, but it soon became clear his style was to feint rather than fight.

When the time came for questions, Chatichai was asked whether he supported the U.S. embargo against Vietnam. ''I believe the war is over,'' he responded in English, smiling wryly and then returning to his seat.

On the subject of a trade dispute over selling U.S. cigarettes in his county, Chatichai said he was waiting for the outcome of world trade negotiations and added, ''I tell you about cigarettes, if you no smoking, no cancer.''

Pressed to say when the Thai government would repeal a decree giving it the power to close newspapers, he told a reporter, ''When you want it.''

Asked what he would most like the United States to do for his country, the motorcycle-riding prime minister said, ''Build us a superhighway.''

On more serious subjects, Chatichai pledged to cooperate with the United States on Cambodia and drug trafficking, and said the trade issues that have divided America and Thailand would be worked out in time since they ''are really the symptoms of our success, and not of failure.''

Bush and Chatichai Thursday announced the creation of a U.S.-Thai committee on commercial cooperation. U.S.-Thai trade last year exceeded $7 billion, growing at more than 30 percent annually.

Chatichai also asked Bush for stepped up U.S. efforts to stem the flow of Chinese arms to the Khmer Rouge guerrillas in Cambodia who are blamed for the deaths of more than a million of their countrymen during their 1975-78 rule.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - The World Bank announced Friday $207.3 million in loans to help Pakistan strengthen the nation's major sources of agricultural credit and improve agricultural research.

The World Bank approved a $148.5 million loan to the Pakistani government that will be channeled to the Agricultural Development Bank of Pakistan, the country's major source of agricultural credit, and to five commercial banks.

The International Development Association, the bank's concessionary lending affiliate, approved a $1.5 million credit for the government of Punjab and the State Bank of Pakistan aimed at helping transform the country's agricultural credit system into a viable operation that can meet expanding farming needs.

A separate project, to be supported by a $57.3 million IDA credit, will help finance the design of a large-scale agricultural research system. The project will strengthen provincial research planning and management by establishing a semi-autonomous research organization in the province of Sind and agricultural research boards in the provinces of Punjab and Baluchistan, the World Bank said.

GALVESTON, TX (JUNE 15) UPI - Oil spill crews mobilized equipment, volunteers and even experimental oil-eating microbes Friday to stop crude oil that has drifted to within 7 miles of the Texas beaches from the still-burning tanker Mega Borg.

An estimated 3 million gallons of light Angolan crude oil has leaked from the tanker since it exploded in flames late last Friday. The tanker was still burning, though the blaze was considerably diminished, as it rode at anchor 57 miles southeast of Galveston in the Gulf of Mexico.

On the Galveston beach front, a state cleanup organization and environmental groups mobilized some 2,000 volunteers and all available equipment to deal with the spill when it starts to wash ashore, expected sometime Friday. The largest sheen of oil, with patches of thick oil scattered in it, reached to within 7 miles of Galveston Island at midday.

Larger-than-usual tar balls - some the size of watermelons - showed up in the surf at Galveston Thursday, but Coast Guard experts said it was highly unlikely they were from the Mega Borg. Tar balls the size of baseballs can routinely be found along the coast, usually coming from ships that, despite regulations, flush their bilges in the open Gulf water.

An explosion in the Mega Borg's engine or pump rooms a week ago set the 853-foot ship on fire and triggered a weeklong leak from its cargo of 38 million gallons of light crude oil. A spectacular fire has engulfed the stern 200 feet of the tanker for a week while fireboats kept continues streams of water flowing onto it.

Two men died, two others were missing and presumed dead and 17 were hurt in the initial explosion.

All of the more than 3 million gallons of oil that has leaked is believed to have come from from one of the tanker's 16 storage compartments, which apparently was punctured by the initial explosion. A vast majority of the leaked oil evaporated or was burned away on the water.

Galveston City Manager Doug Matthews said the larger than usual tar balls might be coming from other oil tankers or they might be from the Mega Borg.

''It could be other oil tankers out there are taking advantage of it (the spill) and dumping (there own excess oil),'' Matthews said. ''I don't know. My job is to clean the beaches once it gets here. We're not going to wait on the private contractor to come and clean it up. This is the height of our tourist season. We're not counting on the Coast Guard to clean the beaches. We have a responsibility to our local constituents and hotel industry.''

A board of inquiry convened in Galveston by the Norwegian government to investigate the cause of the incident concluded a three-day hearing Friday. Board members have questioned officers and crew of the tanker to learn why the explosion occurred.

In testimony Friday, Savinder Singh Hundal, 41, of India, a ship's electrician, said all of the backup alarm systems, including those on battery power, failed in the moments after the explosion.

''There were no alarms in the engine room,'' he said. ''There was no fire alarm. There was no carbon dioxide alarm. We were totally in the dark. .... I can't explain why there was a breakdown.''

Lars Foyen, a representative of the Norwegian shipping bureau Det Norske Veritas said his agency would inspect the burned-out hulk of the Mega Borg in the next few days for any additional clues to explain the cause of the explosion.

''We're just trying to go over all the angles,'' he said, ''to see if there's anything we've overlooked that might help explain this thing.''

Coast Guard Petty Officer Gene Maestas Friday said the salvage firm hired by the tanker's owners would try on Friday to pump oil from storage compartment No. 4, the one believed to be leaking, to halt the flow of oil into the fire and help extinguish it.

Some 10,500 gallons of chemical dispersants have helped degrade the leaked oil into a non-toxic mousse, and skimmers have recovered some 146,000 gallons.

Estimates of the amount of oil remaining in the water ranged from 12,000 to 40,000 gallons.

Texas state officials Friday began unleashing 100 pounds of microbes - tiny bacteria - directly onto the thicker patches of floating oil. Maestas said boats carrying the tiny bugs left Freeport, Texas, at 4:30 a.m. Friday.

The oil-eating microbes, which were successfully used earlier this year in a controlled experiment in tanks, are being used for the first time on an oil spill in open seas. The technology has been successfully used in cleaning up toxic spills on land.

''I believe we're going to see a significant impact from the microbes we apply,'' said Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro.

SAN FRANCISCO (JUNE 15) UPI - The first woman to command a U.S. naval station took over at Treasure Island base in San Francisco Bay during a traditional ceremony Friday in which she reflected on her ''dream'' career.

Capt. Marsha J. Evans, a native of Springfield, Ill., was ''piped'' aboard during ceremonies under gray, damp skies on Treasure Island, located beneath midspan of the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge.

''In many respects my career has been a dream,'' Evans said during brief remarks. ''Can you imagine the daughter of a chief petty officer ... a Navy cook, taking command?''

Evans, who has been serving serving as chief of staff of Naval Base San Francisco, now heads a command that includes 3,000 sailors and 1,000 civilian workers, two mine sweepers and two frigates, 1,000 housing units and the Naval Technical Training Center.

The ceremony, highlighted by a backdrop of the San Francisco skyline and the steaming past of the massive battleship New Jersey, included retirement honors for Capt. C. Thomas Vaught, who turned command over to Evans and left the Navy after 15 years.

Vaught's career included deployments in the Middle East, combat tours on search and rescue station Tonkin Gulf, and close combat in the canals of Vietnam's Mekong Delta.

He also led the recovery of Treasure Island in the aftermath the Oct. 17, 1989 earthquake, which registered 7.1 on the Richter scale and devestated the San Francisco Bay Area.

Evans was commissioned after graduating from Occidental College in Los Angeles and served in various staff jobs including senior Navy social aide to President Richard Nixon.

She earned two master's degree from Tufts University's Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy and in 1977 was Mideast policy officer on the staff of the commander in chief of U.S. naval forces in Europe.

She also served as special assistant to the secretary of the Treasury; executive officer of the Recruit Training Command in San Diego; commanding officer of the technical school on Treasure Island and battalion officer at the U.S. Naval Academy where she taught political science.

Capt. Evans is married to Lt. Cmdr. Gerard R. Evans, USN, Retired, of Pensacola, Fla.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - The World Bank announced Friday a $95.8 million loan in concessionary terms to support India's fight against malnutrition in the state of Tamil Nadu.

The $95.8 million financing is being granted by the International Development Association, the bank's concessionary-terms lending affiliate that helps the poorest countries.

The bank said that more than 3 million children and 2 million mothers will benefit from the rural nutrition project in Tamil Nadu, India's southernmost state.

The project is designed to help strengthen or set up a network of village nutrition centers, where trained personnel will provide supplements for children who are below their normal weight and for pregnant women at risk of giving birth to low-weight babies.

The World Bank also said that it approved for negotiation the first transaction under its Expanded Cofinancing Operations program, a partially guaranteed $100 million fixed-rate U.S. private placement for India's Housing Development Finance Corp. Ltd.

Proceeds of the 15-year bond issue will be used to support an HDFC credit facility, assisted by a $250 million World Bank loan in 1988, that finances middle- and lower-income home mortgages in India.

The Indian government will guarantee principal and interest on the issue. The World Bank will guarantee the scheduled principal repayment. Salomon Brothers is placing the issue for HDFC, the bank said.

TORONTO (JUNE 15) UPI - Shareholders of Cineplex Odeon Corp. were told Friday at the company's carefully orchestrated annual meeting that it's unlikely the company will report a profit in 1990 despite an expected positive cash flow position.

"I believe we are making significant and measurable progress (in turning the company around)," said Cineplex president Allen Karp at his first shareholders meeting since being appointed seven months ago.

But Karp, who was named chief executive officer following the meeting, added the timing of a return to profitability was "uncertain" and that it was unlikely to occur in 1990.

Karp effectively replaced former chairman Garth Drabinsky, who resigned last December after failing in a nine-month effort to take control of the company. "We are working as rapidly and diligently as possible to ensure that the company's performance fully reflects its potential," read Karp from a prepared text.

Karp said the company would focus on its core exhibition markets, which he identified as New York, New Jersey, Los Angeles, Chicago and Seattle in the United States and its principal markets and distribution operations in Canada.

Cineplex also announced Friday two separate deals to sell theaters in eight U.S. states. The company agreed to sell 24 theaters with 96 screens in North Carolina, South Carolina and in Tennessee to Carmike Cinemas Inc. of Columbus, Ga. for between $7 million and $13 million.

Cineplex additionally agreed to sell 38 theaters with 150 screens in Utah, Idaho, Minnesota, Oregon, and Washington to Plitt Amusement Company Inc. of Los Angeles for $31.8 million. The company said it would retain its theaters in the Seattle, Tacoma, and Bellevue areas in Washington. The company announced in late April the sale of 80 screens in Virginia to SKS Enterprises Inc. of Richmond, Va. for $18 million.

Cineplex chairman Senator E. Leo Kolber oversaw the tighly-run 15-minute formal segment of the annual meeting which included receiving Cineplex's 1989's annual report, adopting a French version of the company's name and electing five new directors to its board.

Karp outlined six "challenges" facing the company including reducing long-term debt, cutting operating expenses and working with its major shareholders. The company's two major shareholders are Los Angeles-based entertainment giant MCA Inc. and management company Claridge Inc. of Montreal.

Karp said the company would cut its long-term debt to between $450 million and $475 million by the end of the year and that there would be no "fire sale" of assets to meet this goal.

In 1989, Cineplex's long-term debt stood at $578.1 million. Unaudited results at the end of 1990's first quarter showed the debt had dropped by about $46.2 million to $531.9 million.

The company has raised just under half of the $200 million in assets sales proceeds required as part of a revised banking agreement reached during the first quarter, Karp said. Cineplex operates about 1,550 screens in about 390 locations in North America. In the past year, the company has shed 330 screens in 110 locations.

DALLAS (JUNE 15) UPI - Triton Energy Co., in which a Hong Kong group recently raised its stake to 9.3 percent, Friday announced a shareholder rights plan, giving preferred stock purchase rights to its common stock holders. Under the plan, one right will be issued for each share of common stock held as of June 26. The rights will expire in the year 2000.

Triton is a large independent energy company with operations in the United States, Canada, Australia, France, Argentina, North Sea, Gabon, Colombia, Thailand and New Zealand.

The plan, the company said, is designed to ensure all holders receive fair and equal treatment in any proposed takeover and to guard against coercive or unfair takeover tactics. Chairman William Lee said the plan is not intended to prevent a fair takeover.

Triton's announcement made no reference to Hong Kong-based Industrial Equity (Pacific) Ltd., which in an SEC filing last month reported increasing its investment in Triton to 9.3 percent from less than five percent. Triton has about 20 million common shares outstanding. In the filing, IEP said recent trading on Triton stock did not reflect the value of its underlying businesses and assets.

Analyst John Parry at John S. Herold Inc. in Greenwich, Conn., said Triton's stocks have declined recently to about $12 a share. His company has appraised Triton at about $17 a share.

"They are looking to prevent getting taken out at too much discount. The IEP tends to be an investor group and might be increasing its Triton holdings so it can offer a nice chunk of shares if someone else comes in," Parry said.

Parry said even though Triton is leveraged, it is generating good cash earnings. The losses it has reported are only on a book basis, resutling from high depletion charges, he said.

"They are doing better than what the reported earnings would indicate," Parry said. He said the plan is also meant to stop a raider from seeking only a controlling interest and using junk bonds to acquire rest of the shares.

Triton said under the plan, if any entity acquires 15 percent or more of the common stock, each right not owned by the entity will become a right to buy common shares having a value equal to twice the right's $40 exercise price.

If the company is merged, each right will become a right to buy the common stock of the acquiring entity having a value twice the right's $40 exercise price. The board of directors may, under certain circumstances, determine a tender offer or merger is fair and prevent the rights from being exercised.

In April, Triton withdrew an offer to sell its European subsidiary, Triton Europe PLC which accounts for about 40 percent of its proven reserves, saying the offers it received were not attractive. Triton owns 59.47 percent of Triton Europe.

However, the company said Triton Europe was exploring the possibility of selling all or part of its assets in the U.K. and the Netherlands sectors of the North sea. Triton Europe's majority of the reserves are in the Paris basin of France.

In the six months of fiscal 1990 ended Nov. 30, 1989, Triton Energy had a loss of $10.8 million on revenues of $135 million. In the same period of the previous fiscal year, it lost $18.2 million on revenues of $96 million.

SYRACUSE, NY (JUNE 15) UPI - A woman delivered healthy quadruplets Friday into the hands of an obstetrician who is himself the father of quadruplets.

Maryam El-Hindi Wasmund, 34, gave birth to a girl and three boys at Crouse Irving Memorial Hospital in Syracuse.

''Reality hasn't really struck yet,'' said the beaming father, Mark Wasmund, who watched the four Cesarean births in the delivery room.

Wasmund, 31, of surburban Manlius, said he and his wife had been told to expect quadruplets since the sixth week of her pregnancy, but admitted he didn't really believe it would happen.

''We weren't really confident because so many things could have gone wrong '' he said.

The infants were reported all doing well.

One of the two obstetricians, Dr. Omar Rashid, is himself the father of quadruplets, she said.

''Isn't that some coincidence?'' she asked.

SOFIA, BULGARIA (JUNE 15) UPI - Underdog opposition forces held their closing rally Friday, demanding an end to communist rule as the second and final round of Bulgaria's first free elections since World War II are concluded.

But only a spectacular upset in a run-off contest Sunday for 81 remaining seats of the 400-member Grand National Assembly will keep Bulgaria from becoming the first East European country to legitimize an existing communist government in a democratic election.

Some 15,000 supporters, waving the blue flags of the opposition Union of Democratic Forces, massed Friday in Alexander Nevsky Square chanting, ''No to communism,'' ''Sofia is blue,'' and ''Time is ours.''

Speakers at the election rally optimistically declared, ''No more communism, no more dictatorship, no more experiments.''

''The future is entirely blue,'' said Rumen Vodenicharov, leader of the Committee in Defense of Human Rights. ''We look at the second round of elections as a referendum for democracy.''

He said the UDF will not accept a proposal for the renamed communists to join a coalition government ''because the party cannot change, because it is burdened with a totalitarian past.''

Vodenicharov declared that ''nothing can be done without us.''

Most of the remaining races are straight fights between the renamed Bulgarian Socialist Party, the former communist party, and the UDF.

Prime Minister Andrei Lukanov is among those who are contesting a seat in the second round.

There are 400 seats in the National Assembly, or parliament, half of which were elected on party lists on a proportional representation basis. So far 319 seats have been filled.

Although international observers found only minor irregularities during the initial round of voting last Sunday, the fairness of the polls was being hotly disputed by the UDF, whose supporters have been taking to the streets in protest.

Several hundred demonstrators on Wednesday staged sit-down protests through central Sofia, paralyzing traffic. Student protesters at the capital's university occupied the main buildings, but there were no reports of violence and police did not intervene.

The ruling party dropped the name ''communist'' last April and recast itself as a Social Democratic party in an effort to dissociate itself from 44 years of totalitarianism.

Liberal Communists took charge of government and implemented sweeping political and economic reforms after hardline dictator Todor Zhivkov was eased out of power in late 1989.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - Dart Drug Stores Inc. of Landover, Md., failed to meet certain loan covenants of a $30 million financing facility granted by Mellon Bank N.A., during the three month period ending April 28, according to a quarterly report released Friday at the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Dart, which filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code in August 1989, said it also failed to meet limits for maximum monthly cash losses and minimum quarterly cash flows in February and March. Under these covenants, Dart is not to lose more than $250,000 a month and must have positive cash flow of at least $1 per quarter.

George Loney, executive vice president and chief financial officer for Dart, declined to comment on the degree to which his company failed to meet the requirements. Mellon has so far agreed to waive the covenants.

Louis Zircher, a senior vice president for Mellon, declined to comment on the stipulations of the covenants and whether Mellon would continue to waive them.

Mellon, based in Pittsburgh, Pa., made the line of credit available September 22, 1989, and Dart put up some of its store leases as collateral. Dart has so far borrowed $23.5 million against the facility, which matures September 21, 1990. Loney said he was not sure whether Dart would be able to meet the covenants in the future.

"We don't project future (earnings) figures but we are working to turn this company around," Loney said. "Being in bankruptcy, the process is just a little bit longer than we hoped, but we are working to correct the situation," he added.

Seperately, the company said that the bankruptcy court on Friday extended

Dart's exclusive period until September 15, 1990. The company's trade committee and bondholder committee consented to the extension, although both committees will be allowed to file reorganization plans during this period.

An exclusive period is the time granted by the bankruptcy court for the debtor company to file its own reorganization plan; if the company fails to obtain approval for its plan by the end of the exclusive period, creditors and shareholders can propose alternative plans. Dart runs a chain of 65 drugstores in the District of Columbia, Maryland, and Virginia.

WARSAW, POLAND (JUNE 15) UPI - A dozen activists from the Polish Socialist Party picketed the Soviet Embassy Friday demanding freedom for the three Baltic states incorporated by force into the Soviet Union 50 years ago.

''Freedom for the Baltic republics,'' said one poster unfurled in front of the embassy gate in the center of Warsaw.

''We shall help Lithuania,'' said another.

One activist also carried the blue and yellow flag of the Ukraine, the second largest Soviet republic after Russia.

The activists distributed leaflets among passers-by that supported the declaration of the independence announced by the Lithuanian Parliament March 11.

Moscow responded with an economic blockade of Lithuania and said the act of independence was void.

''We expect the Polish government to recognize Lithuania as a sovereign country and to deliver economic aid to it,'' the leaflets said.

The Polish Senate and Sejm, the lower house of Parliament, have urged Moscow to recognize Lithuania.

Polish intellectuals and politicians have expressed their opinion that it is the moral duty of the United States as the largest Western power, to officially recognize Lithuania and set a precedent for other countries.

The U.S. position is that it has never officially recognized Soviet annexation of the Baltic states. Soviet troops entered the Baltic states in June 1940 and by the following August had incorporated them into the Soviet Union.

The picketing of the Soviet Embassy came one day after President Bush proclaimed ''Baltic Freedom Day'' and reaffirmed his hope that the Soviet Union will enter a ''full and productive dialogue'' with Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia.

''For 50 years the United States has refused to recognize the forced incorporation of the Baltic states into the Soviet Union,'' Bush said in a proclamation issued at the White House. ''The United States will remain faithful to this policy.''

His proclamation was made as residents of the three Baltic republics marked with rallies and church services the day in 1941 that the Soviet Union began deporting tens of thousands of Balts into Siberia.

VATICAN CITY (JUNE 15) UPI - Pope John Paul II blessed South African black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela Friday for his efforts to end South Africa's apartheid racial policies.

Mandela, the 71-year-old vice president of the African National Congress, had a private audience with the pope during a one-day visit to Rome.

Before he met the pope, Rome's city council conferred on Mandela honorary citizenship of Rome and President Francesco Cossiga received him at the Quirinale Palace.

After leaving the Vatican, Mandela held talks with Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti and Foreign Minister Gianni De Michelis over lunch at the Villa Madama government guest house,

At a news conference, Mandela reiterated that the ANC will not give up its armed struggle as a means of ending apartheid.

''This does not depend on us but on the white oppressor,'' Mandela said. ''If the oppression is violent, those who are forced to suffer it have every right to use the same means to defend themselves.''

He said Pope John Paul II did not ask him to renounce violence during their meeting.

''His Holiness showed he understood our problems better than we did,'' Mandela said. ''And no, he did not ask us to renounce the armed struggle.''

However, a Vatican statement issued after his meeting with the pope stressed the commitment of the Holy See ''in favor of a peaceful policy in South Africa.''

As he shook hands with Mandela at the end of the audience in the library of the papal apartment, John Paul told Mandela before reporters, ''May God bless you and your initiatives.''

Mandela, freed from 27 years jail Feb. 11, said that during the audience he asked the pope to express himself ''very clearly'' on the need to maintain sanctions against white-ruled South Africa - the main purpose of Mandela's six-week tour of Europe, the United States and Canada, now in its second week.

However the pope, in a statement issued by the Vatican, made no reference to the question of sanctions.

''I asked the Holy Father to bless our initiative, because we are sure his blessing will help, since his positions on the problems of apartheid and anti-semitism have been so clear as to earn the respect of the entire world,'' Mandela said.

A brief formal statement issued by chief Vatican spokesman Joaquin Navarro Valls confirmed the pope's support for ''the progessive overcoming of the system of apartheid'' but stressed the changes must be achieved by peaceful means.

''The audience the holy father granted to Dr. Mandela is a further confirmation of the commitment of the Holy See in favor of a peaceful policy in South Africa which, in the progressive overcoming of the system of apartheid, may permit the establishment of a society based on pacification and reconciliation among all the components of that nation, in the guarantee and respect of the fundamental rights of all its ciizens '' the Vatican statement said.

During the ceremony at the Rome's historic Campidoglio city hall during which Mandela received a parchment declaring him an honorary citizen and a silver medal, Mandela condemned the South African government as ''one of the most brutal and oppressive regimes the world has ever seen.''

Before Mandela arrived in Rome late Thursday, he received cordial expressions of support from government and other leaders in Paris, Bonn and Geneva and on Thursday he addressed the European Parliament in Strasbourg, France.

He was leaving Rome late Friday for The Hague, Netherlands and will then visit the United States and Canada before returning to Europe to visit Britain and Ireland.

Mandela's tour follows a nine-nation swing through Europe in May by South African President Frederik De Klerk, who urged the lifting of sanctions in response to far-reaching racial reforms, which included the freeing of Mandela from jail and official recognition of the African National Congress.

De Klerk did not meet the pope during his brief visit to Rome May 25.

DUBLIN, IRELAND (JUNE 15) UPI - The 12-member European Communty will create a new police agency allowed to cross national borders to crack down on organized crime and drug trafficking when Europe forms a single market in 1992, officials said Friday.

The announcement at the close of a two-day summit of EC justice and interior ministers said the proposed European Central Drugs Intelligence Unit will be modeled largely on the U.S Drug Enforcement Administration.

U.S. Attorney General Richard Thornburgh attended the meeting with a 25-member delegation of senior U.S. law enforcement and counter-terrorist experts.

Irish Justice and Communications Minister Raymond Burke said no decision had been made on where the new force would be headquartered, what special powers it would be granted, or what kind of budget it would be allocated.

He said members had agreed that officers of the force would be able to cross borders of community nations, and that all issues would be decided during the Italian community presidency, which begins next month. Ireland is coming to the end of its six-month term for holding the presidency of the 12-nation body.

The ministers also discussed measures to share information between member police agencies on the activities of political extremists.

Burke said radical groups were looking forward to the lifting of most border controls in 1992, and he proposed that Ireland could serve as an information clearing house on any extremist activities originating in Eastern Europe.

''We've had the benefit of the experience of the United States in establshment of such an agency,'' Burke said, referring to Washington's plans to assist creating the anti-drug unit. ''We do not envision a single European police force or a European FBI.''

Burke said ministers also studied an Italian report on that nation's security preparations for the World Cup, and he said the findings would be incorporated into a new cross-border police training and technical assistance program.

NEW YORK (JUNE 15) UPI - Bankrupt Integrated Resources, Inc., the one-time national financial services company, said Friday it had agreed to sell an investment partnership to the Krupp Companies for $45 million auction price.

The Boston-based Krupp will acquire the general partnership interests of Integrated's American Insured Mortgage Investors and will become manager of AIM's limited partnerships, the Integrated statement said.

Krupp, a real estate investment management company, will pay a purchase price of $38.6 million in addition to an estimated $6.5 million Integrated estimated it would receive over the next year, the statement said.

Krupp was chosen after an open auction conducted under the supervision of Judge Howard Buschman of the Bankruptcy Court of the Southern District of New York, it said.

Integrated said it believes Krupp will be able to protect the interests of AIM's limited partners. The deal is still subject to a number of conditions, including approval by the bankruptcy court, the statement said.

Integrated filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy in February after reporting a nine-month deficit of $1.22 billion as a result of selling businesses below value.

Company chairman Stephen Weinroth said at the time that Integrated had outstanding debts of $1.6 billion and assets of $700 million. "We're still in chapter 11 and working with a steering committee of creditors and disposing of properties," an Integrated spokeswoman said.

Several years ago, Integrated was forced to move away from its main business of tax shelters as changes in tax laws made these investments unprofitable.

In an attempt to move into other financial services such as insurance, mutual funds and real estate partnerships, the company then incurred substantial debt, much of it financed by junk-bond dealer Drexel Burnham Lambert - which itself is now in Chapter 11.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (JUNE 15) UPI - A Soviet research vessel crewman who disappeared during shore leave at an island fishing port one month ago turned up 125 miles away on the Alaska mainland seeking asylum in the United States, authorities said Friday.

Yuri Kocoshim, 25, walked into the police station Thursday in the small town of Homer and asked for asylum, said Janelle Hout of the Alaska State Troopers in Anchorage.

The Russian sailor was reported missing when his ship, the 300-foot marine research vessel Novotovsk from Vladivostok, left Kodiak Island May 18 after a three-day stop for fuel, supplies and shore leave, Kodiak harbormaster Corky McCorkle said.

Kocoshim hitched a boat ride to the southern Alaska mainland town of Homer with Russian immigrant fishermen from Old Believer Russian Orthodox communities near Homer, police said.

Homer police flew the man to Anchorage where he was met by immigration agents.

In recent years Alaska has been the site of scores of asylum requests from Polish seamen jumping ship as well as a handful of Soviet defections. But changes in Eastern Europe have brought a virtual stop to the sailors jumping ship in Alaska, said Gary Johnson, Alaska director of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service. He declined comment on the latest case.

MOSCOW (JUNE 15) UPI - Russia's Parliament chose a long-time state official as prime minister Friday, dealing a blow to Boris Yeltsin's hopes for a rapid transfer to a market system in the Soviet Union's largest republic.

The defeat of Yeltsin's close associate Mikhail Bocharov by Ivan Silayev, a deputy prime minister in the central government, left the fate of Yeltsin's economic plan unclear.

In a speech before the voting, Bocharov had unveiled the 500-day plan to privatize the state-dominated economy and introduce a market system in the republic. Yeltsin had billed the plan in an interview last week as a virtually painless way to a market economy.

Silayev, who got the votes of 163 of the 220 deputies present, did not present a specific plan for economic reform, but said after his election he would combine ''the best of my proposals and (the best) from the program submitted by Bocharov.''

''I will do everything to show you I'm not a conservative and to implement radical reforms,'' Silayev told the Russian republic's Supreme Soviet, or Parliament, after his election.

But Silayev, who is a member of the Communist Party's Central Committee, is more conservative than either Yeltsin or Bocharov in his approach to economic reforms.

He said he would like to turn over small service enterprises to private owners during 1991, indicating he favors a slower transition away from central ownership than Yeltsin.

''The collection of measures was in general correct and very interesting '' Silayev said of the Yeltsin economic program outlined by Bocharov. But, he added, ''We cannot rush these processes. We have to create the conditions that makes this possible.''

Under Yeltsin's plan, Russia's government would end subsidies to unprofitable enterprises after a 100-day preparation period. The plan also called for allowing large reductions in heavy industry and mining production that could leave millions unemployed.

Bocharov said the changes could occur with minimal harm to living standards, promising those put out of work would go through retraining during which the government would pay them their previous salaries.

He also called for indexing measures that would peg wages and pensions to price increases and soften the blow of inflation.

The Yeltsin plan is divided into four phases: preparation, privatization, introduction of a market, and stabilization.

In the first phase, expected to last 100 days, the government would refine and publicize the plan, warning enterprises about the upcoming end to subsidies. It would also conduct inventories of Russia's resources and defense industry.

In the second phase, to last five months, a massive program of privatization of government-owned industry would be carried out. Bocharov said up to $320 billion would be raised by the sell-off, though he did not specify how prices would be set.

Enterprises not sold would be required to begin leasing their premises and equipment from the government, rather than paying a fixed percentage of profit to the state budget as under the present system.

The next five months would see the beginning of a market economy. Price controls would in general be lifted, with simultaneous introduction of indexing and other measures to soften the blow. Production in heavy industry would be allowed to go into a deep fall.

The final 100 day-stabilization phase would see large-scale government investment to resolve structural problems and a lowering of consumer prices through use of accumulated reserves.

BUCHAREST, ROMANIA (JUNE 15) UPI - President-elect Ion Iliescu thanked thousands of club-toting miners Friday for helping him restore order, but at the same time his government denied responsibility for two days of brutal vigilante-style attacks by the miners on opposition supporters.

Hours after the government announced the miners were leaving the city, a mob of them attacked an ABC News television crew a few yards from the exclusive Inter-continental Hotel in downtown Bucharest. A Romanian member of the ABC News crew was hospitalized but his condition was not believed to be serious.

Pro-government coal miners wrecked the offices of an opposition newspaper and two political parties and terrorized their leaders, effectively crushing political dissent in a two-day terror spree that began early Thursday.

Carrying iron bars, sticks, whips and rubber hoses, they swarmed into the city by the trainload after state-run television carried reports of clashes between police and anti-government demonstrators that left six people dead.

''This is the end of Romania,'' said Marian Monteanu, president of the opposition League of Students, from a hospital bed where he was being treated for multiple wounds from a savage beating.

Monteanu was one of dozens and perhaps scores of opposition figures who were dragged out of their homes or offices and brutalized by miners responding to Iliescu's appeal to save his government from anti-Communist demonstrators.

The U.S. State Department said brutal suppression of demonstrations in Romania ''strike at the very heart of Romanian democracy,'' and the United States will withhold all non-humanitarian economic aid until the abuses stop.

The United States protested the brutal crackdown by vigilante groups made up of coal miners bused in to the Romanian capital, and said Thursday there would be no consideration of most-favored-nation tariff treatment for Romania until the organized attacks on democratic opposition groups stop.

Iliescu spoke to about 2,000 of the miners Friday in a Bucharest sports hall that was closed to the news media. Miners who emerged from the meeting carrying autographed pictures of Iliescu said the president-elect had thanked them for their help.

Several of them expressed pride at having ''saved democracy'' and vowed to return if there was more trouble.

At a news conference, Prime Minister Petre Roman denied the government was responsible for the miners' actions and suggested it had no control over their activities, even though Iliescu had made a televised appeal Wednesday for the nation's workers to defend him against what he termed a coup attempt.

''The miners came on their own. They were not asked by by the government '' Roman said. ''It was not only the miners, but other citizens came as well. They understood what happened here.''

He said anti-government demonstrators Wednesday had seized guns and ammunition during an attack on the police heaquarters and officials feared the government would be overthrown.

''We badly needed this help (from the miners),'' said Adrian Natase, spokesman for the ruling National Salvation Front. ''There was a perception we were facing a coup.''

But Roman, who promised all miners would be out of the city by nightfall, conceded they had at times taken the law into their own hands.

He said the miners were restrained from breaking the law in most cases and he denied that they were behind destructive attacks on the headquarters of opposition parities.

''There were moments when some citizens were molested,'' Roman said. ''We do not like that. It was not fair.''

After arriving by train early Thursday, the miners smashed their way into the offices of the National Liberal Party and National Peasants Party, the leading opposition groups in Bucharest.

Scores of miners continued to occupy the buildings Friday.

The home of Peasant Party leader Ion Ratiu was ransacked late Thursday but the former presidential candidate was not home at the time.

Brandishing whips and clubs, they pounded down the door of a Bucharest university building and dragged out dozens of student leaders of a marathon anti-government demonstration, including opposition leader Monteanu.

His head was bandaged and his face swollen and bruised, Monteanu said he was considering quitting his role as an opposition activist.

SAN FRANCISCO (JUNE 15) UPI - Secretary of State James Baker, beginning a day-long meeting Friday with Japanese Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama, denied that trade talks between the two countries were stalled.

''Not at all,'' Baker said when asked about a reported snag in year-old talks to reduce the $49 billion U.S.-Japan trade deficit. ''You see me

Baker spoke with reporters during a very brief photo session before the start of meetings in San Francisco's Fairmont Hotel.

He said trade issues would not dominate his discussions with Nakayama.

''We have a lot of things to talk about. That is only one,'' Baker said. ''We have a very broad agenda.''

In addition to trade talks, Baker was expected to brief Nakayama on President Bush's summit with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and on Baker's discussions with NATO foreign ministers in early June.

The San Francisco meeting was a prelude to the July 9-11 economic summit in Houston with leaders of the seven leading non-communist industrial nations.

In the two days before the San Francisco meeting, senior Bush administration officials accused Japan of dragging its feet in talks on the Structural Impediments Initiative, a year-old effort to identify and alter legal and cultural barriers to trade.

The two countries issued an interim report on the talks in April that outlined proposed trade reforms on both sides. A final report is due by July, and Bush administration officials said the Japanese were reluctant to move beyond the April report.

The talks were said to be stalled on a number of issues, particularly Japanese spending on its internal infrastructure.

The United States wants clear commitments that Tokyo will increase its internal investments enough to reduce the ''high and unsustainable'' U.S. trade deficit with Japan within three to five years, senior administration officials said Thursday.

The United States wants Japan to increase its spending on infrastructure to 9 percent from 6.7 percent, with clear and specific commitments, in order to switch resources from exports to investments, the officials said.

The two sides also differ on penalties that should be assessed against Japanese companies that violate antitrust laws, and on how the accords reached in the July SII report should be monitored after they are enacted, according to the officials, who asked not to be identified.

Friday's edition of Wall Street Journal reported that six top Bush officials, including Baker, Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher and U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills, planned to send a letter next week to their counterparts in Japan aimed at boosting trade talks.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - Dayton-Hudson Corp. said Friday its planned $1.04 billion purchase of Marshall Field & Co. has been delayed because the Federal Trade Commission wants more information to study the deal's antitrust implications. Dayton-Hudson, which had planned to close the deal May 25, now said it will have to wait until the FTC makes its final antitrust determination.

Since secondary requests for information are often quite large, the company has an unlimited amount of time to collect the data. Once the information has been submitted to the FTC, the agency has 20 days to make its antitrust determination.

But in a quarterly report filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission June 12, the Minneapolis, Minn., company said it was "confident that it will be able to complete the transaction."

The filing confirmed that the FTC had requested supplemental information on the proposed acquisition under an antitrust law known as the Hart Scott Rodino Act.

The filing gave no details on what type of information the FTC wanted, and Laura Anders, a company spokeswoman, declined to elaborate on the filing. FTC officials also will not comment on a pending inquiry.

But Willard Shull, Dayton-Hudson's chief financial officer, said the FTC asked for information "in various areas" and that the request "could have amounted to a lot of documents." Shull said the delay was not costing his company any money because the deal has not yet been completed.

"But for the same reason, we are not profiting and in a sense we are losing time in terms of bringing the working groups together, and (the delay) is causing Marshall Field employees some frustration, I would guess " Shull said.

Shull remained confident, affirming that the deal was still expected to go through and that the request was simply "due diligence on the part of the FTC." Under the Hart Scott Rodino Act, a company that proposes to buy another company must file a premerger notification with the Justice Department and the FTC if either the acquirer or the target company meet certain threshholds in terms of value of assets or domestic sales.

An FTC official, who requested anonymity, said a request for additional information "only means that (the FTC) requires additional information to make the antitrust determination."

Another Dayton-Hudson spokeswoman said that the FTC made its request for additional information "several weeks ago." Shull said that Dayton-Hudson had given the secondary information to the FTC about one week ago.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - The Bush administration, in a major reversal of its environmental policy, announced Friday it would be willing to participate in a new fund to help poor nations eliminate ozone-depleting chemicals by the year 2000.

Responding to mounting pressure worldwide, the administration said it would propose at an international conference on ozone depletion in London next week that the fund be operated and administered by the World Bank.

At that time, deputy press secretary Steve Hart said, the United States would also specify how it wants the fund managed and how much it would be willing to contribute.

White House chief of staff John Sununu, in announcing the administration's decision in a brief statement, reiterated that the fund should not necessarily lead to future ones for other world environmental problems such as global warming.

''The president's proposal is structured to reflect the unique circumstances that create the need for a fund specifically designed to assist'' poor nations in cutting ozone-depleting chemicals in a ''non-precedential framework,'' Sununu said.

Said Hart: ''We hope our proposal gets a very good reception'' at the conference in London. ''Our proposal meets our concerns. If they say no, we're going to have to talk.''

Experts have estimated that such a Third World fund, at least initially, would need from $100 million to $260 million to help poor nations turn to environmentally preferable chemical substitutes for ozone-depleting substances such as chlorofluorocarbons, or CFCs.

Hart said the administration, which had earlier voiced concerns about the eventual cost of the fund, is willing to contribute within that price range.

The administration had opposed creation of any new fund, saying the aid sought by Third World countries should come from existing lending institutions like the World Bank.

But Sununu, long accused of underestimating the dangers of global warming, said President Bush is ready to propose a fund within the World Bank.

Sununu's announcement was praised by environmentalists, who said it appeared to defuse a major controversy threatening the upcoming ozone depletion talks.

''This goes a long way toward closing the hole in the administration's ozone policy that the administration opened by saying it would not support a fund,'' said David Doniger, senior attorney for Natural Resources Defense Council.

''I'm not surprised that the administration changed its position, but I am relieved,'' he added. ''Now we can get back to the main issue of getting a strong treaty'' to reduce ozone-depleting chemicals.

Establishment of a fund will be the major issue at the London conference that will try to bolster the Montreal Protocol, a 1987 treaty under which 57 nations and the European Community have agreed to reduce use of CFCs.

Scientists have verified CFC damage to the protective ozone layer, which screens out harmful levels of ultraviolet radiation from the sun. They say without elimination of CFC use, the world faces huge increases in skin cancer and cataracts and severe damage to plants and ocean ecosystems.

Sununu said Bush's proposal ''is intended to allow the parties to the Montreal Protocol to conclude an acceptable agreement on a package of amendments.''

In an address Tuesday to the National Press Club in Washington, Mostafa Tolba, executive director of the United Nation's Environmental Program, urged Bush to drop his opposition to a fund.

Tolba also said that despite Bush's repeated assertions that more scientific research was needed, he expected the United States to show leadership on a climate change treaty.

Sununu said Bush's fund proposal meets ''essential criteria,'' such as:

-''Adequate scientific evidence of the causes and effects ... of ozone depletion.''

-''Strong evidence that the steps to be taken ... will successfully address the problem.''

-''Resources needed to address the problem are reasonable and predictable.''

NEW YORK (JUNE 15) UPI - A jury Friday awarded nearly $7.6 million to the wife of a man stabbed to death by jailhouse author Jack Henry Abbott, rejecting the convicted killer's argument that she did not deserve a penny.

''A little excessive, I would say,'' Abbott, 46, remarked to the judge after the jury announced its verdict and filed out of the courtroom at state Supreme Court in Manhattan.

Abbott killed Richard Adan with a single stab wound to the heart outside an East Greenwich Village restaurant nine years ago after an argument. The killing occurred six weeks after author Norman Mailer helped Abbott win early release from a Utah prison where he was serving time for the murder of a fellow inmate.

In the civil trial prompted by a lawsuit against Abbott by Adan's widow, the jury, deliberating six hours over two days, awarded nearly $5.6 million for wrongful death and $2 million for pain and suffering.

The beaming widow of Adan, who was 22 at the time of his death on July 18, 1981, said she was pleased the case is closed.

''It's been nine years since that day,'' said Ricci Adan, 31, who was married just six months before her husband, a budding actor, was slain.

''It's been a nightmare and finally at least Richard has been heard. ... He's not a speck of dust or a piece of paper any more. He's a person. He can rest now.''

Abbott's correspondence with Mailer was published as a book titled ''In the Belly of the Beast.'' The book includes a section in which Abbott describes the sensual experience of killing a person.

Abbott is serving a 15-year-to-life sentence for manslaughter in Adan's death.

Adan sued her husband's killer for $5 million for the wrongful death and $5 million for the pain and suffering of her husband. A judge ruled Abbott was liable for damages and it was up to the jury to determine how much.

Abbott, who acted as his own lawyer during the civil trial, had argued that Adan did not deserve a penny because her husband had no talent and therefore had no chance of becoming a successful actor. Abbott also claimed he was such an efficient killer that his victim suffered no pain.

But the jury of one man and five women appeared to reject Abbott's claims from the start. Almost immediately after deliberations began late Thursday the jury asked for a calculator.

The New York County Sheriff's Office has seized $100,000 of Abbott's earnings from ''In the Belly of the Beast.'' The state Crime Victims Board has another $15,000 for a movie option on the book, rights to a play by the same name and, lastly, a second book called ''My Return.''

That means any future earnings by Abbott will likely go to Adan, until the jury's award is satisfied.

''In other words, he will be writing for us for the rest of his life,'' said Henry Howard, the widow's father.

An economist testified during the trial that if Adan had lived to become a successful television and film actor, he would have earned $17 million by age 65.

During the trial, a casting agent, a public television producer and a playwright all testified that Adan won acting parts because of his talent. After starring in a pilot situation comedy that aired on public television he was supposed to act in the subsequent series. He was killed before the filming began.

HOUSTON (JUNE 15) UPI - Developers Russell Hebert and Bob Wesolek said Friday they have signed a contract with Indian Guru Maharishi Mehesh Yogi's Heaven on Earth Development Corp. for the development of a $35 million residential community.

They are the latest in a string of 15 developers who have teamed up with the guru's corporation to build 50 such communities in North America.

Perfect health, happiness and success are supposedly waiting for families inside the development, known as the City of Immortals. The communities aim to provide low-density housing, non-toxic construction techniques to eliminate the ''sick building syndrome'' and energy-efficient construction.

Heaven on Earth seeks to build ideal communities which are pollution free, stress free, crime free and noise free.

In Houston, the planned development will include a school, health-care facility, amusement park and festival hall.

The low-density emphasis will help ensure a tranquil community, in addition to creating an aesthetically pleasing environment, said Monty Guild, a California investment manager who is president of Heaven on Earth Development.

''Our purpose is to give lots of green space - two acres per family,'' he said. ''Lakes, gardens, meadows and streams will have a harmonizing influence.''

Hebert and Wesolek are negotiating to acquire land northwest and south of Houston, in the League City-Johnson Space Center areas. Should they be successful in locating a final site, Wesolek said, financing should not be a problem.

Guild agreed that financing will not be difficult because of Heaven on Earth pre-sale success. He said 38 homes in the company's Montreal project where sold before ground was ever broken for roads in the community.

Finding 200 families with values compatible with City of Immortal amenities will not be difficult in a metropolitan area the size of Houston he said.

Wesolek estimates that homes in the proposed development will range from $130,000 to $200,000.

In Austin, Texas, a planned City of Immortals development will include homes in the $250,000 to $300,000 range, according to its developer, Walter Reifslager.

Although he has the 400-acre site under option, investors have indicated that actual purchase and construction are not expected until the Austin economy improves, he said.

''We think we're pioneers in a long-term trend,'' said Reifslager. ''All the long-term market trends are wrapped up in this package.''

Guild acknowledged that developing a market for these master-planned communities could be seen as a challenge in the Lone Star State.

''Yes, Texans are traditionalists,'' he said, ''But Texans are also bold.''

Other cities in which developers have signed contracts for City of Immortal ventures include Denver, San Diego, Toronto and Washington.

Auto Racing

The New Hampshire International Speedway, the first super speedway built in the United States in more than 20 years, will open July 15 with a 300-mile NASCAR Busch Grand national series race.

Baseball

Who are the six sexiest major leaguers? According to Woman Magazine, it's Keith Hernandez, Ron Darling, Daryl Boston, Jose Canseco, Steve Sax and Joe Magrane. ... The recently released eighth edition of the Baseball Encyclopedia adds a section on the Negro leagues. The editors said tracking down records was almost impossible, although it does account for the great Satchel Paige.

Basketball

Six persons were killed and several others critically injured in Detroit following the Pistons' championship in Portland. Three persons, including a 9-year-old boy, were killed when a car ran into a crowd of pedestrians. A 4-year-old was killed in an auto accident at another celebration, and one teenager was killed and another injured in a shooting incident.

Equestrian

The U.S. Equestrian Team named its World Championship dressage team: Robert Dover, Lebanon, N.J.; Carol Lavell, Fairfax, Vt.; Marie Meyers, Newbury Park, Calif.; and Betsy Steiner, Sherrard, Ill. Heidi Ericksen, Leonia, N.J., is the alternate.

Hockey

The Chicago Blackhawks named former captain Darryl Sutter to the newly created position of associate coach under Mike Keenan. Earlier this month, Keenan became the NHL's only coach-GM. ... The sale of the Minnesota North Stars was completed in Chicago. George and Gordon Gund sold the team to Norman Green, Morris Belzberg and Howard Baldwin. The move comes before Saturday's NHL entry draft in Vancouver. ... The World Championships will now be held every year. Previously, Olympic years were excluded. The decision in St-Vincent, Italy, came in the face of largely North American opposition. Finland will hold the tournament in 1991, Czechoslovakia in 1992 and West Germany in 1993.

KLAMATH FALLS, ORE (JUNE 15) UPI - Hundreds of white pelicans returning to southern Oregon from their winter feeding grounds in Mexico have been dying at an alarming rate, and biologists said Friday they are not sure why.

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service biologist Jim Hainline of the Klamath Basin Wildlife Refuge said 400 to 500 pelican carcasses have been turned in during the past month in the Klamath and Harney basins.

Five of the carcasses were sent to a wildlife laboratory in California, but scientists there were unable to determine the cause of the deaths, Hainline said.

Unsatisfied with that answer, Hainline said more carcasses have been sent to the National Wildlife Health Laboratory in Madison, Wis. He said he suspects pesticide poisoning, but because of a tremendous backlog at the Wisconsin lab, Hainline does not expect to get any answers for several months.

Fortunately, Hainline said it appears the die-off has begun to abate. If it ends soon, the impact on the pelican population in southern Oregon should be minimal, he said. Hainline said the Fish and Wildlife Service will continue to monitor the situation next spring.

The pelican is the city symbol of Klamath Falls, appearing on the city seal as well as athletic team nicknames.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - Adminstration officials told a Senate committee Friday they oppose trade sanctions against Iraq despite its ''abysmal'' human rights record and its use of chemical weapons, saying such measures would hurt U.S. farmers more than the Baghdad government.

Both Democratic and Republican members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee reacted angrily to the administration position - with even a senator from a grain-producing state calling for stronger action.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., said Amnesty International reports that Iraq has tortured and executed children left her in tears, and that just because U.S. sanctions might not work is no reason not to give them a try.

''I have never believed we should use food as a weapon. On the other hand, when it reaches the point as it has with our relationship with Iraq, I think we have to be prepared ... to take some sort of action,'' said Kassebaum.

''It would hurt wheat sales in Kansas, that's very true,'' she said. ''But sometimes I think we have to stand up and be counted.''

The United States does not give Iraq money, but does give it credit guarantees that help it buy U.S. farm products. In the current fiscal year the Commodity Credit Corp. and the Export-Import Bank have provided Iraq with $700 million in credit guarantees, which protect lenders, officials said.

Iraq, which has never defaulted on CCC guarantees, is the largest export market for American rice, buying 23 percent of total U.S. exports, and also purchases products including cattle, eggs, chicken, lumber and tobacco.

John Kelly, assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern and South Asian affairs, told the committee the administration opposes proposals before Congress to cut off the credit guarantees or impose other sanctions because other Western countries would simply provide the same goods and services.

''None of our friends and allies among the industrial countries is willing to impose either sanctions or an export embargo against Iraq,'' he said. ''It would be the American farmer and the American exporter who would be punished.''

Kelly testified that Iraq's human rights record ''is abysmal'' and that U.S. concern is growing about Iraqi programs to obtain nuclear, biological and chemical weapons. Earlier this year, for example, an attempt to send nuclear weapon triggers to Iraq was foiled by U.S. and British authorities.

Joshua Gilder, principal deputy assistant secretary of state for human rights and humanitarian affairs, said the Iraqi use of chemical weapons against its Kurdish population during its war with Iraq killed thousands, and he estimated that tens of thousands of Iraqis have been political prisoners.

''Human rights, as such, are not recognized in Iraq,'' he said. ''The ordinary Iraqi citizen knows no personal security against government violence.''

Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., said Iraq was guilty of the first widespread use of chemical weapons since the 1925 Geneva Protocol, and that the whole idea of law ''is being frittered away'' if violators face no punishment.

''Does it mean anything to violate a treaty?'' Moynihan asked Kelly, his voice rising in anger. ''Where will we take a stand?''

BONN, WEST GERMANY (JUNE 15) UPI - Expropriated land in East Germany will, as a general rule, be returned to its previous owners under a draft agreement signed Friday by the East and West German governments.

Rudolf Seiters, a top aide of Chancellor Helmut Kohl, said the question of property in East Germany is ''the one of the most most difficult with regard to the German-German division, which personally concerns and affects many people.''

The document, released in Bonn, states ''expropriated landed property will be returned to its former owners or their successors...''

But it said the document does not apply to property confiscated by the Soviet Union under post-war occupation rights between 1944 and 1949.

The accord states the Soviet and East German governments ''see no possibility of reversing the measures taken at the time.'' The West German government says in the document that it ''takes note of this in consideration of historic developments.''

The draft agreement states if property was obtained as a result of ''intrigues (e.g. misuse of power, corruption, intimidation or cheating on the side of the acquirer), the acquisition of title cannot be legally protected and is to be reversed.''

The clause is likely to be applied to property owned by the formerly ruling Communist party.

The two governments agreed former owners could claim compensation but could not get their former property back in cases where apartment, commercial or public buildings were standing on the expropriated land.

East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere said East Germans will remain protected from eviction by existing tenant laws.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., in a new fund-raising push, is trying to tie his Democratic opponent, Harvey Gantt, to ''the powerful homosexual political lobby'' and is complaining he is under attack from gays, artists, liberals and unions.

The fund-raising letter was one of the first signs that the race between Helms and Gantt, who is trying to become the state's first black senator, could be one of the most bitter contests in the nation this year.

Helms, seeking his fourth term, is considered an arch-enemy by many liberals who are upset with his efforts to fight various civil rights bills, AIDS legislation and federal support of certain arts projects.

Some polls indicate that his race against Gantt, a former mayor of Charlotte, may be virtually even.

However, national Democratic strategists have said they will need considerable out-of-state money to defeat Helms and hope the fact that Gantt is black will help his effort to attract funds and fight the staunch conservative.

''My opponent is Harvey Gantt,'' Helms said in a letter asking supporters to send him $17 apiece so he can buy media time. ''His campaign is backed by the powerful homosexual political lobby.

''With the primary over, the homosexuals, the so-called 'arts' community, the ACLU and the union bosses are really on the attack,'' Helms wrote. In the fundraising letter, Helms asserted that his campaign ''has spent every penny we had in our advertising account'' and needed additional money to buy radio and TV air time.

Helms, who has raised at least $5.7 million, refused to disclose the balance in his campaign war chest. In his campaign finance report, filed last April, Helms disclosed more than $400,000 in cash on hand, according to the Federal Election Commission.

A Helms campaign spokeswoman said the campaign has ''enough money to pay our bills.'' She added that campaigns, like businesses, keep different accounts. ''You have a budget like everything else,'' she said.

''We can't buy the ads we need now unless we can raise the money,'' Helms wrote. ''That's why it's so urgent that you send your $10 by June 13. We have to make payments to TV and radio stations by that date.''

Officials at television stations in Raleigh and Charlotte said they have received no money from Helms thus far, and a Helms spokeswoman said that was because he does not have the money for the ads.

Also Friday, a Miami-based coalition called Cure AIDS Now called for an international boycott of all North Carolina products to protest Helms' attack on the ''homosexual lobby.'' Ironically, one item produced in North Carolina is the AIDS drug AZT, manufactured by Burroughs-Wellcome in Research Triangle Park.

''In the last decade, from (former President Ronald) Reagan to (President George) Bush, from (the Rev. Jerry) Falwell to Helms, it's been one consistent attack upon gays and people living with AIDS, instead of going after AIDS itself,'' group spokesman Bob Kunst said in Atlanta.

''The bottom line is that money talks,'' Kunst said. ''Morality and human kindness are not a consideration of the Bush-Helms attacks.''

Kunst urged Americans to boycott corporations he said support Helms. Specifically, Kunst named: Philip Morris cigarettes, Kraft Foods, Miller Beer, Oscar Meyer meats, AT&T, Bank of America, Amoco, Shell Oil, RJR-Nabisco, Burlington Industries, American Airlines, Brown & Williams Tobacco, Kimberly Clark and Food Lion.

President Bush plans to appear with Helms next week to help him raise money.

Homosexual activists have said they plan to protest the visit.

NEW YORK (JUNE 15) UPI - The Dow industrials closed at a new record high Friday, thanks to a late flurry of buying tied to "triple-witching-hour" expirations of stock-index futures and options. Most other stocks were unable to recover from early selling linked to the expirations, however, and closed lower.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which eased 1.48 Thursday, rose 7.67 to 2935.89, breaking the previous all-time high of 2935.19 set June 4.

Among broad market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index lost 0.13 to 197.85 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index edged up 0.01 to 362.91. The price of an average share lost three cents.

Declines led advances 832-612 among the 1,988 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Big Board volume totaled 205,130,000 shares, the sixth time this year turnover topped 200 million shares. On Thursday, 135,770,000 shares traded.

Prices opened lower in very heavy trading on an early bout of selling tied to the expiring June futures on Standard & Poor's 500-stock index. The market also saw a mild flurry of buying at the close related to the expiration of June futures on the Major Market Index and some other futures and options.

It was that buying that sent the Dow industrials to a fractional gain and another all-time high. The quarterly expirations normally cause volume to swell in the first and last trading hours on days when the different instruments go off the board.

But in between, prices drifted with modest losses. Several economic reports were released early Friday, but none had any appreciable effect on stocks.

A surprisingly strong report on industrial production for May sent Treasury issues skidding, however. Industrial output rose 0.6 percent in May. Economists had expected a 0.4 percent rise. Hopes for an easing of monetary policy faded and, in afternoon trading, Treasuries were down as much as 7/8 point.

All in all, it was a tame "triple-witching" session, with no volatility or exceptionally high volume.

"I think this was because a lot of people did their unwinding (buying or selling related to the expirations) earlier in the week because of the economic numbers that were coming out today," said Larry Greenwald, a block trader with Sanford C. Bernstein & Co. "We saw a lot of it all week long," he said. "Today was anticlimatic."

Greenwald said there was not a lot of institutional activity today. "It was very orderly, a longer-term expiration rather than a one-day phenomenon," he said.

On the trading floor, Exxon was the most active issue, down 1/4 to 47 7/8. General Electric followed, up 1/2 to 70 1/8. AT&T was third, adding 3/8 to 42 3/4.

United Telecommunications was also active, down one to 39 7/8, extending Thursday's slide after reportedly having its earnings estimates downgraded.

Among other blue chips, Du Pont rose 3/4 to 40, Philip Morris fell 3/8 to 44, IBM fell 1/2 to 120 3/8 and Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing gained 1/2 to 87 5/8. Alcoa lost 3/4 to 66 and Allied-Signal fell 7/8 to 36 1/4.

Elsewhere, Salant lost more than half its value, plunging 3 1/4 to 2 1/2 after reportedly defaulting on a bank credit facility and reviewing its options, which were said to include a possible Chapter 11 bankruptcy filing.

Prices closed little changed in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex Market Value index lost 0.27 to close at 364.03. The price of an average share was unchanged. Declines and advances were even at 267 with 272 issues unchanged among the 806 issues traded. Volume totaled 12,800,000 shares, compared with 10,840,000 traded Thursday. Hillhaven led the Amex issues, unchanged at 1 3/8.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index rose 0.45 to close at 467.55.

NEW YORK (JUNE 15) UPI - Position-covering on a spate of rumors about intervention by the Federal Reserve and the West German central bank drove the dollar down in New York trading Friday despite fairly bullish economic news.

Currency traders said the news that the U.S. merchandise trade deficit shrank in April by 17 percent, to $6.9 billion, was bullish for the dollar but added that the currency did not respond enthusiastically. Nor did it get much lift from the news that industrial production rose by 0.6 percent in May, suggesting economic strength.

In late New York trading, the dollar was quoted at 1.6875 West German marks, off from 1.6945 at close of trading Thursday. It was changing hands at 153.90 Japanese yen, also down from 154.15 yen.

"The trade number was a very healthy number," said Charles Spence, a foreign exchange vice president for First Interstate Bank Corp. in Los Angeles. But he said some players were heavy on dollars going in.

Currency analyst Lisa Finstrom said the trade figure was strong if taken at face value, but its components were ambiguous. Strong morning trading volume supported the dollar, but later rumors of Fed and Bundesbank anti-dollar intervention pushed it down.

Then, Finstrom said, "one large buy order (for European currencies) versus the dollar got the dollar turned around." She added that most players were not eager to hold strong dollar positions over the weekend.

First Interstate's Spence said bank intervention rumors "provided a cap for the dollar," as did market jitters about tight credit.

Other dollar rates: 1.4340 Swiss francs, off from 1.4355; 5.6790 French francs, down from 5.6975; and 1,239.50 Italian lire, off from 1,243.20. The British pound finished at $1.7100 up from $1.7083.

In Europe, the dollar ended higher in moderate trading. Analysts said news of a $1.4 billion decline in the U.S. trade deficit engendered caution about the dollar, as did the modest consumer price rise.

David Simmons, treasury economist at Midland Bank PLC in London, said dollar rates began higher but after the release of the trade data "came off a bit on concerns that the economy was slowing down." But the U.S. industrial output figure, stronger than expected, braced the dollar.

The dollar rose against the West German mark in Frankfurt, closing at 1.7000 deutsche marks against 1.6925 Wednesday (German markets closed Thursday). In Zurich it rose to 1.4445 Swiss francs from 1.4285 Thursday.

In London, the pound softened against the dollar on news that British retail prices rose nearly one percent in May, pushing the year-on-year inflation rate to 9.7 percent - the highest seen in eight years.

Sterling closed at $1.7050 compared with $1.7075. Analysts said the inflation news checked market optimism that Britain will soon join the exchange-rate mechanism of the European Monetary System.

The U.S. unit moved higher in Paris, Brussels and Milan, to 5.6985 francs against 5.6685, 34.93 Belgian francs compared with 34.7550, and 1,242.75 lire against 1,236.65.

Earlier in Tokyo, the dollar rose against the Japanese yen on trader position adjustments ahead of the U.S. economic data. The dollar closed at 154.52 yen, up 0.99 yen from Thursday's close of 153.53 yen.

Gold rose in Zurich to $347.50 an ounce from $345.50 Thursday. In London it also rose, to $347.50 an ounce compared with $345.75.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $348.75 an ounce, up from $346.25 Thursday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled gold at $349.50 an ounce, up from $346.80.

Silver slipped in Zurich to $4.85 an ounce from $4.90. In London it declined to $4.82 an ounce from $4.83.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.835 an ounce, up from $4.785. Comex silver settled at $4.811 an ounce, ahead from $4.77.

(JUNE 15) UPI - The United States today rejected a Soviet proposal to start negotiations this fall to reduce superpower short-range nuclear missiles.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says President Bush's refusal to adopt the Soviet plan backs NATO's position that new proposals should NOT be considered until an agreement is reached on those already on the table.

Specifically, Bush and other NATO leaders want to clinch a deal to reduce conventional forces in Europe.

A spokesman for the U-S NATO delegation in Brussels said earlier today that talks to address the Soviets' large advantage in short-range missiles are ''long overdue.''

But he stressed Washington is NOT ready to negotiate elimination of all ground-based short-range missiles in light of the imbalance in conventional forces.

And while Fitzwater welcomed a Soviet proposal to unilaterally reduce short-range missiles, he said the move only parallels similar cuts adopted by NATO.

There's new hope for a compromise between the Soviet Union and independence-driven Lithuania.

Moscow today raised hopes in ending the deadlock when it announced it will partially lift its two-month fuel embargo on the tiny Baltic republic.

Soviet Vice President Lukyanov termed the move a ''goodwill gesture'' and says it proves Moscow is ready to discuss the republic's bid for independence.

Lukyanov added the Soviet government will do away with the embargo of oil and natural gas altogether if and when Lithuania's Parliament freezes its declaration of independence.

Lithuanian Prime Minister Prunskiene has made NO promises, but says the parliament will consider the deal.

A Russian legislator in the Supreme Soviet who represents a district in Lithuania expressed optimism that Lithuania's Parliament will postpone independence to get talks off the ground.

(JUNE 15) UPI - Three major unions representing federal workers are calling for a veto override after President Bush today refused to sign a bill that would ease restrictions on political activity by federal employees.

Bush says the congressional effort to amend the 1939 Hatch Act would lead to what he called the ''repoliticization of the civil service.''

But the head of the National Federation of Federal Employees responded to Bush's fear by saying rejection of the bill relegates those who work for the government to second-class citizenship.

James Pierce said Congress should override the veto and give federal workers- in his words- ''the same basic constitutional rights as every other American citizen.

The Hatch Act was passed in 1939 to prevent government workers from being coerced to work in presidential campaigns. A set of regulations has emanated from the law to bar civil servants from taking part in political activities.

A mixed picture on the nation's economic front.

On the postive side, recent economic reports indicate inflation has cooled from its overheated pace at the beginning of the year. But econmists say they expect the economy to remain sluggish through the summer months ahead.

The Labor Department reported today that consumer prices rose a modest two-tenths of one percent in May. That's the same increase as reported in April and lower than several economists had expected.

The report comes as a followup to word yesterday that wholesale prices rose three-tenths of one percent in May. As the economists see it, the two reports indicate inflation has stabilized.

They say the reports are likely to dampen Federal Reserve Board concerns. It has been under pressure from the Bush Administration to slow down its inflation-fightng efforts by lowering interest rates.

But the economists believe the Fed might be prompted to action after reviewing June employment figures which will be released July 6th.

Weighed down by a pervasive glut of supplies worldwide, U.S. crude oil prices fell Friday to their lowest level in 18 months, while gasoline gained support from refinery-output problems to rise by nearly 5 cents a gallon on the week.

The benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for July delivery fell 51 cents to end the day on the New York Mercantile Exchange at $16.62 a barrel, 16 cents less than a week ago.

The exchange said the $16.62 closing price was the Merc's lowest for crude since Dec. 23, 1988. Trading volume was a moderate 85,800 contracts.

Sun Co., of Radnor, Pa., and Marathon Oil Co., the Findlay, Ohio unit of USX Corp., also cut their posted price for crude at the wellhead by 75 cents to $15.50 a barrel for WTI, the lowest price for the standard crude since Dec. 27, 1988.

July delivery gasoline, however, climbed another 1.39 cents to 61.51 cents a gallon, 4.92 cents higher than last Friday's Merc close.

There is so much crude oil worldwide in storage tanks and onboard tankers ''that nobody wants it,'' said Kevin Breslin, a trader with United Energy Inc. in New York.

Crude prices declined in spite of the upward pull exerted by the gasoline market, which continued to react to problems with refineries and to tightness in regional markets.

Breslin said the California market was sufficiently tight so that three cargoes of gasoline were diverted there from the U.S. Gulf Coast.

The gasoline market also was still reacting to Thursday's decision by Brazilian oil workers to go out on strike at refineries operated by Petrobas, the state-owned oil company that exports gasoline to the United States.

A fire late Wednesday at Exxon Corp.'s huge Baton Rouge refinery also is expected to take about 4 million gallons a day out of the gasoline market for up to a week while a damaged crude distillation unit is repaired.

On the tightness of the gasoline market, Breslin said, ''I don't expect it to be for long, but is sure real now.''

As a result of using lower-quality, heavier crudes, oil-industry statistics show that only an average of about 49.5 percent of refinery output is resulting in gasoline, compared to a normal level of 55-59 percent, the trader said.

Ray Mazzeo of Shearson Lehman Hutton's International Energy Desk said his firm was expecting further gains, targeting a minimum Merc gasoline price of 64 cents a gallon by the middle of next week.

In its weekly market roundup, however, Salomon Brothers said wholesale prices are poised for a decline. ''Increased supply at the wholesale level will be the primary factor,'' Salomon said.

On the wholesale U.S. Gulf Coast cash market Friday, prompt delivery unleaded gasoline jumped 2.15 cents to 62.85 cents a gallon, pushing the market up 1.25 cents on the week.

On the New York Harbor spot market, prompt delivery unleaded climbed 1.4 cents to 67 cents a gallon, a rise of 3.9 cents over a week ago.

On the U.S. Gulf Coast cash crude market, prompt delivery crude WTI fell 50 cents to $16.60 a barrel, a decline of 15 cents on the week.

On the European spot market, Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent dropped 54 cents to $15.55 a barrel, 2 cents lower than last Friday.

(JUNE 15) UPI - Hundreds of miners who rushed to Bucharest at the request of president Ion Iliescu earlier this week have started to leave the Romanian capital.

About two-thousand of the self-proclaimed freedom fighters met with Iliescu today and said he praised their efforts to quell anti-government protests.

Aided by other government supporters and soldiers, the miners clashed with demonstrators Wednesday and yesterday. At least five people were reported killed and 113 others hospitalized with injuries.

The miners are said to have destroyed the offices of two opposition parties and a newspaper. They also patrolled city streets and searched cars at random.

Opposition party leaders condemned use of the miners, charging they had been used to crush dissent. As they left today, Bucharest was reported tense, but under tight control by the military.

Texas authorities are on stand by, awaiting the arrival of crude oil from a burning tanker in the Gulf of Mexico. Light crude is edging toward beaches in and around Galveston, Texas, with the leading edge of the oily sheen within seven miles of land.

Cleanup forces have been mobilized to battle the oil when it reaches shore which is expected before the day ends.

A state cleanup organization and environmental groups have scraped together some two-thousand volunteers and all available equipment to battle the ooze.

The mess is coming from the Norwegian tanker Mega Borg, which exploded in flames one week ago. An estimated three-Million gallons of oil has spilled from the tanker since the blast.

The tanker is sill burning, although the blaze has considerly diminished as the vessel drifts at anchor 57 miles southeast of Galveston in the Gulf of Mexico.

ROCHESTER, NY (JUNE 15) UPI - Eastman Kodak Co. and IBM Corp. Friday launched a collaborative effort to create new integrated computerized publishing systems to serve newspapers and magazines.

Kodak's Electronic Pre-Press Systems unit and IBM's research and marketing departments are joining forces to create and provide support for a publishing systems computer structure based on open industry standards, both companies said.

The goal is to create a unified system to handle all of a publisher's computer system needs from editorial to production to circulation, billing and and management reports.

''What publishers are looking for are ways to integrate their pre-press and business operations to better manage growth and change,'' said David Monks, the president of EPPS. ''Through this new alliance, we will offer the architecture on which those enterprise-wide solutions can be based.''

IBM will provide technical, marketing, developmental and financial resources and play a role in strategic and operational activities, while EPPS will offer its applications-software expertise on the Atex system, the companies said.

Other terms of the agreement were not disclosed.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - Before testimony even began in the drug and perjury trial of Mayor Marion Barry, the nature of the case took shape in two weeks of intense questioning aimed at seating a 12-person jury.

As with any case, jury selection is important. But in a city in which some residents adore the three-term mayor and others openly despise him, this jury of Barry's peers is deemed crucial.

Attorneys and U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson have labored to pick a jury that will see the case fairly and without bias, yet even Barry said that will be unlikely.

''I think the prosecutors know that in this town all it takes is one juror saying, 'I'm not going to convict Marion Barry. I don't care what you say ''' Barry said before the trial began.

After two weeks of questioning whittled a jury pool to 82 people, a panel of 12 jurors and six alternates will be seated, sworn in and sequestered Monday.

Of more than 130 potential jurors questioned, many said they had mixed feelings about government sting operations, about Barry's character and about how his withdrawal from this fall's mayoral race would effect their sympathies.

''Everything's pretty much hearsay,'' said one potential juror. ''Until things have been found true, I really don't deal with it.''

Some Barry supporters claim his status as one of the nation's top black political leaders spurred the sting operation against him.

Throughout questioning, potential jurors were asked if they thought race was an issue in the case and were told they would have to lay aside any consideration of race if selected.

Also prominent in the attorneys' questions was the opinion of the government sting operation.

Defense attorney R. Kenneth Mundy said he would attack the government's use of hidden surveillence equipment in taping Barry with model Rasheeda Moore in the Vista International Hotel Jan. 18.

Many potential jurors said they were uneasy about the use of hidden cameras and microphones in an operation that lured Barry to a hotel with a former model and then offered him drugs provided by the government.

''If the defense evidence leaves a doubt in your mind as to whether he was entrapped,'' Mundy asked one potential juror, ''would you be able to say he is not guilty?''

Prosecutors Judith Retchin and Richard Roberts countered the possibility of an entrapment defense by asking potential jurors if they could consider only the evidence taken from the sting - not the ethics behind it.

''Can you put aside any personal feeling about the incident and consider any evidence that was found at the Vista?'' Retchin asked many jurors.

Retchin tried, but failed, to dismiss one potential juror who said she prayed for Barry.

Defense attorneys tried to strike jurors who said they already thought Barry was guilty based on media reports.

The judge allowed potential jurors who said, despite their feelings and pre-dispositions, they would consider all evidence and listen to the case with a clear mind and the presumption of innocence.

A critical phase in the case occurs Monday, when attorneys use the knowledge preened in the two-week process - and in some cases their instincts - to decide which potential jurors to exclude and which to let decide Barry's fate.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - The United States has donated 25,000 metric tons of corn to Honduras with the goal of helping to meet food needs and to improve rural conditions, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

The donation was made through a 1949 law that authorizes donation of surplus commodities to needy people overseas. The Agency for International Development will oversee the development program.

According to U.S. officials, the corn, worth about $2.2 million, will be sold by the Honduran government to help meet food and industrial needs arising from domestic crop shortfalls.

Money raised through the sale will be used to provide food assistance to the needy, to assist farmers in projects to increase agricultural production and to improve public works in rural areas.

Earlier this year, the United States provided $1.2 million in assistance to Honduras under the aid program, known as Section 416 of the 1949 law.

GAITHERSBURG, MD (JUNE 15) UPI - Estrogen therapy lowers heart disease risk in postmenopausal women with hysterectomies, but more tests are needed to determine if the heart benefits outweigh other risks, a federal advisory panel concluded Friday.

Estrogen, a hormone found in high levels in females of child-bearing age, is no longer produced in the uterus after a woman undergoes menopause. An estrogen supplement known as Premarin, made from purified horse urine, is currently used to treat menopause-related symptoms like night sweats, hot flashes and brittle bone disease.

About 40 percent of the 4 million to 5 million U.S. women who use Premarin had undergone hysterectomies before they started the hormone therapy. Because Premarin increases the risk of uterine cancer in women, doctors generally do not give it to women who have not undergone hysterectomies unless no other treatment is available.

Wyeth-Ayerst Laboratories of Philadelphia, which makes Premarin, asked the Food and Drug Administration advisory committee to recommend the drug for treatment to reduce the risk of heart disease in post-menopausal women who have undergone hysterectomies.

''The rate of heart disease begins to rise rapidly after a woman reaches menopause,'' said Dr. John LaRosa of George Washington University, adding it is not known if the increase in heart disease is due to lack of estrogen or other aspects of aging.

The FDA advisory panel concluded the cardiovascular benefits of Premarin may outweigh other health risks in some patients. However, the 10-member committee recommended further studies be conducted before the hormone is widely used for heart disease prevention.

The FDA will consider the committee's findings and determine whether the benefits toward reduction in heart disease should be included on Premarin's label.

''We are encouraged by the committee's findings. Cardiovascular disease is the No. 1 cause of death among women, killing 240,000 each year,'' said Dr. Marc Deitch, vice president for medical affairs at Wyeth-Ayerst.

The National Women's Health Network opposed Wyeth-Ayerst's request that the hormone be recommended for treatment of heart disease. The group argued the hormone should be tested more thoroughly and on a wider population before it is marketed for preventing heart disease.

Studies presented at the committee meeting showed a 50 percent reduction in coronary heart disease risk in postmenopausal estrogen users. While Premarin increases ''good'' cholesterol, called high-density lipoprotein, and decreases ''bad'' cholesterol or low-density lipoprotein, it is also known to increase the risk of uterine cancer, breast cancer and gallbladder disease.

Further studies are needed to evaluate whether the benefit of reduced likelihood of heart disease outweighs the other health risks in most patients, the panel said.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - A trust fund created by the former owner of the New York Times Co. has been transfered to trusts held by four of his children, giving each of them a substantive stake in the New York City daily, according to documents filed Friday with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The Ochs Trust, created by Adolph S. Ochs, contained 17.4 million shares of common stock that were to be distributed upon the death of his daughter Iphigene Ochs Sulzberger, who died last February.

The shares will be equally divided among her four children: Marian Heiskell; Ruth Holmberg; Judith Sulzberger; and Arthur Ochs Sulzberger.

Each of the four already has New York Times stock, and with the Ochs Trust Fund distribution, will each exercise control over approximately 9.5 percent of the company's 75.7 million shares outstanding. The combined ownership of the four, however, will be considerably less, since they share control over some of the stock

U.S. securities laws require that in most instances, investors owning more than five percent of a company's stock publicly report their holdings and any actions they plan that would materially affect the stock's value.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher will lead a five-day business development mission to Chile and Brazil June 17-22, accompanied by chief executives of several major U.S. companies, the department said Friday.

Commerce officials declined to reveal the names of the executives for security reasons.

The purpose of the trip is to promote trade and investments, said Marion Blakey, a department spokeswoman.

Mosbacher will meet with Chilean President Patricio Aylwin and high officials of his administration June 17-19 in Santiago. The secretary will also tour a major copper mine and deliver an address on U.S.-Chilean economic relations.

Chile was excluded from the U.S. Generalized System of Preferences that slashes import tariffs because of the violation of human rights in the South American country under the dictatorship of General Augusto Pinochet.

Democratically elected Aylwin, who recently succeeded Pinochet as president of Chile, wants Chile restored to the GSP.

Mosbacher will meet Brazilian President Fernando Collor de Mello and high officers of his government June 19-20 in Brasilia. On June 20-21 the secretary will be in Sao Paulo, where he will deliver an address on U.S.-Brazilian economic relations at the National Association of American Chambers of Commerce, Brazil.

In Rio de Janeiro, the secretary will meet June 21-22 with directors of the National Economic and Social Development Bank, state telecommunications agency and electric power generating authority.

LOS ANGELES (JUNE 15) UPI - An engineer was arrested Friday for allegedly smuggling confidential ''Star Wars'' data out of the country in a bid to pass the technology to South Africa.

Ronald Hoffman, 51, of Los Angeles, was taken into custody at Los Angeles International Airport and expected to be arraigned Friday afternoon in federal court on at least one count of illegally exporting the U.S. military data abroad.

Hoffman, the target of a five-month federal investigation, is accused of smuggling ''technical data used for research'' on the Strategic Defense Initiative, or ''Star Wars'' missile defense system, Assistant U.S. Attorney William Fahey said.

Hoffman has been self-employed for some time but had access to SDI technology in a prior engineering job, Fahey said, declining to reveal Hoffman's former employer.

Fahey would not comment on the sensitivity of the smuggled information or its impact on national security but said its export abroad ''would have had to been approved at fairly high levels of the Air Force.''

Hoffman allegedly had been smuggling Star Wars data out of the country for about a year and was paid at least $150,000 for the information, Fahey said.

Fahey would not say whether the South Africans actually received any of the information.

In at least one incident, Hoffman had the data sent to West Germany, Fahey said, with the intention of ultimately having it reach South Africa.

NEW YORK (JUNE 15) UPI - Under fire from Latinos, Mayor David Dinkins Friday apologized for offending anyone with his criticism of three Puerto Rican nationalists but insisted he could not condone their violent 1954 assault on Congress.

At the same time, the mayor said he would make no effort to try to prevent Nelson Mandela from meeting with the three when he is in the city next week.

''If Mr. Mandela wants to meet with them or anyone else, that's his business,'' Dinkins said.

The mayor touched off a furor in the Puerto Rican community when he said Thursday that the three, who he labeled as ''assassins,'' should not share the stage with Mandela in Harlem because it would detract from the purpose of the rally.

Bronx Borough President Fernando Ferrer joined in the criticism Friday, suggesting the mayor had a double standard because he supported Mandela and jailed Irish Republican Army soldier Joseph Doherty, who killed a British Army captain.

''The Puerto Rican nationalists are no different than Nelson Mandela or Joe Doherty. If you respect one nationalist you have to respect another nationalist. You can't have it both ways,'' Ferrer said in a statement.

The mayor finally issued a response late in the day and then met with a barrage of questions from angry reporters from the Spanish-language media.

''After speaking with many of my friends in the Puerto Rican community, I realize that my response to a question about the Puerto Rican nationalists who attacked the House of Representatives in 1954 may have been misunderstood,'' Dinkins said.

''Those involved obviously believed deeply in their cause, and I can identify with and appreciate their yearning for economic justice and political freedom.

''But, however deep their commitment, I do not condone their use of violence to further their goals,'' he said.

''My comment may not have adequately taken into account the depth of feeling that surrounded the movement for independence in 1954, nor their position within the movement today. If my words offended my brothers and sisters in the Latino community in New York or on the Island of Puerto Rico, I regret that,'' Dinkins said.

What seemed to offend Latinos most was his characterization of the nationalists, who are free after serving prison terms, as ''assassins.''

Pressed for whether that was what he truly believed, Dinkins said if they were stormed Congress to kill people, ''That's what they were.''

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - Senate Republican and Democratic negotiators have reached an impasse on campaign finance reform legislation, with Democrats refusing to consider any bill without limits on aggregate spending by candidates, Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., said Friday.

The negotiators, appointed by Senate leaders several weeks ago, met Thursday night but could not crack the stalemate on the spending limits that Democrats consider key to any legislation.

In a statement, Boren said, ''We will report our inability to reach an agreement on this point'' to Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine and Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas.

A source close to the Republican negotiating team said, however, that there may be another meeting next week and that efforts to find a compromise may still be pursued.

This source said the Democrats had indicated earlier some flexibility on campaign spending ceiling, supporting limits on out-of-state contributions which both parties seem to back. But the source said the Democrats returned adamant on aggregate spending ceilings.

Boren said, ''We were unable to reach a decision because of our inability to agree on whether or not there should be an overall aggregate limit on campaign spending. Those on our side simply believe that there can never be true campaign reform unless we end runaway spending and the never ending chase for more and more money.

''In conscience, we could not yield on the question of putting a limit on overall spending because it is the essence of reform,'' Boren said.

The Republican source indicated that the two sides had come close to an agreement on reduced television costs, had discussed cutting political action committee contributions and dealt with ''soft money'' contributions.

Boren said ''we were willing to negotiate on every other issue including PACs and reducing any public financing component of the bill.''

SHADYSIDE, Ohio (JUNE 15) UPI - Flash floods sent walls of water up to 20 feet high surging through eastern Ohio mountain valleys, killing at least 11 people and leaving at least 60 others missing, authorities said Friday.

A torrential downpour hit the Ohio River area shortly after 8 p.m. Thursday, transforming three 6-inch-deep creeks into raging floodwaters. Hundreds of houses, mobile homes, cars and trucks were swept up by the sudden flooding along the Wegee, Pipe and McMahon creeks.

Robert Steele's house sits on a hill overlooking Wegee Creek and was spared. But some of his neighbors weren't so lucky.

''Every time there was lightning, you could see people scattered, screaming for help,'' Steele said. ''There was nothing you could do.''

Belmont County Commissioner Bob Olexo said the rain hit the hills quickly and the three valleys where the creeks lie were overwhelmed by flash floods.

''It looks like a tornado came down all the valleys,'' he said. ''There was a house on top of a bridge. There were four cars on top of each other.''

Sheriff's Capt. Ron Everett said 11 bodies had been found by late afternoon. ''The missing hasn't changed since this morning; it's still 62 '' he said.

At least two people survived harrowing rides down the creeks.

''A 7-year-old girl was washed away in the Glencoe area and she was found at the Ohio River, about 7 miles away,'' sheriff's Capt. Todd Graham said.

''She survived and is in the hospital, suffering from abrasions and contusions, but nothing real bad for what she went through. She reportedly did see her babysitter drown.''

The village of Shadyside received 5 inches of rain in four hours, the Ohio Emergency Management Agency said. Ann Coleman, a waitress at a doughnut shop, heard about one woman being swept downstream.

''They found her washed away ... completely naked,'' she said. ''She lives on Wegee Road and she was found on Pipe Creek, which is about 5 miles away. They found her wrapped around a telephone pole, but she was still alive.''

A huge wall of water, as high as 20 feet according to some reports, roared through the rural hill communities.

''Houses and foundations ... washed away, mobile homes washed away and cars and trucks washed into the creeks,'' Graham said. ''We even had a report of one caterpillar bulldozer being washed away. You're talking 30 tons of machinery.

''There was one local bar on Wegee Road where the walls collapsed and trapped people inside. There was a mobile home sitting next to the bar that washed down the creek with people in it.''

Graham said two people from the bar were rescued, but authorities did not know many were inside when it was demolished.

Roger Gibbons was one of about 10 people in the bar and said the only thing that saved them was a cinder block wall. He and his 9-year-old son and the other patrons crouched in a corner, beneath a pool table, until the water receded.

''I could have made it (out), but I would have lost that little boy,'' he said. ''It's a good thing this wasn't a Friday night, with a band, because there's 200 to 300 people here on a Friday night. There would have been a lot of dead people.''

Graham said a makeshift morgue had been put up in Shadyside, a village of about 4,300 across the Ohio River from Wheeling, W.Va.

The lawman told about a man concerned about his inexpensive car, which he had scrambled out of as it was swept away by floodwaters.

''He got on a tree and the tree washed away. He was able to get on another tree and waited for about two hours before being rescued,'' Graham said. ''(But) he was still worried about his $50 car and I had to explain to him that we were busy trying to find people this morning, not $50 cars. He said he was concerned about the fishing pole he left on the front seat.''

Graham said hundreds of people from area law enforcement agencies, as well as local detachments of the Ohio National Guard and the Army Reserve, were helping with the search and cleanup. Another 50 guardsmen, with heavy equipment, were en route from Columbus.

Gov. Richard Celeste, who toured the area by helicopter, asked Pennsylvania and West Virginia authorities to send boats to help search the Ohio River for bodies.

Al Hahn of the Federal Emergency Management Agency said Belmont and neighboring Jefferson counties were immediately added to the list of 14 other Ohio counties declared flood disaster areas last weekend by President Bush. State officials were looking for a federal declaration for five other counties - Harrison, Holmes, Monroe, Guernsey and Franklin - where heavy rains fell Thursday night.

In Madison County, west of Columbus, lightning struck a beach shelter at Madison Lake Thursday night, injuring two. Virginia Summer, 62, of Columbus was in serious condition at Doctor's North Hospital in Columbus and Nettie Chafins, 16, also of Columbus, was in fair condition at the same hospital.

More than 3 inches of rain fell in Licking County, east of Columbus, where several hundred people were evacuated in floods last weekend. Columbus was hit by 2 inches of rain, flooding streets and knocking out power to about 35,000 customers of the Columbus Southern Power Co.

HARTFORD, CONN (JUNE 15) UPI - The Greyhound bus strike was declared a lockout in Connecticut Friday by state labor officials, who ruled union drivers were eligible for full unemployment benefits.

Jobless benefits for about 10 strikers are effective from March 10 and will continue for a total of up to 26 weeks, said Labor Commissioner Betty L. Tianti.

The nationwide Greyhound strike began March 2 when 9,300 workers, including 6,000 drivers, walked off the job.

After reviewing evidence from Local 1202 of the Amalgamated Transit Union, Tianti found the workers were ''ready, willing and able to continue working under terms of the old contract while negotiations proceeded toward a new bargaining agreement.''

Tianti also said she considered Greyhound's ''unilateral implementation of its final offer on March 2, which included terms and conditions of employment less favorable than those under the contract that expired March 1.''

Among those conditions imposed by Greyhound were subcontracting of union work to non-union personnel, changes in the method for calculating seniority and limitations on the grievance rights of terminated employees.

Greyhound filed for Chapter 11 protection from creditors June 4, citing costs related to the strike. The union blamed a lack of passengers and service cutbacks for the company's woes.

Workers and management have not negotiated since May 5, when Greyhound called for a four-year wage freeze and the elimination of some 4,500 union jobs. Union leaders called the contract offer an ''insult.''

Striking drivers have continued to picket the Greyhound terminal in Hartford, taunting replacement workers and passengers.

One picketer has been killed elsewhere in the United States during the bitter dispute, which has led to several incidents of violence including a shooting on Interstate 84 in Farmington.

No one was injured when a bullet was fired into the luggage compartment of bus bound for Hartford in April and a striking Greyhound driver from Connecticut was charged with firing the shot.

NEW YORK (JUNE 15) UPI - Martin Siegel, an admitted inside trader who turned government informant after he was implicated by Ivan Boesky, was sentenced Friday to two months in prison and five years probation.

Prosecutors asked for leniency for Siegel, whom Boesky once paid off with $800,000 cash crammed into briefcases, because of his cooperation with the government's investigation into Wall Street corruption.

Siegel faced a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and a $260,000 fine. The former investment banker tearfully pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy and one count of tax fraud in February 1987, when he agreed to cooperate with investigators.

U.S. District Judge Robert Ward said he was persuaded that Siegel had given his ''full and complete cooperation.''

''In February 1987, Mr. Siegel owed a substantial debt,'' said the judge, who also sentenced Siegel to 3,000 hours of community service. ''He has reduced that debt by what he has done.''

Siegel, 42, the former head of mergers and acquisitions at Kidder, Peabody & Co., was charged with giving confidential information to Boesky, a powerful arbitrageur. He was implicated when Boesky turned government informant in a 1986 plea bargain.

Speaking in a slightly shaky voice before the court, Siegel said, ''I stand before you almost three-and-a-half years since the terrible mistakes I have made.''

''I have tried to be as diligent as possible to make up for them,'' he said.

He stood expressionless as the judge pronounced his sentence. His wife, seated beside him at the defense table, closed her eyes briefly when the judge said her husband would serve a jail sentence.

Siegel already agreed to pay $9 million to settle insider trading charges with the Securities and Exchange Commission and is barred for life from the securities industry.

Siegel implicated three other Wall Street figures in an insider trading conspiracy - former Kidder traders Richard Wigton and Timothy Tabor and former Goldman, Sachs & Co. head of arbitrage Robert Freeman.

Wigton and Freeman were taken into custody in 1987 in dramatic arrests at their Wall Street offices by federal marshals, who led Wigton away in handcuffs.

The original charges against the three were dismissed to give prosecutors time to develop a new, broader indictment. However, last fall the U.S. Attorney announced no charges would be brought against Wigton and Tabor, and Freeman would plead guilty to a single count of mail fraud.

The showy arrests drew criticism of former U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani, who led the federal probe into corruption on Wall Street.

Siegal arrived at prosecutors' offices in Manhattan one day after he was subponeaed and began cooperating, Assistant U.S. Attorney Neil Cartusciello said in court.

''If he had not come forward, the government would not have known of the information swapping that was going on,'' Cartusciello said.

''The conduct in which he engaged before he attempted to cooperate ... was wrong,'' the prosecutor said. ''He did it for crass motives. The motives were indeed wrong.''

Prosecutors said Siegel disclosed confidential information regarding the securities of several corporations engaged in takeovers, mergers or tender offers, including Unocal Corp., Storer Communications Inc. and Beatrice Co.

Siegel worked at Kidder 15 years before becoming head of mergers and acquisitions at Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. He resigned his post at Drexel the day before he entered his guilty pleas.

POUGHKEPSIE, NY (JUNE 15) UPI - A prison guard wearing only briefs and bloodied from a self-inflicted chest wound, stole a police car Friday then led police on a high-speed chase through Dutchess County.

The police car burst into flames after the man slammed it into a car wash and was arrested by officers who had followed him on the chase. There were no injuries.

The incident began when police in Poughkeepsie, located about 60 miles north of New York City, received a call about 2 p.m. ''of a large naked white male'' found collapsed in a field.

Officers found the man bleeding profusely from an apparently self-inflicted knife wound to the chest.

As officers attempted to administer first aid, the man attacked and overpowered one of the officers and stole his car.

The man, identified as George Tobin, 33, a corrections officer at the Dutchess County Jail, headed north in the cruiser with police close at his heels.

The chase ended at Pete's Mobil gas station and car wash, but not before Tobin hit two parked cars and struck the car wash building.

The vehicle burst into flames as Tobin was being subdued by two officers.

Tobin underwent surgery for his wound at Vassar Brothers Hospital.

Police said he will be charged with reckless endangerment, grand larceny, felony criminal mischief and numerous vehicle and traffic violations.

In Tobin's home police found a large amount of blood and a large bloody kitchen knife that Tobin apparently used to stab himself.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - The Office of Thrift Supervision Friday appointed Resolution Trust Corp. receiver for Southwest Savings Association in Dallas, the third-largest thrift in Texas with assets of $5.5 billion.

The thrift, owned by the Caroline Hunt Trust Estate and the estate's beneficiaries, had been under RTC conservatorship since May 18 afer it was found to be operating in an ''unsafe and unsound condition.''

Southwest Savings was one of the institutions that participated in the controversial Southwest Plan initiated by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board the predecessor of OTS.

Under that plan, Southwest in May 1988 acquired four other insolvent Texas thrifts. In the transaction, Southwest contributed $25 million in equity capital in return for $2 billion in notes, yield maintenance and capital coverage on troubled assets.

After placing it under RTC receivership, OTS created a new federal mutual association to assume all deposits of Southwest and certain of its assets and liabilities.

Under receivership, the institution's shareholders are severed, whereas under conservatorship, the institution's ownership is not affected.

OTS said Southwest had $3.9 billion in 235,980 deposits. The new institution will continue its normal business operations and deposits will continue to be federally insured to the legal limit of $100,000.

When it was placed in conservatorship, OTS said the insolvent Southwest had incurred losses that depleted substantially all of its capital with no prospect of replenishment without federal help. Its condition was due primarily to continuous operating losses and to a high level of non-earning real estate assets.

As of March 31, Southwest had liabilities of $5.6 billion and a negative tangible capital of $303.5 million for a tangible captial-to-assets ration of minus 5.64 percent.

In another action, OTS closed First Savings of Laredo, F.A., in Laredo, Texas, and the RTC approved paying off the institution's insured deposits.

The thrift had assets of $175.5 million and liabilities of $184.4 million.

RTC said the decision to pay off the deposits was taken since no acceptable bids were received for the thrift.

First Savings had deposits of $143.9 million in 4,500 deposit accounts. RTC said uninsured deposits were minimal and would consist primarily of accrued interest on deposits in excess of the $100,000 legal limit.

Any uninsured depositor and other general creditors will share proportionately with the RTC in the proceeds from the liquidation of the thrift's assets.

ST. PAUL, MINN (JUNE 15) UPI - Northwest Airlines said Friday it has asked for federal approval to begin service to Moscow and Leningrad.

The airline, based in St. Paul, Minn., said it was prepared to extend its Boston-Amsterdam nonstop service to include both Soviet cities beginning May 1, 1991. Northwest proposed flying four times a week on an Amsterdam-Moscow-Leningrad route using 294-seat McDonnell Douglas DC-10

PHILADELPHIA (JUNE 15) UPI - Scott Paper Co. said Friday it has joined with Feldmughle AG of Germany in a joint venture to operate a sanitary tissue business.

Scott officials said the company would invest $125 million and own 51 percent of the company.

The deal must be approved by the German Federal Cartel Office, and the boards of directors of both companies.

''Feldhmuhle's tissue business represents an outstanding strategic fit with Scott's other European businesses,'' said Philip Lippincott, Scott's chairman and chief executive officer.

Fedlmuhle manufactures sanitary tissues at four mills and markets them in Germany, the Netherlands, Belgium and France.

Scott is Western Europe's largest tissue paper producer and marketer with 1989 sales of about $1.2 billion.

MIAMI (JUNE 15) UPI - Southeast Banking Corp., which was forced to strengthen its reserves earlier this year because of continuing loan losses, reported Friday on steps taken to improve the company's financial condition, including a sharp reduction in the quarterly dividend.

The Miami company also said it plans to sell assets from its mortgage company subsidiary for up to $100 million and implement an expense reduction program.

''Because we continue to experience credit quality problems, the board took these prudent actions to assure the flexibility of Southeast and its strong franchise,'' said Charles J. Zwick, chairman and chief executive officer.

''While we have considerable momentum going in most of our core businesses the condition of Florida's economy has not improved and continues to adversely affect the loan portfolio.''

However, the price of Southeast Banking stock finished down $2.375 to $11 a share in New York Stock Exchange trading Friday.

Southeast Banking expects total non-performing assets at June 30 to range from about $600 million to $620 million, up from the $474 million at March 31.

The reserve for loan losses at June 30 is expected to range from $260 million to $280 million. The company presently expects to lose money in the second quarter and for 1990 as a whole.

Southeast Banking reported in March that Florida's softening real estate market forced the bank to strengthen its reserve for loan losses, resulting in a first-quarter net loss of more than $50 million.

The bank reported Friday it has reached a preliminary understanding with Sears Mortgage Corp., a Sears Roebuck & Co. unit, calling for the sale of certain assets of Southeast's subsidiary, Southeast Mortgage Corp. The bank said a sale would strengthen its balance sheet.

The letter of understanding would provide for the sale of Southeast Mortgage's residential mortgage servicing portfolio, a number of branch offices and other assets and would create certain related contractual arrangements.

The price will be paid in cash under a formula that Southeast presently expects will result in a payment of up to $100 million. The transaction is subject to the negotiation of a definitive agreement and to regulatoryapprovals.

Southeast Banking officials said the company also is assessing ways to produce significant cost savings by cutting expenses. Among other things, delaying some planned capital projects is being considered.

Southeast Banking's board declared a quarterly divident of 10 cents a share on common stock, payable July 17 to shareholders of record June 25. The dividend for the previous quarter was 28 cents.

Southeast Banking is the parent of Southeast Bank N.A., which fell to third place in assets among banks in Florida in January.

Southeast Banking, which had total assets of $17.1 billion and total deposits of $13.2 billion March 31, provides financial services at more than 225 locations throughout Florida.

SHADYSIDE, OH (JUNE 15) UPI - Rampaging waters swept Amber Colvin down a flooded stream and river for 7 miles and seven hours, yet the girl's ordeal is good news in rain-socked eastern Ohio.

She survived.

The 9-year-old child, clinging to logs, floated down a creek and then the Ohio River for seven hours before being found at 6 a.m.

She finally worked her way to the West Virginia shore of the Ohio River and got a man's attention.

''The last time I talked to her was 9:30 p.m. and she and a neighbor were playing Uno,'' said her mother, Karen. ''We went into town to buy dog food and a stamp and we couldn't get back.''

The mother didn't know until 2 a.m. her house was swept away and her daughter was gone.

Amber's parents spent the night at an elementary school and were told of their daughter's rescue near dawn.

''I can't begin to tell you how she looked,'' the mother said. ''I don't know who was in shock more, me or her. Her hands and feet had no color. She had her senses, but you just could tell she had been in the water. All she talked about was Carrie (the girl's friend).''

Amber had no broken bones but, unfortunately, her card-playing friend was still unaccounted for late Friday.

''I tried to save her,'' Amber said from her Bellaire Hospital bed. ''I almost drowned. I was swept out of the house.''

Amber said she remembers Carrie being hit in the head and knocked out.

WORCESTER, PA (JUNE 15) UPI - Ford Electronics and Refrigeration Co. formally dedicated Friday a high-tech $117 million plant that a company official said was ''crucial'' to Ford's future.

The 700,000-square-foot facility, which replaces a nearly plant dating from the 1940s, features one of the most advanced computer-integrated manufacturing processes in the world, Ford Motor Co. said.

''This facility will be a crucial element in Ford's objective to be the world's most efficient producer of high-quality vehicles ... because electronics are becoming increasingly important as automotive components '' Philip Benton Jr., Ford's president, said at the dedication ceremony.

By the middle of this decade, about $1,600 worth of electronics will be built into a standard car, up from $250 in 1989, Benton said.

About 2,450 of the older Landsdale, Pa., plant's 2,600 employees will be gradually transferred to the new facility. Bernard O'Connor, a plant manager, said about 150 jobs would be lost, at least temporarily.

''One of the reasons we chose to locate this new facility less than three miles from the Lansdale plant was to make use of an existing, highly trained work force,'' said Benton.

Pilot production at the new plant began in January, and by mid-1991 the facility is to be in full production. The plant will manufacture engine control modules, sensors and electronic equipment that controls engine performance, braking, suspension, steering and other vehicle systems.

The facility is a primary supplier of electronics for millions of Ford cars and trucks.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (JUNE 15) UPI - Southern Bell said Friday it will begin sending telephone bills printed in Braille to blind North Carolina customers who request the service.

The company said it will offer the Braille billing service later this month in Georgia, with South Carolina and Florida to be added by the end of the year.

''We are very pleased to be able to provide this service for our blind and visually impaired customers,'' said Joseph P. Lacher, vice president for North Carolina operations. ''There is a great desire among people with disabilities to become more independent, and we want to do everything we can to help bring that about.''

Southern Bell will transmit a summarized version of the bill by computer to the Metrolina Association of the Blind, a Charlotte-based United Way agency. The association will then print the bills in Braille and distribute them through the mail.

Southern Bell spokesman Clifton Metcalf said Southern Bell will not charge extra for the Braille service.

A regular full-size version of the bill will continue to be sent to blind customers, Metcalf said.

Southern Bell estimated that about 200 of its North Carolina customers will request copies of their bills in Braille. About 10 percent of blind or visually impaired people read Braille, the company said.

Metcalf said Southern Bell began the service, the first of its kind in the nation, after receiving specific requests from several blind customers.

''We've been working with the people at Metrolina for some time, and we've gotten a good response to the idea of Braille billing,'' Metcalf said. ''They have a Braille transcription service over there that is extensive.''

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - President Bush intends to nominate Timothy McBride, his special assistant, to be assistant secretary of commerce for trade development, the White House announced Friday.

McBride, 32, would succeed Michael Philip Skarzynski at the Commerce Department.

McBride has been constantly at Bush's side as a personal aide de camp at the White House since 1989. Before that he worked for Bush in his vice presidential office.

ANTIGUA, GUATEMEALA (JUNE 15) UPI - Salvadoran President Alfredo Cristiani, arriving Friday for a six-nation Central American summit, said El Salvador could not yet consider reductions in its army while its civil war continues.

The demilitarization of Central America emerged at the last minute as a major topic for the two-day, economic summit to be attended by the six Central American presidents.

Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro announced Friday major reductions in the size of Nicaragua's Sandinista army, saying the ranks will be pared to a maximum of 41,000 members and that further reductions, including high-ranking members, would follow as part of a restructuring program.

Nicaraguan government sources said Chamorro was also expected to propose at the summit that all of Central America work toward gradual demilitarization.

Cristiani said El Salvador's government had the will to reduce its armed forces, but added ''we're not altogether in a position to do so'' while the 10-year-old civil war against leftist rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front continues.

''(Chamorro) has demobilized practically all the resistance in her country. She can start reductions,'' Cristiani said in reference to the disarming of the U.S.-backed Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

He also indicated that El Salvador would not be interested in the eventual elimination of its army, favoring instead ''a normal sized armed force for peacetime and to support the democratic process.''

Demilitarization is likely to confront stiff opposition in countries like El Salvador and Guatemala, where the armies wield considerable power and control over government policies.

Cristiani said talks between the Salvadoran government and rebels are scheduled for next week in Mexico City, adding he hopes ''a calendar can be established'' for a cease-fire and disarming of the rebels.

Cristiani and Panamanian President Guillermo Endara were the first to arrive for the weekend summit in Antigua, a Spanish colonial town about 30 miles from Guatemala City.

Chamorro, Costa Rican President Rafael Calderon and Honduran President Jose Azcona Hoyo were scheduled to arrive later.

Endara said he favored a demilitarized Panama. ''Panama cannot, should not ever have another army.''

There is a new constitutional reform that specifically establishes this,'' he said. Endara was installed during the U.S. invasion last December that ousted military ruler Manuel Antonio Noriega.

Endara, accompanied by his newlywed wife, Ana Mae, is attending the summit as an observer.

Leaders of the five Central American countries have often met in the past without their southernmost neighbor, and the other presidents heralded Panama's presence at the summit as a long-needed step toward unity.

The meeting has been billed as an economic summit to discuss, among other things, the formation of a Central American Economic Community similar to that of Europe that could compete more effectively on the world market.

Nicaraguan Foreign Minister Enrique Dreyfus said the main objective of the summit should be ''integration for exports to international markets.''

Cristiani said complete economic integration was essential ''to create an opportunity for Central American products on the world market. I think our idealogical differences are already narrowing.''

U.S. Secretary of State James Baker is scheduled to arrive in Antigua Sunday night and meet individually with each of the six presidents.

MEDINAH, IL (JUNE 15) UPI - Tim Simpson made a four-foot putt at the 18th hole Friday to take a one-shot lead over Jeff Sluman and Mark Brooks late in the second round of the U.S. Open.

Brooks had nine holes remaining in his round with a chance to not only catch and pass Simpson but to perhaps equal the Open's 36-hole scoring record of 134.

Curtis Strange, meanwhile, shot a 2-under 70 that allowed him to make the 36-hole cut and keep alive his faint hopes of winning the Open for a third straight time.

The scoring assault on the par-72 Medinah Country Club course continued Friday with Simpson playing the last six holes in 3-under to shoot a 69 for a two-day total of 9-under 135.

Sluman made his way around the Medinah course without a bogey for the second straight day, but his 70 left him a stroke behind Simpson at 8-under 136.

Brooks, who in four previous Opens has never made the cut, briefly jumped into a share of the lead when he birdied the par-3 eighth to go 5-under for the day and 9-under for the tournament. But he hit his second shot at the par-4 ninth into a bunker and his bogey dropped him a shot out of the lead.

At 7-under after a round of 70 was Mike Donald, who at least partially redeemed himself for a disaster at this year's Masters. Donald equaled the Masters' first-round record with a 64 only to shoot an 82 the next day.

Tied at 5-under were 1987 Open winner Scott Simpson and two-time Open champ Hale Irwin.

Another shot back at 4-under were Jim Gallagher, John Huston and Ian Woosnam, who seemed headed for a spot among the leaders when he stepped to the 17th tee. But he triple bogeyed the hole to drop from 7-under to 4-under.

The cut fell at 1-over, equaling the lowest in Open history, and those surviving it included Seve Ballesteros, whose 4-under 32 on the back nine left him at 2-under 142, Masters champion Nick Faldo (144), all-time leading money winner Tom Kite (145), Greg Norman (145) and four-time Open champion Jack Nicklaus (145).

''I haven't made any putts at all,'' Nicklaus said. ''I haven't made anything happen. I still feel I have a chance to win the championship.''

Those missing the cut included Ben Crenshaw at 3-over, Payne Stewart at 4-over, Tom Watson at 5-over, Sandy Lyle at 6-over and Wayne Levi (a winner two of the last three weeks) at 3-over.

It was only the second time in 11 years Watson had missed the cut at the Open.

Tim Simpson was even for the day through 12 holes but played the last six holes in 3-under.

Simpson said he was going to be as relaxed as any player on the course during the final two rounds.

''Golf is the not most important thing in my life anymore,'' Simpson said. ''I still like to make a living and like to win championships. But I'm not obsessed about it like I used to be.

''I was sixth on the money list last year and am probably the least known of the top 10. This year I probably have finished in the top 10 more than 50 percent of the time. I have to put up some good numbers, keep quiet, go about my business and hope that one day the accolades will come.''

Sluman, one of the PGA Tour's smallest players at 5-7 and 135 pounds, did not make a birdie until the 16th hole Friday. But he managed a steady string of pars that kept him in position to win his second major championship.

''It's human nature to think about the possibility of winning,'' said Sluman, who two years ago captured the PGA Championship in the severe Oklahoma heat.

''But as soon as you think about it, you have to start being realistic and think about your next shot. So what I am going to try to do is not think about it and just try to do my job.''

Early in Friday's round, it appeared Strange would not even be around for the weekend.

He bogeyed the first hole to fall to 2-over and as it turned out he needed to finish at 1-over to survive the cut.

But Strange's putter began to warm up on the back nine and he birdied the last hole to shoot 70.

''I feel better now than I did yesterday (after a 73),'' Strange said. ''I putted better on the back nine. I didn't make a lot of putts, but I hit the ball better on the greens.

''I don't like my position, though. If the weather stays like this (mild and with little wind), I am going to have to shoot two very low scores to have a chance.''

Tim Simpson saved par four times from the No. 6 to No. 12 to keep his round together and then started his move with a 15-foot birdie putt at the par-3 13th. He made an 18-footer for birdie from the back fringe at the par-3 16th and finished the day by hitting a 6-iron to within four feet at the 18th and making the putt.

Sluman made the cut for just the second time in five tries at an Open and put himself at the top of the field because of a hot putter.

Although he made 15 straight pars to start the round, Sluman had to make putts of 15 and 20 feet at the 11th and 12th holes to save par.

''Anytime you do something like that, you have to feel your putter is your friend,'' Sluman said.

His first birdie of the day came at the par-4 16th where he hit a 3-iron to within three feet and he narrowly missed an ace at the 17th when his 7-iron hopped around the hole and finished three feet away.

Sluman again had to save par at the final hole after driving into the trees. He could only pitch out into the fairway before hitting a 9-iron to within six feet.

LAS VEGAS, NV (JUNE 15) UPI - Mike Tyson and George Foreman, former heavyweight champions a generation apart at different stages of their comebacks, share center stage in a heavyweight double-header Saturday night.

Tyson, 23, fights Henry Tillman in his first bout since losing his title to Buster Douglas Feb. 11 in Tokyo. Foreman, 42, battles Brazilian Adilson Rodrigues in his 22nd bout since ending a 10-year retirement in 1987.

Tyson and Foreman may square off against each other before either fights for the title but Saturday night's action is expected to feature two quick knockouts against overmatched foes.

Tyson, 37-1, has 17 first-round knockouts among his 33 total. Foreman, 66-2 with 62 knockouts, has stopped 14 opponents in the first and 17 in the second.

Against Tillman, Tyson will try to avenge two amateur losses that kept Tyson out of the 1984 Olympics. Tyson said he is looking for a devastating knockout and wants to return to basics after getting knocked out by Douglas in his last fight.

''I want people to know I can go out there and bomb a guy out, move my head and be elusive,'' Tyson said.

Rodrigues is a big but plodding fighter who was knocked out in two rounds by Evander Holyfield in his biggest fight. Unlike Tyson, Foreman said he is resigned to needing most of the 10 rounds to stop Rodrigues.

''I'm probably going to run into a guy who's a bit frightened of me,'' Foreman said. ''I may land one hand on him here and there but not all at once. I'm going to have to do some pot-shotting here and there.

''I like being extended. I say if you want to get beat up for 10 rounds buddy, let the bell ring. My strategy is to hit them before they can duck.''

Tyson said he wants to jab, protect himself better and fight out of a crouch more than he did against Douglas in Tokyo.

''I have a good jab but I just abandoned it all of a sudden,'' Tyson said. ''I'm working on staying low and fighting aggressively. The canvas was the lowest I got last time.''

At 5-foot-10, Tyson will try to use his crouch to get inside the 6-3 Tillman's jab. Tillman, 20-4, has had a disappointing pro career after winning an Olympic gold medal but says he is ready for Tyson.

''I doubt he thinks I'm a soft touch,'' Tillman said. ''It wouldn't do him any good to fight anybody he can just hit and knock over.

''I might not know how to beat everybody, but I know how to beat Mike Tyson. Nobody's seen him fight since Buster Douglas - this here is going to answer all the questions.''

Tyson is a 25-1 favorite and Foreman is a 15-2 favorite. Another double-header headlined by Tyson and Foreman already is planned for Sept. 8. But Tyson said he has learned not to look ahead.

''I was a 100-to-1 favorite and got my ass kicked not long ago,'' Tyson said.

Foreman, the Houston preacher who has become one of the most interesting stories in sports, said the only outcome he cannot afford is a loss.

''My fans all over the country told me they'll come out anytime of morning or night or even go to Europe,'' Foreman said. ''They'll pay any price to see me fight. They're right behind me.

''But I've got to win.''

Foreman weighed a rotund 263 at Friday's weigh-in, giving him a 44-pound advantage over Rodrigues. Tyson was a trim 217 - 3 1-2 pounds lighter than for Douglas - and Tillman, 215.

Tyson will earn $2.5 million and Foreman $1 million for their night's work. Tillman's purse is $350,000 and Rodrigues will be paid $200,000.

The double-header from Caesars Palace's outdoor stadium will be televised by HBO.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 15) UPI - The World Bank Friday announced loans to help development projects in the African nations of Chad, Ghana and Guinea.

Chad, in North-Central Africa, is trying to ensure that the poorest groups have access to basic social services and jobs as the government moves ahead with an adjustment program to help the economy recover from a decade of natural disasters, civil war and a sharp drop in the world price of cotton, the country's main export crop.

Chad's Social Development Action Project is being supported by a credit of $13.4 million from the International Development Association, the World Bank's concessionary lending affiliate.

Ghana, in West Africa, is launching an urban development project designed to relieve an acute housing shortage and to strengthen the city governments of Accra, Kumasi, Tema, Sekondi-Takoradi and Tamale.

IDA is supporting the $100.4 million project with a credit of $70 million.

Guinea, also in West Africa, will strengthen its education system through a program to make it more cost effective and relevant to the country's development goals.

IDA is supporting the program with a credit of $20 million.

MINNEAPOLIS (JUNE 15) UPI - A Soviet dancer and her boyfriend are asking for political asylum in the United States based on grounds of religious persecution, an attorney said Friday.

An attorney with the Minnesota Lawyers International Human Rights Committee, which is representing the pair, said the organization interviewed the Soviets this week and determined they have a strong case for asylum. She said the dancer's boyfriend is Jewish.

''There appears to be a strong case of religious persecution,'' she said. ''The committee offered free legal service.''

The attorney, who wouldn't identify herself, would not comment on where the two Soviets are staying or whether they have filed an official request for asylum. The attorney said the committee does not want any publicity about the case.

Tom Schiltgen, acting district director for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, had no comment on the case.

''I can't confirm or deny any contact or request for asylum,'' Schiltgen said. ''When it comes to these types of issues, there are strict confidentiality rules that go with that.''

Leaders of the Leningrad State Music Hall Dance Troupe feared the dancer had defected.

Nellie Chupchai, 26, and her boyfriend, Keril Gegelman, disappeared Wednesday from a Minneapolis hotel.

''Nobody expected anything like this,'' Gary Geller, the troupe's business manager, said Thursday, adding he had filed a report on the incident with Minneapolis police.

Chupchai's boyfriend came to the United States independently and was not connected with the dance troupe, he said.

Ilya Rakhlin, the troupe's founder and artistic director, called Chupchai's disappearance ''a slap in the face,'' and said it is difficult for the rest of the troupe to understand.

''The times are different in the Soviet Union,'' he said. ''Everybody can choose the country where he lives. She could have left the Soviet Union on her own any time.''

He said Chupchai's mother and sister live in Leningrad.

''How can you just leave your family like that?'' Geller asked. ''It tells me that she has no heart. She has more to lose from this than we do. The theater is not going to close because of this.''

The 67-member dance troupe, which includes dancers, singers, acrobats and jugglers, began a 10-day run last Friday in Minneapolis. The troupe arrived from New York and was scheduled to perform next week in Chicago.

But Geller said poor ticket sales in Minneapolis may force the troupe to return to Leningrad.

''Minneapolis, unfortunately, killed us,'' he said.

NEW YORK (JUNE 15) UPI - Donald Trump missed more than $42 million in interest and principal payments on bonds for his Trump's Castle casino Friday in a serious setback to the flamboyant developer's bid to hold his empire together.

The missed payments marked the first time Trump was unable to meet obligations on the $1.3 billion in publicly traded debt that has underwritten the growth of his Atlantic City casinos and real estate holdings.

Late in the day First Fidelity Bank N.A., the New Jersey bank acting as trustee for the bonds, said it resigned to avoid appearance of a conflict of interest. The bank's major responsibility as trustee is to collect interest and principal payments.

''We lend to the Trump Organization, and we believe that represents the appearance of a conflict,'' said bank spokesman Paul Levine. He refused to comment on Trump's tangled banking affairs.

The Trump Organization announced in a terse statement that principal and interest payments due June 15 on two series of bonds issued by Trump's Castle Funding Inc. to fund the casino ''are not being made.''

First Fidelity said it intended to send notice of default to Trump's Castle Funding Inc. if the payments were not received by midnight.

Trump technically has a 10-day grace period before defaulting on the bond payments for the Trump's Castle casino - one of his three Atlantic City gaming houses.

The bank specified that $15.59 million was due in interest on one mortgage bond issue, along with $22.68 million in principal. On another bond issue financing Trump's Castle casino, interest of $4.38 million was due for a total of $42.65 million.

A default would give Trump's creditors the right to immediately lay claim to the casino.

''Any time you miss an interest payment like this, it puts you closer to going under,'' said junk bond specialist Lonnie Schaffer, vice president of capital markets at First Albany Corp. ''Unless (Trump) can become friendly with all of his bankers, he's going to have a tough time of it.''

A default linked to a casino operation also could place Trump's gambling licenses in jeopardy.

Tom Flynn, spokesman for the New Jersey Casino Control Commission, declined to comment on the Trump operations. But he pointed out that another Atlantic City casino owner, Merv Griffin, defaulted on bonds payments while his properties remained open.

Trump's financial woes became public after his wife, Ivana, challenged a marital agreement that would give her a $25 million settlement in the event of a divorce. The two recently separated, although Trump celebrated his 44th birthday Thursday with his wife.

The Trump Organization, in an attempt to reassure investors, said negotiations were ''ongoing with lenders to obtain additional financing and restructure certain of its outstanding debt.''

The statement also said payments on bonds for Trump's two other Atlantic City casino ventures - The Taj Mahal and the Trump Plaza - had been met on their respective May 15 and June 15 due dates.

Immediately after the Trump announcement, Moody's Investors Service Inc. downgraded about $925 million of Trump's long-term debt for bonds issued to finance the Taj Mahal and the Trump Plaza, saying a ''default could occur on the outstanding bonds in November.'' The Taj Mahal bonds now carry a CAA rating that indicates major risks for investors.

Trump's principal lenders - Citicorp, Bankers Trust New York, Chase Manhattan and Manufacturers Hanover - agreed June 10 on a $2 billion bailout plan that would buy much-needed time for the overextended dealmaker to restructure his empire and sell some of his prized New York real estate and the Trump Shuttle airline.

But banking sources said Citicorp, owed more than $300 million by Trump, has failed so far to get smaller banks in the syndicate it leads to agree to the deal, which would involve lending the developer another $60 million.

First Fidelity Bancorp and Midlantic Banks Inc., two Newark, N.J., banks that did not take part in the June 10 agreement, have not yet decided whether to accept a suspension in some interest payments in exchange for increased collateral and a stake in some of Trump's properties.

A spokeswoman for First Fiedlity declined to say whether negotiations were still taking place. Midlantic officials were not available for comment.

Many analysts had predicted Friday would be a turning point for the crumbling Trump empire, valued at $1.7 billion last year and now believed to be worth only about $500 million.

Before the announcement, the American Stock Exchange halted trading on three classes of Trump gambling empire bonds for the Castle and the Taj Mahal.

After trading resumed at noon, Trump's bonds were lower. Trump Castle's 13.75 percent bonds, due in 1997, were down 1.875 points to 58.125. Trump Castle's 7 percent bonds, due in 1999, were down 1 to 36 - in effect selling for only 36 cents on the dollar.

Trump Taj Mahal 14 percent bonds due in 1998 were down 2 points to 53.50, reflecting the feeling of many investors that Trump's problems were only beginning.

He has failed to attract buyers for the properties he recently put on the auction block, including his Trump Princess yacht, valued at $40 million, the Trump Shuttle with an estimated $350 million pricetag, and New York's famous Plaza Hotel, worth around $400 million.

PEORIA, Ill. (JUNE 15) UPI - A congressman Friday criticized a newspaper publisher's suggestion that the United States drop napalm on the Colombian jungle where an Illinois man is believed being held hostage, calling the idea ''ridiculous and irresponsible.''

House Minority Leader Robert Michel, who represents the district where Journal-Star Board Chairman Henry Slane runs his newspaper, said the suggestion endangered the safety of Scott Heimdal, who is being held by Colombian rebels.

The Republican congressman responded to an open letter to him from Slane printed on the front page Thursday in which the publisher suggested ''an Air Force plane ... drop napalm in the jungle where these kidnappers hang out as a warning to return Heimdal unharmed within 48 hours or less.''

Heimdal, 27, was abducted April 28 by kidnappers believed to be members of the People's Liberation Movement, a Maoist group that has refused to release him despite the payment of a $60,000 ransom raised by friends and family.

Michel's response ran on the front page of Friday's edition.

''It is unfortunate ... that Mr. Slane, chairman of the board of the Journal-Star, should use its front page for an exercise in irresponsibility that is insensitive in its disregard for the safety of Scott Heimdal and the feelings of his parents,'' Michel said.

''As for Mr. Slane's suggested remedy, I would leave it to the sane, sober and thoughtful citizens of our community to let him know just how ridiculous and irresponsible it is,'' Michel said.

Michel also said Slane's suggestion could put Heimdal's life in danger if word of it reaches the kidnappers but Slane downplayed that possibility and said he had ''no intention'' of putting Heimdal's life at risk.

''I don't know there are very many Colombians that subscribe to the Peoria Journal-Star,'' Slane said. ''Whatever happens, it is only a result of somebody deciding that the kidnappers need to see what is being said about them and sending them copies of the paper.''

Slane said he only wanted to napalm uninhabited parts of the jungle.

''My suggestion about taking that kind of very violent action - and I certainly admit it's violent - is that at least the government take some kind of action,'' he said.

The newspaper executive also said the community has been behind him, with the exception of the Heimdal family.

''I can only judge from the response of people with whom I come in contact. The majority are in total agreement,'' Slane said. ''The Heimdals ... feel this is the absolute worst route to follow. I certainly understand and sympathize.

''I'm not suggesting paratroopers or assault troops or anything else that would jeopardize that young man. I simply suggested dropping napalm into a section of jungle,'' he said.

Heimdal's family, after saying on Wednesday that news coverage of the case has worsened the situation, went into hiding for the weekend to await word on negotiations for Scott's life.

The kidnappers, known by the Spanish acronymn EPL, had sought $1.2 million until the family said their son convinced his captors the Heimdals were not well-off.

Scott had been in Ecuador for about two years, working for International Mining Co., a U.S.-run gold-mining firm based in Quito.

He was being taken by motorized canoe on the River Bermejan in Ecuador, near the border with Colombia, to receive medical care for an injured foot when he was abducted and the driver of the canoe was killed.

RENO, NE (JUNE 15) UPI - Bruce W. Blair was sentenced to consecutive life prison terms Friday for raping a 41-year-old woman in a case in which the key evidence at trial was the unusual shape of his penis.

Blair, 21, continued to insist to District Judge Roy Torvinen that he was innocent of the charges of sexual assault with a deadly weapon, burglary and possession of stolen property.

Deputy District Attorney Ron Rachow said Blair will have to serve at least 10 years before he is eligible to apply for parole.

The victim told police after the incident that a man, wearing a ski mask and armed with a knife, entered her home Jan. 28, placed a pillowcase over her eyes and attacked her. She said she was also forced to perform oral sex.

The victim said she was able to see the penis was disfigured and bent to the left. She also said she was able to feel a large ridge running up the top right side of it.

Blair was arrested later on other charges involving burglaries of cars in the area. When deputies questioned him about the sexual assault, he was quoted as saying, ''If she were assaulted by me, she'd know it because I'm different.''

The victim identified a drawing of the penis at the trial. A former girlfriend of Blair's, testified about his unusual physical characteristics.

Blair told police he got the scar in a barbed wire fence accident.

Criminologists from the Washoe County Sheriff's Office testified that no physicial evidence, either from the victim's body or the scene, linked Blair with the crime.

Blair was convicted by a district court jury last month of burglary, two counts of sexual assault with a deadly weapon and attempted sexual assault.

SALEM, OR (JUNE 18) UPI - Oregon authorities have developed a controversial new weapon in the war on drugs: financial rewards for dealers who see the light and obey the law.

As part of a settlement in a civil racketeering lawsuit, the Oregon Department of Justice recently required a convicted cocaine dealer to put $40,000 in a trust fund controlled by the state.

If the dealer, Douglas Shawn Adams, has any new drug convictions in the next three years he automatically forfeits the money to the state. But if his record stays clean, Adams gets the money back.

''The theory ... is that if the purpose behind the racketeering and forfeiture statutes is to get the profit out of crime, the flip side of this is to give the guy some incentive to go straight,'' said Tim Wood, a lawyer in the Justice Department. ''Sometimes a carrot together with the club is the best way to solve the problem.''

But the U.S. attorney for Oregon said the deal amounts to paying someone to obey the law - a poor precedent.

''I won't do that,'' said Charles Turner. ''I'm not going to try to pay somebody to do something they are supposed to do in the first place. We don't pay private citizens to pay their property taxes.''

The case reflects a growing effort to take the profit out of crime by using civil racketeering laws in drug cases. So-called RICO statutes, which exist in about half the states, allow authorities to seize property involved in criminal activity.

But in most RICO cases, defendants don't get a chance to recover money taken by the state.

In fact, officials at the U.S. Department of Justice and the National Association of Attorneys General said they knew of no other cases where drug dealers set aside cash that could be recovered later if they had no new convictions.

''I'd have to say that is unique,'' said Bud Hollis, who oversees a federal program that provided Oregon and three other states - Arizona, Washington and Colorado - with grants for creative uses of civil racketeering laws against drug dealers. ''I've never heard of that before.''

Wood said the Adams case is the first where the Oregon department has required a drug dealer to put up cash that can be recovered later, although the general concept has been used before. For example, he said the department has put liens on property with a condition of automatic foreclosure if the owner committed more drug offenses.

Adams, 34, was arrested in March. He pleaded guilty in June to two counts of delivering cocaine, and in return prosecutors agreed to dismiss a third charge. He has yet to be sentenced.

After his arrest, Adams also was hit with the state's civil racketeering lawsuit, which alleged he was part of an organized ring that sold cocaine in Oregon for the last five years. He lives in the Portland suburb of Beaverton.

To settle the civil suit, Adams agreed to forfeit to the state $91,882 and a 1987 four-wheel-drive vehicle, and to create the $40,000 trust fund.

He will get the $40,000 back unless he is found to have committed a drug offense between June 1, 1990, and June 1, 1993. The state can also take up to $15,000 of the money for back taxes, which Adams has said he may owe.

Wood said the Department of Justice agrees to a possible return of property or cash only in cases where there is some reason to believe the subject might abandon drug dealing. For example, first-time offenders are prime candidates for such a deal.

In Adams' case, officials were encouraged by the fact that he has a job, which could allow him to support himself without selling drugs.

Ironically, Adams' employment might also have made it harder for prosecutors to simply take away the money, since he could claim the cash came from legal work rather than drug dealing.

In the past, placing liens on drug dealers' property has generally worked well, Wood said. He said in most cases, authorities have not heard from the defendants again until the lien is due to be lifted.

''They always remember before we do,'' he said.

Adams' lawyer refused all comment on the deal.

Hollis, who heads the federal grant program in the U.S. Bureau of Justice Assistance, said the trust fund portion of the Adams settlement is ''the kind of thing this program would try to do - be innovative.''

(JUNE 15) UPI - Floodwaters have left parts of eastern Ohio looking like a disaster area. Torrents of water washed away cars, mobile homes, houses and even a bulldozer last night. Authorities say 11 people are dead and about 60 others are still missing today. Officials said five inches of rain fell in four hours in the town of Shadyside. Hundreds of emergency workers are combing the hills of Belmont County for those swept away.

A jury in New York City today ruled that convicted murderer and author Jack Henry Abbott must pay seven-point-six-Million dollars to the widow of a man he killed in 1981. Nine years ago, author Norman Mailer helped Abbott win early release from a murder sentence. Six weeks later, Abbott killed budding actor Richard Adan with a stab wound to the heart after an argument. Abbott will likely have to turn over any royalties from a book he wrote about life in prison.

East Germany may put off reunification until September 1st, 1992... the anniversary of the start of World War Two. East German Defense Minister Rainer Eppelmann says unification would take on an even greater symbolic significance if it took place on the 53rd anniversary of the German invasion of Poland. The suggestion clashes with Bonn's wish to merge the nations later this year.

(JUNE 15) UPI - Romanian President-elect Ion Iliescu today gave thanks and bid goodbye to thousands of club-toting miners who led a two-day terror campaign in Bucharest to crush political dissent. Although the government said the miners were on their way out of the capital, a mob later attacked an American T-V news crew. Several miners have expressed pride for- as they put it- having ''saved democracy.''

Clean up crews are standing by on the beaches of Galveston, Texas, to stop crude oil that has drifted to within 25 miles of the shoreline from the burning tanker Mega Borg. The team has mobilized equipment, volunteers and even oil-eating microbes to combat the estimated three-Million gallons of light crude oil that has leaked from the tanker since it exploded in flames last weekend.

President Bush today used his UNdefeated veto power to maintain a ban on political work by federal employees. Bush says the congressional attempt to overturn the 1939 Hatch Act would lead to the ''re-politicization of the civil service.'' Three major unions for federal workers called for a veto override. The bill to legalize political activity by federal workers passed the House and Senate by votes that would be enough to override Bush's veto.

(JUNE 15) UPI - A federal advisory panel concluded today that the drug Premarin lowers the risk of heart disease in post-menopausal women with hysterectomies. Four- to five-Million American women use Premarin as a supplement for the hormone estrogen after menopause. But Premarin increases the risk of uterine and other cancers. The panel says more tests are needed to see if the heart benefits of the drug outweigh the risks.

Czechoslovak and Soviet army officials disagreed today over the cost and extent of environmental damage caused by Soviet troops during their 20-year stay in Czechoslovakia. SAN FRANCISCO (JUNE 15) UPI - Japan's foreign minister pledged Friday that his country is committed to reducing its huge external trade imbalance, despite comments from some Japanese officials that a surplus is needed to fund development in Eastern Europe.

In a three-hour meeting with Secretary of State James Baker, Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama directly contradicted statements by other Japanese officials earlier this week supporting a continuing trade imbalance.

''There were some newspaper reports that Japan might be satisfied with a surplus the size we are now witnessing in order to meet the capital demands of Eastern Europe and the European Community integration,'' Foreign Ministry spokesman Makoto Yamanaka said after the meeting. ''We don't subscribe to this kind of argument.''

Baker, eager to reduce a $49 billion U.S. trade deficit with Japan, was ''very encouraged'' by Nakayama's comments, a senior State Department official said after the meeting. Nakayama broached the surplus issue without any prodding from the U.S. side, the official said.

Baker and Nakayama met as U.S. and Japanese negotiators planned for a final meeting in a year-old effort to identify and alter legal and cultural barriers to trade between the two countries.

The two countries issued an interim report on the talks, called the Structural Impediments Initiative, in April that outlined proposed trade reforms on both sides.

A final report is due after a meeting in Tokyo June 25-26. Before Friday's meeting, U.S. officials complained that the talks were stalled over Japanese reluctance to move beyond the April report.

U.S. and Japnese officials would not discuss the details of their SII talks in San Francisco, but did say they made progress toward a final report.

Baker reiterated the U.S. position that the final report should go beyond the April report and include new reforms on both sides that could improve trade.

''We were pleased with the interim report and we now need a strong effort on both sides to produce an even better final report,'' Baker said. ''The final report by the very definition of it will contain some things that the initial report doesn't.''

Japanese officials have said they will not make any more concessions than those contained in the April report.

The United States wants commitments that Tokyo will increase its internal investments enough to reduce the ''high and unsustainable'' U.S. trade deficit with Japan within three to five years, according to senior administration officials.

U.S. negotiators are asking Japan to increase its spending on infrastructure such as schools and roads to 9 percent from 6.7 percent of its domestic product in order to switch resources from exports to investments, the officials said.

The two sides also differ on penalties that should be assessed against Japanese companies that violate antitrust laws, and on how the accords reached in the July SII report should be monitored after they are enacted, according to the officials, who asked not to be identified.

Six top administration officials, including Baker, Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher and U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills, plan to send a letter next week to their counterparts in Japan aimed at boosting the trade talks, the senior State Department official said.

In addition to trade, Baker briefed Nakayama on President Bush's summit with Mikhail Gorbachev and on Baker's discussions with NATO leaders earlier this month.

The leaders also discussed the changes in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union, the situation in China, the ongoing GATT trade talks, mutual security questions, and the global spread of democracy, officials said.

NEW YORK (JUNE 15) UPI - A Greyhound bus driver who apparently couldn't handle a stick shift and almost hit a truck handed over the wheel to a passenger Friday and let her drive the coach from Delaware to New York, officials said.

Versions of the incident varied, but both union and company officials said the driver employed by the struck carrier gave control of the vehicle to passenger Diane Monteiro, who according to one account drove for 120 miles.

Union officials said the driver was a non-union worker. The company denied that, but did say he has been fired.

''The driver could not operate the motor coach in a safe manner due to a lack of proper training,'' the vacationing Monteiro was quoted by the union as saying. ''After the operator drove out into traffic leaving the Clemente Travel Center, he nearly hit a tractor-trailer truck.

''That is when I felt I had to take over (and drive),'' she said.

Harold Mendlowitz, president of striking Local 1202 of the Amalgamated Transit Union, said a ''non-union'' worker had been manning Carolina Trailways bus No. 85944. Mendlowitz said the worker almost hit a tractor-trailer and Monteiro took control and drove the bus 120 miles from Delaware to New York.

Trailways is a part of the Greyhound system, the nation's largest intercity bus line. The nationwide Greyhound strike began March 2 when 9,300 workers, including 6,000 drivers, walked off the job.

Greyhound spokesman George Gravley said Friday's driver had an otherwise good record but that he is apparently unfamiliar with using a stick shift.

''This is a regrettable event. The driver obviously exhibited bad judgment (in letting the passenger drive),'' he said. ''She took over within five minutes of leaving the terminal'' and he could have turned back, Gravley said.

Mendlowitz said that as Monteiro drove, the ''non-union'' driver was sleeping.

Gravley gave a different account, saying the passenger who ''was sitting near the front said, 'Let's trade places,' and it went so well that she drove all the way to New York.''

The passenger, an off-duty bus driver for another company, was on a personal trip, he said.

Gravley denied the Greyhound driver was ''non-union'' and said he had worked for the company since April 3.

''That driver has had a perfect driving record. If he was not trained on a stick shift, that's a mistake we made,'' he said.

Passengers on Friday's trip have complained to Greyhound officials, Mendlowitz said.

Lawyers representing the union have asked the courts for a restraining order that would prevent the company from hiring non-union workers in jobs where the public safety may be at risk.

(JUNE 15) UPI - Clean-up crews off the Texas Gulf Coast are trying to stop the advance of an massive oil slick toward Galveston beaches.

Oil from the still-burning tanker Mega Borg is now reported about 25 miles away from shore. Workers say they expect the oil to hit land, possibly Sunday near east Galveston, Texas.

Crews have mobilized equipment, volunteers, and even experimental microbes to battle the spill.

The microbes are bacteria that should turn the oil into fatty acids within two to four days. The microbes have been used successfully on land and in an experiment in tanks, but are being used for the first time on an oil spill in open seas.

Some three-Million gallons of light crude oil have leaked from the ship, but much of it has evaporated or was burned away.

The blaze aboard the tanker, which as been buring for a week, is considerably diminished.

Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro is leading the drive to demilitarize NOT only her country... but all of Central America.

Chamorro arrived for a six-nation Central American economic summit in Guatemala saying she plans to reduce the size of Nicaragua's Sandinista army toa trim 40-thousand troops.

Chamorro says the cuts will go deeper still ...including cuts at the top... once she gets her restructuring program in place. And she's calling on neighboring nations to follow suit.

While some leaders welcomed the proposal, it was rejected outright by Salvadoran President Alfredo Cristiani, who has been fighting a 10-year civil war against leftist rebels.

Cristiani said that even if that war were to end, he would NOT be interested in eliminating his army. Instead, he said he favors what he called ''a normal-sized armed force for peacetime to support the democratic process.''

(JUNE 15) UPI - Government workers are steamed that President Bush vetoed a bill today that would ease restrictions on political activity by federal employees.

Bush says he refused to amend the 1939 Hatch Act... which prevents government workers from being coerced to work in presidential campaigns... on grounds that it would lead to the ''re-politicization of the civil service.''

In response, three major unions say they'll organize a campaign to pressure Congress to override the president.

James Pierce, of the National Federation of Federal Employees, says that Bush's veto is a ''bitter disappointment'' and relegates U-S employees to second-class status.

The House voted 334-87 Tuesday to ease the ban against federal employee politicking. The Senate passed the bill 67-30 last month, the minimum number of votes needed to override a veto.

Federal agents today swooped down on suspected gang members in 11 states.

Authorities arrested more than 160 gang members, and seized an UNspecified number of guns, drugs and cash. 134 of the suspects were arrested in the Los Angeles area.

The sweep began yesterday and was to end today with more arrests.

Those held are believed to be members of two Los Angeles-based gangs, the Crips and the Bloods. One federal agent said the gang members are identified in 32 states and 69 cities outside California.

Other states involved in the sweep included Louisiana, Arizona, Missouri, Oklahoma, Oregon and Washington.

The arrests are expected to yield information on how the two gangs have built their nationwide operations.

(JUNE 15) UPI - The administration may be changing its conservative tune regarding the environment.

White House Chief of Staff John Sununu today said the Bush administration would be willing to help finance a new fund to help poor nations eliminate chemicals that harm the Earth's protective ozone layer.

Sununu says Washington will present the proposal at an international conference on ozone depletion next week in London.

Under the plan, the World Bank would operate and administer a special fund among Third World nations to help phase out ozone-eroding chemicals.

Experts have estimated that such a fund, at least initially, would need from 100-Million to 260-Million-dollars to help poor nations turn to environmentally safer chemical substitutes.

White deputy news secretary Steve Hart says the administration... which orignally balked at that pricetag ... is now willing to contribute within that range.

Israel and the Palestinians have to want peace to obtain it.

That was the message today from Defense Secretary Cheney , who pressed Washington's case for renewed Middle East Peace talks two days after Secretary of State Baker publicly blamed Israel for stalling negotiations.

Cheney says the Bush administration ''stands ready to pick up where left off, but that Israel and others ''have to want to move the process forward.''

Cheney made the comments while addressing the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith in New York.

He added that it ''will take a good faith'' effort on the part of Israel to jumpstart the talks.

Cheney earlier dismissed the flap over Baker's remarks by comparing it to a marital spat.

That flap erupted Wednesday when Baker said the danger of a Middle East war is at its highest since the 1967 conflict and for the first time pointed a finger at Israel.

PHOENIX (JUNE 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Biltmore Investors Bank, which recently moved its corporate headquarters to the Camelback Esplanade, has been declared the successful bidder for the deposits and a portion of the loan portfolio of Sentinel Savings and Loan.

Roy Gust, Biltmore Investors Bank president, said the purchase made sense because the bulk of Sentinel's client base is in Biltmore Investors Bank's local market area. ''We're interested in increasing our efforts in residential mortgage lending,'' said Gust, ''and this good mortgage portfolio will give us a running start.''

The Sentinel customer base will not change the basic business of Biltmore Investors Bank, whose largest shareholder is Johnson International Bancorp of Racine, Wis. ''Both geographically and demographically, these clients will fit right in at our bank,'' said Gust.

The deposit and asset purchase will require an infusion of $8.5 million in capital, which will come mostly from Johnson International. Operations will be consolidated at the Esplanade Office of Biltmore Investors Bank.

''By building a stronger relationship with Sentinel's customer base,'' Gust said, ''we can make this a profitable transaction for everyone.''

BERLIN, (JUNE 16) - East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere said here Saturday that "the unification of the two Germanies must take place quickly," according to reports from the East German news agency, ADN.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl's comment that German unification could not take place without full recognition of Poland's western border, meanwhile, was echoed by Pope John Paul II who said the issue was of great importance to Poland.

The Polish-born pope told Henryk Kupiszewski, Poland's new ambassador to the Vatican, that "the definitive recognition of Poland's western borders is a very important problem for the future of a free and democratic Poland."

Speaking at Neumuenster, north West Germany, Mr. Kohl said that if Germany withdrew from NATO, the Western military alliance would collapse and the United States would leave Europe.

He said he rejected any idea of a future united Germany being "isolated, neutralised or separated" from the Atlantic alliance.

Mr. de Maiziere, speaking at the first joint congress of young Christian Democrats from both halves of Berlin, stressed that East Germany's economic recovery depended on a speedy union with West Germany.

The comment set Mr. de Maiziere against his Defence Minister, Rainer Eppelmann.

Mr. Eppelmann said on Friday that the two Germanies should not unite until September 1, 1992.

Although Mr. de Maiziere has not publicly stated a date for an all-German election, which would enshrine German unification, his Christian Democratic Union (CDU) party voted a week ago to hold the election before the end of this year.

Meanwhile, Chancellor Kohl told members of the West German CDU that unless Poland's borders were unambiguously recognised, reunification of the two Germanies would not be obtained.

Mr. Kohl also asked for understanding for Germans expelled from Poland after World War II and now living in West Germany, who on Saturday commemorated the loss of their native land.

"We must now find a peaceful and balanced relationship with our Polish neighbors," he said.

PRAGUE, (JUNE 16) - Czechoslovakia plans to reduce its army to 140,000 servicemen from the current 200,000 by 1993 and eliminate compulsory military service by the year 2000, Defense Minister Miroslav Vacek said.

General Vacek, in an interview published Saturday by the Prague military daily A-Report, said the transformation of the Czechoslovak military into a professional army would begin in 1995.

He said that the Czechoslovak army should be made up of career soldiers by the turn of the century.

Gen. Vacek said that the military will still need reservists, however, and that three- to five-month training courses will be set up after the year 2000.

Currently, young Czechoslovaks spend 18 months in uniform. Students spend a year in the army.

Since February, conscientious objectors have been allowed to perform alternative civilian service of 27 months.

AMSTERDAM, (JUNE 16) - South African Black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela left here for London Saturday, optimistic that the upcoming European Economic Community (EEC) summit will refuse to lift economic sanctions against South Africa.

At a press conference in The Hague, Mr. Mandela hailed South African President Frederik de Klerk for his "courage" and "integrity" in opening negotiations with the country's black majority.

Nearly 10,000 people massed here later to catch a glimpse of the deputy chairman of the African National Council (ANC) as he appealed for continued sanctions against South Africa, while pledging to work with Pretoria to restore peace.

During talks with Dutch Prime Minister Ruud Lubbers, the latter restated his government's opposition to lifting sanctions, Mr. Mandela said.

He described a vote by the European Parliament Thursday in favour of maintaining sanctions as "the most powerful support for our cause" and said: "We hope that at the forthcoming (EEC) summit in Dublin, the European governments take note".

The meeting is to take place on June 25-26.

Mr. Mandela told Agence France-Presse he would "certainly" brief the South African president "as soon as possible" on his talks in Europe, adding that it was his "duty" to do so.

So far, "We have got tremendous support from all the countries that we have visited", particularly on the issue of maintaining economic sanctions against Pretoria while awaiting further reform, he added.

Mr. Mandela, released from jail in February on Mr. De Klerk's orders after 27 years behind bars, also said his ANC delegation had met with "a positive response to the material assistance that we have asked for".

Mr. Mandela arrived in the Netherlands from Rome Friday.

MIDLAND, MI (JUNE 16) PR NEWSWIRE - The Midland Cogeneration Venture Limited Partnership (MCV) announced today that it has finalized a sale/leaseback transaction for the permanent financing of the facility with a consortium of institutional investors represented by the Deerpath Group, Inc., based in Lake Forest, Ill.

The Deerpath consortium, consisting of affiliates of a bank, industrial corporations, and utilities, purchased undivided interests in the assets comprising up to 65 percent of the facility and will lease them back to the MCV. The remaining portion of the lessor interests (35 percent) will be purchased by an affiliate of CMS Energy Corporation. CMS Midland, Inc. also an affiliate of CMS Energy Corp., will retain its 49 percent equity interest in the MCV partnership.

The 25-year renewable lease will go into effect immediately. "Broadening the investor base for the MCV and full utilization of tax benefits will provide for the most efficient means for the permanent financing of the plant," MCV President and CEO Rodney E. Boulanger said. "The sale/leaseback transaction will not change the MCV partnership nor impact the day-to-day operation of the facility."

The MCV is a limited partnership formed in 1987 to convert the former Midland plant into the nation's largest cogeneration plant. At full capacity the plant provides 1370 MW of electricity and up to 1.35 million pounds of steam per hour for industrial use. The facility, using gas-fired, combined-cycle technology, entered commercial operation in March 1990, and currently has 12 gas turbines and one steam turbine in commercial use.

Partners in the MCV include CMS Midland, Inc., a subsidiary of CMS Energy Corporation; Rofan Energy, Inc. (limited partner), a subsidiary of the Dow Chemical Company; Source Midland Limited Partnership, an affiliate of Panhandle Eastern Corporation; Coastal Midland, Inc., a subsidiary of the Coastal Corporation; MEI Limited Partnership, an affiliate of Asea Brown Boveri, Inc., Micogen Limited Partnership, an affiliate of Fluor Corporation; and C-E Midland Inc. SACRAMENTO, CA (JUNE 16) UPI - A new poll Friday showed former San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein leading Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., by five points in their race for governor, just one day after a different poll put Wilson ahead by the same margin.

A survey by Orange County pollster Steve Teichner, published in his California Intelligence Report, showed Feinstein ahead of Wilson 37 percent to 32 percent with 31 percent undecided.

But a poll by Moore Information Inc. of Portland, Ore., released Thursday showed the senator leading his Democratic opponent by five points, 46 percent to 41 percent.

Teichner's statewide survey of 1,000 registered voters was made June 6-9, immediately after Feinstein defeated Attorney General John Van de Kamp in the June 5 primary election.

The Moore poll, released by the Republican National Committee, also showed Wilson with a bigger lead over Feinstein among Republicans, 77 percent to 12 percent, than Feinstein's lead among Democrats, 63 percent to 25 percent.

The Moore survey was made June 8-11 among 800 registered voters.

Dee Dee Myers, Feinstein's press secretary, said a Teichner poll question designed to measure the intensity of voter commitment to the candidates showed Feinstein's supporters are more avid than Wilson's.

Sixty-five percent of the voters said they would be ''extremely likely'' to vote for Feinstein, compared with 28 percent ''extremely likely'' to vote for Wilson.

Otto Bos, Wilson's campaign director, said the Teichner survey was ''an old poll'' taken several days earlier than Moore's and was not as good a sample because ''not all those 'likely' voters turn out (to vote).''

(JUNE 16) UPI - The Coast Guard says an estimated four-point-three-Million gallons of light crude is missing from the Norwegian tanker that exploded in flames in the Gulf of Mexico. But officials say most of the oil was consumed by fire, some evaporated, and the rest has either been skimmed off the ocean or will reach the Texas shoreline in the form of tar balls in the next few days.

Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro says she is making major reductions in the size of Nicaragua's Sandinista army, paring its ranks to a maximum of 41-thousand by next month. Chamorro says the military cuts will be the first of many. As she puts it- ''We will be like Costa Rica,'' which has NO army. Chamorro is attending a Central American summit this weekend in Guatemala.

A helicopter crashed Friday night at the All-Iowa Fair in Cedar Rapids, killing three people. Authorities say the chopper, which was giving rides to people at the fair, was taking off when swerved sideways and slammed into a parking lot from an altitude of about 100-feet. The dead included the pilot and two passengers. There's NO word on what caused the helicopter to crash.

The campaign in North Carolina between Senator Jesse Helms and Harvey Gantt may prove to be one of the most bitter contests in the nation this year. Helms says he is under attack from gays, artists, liberals and unions as he seeks a fourth term in Congress. The Republican's Democratic opponent, Gantt, is trying to become North Carolina's first black senator.

Robert Steele's house sits on a hill in eastern Ohio, a fact that spared both Steel and his home as flash floods sent walls of water surging by Thursday night. Steele says he watched helplessly as his neighbors scattered, screaming for help- in his words- ''every time there was lightning.'' At least 14 people were killed and 50 others are still missing.

Researchers think they may have stumbled onto a potential AIDS treatment. Irwin Kuntz Junior of the University of California-San Francisco says his team has discovered that a prescription drug widely used to treat psychotic disorders, can block the action of AIDS proteins. The team is working to reduce the drug's toxicity while retaining its effectiveness.

GALVESTON, TX (JUNE 16) UPI - A huge, Mexican government-owned ship was brought in to assist eight other vessels in skimming light crude oil that has spilled from the tanker Mega Borg into the Gulf of Mexico for a week, Coast Guard officials said Saturday.

''The ECO Pemex arrived at 8 p.m. Friday, and they plan to start up today '' Coast Guard Petty Officer Michael Sams said. ''We already had five skimmers working in the immediate vicinity of the tanker, and three others placed between the northwestern point of the slick and the coast.''

Sams said five more skimmers had been moved to Galveston or were en route. He added that while the oil remained about 28 miles from the coast Friday evening, it could reach the beach ''anytime this weekend.'' He added that the movement of the slick depended on the currents and the wind.

An estimated 4.3 million gallons of light Angolan crude oil was leaked from the tanker since it exploded in flames June 8, said Coast Guard Chief Petty Officer Todd Nelson.

Most of the oil that leaked was burned off in the fire and some was lost through evaporation, authorities said. Skimmers recovered another 202,000 gallons of oil.

Nelson said Coast Guard scientists still estimate the amount of oil actually in the water ranges from 12,000 to 40,000 gallons. Massive amounts of chemical dispersants have helped degrade the leaked oil into a non-toxic mousse.

Fireboats Saturday were to continue shooting water to cool the tanker, Sams said. ''The salvage master would not confirm the fire is out, but for all intents and purposes it appears to be out,'' he added.

Sams said crews applied flame-retardant foam at 6 p.m. Friday and again at midnight.

''The salvage master and his crew will be on the ship again Saturday, and they hope by afternoon to begin a transfer of oil from the No. 4 center tank, immediately adjacent to the tanker's pump room, to three other tanks on board to stabilize the vessel,'' Sams said.

Huge amounts of water poured onto the vessel to fight the fire has caused its stern to list.

Sams said the source of the oil discharge from the ship is believed to be internal piping in the No. 4 center tank. ''We're estimating the piping was damaged when the explosion occurred in the pump room,'' he said.

He added that divers are scheduled to make an underwater damage survey of the tanker's hull on Saturday.

Oil-eating microbes were unleashed on the oil slick Friday. ''They put out 100 pounds in water with a heavy concentration of oil northwest of the vessel,'' Sams said. ''The results won't be known until Monday.''

Jerry Galt, an oceanographer with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, said the spill was about 25 miles from the beaches at mid-afternoon Friday.

''Everything depends on the weather, and with currents as they are and the light summer winds, we expect landfall after Sunday, somewhere in the vicinity of the Bolivar Pennisula and east Galveston,'' Galt said.

''We're seeing sheen made up of thin oil, millionths of an inch thick and associated with it are small tar balls,'' he said, adding the oil probably will hit the beach mostly in the form of streaks and bans.

(JUNE 16) UPI - When Bruce Ruffin altered the grip of his fastball, the Philadelphia Phillies got a handle on the divisional race in the NL East.

In the nightcap of Friday's double-header with the Chicago Cubs, Ruffin found success by changing the grip on his fastball and establishing the inside part of the plate to toss a three-hit, 7-0 victory.

The two victories, combined with the Pittsburgh Pirates' loss to the New York Mets, enabled Philadelphia to pick up 1 1-2 games in the standings, closing to within six games of the division-leaders.

''He was just in complete control,'' Philadelphia Manager Nick Leyva said. ''That's as good as a left-hander can pitch against that team. None of them even took good cuts at him. We wanted him to pitch inside and he pitched inside. It proved how effective he can be when he pitches inside.''

In the first game, Philadelphia rallied from a 5-1 deficit to win 6-5 in 10 innings. The twin triumphs, which were the first for the Phillies since they swept the Pittsburgh Pirates on Aug. 12, 1988, extended Chicago's losing streak to five games.

Ruffin said he and pitching coach Darold Knowles worked on the new pitch, which calls for him to hold his fingers across the seams instead of with them.

''I was using that to come in on right-handers,'' Ruffin said. ''With the slider, I tried to come in and sometimes it would run back out over the plate and I'd get hurt.

''I had to establish something inside and if the slider was not working, I had to use the fast ball.''

Ruffin, 4-6, who had lost three of his previous four decisions, pitched the second shutout of his career and his first complete game of the season.

''That's why you keep running a guy like Bruce out there,'' Leyva said. ''You know that sooner or later he'll do what he did tonight. You just wish he could do it on a more consistent basis.''

The three-hitter was a career-best for Ruffin, who was in trouble in only the fourth inning when the Cubs had the bases loaded with one out before Mark Grace hit into an inning-ending double play.

The Phillies scored five runs in the fifth off Chicago starter and loser Mike Bielecki, 3-6, as Charlie Hayes and Carmelo Martinez both singled with the bases loaded to drive in two runs.

Philadelphia added two more in the seventh on an RBI single by Dickie Thon and a wild pitch by Bielecki that enabled Carmelo Martinez to score from third.

Elsewhere in the National League, New York dropped Pittsburgh 7-5, Cincinnati clipped Houston 6-3, Montreal slapped St. Louis 7-4, San Diego edged Los Angeles 3-1 in 13 innings and San Francisco blasted Atlanta 8-2.

In the AL, it was: Toronto 5, New York 4; Boston 4, Baltimore 3; Cleveland 5, Milwaukee 3; Detroit 2, California 1 in 10 innings; Oakland 5, Chicago 4; Kansas City 5, Minnesota 1; and Texas 4, Seattle 3.

Mets 7, Pirates 5

At Pittsburgh, Darryl Strawberry blasted a three-run homer in the first inning and Dave Magadan had four hits, boosting New York to its fourth straight victory. Bob Ojeda, 3-3, allowed four runs and nine hits in 6 1-3 innings and John Franco notched his 10th save. Walt Terrell, 2-6, allowed six runs and seven hits in three innings.

Reds 6, Astros 3

At Cincinnati, Paul O'Neill went 4 for 4 and drove in three runs, while Jack Armstrong won his first game since May 25 to lead the Reds, halting Houston's six-game winning streak. O'Neill doubled and singled three times to pace a 12-hit attack as the Reds won their third straight. Armstrong, 9-3, scattered nine hits and gave up three earned runs over 7 2-3 innings and Randy Myers notched his 12th save. Jim Clancy, 2-6, allowed six runs in three innings.

Expos 7, Cardinals 4

At St. Louis, Dave Martinez belted a ninth-inning bases-loaded triple off loser Joe Magrane, 3-9, to rally Montreal to victory. Scott Terry relieved and allowed a two-run pinch-hit homer to Nelson Santovenia, making it 7-3. Steve Frey, 3-1, earned the win in relief of Dennis ''Oil Can'' Boyd and Dave Schmidt notched his seventh save.

Padres 3, Dodgers 1, 13 innings

At Los Angeles, Joe Carter belted a two-run homer in the 13th inning to end a three-game Padres losing streak. The blast made a loser of Dodgers rookie Mike Hartley. Calvin Schiraldi, 2-0, entered the game in the 12th and allowed one hit, walked one and struck out two. It was the Dodgers' fifth straight loss.

Giants 8, Braves 2

At San Francisco, John Burkett fired a four-hitter and Matt Williams and Kevin Mitchell each homered to lead the Giants, who improved their record in June to 13-1, taking their sixth straight and 15th in their last 17 games. Burkett, 7-1, struck out seven, tying his season high. Pete Smith, 5-6, who went 3 1-3 innings before being struck in the head by a line drive, allowed six hits and four runs.

SHADYSIDE, OH (JUNE 16) UPI - Rescue crews searched for more bodies Saturday in a rural eastern Ohio mountain town inundated by powerful flash floods that swept at least 14 people to their deaths and left another 50 unaccounted for.

Flash floods touched off by torrential rains sent 20-foot-high walls of water surging through mountain valleys in the area Thursday night. Three 6-inch-deep creeks were transformed into ragging torrents that knocked homes off their foundations and swept away cars, trucks and a 30-ton bulldozer.

''Everything hit the hills so quickly those three valleys basically received walls of water,'' said Belmont County Commissioner Bob Olexo. ''It looks like a tornado came down all the valleys. There was a house on top of a bridge. There were four cars on top of each other.''

Sheriff's Capt. Ron Everett said 14 bodies had been found and that 50 people were still missing in flooding from the Wegee, Pipe and McMahon creeks. Many people were left homeless, he added.

Resuers found bodies floating in the floodwaters and in cars buried in the mud, authorities said.

At least two people survived harrowing rides down the creeks.

Nine-year-old Amber Colvin was carried down a flooded stream and the Ohio River for 7 miles and seven hours, clinging to logs, said sheriff's Capt. Todd Graham. She was rescued at 6 a.m. Friday, but her friend, Carrie, remained missing.

''I tried to save her,'' Amber said from her bed at Bellaire Hospital, where she was being treated for cuts and bruises. ''I almost drowned. I was swept out of the house.''

Ann Coleman, a waitress at a Shadyside doughnut shop, heard about another woman swept downstream.

''They found her washed away ... completely naked,'' she said. ''She lives on Wegee Road and she was found on Pipe Creek, which is about 5 miles away. They found her wrapped around a telephone pole, but she was still alive.''

As the wall of water roared through the rural hill communities, ''houses and foundations ... washed away, mobile homes washed away and cars and trucks washed into the creeks,'' Graham said.

Robert Steele, whose house was spared because it sits on a hill overlooking Wegee Creek, said some of his neighbors weren't so lucky.

''Every time there was lightning, you could see people scattered, screaming for help,'' he said, ''and there was nothing you could do.''

''There was one local bar on Wegee Road where the walls collapsed and trapped people inside,'' Graham said. ''There was a mobile home sitting next to the bar that washed down the creek with people in it.''

Roger Gibbons was one of about 10 people in the bar and said the only thing that saved them was a cinder block wall. He and his 9-year-old son and the other patrons crouched in a corner, beneath a pool table, until the water receded.

''I could have made it (out), but I would have lost that little boy,'' he said. ''It's a good thing this wasn't a Friday night, with a band, because there's 200 to 300 people here on a Friday night. There would have been a lot of dead people.''

The Ohio Emergency Management Agency said Shadyside received 5 inches of rain in four hours.

Weegee Road, Graham said, reportedly was hit with a 15-foot wall of water. ''That same report said it was even worse - up to 20 feet - on Pipe Creek Road.''

''We even had a report of one Caterpillar bulldozer being washed away. You're talking 30 tons of machinery.''

Graham said a makeshift morgue was set up in Shadyside, a village of about 4,300 across the Ohio River from Wheeling, W.Va.

Graham said hundreds of people from area law enforcement agencies, as well as detachments of the Ohio National Guard and Army Reserve, were helping with the search and cleanup.

The American Red Cross dispatched nine mass-care vans to assist in feeding people, and utility crews throughout eastern Ohio were working to restore service for those left without power and-or telephone service.

Gov. Richard Celeste, who toured the area by helicopter, declared states of emergency in Franklin, Harrison, Belmont and Jefferson counties.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency said Belmont and neighboring Jefferson counties, along with Franklin County, were added to the list of 14 other Ohio counties already declared flood disaster areas by President Bush.

State officials were hoping for a federal declaration for four other counties - Harrison, Holmes, Monroe and Guernsey - where heavy rains fell Thursday night.

BEIJING (JUNE 16) UPI - China is calling on South Africa to release 38 Chinese seamen detained for nearly two weeks in a legal dispute between a Chinese firm and an Australian company over a ship sinking, the official press reported Saturday.

The English-language China Daily quoted officials of the China Ocean Shipping Co., a government concern, as saying the dispute grew out of the sinking of the Chinese freighter Tao Yuan Hai during a storm in the south Indian Ocean on May 27.

South Africa, which does not have diplomatic relations with China, has detained the 38 Chinese seamen since they arrived in Cape Town June 6 aboard a Japanese vessel that rescued them after they abandoned the freighter after six days in the storm.

''The family members of the detained Chinese seamen are deeply worried,'' a China Ocean Shipping official told the newspaper, saying they were ''being held as hostages in a country with which China has no diplomatic ties.''

The newspaper said both the shipping firm and the Chinese Seamen's Trade Union have appealed to international agencies, including the International Labor Organization, to intervene with South Africa on behalf of the seamen.

The freighter, owned by the Chinese firm, was leased to a U.S. operator and was traveling from Venezuela to Australia carrying 112,600 tons of iron ore for Australia's biggest trading company, Broken Hill Proprietary.

The China Daily reported that BHP has filed suit against China Ocean Shipping over the sinking and a South African court ordered the seamen detained in connection with the legal action. A hearing is scheduled this week in Cape Town.

The Chinese shipping official said the South African court ''forced the Chinese seamen to cancel their flight tickets for home and seized their documents,'' giving no indication of when they can return to China.

The target is water wasters.

''This is not a spy mission,'' Bob Gompers of the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California said Friday. It's just another weapon in the war against water waste.

The information collected by the satellite will eventually be employed in efforts to ease the effects of California's drought, now in its fourth year, he said.

''The purpose is to determine how much area is under irrigation or being watered in our service area and to what extent water is being used efficiently,'' Gompers said.

''We're not going to go knocking on doors. ... We're not going to visit people if we suspect them of using more water than necessary,'' he said.

The Water District hired the services of Terra-Mar Resource Information Services of Mountain View, Calif., to analyze photographs taken by a Landsat satellite circling 450 miles above the Earth.

The photographs, the Water District hopes, will show where people are overwatering crops, lawns and vegetation in the 5,200-square-mile area that the district serves in the counties of Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino, Riverside, Ventura and San Diego.

The information will be analyzed before any decisions are made to do anything, Gompers said.

But even if the agency did decide to send people knocking on doors, the average homeowner probably would have little to worry about. The infrared photographs are expected to reveal over-watering in areas larger than a city block. So the study will focus on parks, golf courses and other large areas where plants are grown and watered, in addition to irrigated croplands.

''There's no way a device like this can look at an individual lawn,'' Gompers said.

The satellite photographs capture the image of infrared light waves reflected from the leaves of plants. The degree of wetness in those leaves appears as areas of red, with the wettest areas shining the brightest.

''Basically, the greener the vegetation, the redder it looks on the satellite photo,'' Gompers said.

The $80,000 analysis, which started Tuesday, is expected to be completed in September.

(JUNE 16) UPI - The Oakland Athletics battled back and showed Chicago why it will not be an easy fight to wrest first place from them.

Down 4-1 in the eighth inning Friday night, the World Champion Athletics rallied for four runs to pull out a 5-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Dave Henderson went 3 for 3 with three RBI and Terry Steinbach delivered a two-run single during the eighth to give Bob Welch his seventh straight win.

Chicago could not break the A's stranglehold on first place in the American League West, which they have held for 64 straight days.

With the win, Oakland regained a two-game lead over the second-place White Sox.

''I don't think it makes any difference to us if we're in first tonight or tied for first,'' Rickey Henderson said. ''The season goes on. The Sox still have to come to Oakland.''

''We just kept battling,'' Welch said.

Welch, 10-2, scattered seven hits over seven innings. ''They kept saying in the dugout 'Hey, give us an opportunity, keep giving us a chance.'''

And Oakland got its chance, although it came late in the game.

''The one thing we're going to do is play nine innings,'' A's Manager Tony LaRussa said. ''That's what pleases this manager the most. We always play nine.''

Dennis Eckersley got the final out for his 21st save.

Barry Jones, 7-1, took the loss in relief.

''They took it away from us,'' White Sox Manager Jeff Torborg said. ''(Greg) Hibbard did a nice job for us tonight. A good club does what they (Athletics) did to us tonight.''

Mike Gallego and Walt Weiss ignited Oakland's eighth-inning rally with singles off Hibbard, and Rickey Henderson's base hit off Jones loaded the bases.

Dave Henderson then hit a ground-rule double, scoring Gallego and Weiss.

One out later, Mark McGwire was intentionally walked to load the bases and Steinbach singled to left, driving in both Hendersons to make it 5-4.

The White Sox, off to their best start since 1957, played before a paid crowd of 40,417, the first sellout at Comiskey Park since Opening Day in 1984.

''We've played to packed houses all the time. It's no different for us,'' Dave Henderson said.

Except that they remain in their familiar position. First place.

In other AL games, Toronto edged New York 5-4, Cleveland topped Milwaukee 5-3, Boston nipped Baltimore 4-3, Kansas City ripped Minnesota 5-1, Detroit walked past California 2-1 in 10 innings and Texas edged Seattle 4-3.

In the NL, it was Philadelphia 6, Chicago 5, in 10 innings in the first game; Philadelphia 7, Chicago 0, second game; New York 7, Pittsburgh 5; Montreal 7, St. Louis 4; Cincinnati 6, Houston 3; San Francisco 8, Atlanta 8; and San Diego 3, Los Angeles 1 in 13 innings.

Blue Jays 5, Yankees 4

At New York, Kelly Gruber sliced a three-run opposite-field triple in a four-run eighth inning to rally Toronto. The rally made a winner of David Wells, 5-1, who gave up seven hits and three earned runs. Tom Henke pitched the last two innings for his 10th save. Jeff Robinson, 0-5, took the loss.

Indians 5, Brewers 3

At Cleveland, Tom Candiotti scattered seven hits over 8 1-3 innings to help the Indians win before 63,546 fans, the largest crowd in the major leagues this season. Mitch Webster had two hits, an RBI and scored a run for Cleveland. Candiotti improved to 7-3. Doug Jones earned his 21st save. Dennis Powell, 0-1, suffered the loss.

Red Sox 4, Orioles 3

At Baltimore, Danny Heep blooped a two-run bases-loaded double in the second inning to lift. Wes Gardner, 1-3, ran his career record to 5-0 against the Orioles. Jeff Reardon notched his 10th save in the ninth inning. Pete Harnisch, 6-3, absorbed the loss.

Royals 5, Twins 1

At Kansas City, rookie Kevin Appier pitched a five-hitter over eight innings and Danny Tartabull belted a three-run homer to lead the Royals and hand Minnesota its eighth straight defeat. Appier, 2-2, struck out a career-high six. Tim Drummond took the loss and fell to 0-2.

Tigers 2, Angels 1, 10 innings

At Detroit, Scott Lusader's two-out walk on a 3-2 pitch climaxed a four-walk rally in the bottom of the 10th inning to lift the Tigers. Bryan Harvey, 2-2, walked all four batters to take the loss. Jerry Don Gleaton, 1-1, picked up the win.

Rangers 4, Mariners 3

At Seattle, Pete Incaviglia drove in two runs and Kevin Brown won his fourth straight start to lead Texas. Brown, 8-4, notched his second consecutive complete game. Incaviglia's RBI double highlighted the Rangers' two-run sixth inning that snapped a 2-2 tie. Brian Holman, 7-5, gave up all four runs and took the loss.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IA (JUNE 16) UPI - A sightseeing helicopter crashed at a fair, killing all three people on board, police said Saturday.

The helicopter crashed just after takeoff about 10:33 p.m. Friday at the All-Iowa Fair, killing the pilot and two passengers, police said.

Witnesses said the helicopter rose about 100 feet into the air when is swerved sideways and dropped straight down. It crashed in a parking lot about 200 feet from a carnival ride.

Killed were pilot, Thomas C. Brooks, 31, Eaton Rapids, Mich., and Carey Carnahan, 18, and Shane Burlingame, 20, both of Cedar Rapids.

The All-Iowa Fair is the third largest fair in the state.

The cause of the crash was not known.

LYNN, MA (JUNE 16) UPI - Hundreds of people rampaged through downtown Lynn early Saturday, smashing windows and pelting police with rocks and bottles as a disturbance that began at a nightclub spilled out onto the streets, police said.

Fifteen people were arrested before the crowds were dispersed but no serious injuries were reported, police said.

''For a while there, it looked like it was going to be a second Detroit,'' said Lynn patrolman John Agurkis, referring to the wild street celebrations of the Detroit Pistons' second consecutive NBA championship that killed at least six people and left more than 20 injured.

The incident began about 12:30 a.m. at a crowded, predominantly Hispanic Quisqueyano nightclub when a press of people knocked some windows onto Union Street, he said.

''There was a private party going on. Some windows got broken out and fell on some people who were walking on the sidewalk. One thing led to another '' Agurkis said.

Hundreds of people spilled out onto the street. Two officers drove up in a police cruiser and, speaking in both English and Spanish, ordered the crowd to disperse. The crowd ignored police commands and began throwing rocks and bottles at the officers, Argurkis said.

Metropolitan District Commission Police and officers from nearby Swampscott joined Lynn police as the crowd swelled from about 250 people to nearly 500, Argurkis said.

After police cleared the Quisqueyano club, the crowd moved on, looking for other drinking spots, Argurkis said. When the group appeared headed toward Mister Mac's, a club with a predominantly black clientele, police feared a racial incident would develop. Officers asked the proprietor to close the establishment and the owner complied, he said.

Police then went to other local bars, asking the owners to shut down early. Most of the establishments cooperated, but police closed the Hideaway Lounge and evicted about 50 patrons when the manager refused to close his doors, Agurkis said.

LOS ANGELES (JUNE 16) UPI - More than 170 members of the two most notorious Los Angeles-based gangs were arrested in an 11-state sweep involving local authorities and the military, federal agents said Saturday.

Authorities seized an unspecified amount of firearms, drugs and cash during Operation Streetsweep, which began Thursday, said Stephen Higgins, director of the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

''It's a long season and we're trying to get victories against them anyway we can,'' Higgins said. More arrested were expected Saturday, officials said.

So far, 174 people have been arrested in nine states, AFT special agent Jack Killorin said.

Andrew Vita, agent-in-charge of the ATF office in Los Angeles, said two loosely knit gangs which have warred for years, Crips and Bloods, have staked out a large portion of the nation's cocaine trafficking and have been identified in 32 states and 69 cities outside California.

ATF officials said hundreds of agents and local police officers participated in the sweep, and the Air Force aided the operation by flying federal agents from Dover, Del., to Los Angeles.

Along with California, the other states involved in the sweep included Louisiana, Arizona, Missouri, Oklahoma, Oregon and Washington. The four remaining states involved in the sweep were not immediately identified.

Many details of the sweep were withheld, but ATF officials mentioned one raid where nearly 13 pounds of cocaine worth about $250,000 were seized in Shreveport, La.

In Portland, Oregon, 14 people were arrested and more than 100 others were being sought on federal or state warrants for mostly drug and gun charges. In Washington, two 23-year-old men were arrested.

''This operation shows that what was once a Los Angeles problem is now a direct threat to several communities throughout our nation. The success of Operation Streetsweep is not the end, but only the beginning,'' Vita said.

SPIVEY'S CORNER, N.C. (JUNE 16) UPI - Thousands of people gathered in this rural crossroads town of 49 residents Saturday for the 23rd Annual Hollerin' Contest, a rememberance of how rural folks communicated before telephones.

At least 25 people had registered to impress the judges with their hollering abilities in an effort to succeed Tommy Tatum of Stedman, N.C., who captured the title last year by producing a holler his grandmother used to call folks to dinner.

''We're on every major calendar of events I know of,'' said Ermon Godwin, a retired banker who has been president of the contest since its inception. ''We've never spent a dime on publicity.''

Godwin said the idea for the contest started in late 1966 when he and others got together to decide how they could raise money for the Fire Department.

''People here have been hollering for years. Some people had dinner bells they would use in an emergency to get people out in the fields. They'd ring it rapidly,'' Godwin said. ''But some people couldn't afford a bell. In times of distress, they'd holler.''

The winner of the event, which benefits the local Fire Department, has been featured on ''The Tonight Show with Johnny Carson,'' and the contest has been widely covered by magazines, newspapers and radio and television stations.

The chief judge in the contest will be John Balogh of Hamilton, Ontario.

''We made a record in 1971 of all the hollerin'. (Balogh) found one of those records somewhere about six years ago. He's followed us since. He's a promoter, and he said he had to see how such a small town could pull off such a major event.''

Balogh also provided the winner of the mens' contest with an all-expense paid trip to the 18th Annual Canada Bluegrass Festival in Hamilton. The mens' winner also won a trophy, as did the winenrs of the womens' and juniors' contests.

''Sports Illustrated'' wrote a four-page article about the first Hollerin' Contest that led to the national attention. In 1967, Dan McLamb, the winner of the first contest, appeared on ''The Tonight Show with Johnny Carson'' and the event has attracted thousands of people since.

BANGKOK, THAILAND (JUNE 16) UPI - A U.S.-backed Cambodian resistance group Saturday appealed to the Phnom Penh government to release all political prisoners to help facilitate national reconciliation.

''The KPNLF appeals to the Phnom Penh Administration set up by the Vietnamese invading forces in 1978 to show its good faith and release all the political prisoners,'' said a press release issued by the Khmer People's National Liberation Front in Bangkok.

The release of political prisoners detained under various charges without trial would be ''a demonstration of (the government's) goodwill toward democracy and national reconciliation,'' it said.

The prisoners were arrested following the 1979 Vietnamese invasion of Cambodia, aimed at ousting the Khmer Rouge regime, which is believed responsible for the death of more than 1 million Cambodians.

Vietnam says it completed troop withdrawal last September but Cambodian resistance leaders claim many Vietnamese troops remain in Cambodia in civilian garb.

The KPNLF said some of the political prisoners were arrested ''quite recently'' by the Vietnam-backed Cambodian government. Recent reports have said some officials trying to organize a political party have been imprisoned by the Hun Sen government.

The statement said the KPNLF leader, Son Sann, asked the four Cambodian rebel factions to meet prior to the meeting of the United Nations Permanent Security Council on Cambodia in Paris next month.

It said the resistance meeting would discuss a ceasefire, the U.N. role in a possible Cambodian settlement and a formula for administering the country before elections can be held should a peace plan currently being worked out by the Phnom Penh government and the resistance coalition succeed.

The KPNLF has proposed forming a Supreme National Council comprised of representatives from the four rebel factions to act as an interim Cambodian administration.

''The convening of this proposed quadripartite technical meeting is not a pre-condition to the formation of the SNC (Supreme National Council),'' the KPNLF statement said.

A recent meeting between the Cambodian government and resistance coalition in Tokyo ended in signing of a vaguely worded peace agreement which has failed to halt the fighting. The Chinese-backed Khmer Rouge refused to sign the document, alleging it was being marginalized by the United States and Thailand.

Cambodia has been devasted by a continuing civil war for the past decade between government forces and the Khmer Rouge. Significant parts of the countryside are controlled by the Khmer Rouge who also control several Cambodian refugee camps in Thailand.

EAST BERLIN (JUNE 16) UPI - East German police, continuing a crackdown on suspected West German extremists hiding in the country, have arrested a woman accused of taking part in the 1985 killing of a U.S. soldier and bomb attack on an American military base, officials said Saturday.

East German authorities are now holding at least six alleged ultra left-wing activists, all believed former members of the Red Army Faction.

Interior Minister Peter-Michael Diestel said police Friday captured Sigrid Sterneback, 40, in Schwedt, about 38 miles east of Berlin.

Sternebeck is accused of taking part in the Aug. 8, 1985, murder of Edward Pimental, a U.S. soldier in the West German city of Wiesbaden.

The Red Army Faction apparently killed Pimental to get his identity card, then used the card to gain access to a U.S. air base in Frankfurt with a truck carrying explosives. Two U.S. troops were killed and 20 others injured when the vehicle blew up at the base.

A police spokesman earlier said a mistake was made when three others were arrested Friday. Fingerprint checks revealed they were not the three police were seeking, but it was not immediately clear whether they had been released.

East German police, apparently acting on tips from the public and cooperating with West German police, started the crackdown on alleged extremists on June 6 with the capture of Susanne Albrecht, 39.

One week later they arrested Inge Viett, 46. On Thursday police arrested Christine Duemlein, 41, Monika Helbing, 36, Ekkerhard Freiherr von Sekkendoff-Gudent, 49, and Werner Lotze, 38.

Duemlein was later released because the international warrant for her arrest had expired in 1988.

The suspects are among about 30 alleged extremists wanted in West Germany for a string of violent attacks, including the kidnapping of Italian politician Aldo Moro and the assassination of West German banker Juergen Ponto, both in 1977.

Diestel said several of those arrested had lived in East Germany for years. He said the now-disbanded secret police of the former communist government had given them false identities.

The West German Spiegel news magazine claimed the extremists also were protected by the East German justice ministry.

The weekly said that at the end of 1986, West German authorities told the East German prosecutor-general that five suspected West German terrorists were in East Germany, including Viett and Albrecht.

It said the East German authorities were searching for at least three more extremists believed hiding in East Germany.

Earlier, the West German news agency DPA said that Albrecht, who had lived in East Germany for more than 10 years, was regularly ''shown'' in the Syrian capital of Damascus, to lead Western intelligence services to believe she lived in the Middle East.

The agency, attributing its information to an intelligence source in Bonn, said West German investigators had searched for Red Army Faction members in Yemen, Syria and Iraq, but did not believe the extremists were living in East Germany.

West German government spokesmen said the authorities in Bonn had suspected for some years that RAF members lived in East Germany but had not obtained any proof of this. As a result, the issue was not taken up with the East German government, the spokesmen said.

MANILA, PHILIPPINES (JUNE 16) UPI - President Corazon Aquino's government announced plans Saturday to launch a broad information campaign about the U.S. military bases because a poll revealed many Filipinos were unaware of the key issues involved.

Press Undersecretary Horacio Paredes, who released the survey results, did not say whether the proposed information campaign would take a stand on the renewal of U.S. basing rights in the Philippines, which expire in Sept. 1991.

The survey, based on interviews with 200 residents of greater Manila, showed 100 percent of the respondents were aware of the presence of the U.S. installations and 94 percent knew the treaty which permits the bases expires soon.

''However, despite this important knowledge, few of the respondents feel they are sufficiently informed about the deeper issues on the U.S. bases and the proposed alternative uses of the bases should no treaty extending the stay of the U.S. facilities be reached,'' it said.

''This level of awareness indeed has to be developed since this may be crucial in any decision-making exercise on the bases issue,'' said the survey, conducted after the first round of U.S.-Philippine talks on the future of the facilities last month.

''There is a pressing need to conduct an information campaign on the issue that would act as a comprehensive primer for the community on the history, developments and the future of the bases in the country,'' Paredes said.

Fifty two percent of the respondents said they did not have sufficient knowledge about the issues involved and 60 percent said they were not fully aware of the alternatives being planned by the government if the facilities are pulled out.

The survey showed 75 percent of those polled wan the two nations to remain as friends even if the bases are dismantled.

Paredes said the results of the survey would be forwarded to the Philippine panel in the negotiations headed by Foreign Secretary Raul Manglapus. The talks are expected to resume in late August.

The survey proposed more widespread media coverage of the next round of talks, saying the lack of knowledge about the bases has created a ''dangerous information vacuum that can be manipulated by vested interests.''

The Philippines hosts the giant Clark Air Base, the largest U.S. air base in Asia, and Subic Bay Naval station, the sprawling repair and logistics center for the U.S. Seventh Fleet, and four smaller facilities.

The Philippine constitution provides that any treaty extending U.S. basing rights must be ratified by a two-thirds vote of the 23-member Philippine senate, where anti-bases sentiment is strong, and, if necessary, be ratified by Filipinos in a referendum.

The survey did not ask the respondents if they wanted the bases to remain or not.

A survey released Thursday by the respected Ateneo de Manila University showed 41 percent of Filipinos want to retain the bases and 29 percent want them removed.

DETROIT (JUNE 16) UPI - Tumultuous street celebrations of the Detroit Pistons' second consecutive NBA championship turned deadly, killing at least eight people and leaving more than 100 injured, including five police officers, authorities said.

Thousands of fans danced wildly in the streets, shot off firecrackers and guns and drove around with blaring horns into the early morning hours after the Pistons' 92-90 victory Thursday night over the Trail Blazers in Portland, Ore.

But scattered looting, smashed storefront windows and numerous fights, some involving police, marred the celebration, despite an order that all police officers on the afternoon shift Thursday remain on duty past their midnight quitting time, authorities said.

The dead included four people struck by a hit-and-run driver who plowed into a crowd of celebrants at an intersection in northeast Detroit, a man who fell from the roof of a Detroit apartment building, a man who was shot and a 4-year-old boy who was struck by a car during a disturbance in suburban River Rouge.

The shooting occurred at about 1:15 a.m. Friday when a man who was punched pulled a gun and fired several shots, killing 19-year-old Michael Wilkins. The gunman escaped from the scene.

''There are always some who, under the cover of celebration, will break the law. Always. And that's what happened last night,'' Mayor Coleman Young said Friday.

A total of 65 people were arrested - 35 in Detroit and 30 in River Rouge, a nearby working class community - according to police reports. Most were charged with disorderly conduct, a police spokesman said.

In northeast Detroit, a speeding car plowed into a crowd of people celebrating the Pistons' victory, killing four people - three of them children - and injuring a fifth.

The victims included a 9-year-old boy, a 10-year-old boy, a 15-year-old girl and a 21-year-old man, police said. An 18-year-old man was listed in serious condition with a broken leg at Detroit Receiving Hospital. The driver, who fled the scene of the accident, was arrested several hours later in suburban Warren and turned over to Detroit police.

A 21-year-old Detroit man was attempting to set off a Roman candle firecracker when it flared up and he fell backwards from an apartment building four stories to the pavement. He died at Detroit Receiving Hospital.

In River Rouge, a 4-year-old boy was struck by a car and killed during a disturbance early Friday involving some 300 people in the downtown area, apparently sparked by the Pistons' victory.

''I would say (the accident) was (related to the disturbance) but I don't have all the details,'' said River Rouge police spokesman Dennis Zwiwgalski.

''They were breaking glass and tearing up the town, mostly,'' he said.

In northwest Detroit, two people were shot and wounded when a large crowd of people attempted to break into BB's Party Store. A 17-year-old boy was in critical condition with a gunshot wound to the head and a 21-year-old man was in stable condition with a gunshot wound to the left leg.

Police said the 60-year-old store owner was in custody pending further investigation into the shooting.

A spokeswoman at Henry Ford Hospital, the city's largest, said six non-fatal shooting victims and 15 assault victims were brought in overnight. All were believed related to the celebration, she said. Authorities said at least five police officers were injured.

One of those treated at a crowded Receiving Hospital emergency room was WDIV-TV reporter Anne Thompson, who suffered a gash in her forehead when the windows of one of the station's vehicles were smashed.

The downtown area calmed after sunrise Friday, with only a few commuters wandering the litter-strewn streets. Police squad cars made periodic sweeps through the area where the violence occurred hours earlier.

At the Pistons' home court in the Palace in Auburn Hills, about 30 miles north of Detroit, 21,454 had gathered Thursday night to watch the game on a giant television screen. Fans leaped up and cheered as Vinnie Johnson's last-second shot gave the Pistons their fourth win in five games and the championship in the best-of-seven series.

Officials announced a parade and a rally for the 1990 NBA world champions will be held Monday.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 16) UPI - The long summer nights in Siberia are beginning to throb to the beat of American jazz. The unlikely source is a partly commercial radio station in Novosobirsk, with tapes provided by the Voice of America.

Just three years after the Soviets stopped jamming VOA broadcasts, the Siberian radio station ''Novaya Volna'' (Russian for ''New Wave Radio'') began broadcasting in stereo a popular music program supplied by VOA on tape. It includes everything from classical jazz to contemporary rock 'n' roll.

But more significantly, the station has announced it will carry readings by Alexander Solzhenitsyn from his book about the October Revolution, ''Red Wheel.'' Solzhenitsyn, a resolute opponent of the Soviet communist government who now lives in the United States, had been denounced by the Kremlin.

''It's a dramatic development,'' said Gerd von Doemming, head of the Soviet division of the VOA.

In an interview with VOA, Amir Nagumanov, head of the Siberian station, said there continues to be opposition within the Soviet Union to such departures from the traditional state-controlled broadcasting system.

Nagumanov said several other Soviet radio station directors sent telegrams asking that the station be stopped from broadcasting.

Nevertheless, the station remains on the air and claims more than 2 million listeners, although Nagumanov concedes that ''sociological statistics'' - called demographics in American surveys - are somewhat behind the times.

The station broadcasts five hours every night on long-wave, a wave-length that does not exist in radio in the United States.

''There has to be an official sanction for such a station to exist,'' Von Doemming said.

Not including the Baltic states, the station in Novosobirsk is believed to be the first station in the Soviet Union that involves commercial support.

Although the transmitter and studio in the Siberian city are government-supplied, the support comes in part from scientific and labor organizations.

Most businesses in Siberia remain owned by the government. Cooperatives are new enterprises permitted under Soviet law - mainly restaurants or consumer-oriented businesses - that can charge whatever they like and bid for food and other commodities at free-market prices.

''Given the situation,'' Nagumanov said in the VOA interview, ''we do accept some commercials.''

Nagumanov said the Siberian station began broadcasting in early June and reaches four provinces of Siberia. The vast, sparsely populated province stretches from the Ural mountains to the Pacific and encompasses 7.5 million square miles - more than twice the area of the United States.

The region became famous for its notorious prison camps and exile communities for political dissidents and exiles. But in the post-Cold War era it is New Wave Radio, Soviet style, that is attracting attention.

ATLANTIC CITY, NJ (JUNE 16) UPI - A smiling, waving Donald Trump was honored Saturday at a birthday rally attended by employees of his three casino-hotel properties while negotiators met with bank creditors in an effort to hold his empire together.

Trump has a 10-day grace period, which started at 12:01 a.m. Saturday, to make good on the more than $42 million in interest and principal payments he owes on bonds for his Trump's Castle casino. He defaulted on the payments Friday, bringing him a step closer to bankruptcy.

The morning coffee-and-danish party on the boardwalk outside the Taj Mahal Hotel-Casino was organized by hotel management ''as an expression of support for Mr. Trump,'' according to casino spokesman Karen Tusso. It was attended by about 2,000 people, mostly employees who were not working, their spouses and children who played with balloons, beachballs and frisbees.

''Happy Birthday, Donald'' and ''We Love You, Donald'' were the rallying cries of the faithful as Trump joined the party about two hours after it began. A band struck up ''Happy Birthday!'' as he inspected a huge, 12-page birthday card and moved through the crowd shaking hands with employees and celebrity well-wishers including Peter Allen, Joe Piscopo, Pat Cooper, Robin Leach, and Buster Poindexter.

The real estate developer turned 44 last Thursday but celebrations were deferred until Saturday due to frantic activity by the Trump Organization to persuade banks to loan the real estate tycoon another $60 million.

Trump's family, close friends and entertainers planned a more lavish birthday bash Saturday night at the Trump Castle, organized as a champagne dinner. Dolly Parton was reportedly sending a taped birthday message.

The missed payments on junk bonds issued to finance Trump Castle marked the first time Trump was unable to meet obligations on the $1.3 billion in publicly traded debt that has underwritten the growth of his casinos and various New York City real estate holdings.

Late Friday First Fidelity Bank N.A., the New Jersey bank acting as trustee for the bonds, said it resigned to avoid appearance of a conflict of interest. The bank's major responsibility as trustee is to collect interest and principal payments.

Earlier, the Trump Organization announced in a terse statement that principal and interest payments due June 15 on two series of bonds issued by Trump's Castle Funding Inc. to fund the casino ''are not being made.''

First Fidelity said it had sent a notice of default to Trump's Castle Funding Inc. which should have been received Saturday.

Trump technically has a 10-day grace period in which to work out a deal before defaulting on the bond payments for Trump's Castle. The bank specified that $15.59 million was due in interest on one mortgage bond issue, along with $22.68 million in principal. On another bond issue financing Trump's Castle casino, interest of $4.38 million was due for a total of $42.65 million.

A default would give Trump's creditors the right to immediately lay claim to the casino.

''Any time you miss an interest payment like this, it puts you closer to going under,'' said junk bond specialist Lonnie Schaffer, vice president of capital markets at First Albany Corp. ''Unless (Trump) can become friendly with all of his bankers, he's going to have a tough time of it.''

Immediately after the Trump announcement, Moody's Investors Service Inc. downgraded about $925 million of Trump's long-term debt for bonds issued to finance the Taj Mahal and Trump Plaza, saying a ''default could occur on the outstanding bonds in November.''

Taj Mahal bonds now carry a CAA rating that indicates major risks for investors.

On Friday, Trump Castle's 13.75 percent bonds, due in 1997, were down

1.875 points to 58.125. Trump Castle's 7 percent bonds, due in 1999, were down 1 to 36 - in effect selling for only 36 cents on the dollar. Trump Taj Mahal 14 percent bonds due in 1998 were down 2 points to 53.50.

Trump's principal lenders - Citicorp, Bankers Trust New York, Chase Manhattan and Manufacturers Hanover - agreed June 10 on a $2 billion bailout plan that would buy much-needed time for the overextended dealmaker to restructure his empire and sell some of his prized New York real estate and the Trump Shuttle airline.

But banking sources said Citicorp, owed more than $300 million by Trump, has failed so far to get smaller banks in the syndicate it heads - especially foreign banks - to agree to the deal, which would involve lending the developer another $60 million.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 16) UPI - By embracing a constitutional amendment to prevent flag burning as a political protest, President Bush is urging the country to journey down a path seldom trod in the 200-year history of the Constitution.

But, with the Supreme Court standing firm that the First Amendment guarantee of free speech means burning the flag is a protected form of expression, Bush and other amendment backers have no choice: The Constitution is the supreme law of the land, and the Supreme Court has the power to say what the Constitution means.

Unless the court changes its mind, a rare occurrence, the only way to change a Supreme Court decision is to change the Constitution itself.

Since the adoption of the Bill of Rights in December 1791, the Constitution has been amended just 16 times and experts agree those changes have had very little effect on the basic rights of individual Americans.

Much of the controversy over the proposed flag amendment is not about what it hopes to do - protect a potent national symbol - but about the precedent set by changing the document's fundamental promises of personal freedom.

Bruce Fein, a conservative constitutional scholar and court watcher, called the bid to write an exception to the First Amendment ''crazy and very ill-advised.''

A.E. Howard, a former Supreme Court law clerk and law professor at the University of Virginia, said arguments can be made that the 14th Amendment enacted after the Civil War to extend constitutional rights to all citizens, and the 18th Amendment, which brought about prohibition of alcohol, restricted rights guaranteed in the first 10.

But, he called the arguments remote and said neither amendment overturned a ''right guaranteed in the Bill of Rights.''

The first 10 amendments, called the Bill of Rights, are by far the best-known aspects of the Constitution. The main part of the Constitution lays out the three branches of the central government - executive (the presidency), legislative (Congress) and the judiciary (federal courts including the Supreme Court) - and their general powers and authority.

The amendments, including many ideas discussed at the Constitutional Convention but not included in the basic document, were proposed by Congress almost immediately after the states approved the Constitution.

The additions aimed to restrict the power of the government and to guarantee freedoms now taken for granted but very rare indeed in the 18th century - the right to criticize the government, the right to a public trial, the right to bear arms and protection from unlawful searches or cruel punishment.

The First Amendment, the one that would be affected by the flag amendment backed by Bush and now before Congress, guarantees perhaps the most cherished of rights enshrined in the Constitution.

It states: ''Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.''

The Supreme Court in its recent flag burning rulings held that those words mean the government cannot make it illegal to burn the flag, as Congress tried to do last year.

To get around that, the proposed amendment declares: ''The Congress and the states shall have power to prohibit the physical desecration of the flag of the United States.''

DURHAM, NC (JUNE 16) UPI - Heart disease and stroke are the biggest killers in the United States, and minority populations are hardest hit, a federal health official said Saturday.

The status of the cardiovascular health of minorities, especially blacks, has remained the same since a 1985 study showed more blacks die of heart disease than whites, said Dr. William Robinson, director of the U.S. Office of Minority Health.

''The Department of Health and Human Services is developing a comprehensive plan to improve the health status of minorities in the United States,'' Robinson said a conference called ''Attacking Cardiovascular Disease in Minority Populations.''

''The objectives will focus on the major health problem areas responsible for excess minority deaths, prominently including cardiovascular disease and stroke, but also cancer, diabetes, chemical dependency, homicide, infant mortality and HIV infection,'' Robinson said.

The 1985 study said documented nearly 60,000 ''excess'' deaths in minority populations.

''That is, 60,000 minority men, women and children who would not die each year if minority death rates were the same as those in our majority population,'' Robinson said. ''Heart disease and stroke were responsible for 18,000, or nearly one-third, of those excess deaths.''

The increased risk of coronary heart disease among blacks comes from factors such as high blood pressure, diabetes and obesity. A recent report said 40 percent of blacks have high blood pressure, Robinson said.

''People with high blood pressure have three to four times the risk of developing coronary heart disease and as much as seven times the risk of stroke as people with normal blood pressure,'' Robinson said.

''My message today is prevention. When you think about prevention, you only need to focus on some remarkably simple things that can make a dramatic impact in reducing risks - get high blood pressure under control, quit smoking, control cholestrol levels, keep diabetes under control, keep your weight down and exercise,'' Robinson said.

The conference was sponsored by the American Heart Association, the asociation's North Carolina chapter and the U.S. Office of Minority Health.

(JUNE 16) UPI - Oil skimming operations in the Gulf of Mexico will be boosted this morning with the aid of a ship owned the Mexican government.

Coast Guard officials say Pemex skimmer arrived last night to help eight other vessels in trying to mop up the oil leaked from a Norwegian tanker.

The ships are working around the Mega Borg which spilled an estimated four-point-three-Million gallons of light Angolan crude oil after an explosion last week.

Most of the spilled oil burned off in the fire that followed the powerful blast. Some evaporated. Coast Guard Chief Petty Officer Todd Nelson says skimmers have recovered 202-thousand gallons of oil. He says Coast Guard scientists estimate there is 12 to 40-thousand gallons of oil actually in the water.

Officials say the oil was about 28 miles from the Texas coast yesterday but they add it could reach the beaches ''anytime this weekend.'' Fireboats continue to douse the crippled vessel... but officials say the fire appears to be completely out.

(JUNE 16) UPI - Federal agents say an 11-state sweep involving local authorities and the military has resulted in the arrest of 174 members of two Los Angeles-based gangs- the Crips and the Bloods.

The director of the U-S Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms, Stephen Higgins, says authorities also seized drugs, cash, and firearms. Quoting Higgins- ''It's a long season and we're trying to get victories against them any way we can.''

The sweep began Thursday and is expected to continue through the weekend.

The gangs control a large chunk of the nation's cocaine trafficking and have been identified in 32 states and 69 cities outside California.

Higgins says the Crips and Bloods were targeted because of the wanton violence they have displayed, including drive-by shootings that at times kill bystanders.

He adds the arrests in other states should yield ''intelligence'' on how the two gangs have established their nationwide operations.

(JUNE 16) UPI - Federal drug chief William Bennett had high praise yesterday for a Maryland school district that has a ''zero-tolerance'' anti-drug program.

Bennett visited the Hillendale Elementary School in Baltimore County yesterday to meet with parents, students and educators. The area was plagued with drug problems until the community fought back.

Bennett praised Baltimore County School Superintendent Robert Dubel for the school system's tough policy that calls for mandatory expulsion of students caught using, distributing or possessing drugs.

Bennett said the federal government can only do so much, because schools are principally run locally- with local money. But he said he would cite the Baltimore County program as a good example of anti-drug policies.

Mayors of the nation's largest cities called for more federal involvement in the war on drugs and homelessness yesterday at the 58th annual meeting of the U-S Conference of Mayors.

The host of the meeting is Chicago's Richard Daley. He says the federal government wants to help China and Europe but tells mayors the poor child is their problem. In addition, Daley says that the government should be able to spend more money on homelessness and drugs if it can bail out the savings and loans.

(JUNE 16) UPI - A jury in New York has awarded nearly seven-point-six-Million dollars to the wife of a man fatally stabbed by jailhouse author Jack Henry Abbott.

The jury rejected the convicted killer's argument that the widow did NOT deserve a cent.

46-year-old Abbott called the verdict ''a little excessive'' as he left the Manhattan courtroom yesterday after hearing the jury's decision.

Abbott killed Richard Adan nine years ago outside an East Greenwich Village restaurant after a quarrel. The killing occurred six weeks after author Norman Mailer helped Abbott win an early release from a Utah prison. Abbott was serving time for killing a fellow prison inmate.

Abbott's book ''In the Belly of the Beast'' is based on his correspondence with Mailer. The book includes a section in which Abbott desribes the sensual experience of killing a person.

He is serving a 15-year-to-life sentence for manslaughter in Adan's death.

Adan's widow, Ricci Adan, says she is pleased the case is closed.

(JUNE 16) UPI - Fair skies Saturday enabled authorities to press their search for more people feared dead in flash flooding in eastern Ohio, while thunderstorms in the Midwest spawned tornadoes and threatened new flooding in Nebraska and Iowa.

Heavy rains soaked eastern Nebraska and western Iowa early Saturday, prompting the National Weather Service to issue a flash flood watch for the area.

Thick fog cut visibility across in New England and down the East Coast to Delaware and also obscured the sights in Kentucky but lifted as the day heated up.

Storms caused minor flooding that soaked basements and put several roads under water in parts of southwestern Minnesota early Saturday.

The National Weather Service said there was an unofficial report of 6 inches of rain at Lake Lillian in Kandiyohi County, with 2 to 5 inches reported in the rural Granite Falls, Clara City and Willmar areas.

Rain was diminishing Saturday morning but more thunderstorms were expected across southern Minnesota Saturday afternoon and night and people living in flood-prone areas were warned to be prepared for flooding.

The thunderstorms also spawned two tornadoes in southern Nebraska Friday, one cutting a 24-mile-long path through Hitchcock County, authorities said. The twister hit three towns along the way, destroying farm houses and killing livestock. There were no injuries.

Sheriff's department spokesman Kelly Leggott said eight homes were destroyed and 12 others were damaged in rural areas. About 20 people were left homeless and some sought refuge in area motels, Leggott said.

Another tornado touched down in neighboring Red Willow County, but caused only minor damage.

Hail from the thunderstorms reached the size of tennis balls and broke car windows. A mother and her 4-month-old child were sprayed with broken glass when a hailstone crashed through the winshield of their car in Perkins County. Neither was seriously injured.

In eastern Ohio, the search continued for more bodies a rural mountain town inundated by powerful flash floods that swept at least 11 people to their deaths Thuesday and left another 51 missing and feared dead.

Raging torrents of water surged down three creeks in the Shadyside area, knocking homes off their foundations and sweping away cars, trucks and a 30-ton bulldozer.

Hundreds of people from area law enforcement agencies, as well as detachments of the Ohio National Guard and Army Reserve, were helping with the search and cleanup.

The rest of the nation experienced mostly fair skies, except northern California, which was hit by thunderstorms.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 16) UPI - President Bush, marking the tradition of Father's Day, officially designated Sunday as the day to pay tribute to dads and urged all Americans to fly the flag on the occasion.

Issuing an annual proclamation to honor fathers, Bush also called on federal employees to commemorate the day by hoisting the flag on all federal government buildings and for all Americans to hang the flag at their homes ''and other suitable places.''

''Each year, on the third Sunday in June, we pause to honor our fathers and to express our gratitude for their generosity and devotion,'' Bush proclaimed. ''Father's Day is more than a day rich in family love and tradition - it is also a day when we are deeply mindful of the many ways fathers strengthen our communities and nation.''

Bush's call to fly the flag on Father's Day, however, comes at the end of a week of renewed posturing over the Stars and Stripes, set off by the Supreme Court's 5-4 decision Monday to strike down a law passed last year by Congress to prohibit desecration of the flag.

Congressmen on both sides of the aisle, backed by Bush, revived what promises to be a devisive drive for a constitutional amendment to ban flag burning and opened an election-year debate over patriotism.

A constitutional amendment requires a two-thirds vote of the Senate and House and ratification by three-fourths, or 38, of the states.

Congress is expected to vote on the amendment before the July 4 recess, which begins July 2.

Bush, spending the weekend at the Camp David, Md., presidential retreat, renewed his own call this past week for the amendment to protect what he called a ''unique symbol'' of the country.

Having made the flag a centerpiece of the 1988 election campaign, his move prompted charges he is trying to use Old Glory as a potent political issue in the November elections.

In officially designating June 17 as Father's Day, Bush said, ''I invite the states and communities and people of the United States to observe that day with appropriate ceremonies and a mark of appreciation and abiding affection for their fathers.''

In addition, he added, ''I direct government officials to display the flag of the United States on all federal government buildings, and I urge all Americans to display the flag at their homes and other suitable places on that day.''

Though the flag is traditionally hoisted for legal holidays, and in the usual flurry of proclamations issued by Bush in the past few months none has made mention of flying the flag, Bush did include the same language in last year's Father's Day proclamation.

In proclamations issued Feb. 12 and Feb. 16, to mark the 181st anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln and the 258th anniversary of George Washington's birth, however, federal agencies were not instructed to display the flag.

SHADYSIDE, OH (JUNE 16) UPI - Emergency crews continued their grim search for more bodies Saturday in the aftermath of a flood that devastated at least three counties, left 11 people dead and 51 others missing.

Officials said they feared there would be no survivors among the missing as a force of about 1,000 firefighters, volunteers, Army Reserve and National Guardsmen combed through mangled metal, logs and mud.

Gov. Richard Celeste on Saturday placed the number of dead at 11, down from an initital total of 14, because of what officials called communication problems. Officials said it could be days before a final death toll is reached.

The rampaging floods Thursday night turned three typically tranquil eastern Ohio creeks into torrents of destruction after thunderstorms dumped 5.5 inches of rain in 3 1/2 hours.

''What we have here is a natural disaster of extraordinary proportions,'' said Celeste, who toured the area by helicopter Friday and Saturday. ''We've confirmed 11 fatalities and we have 51 individuals who are unaccounted for, considered missing.''

Officials said they were conservative in estimating that 60 to 70 homes were completely destroyed and 30 to 40 others were inhabitable.

The rainfall was so swift that such a disaster would probably only occur once in 500 years, said Al Wheeler, deputy meterologist at the National Weather Service in Cleveland.

''It looks like a giant stepped on our community,'' one resident said as she surveyed down trees and other debris.

The floods were the latest in weather-related damage to strike Ohio. Last month, 14 central and southern counties were declared federal disaster areas after tornadoes and heavy rains swept the state.

From Thursday's rains, Belmont, Jefferson and Franklin counties were added to the list of federal disaster areas Friday.

''We have folks who have been working on disasters for three or four weeks solid,'' Celeste said. ''We have more experience than we would like.''

Four of the dead were found outside Shadyside, a community of 4,300 about 10 miles south of Wheeling, W.Va., in the foothills of the Appalachian Mountains. Six bodies were found in Dilles Bottom, 7 miles to the south, and one was found near Glencoe, about 10 miles northwest of Shadyside.

But the rubble from houses, cars, trees and mud posed a difficult problem for rescue workers, who expected to remain in the area for several more days.

''Each signal given by the dogs is going to have to be hand-managed in terms of picks and shovels,'' he said. ''I can't say how effective that will be.''

More than 100 residents stayed overnight at an elementary school shelter not far from Wegee Creek. Many others stayed with friends or family.

Rains sent a wall of water and debris as high as 20 feet smashing through the valleys of creeks that normally flow 6 to 12 inches deep. Hundreds of houses, mobile homes, cars and trucks were swept away.

A 9-year-old girl was in Bellaire City Hospital with cuts and bruises suffered from a nightmarish 7-mile journey down the Ohio River.

Amber Colvin said she and a friend were alone in Amber's family's one-story frame house when they heard the walls of the house shaking. Water surged into the basement and Amber and Kerri Polivka, 12, jumped into a bathtub for safety.

The tub washed into the creek and broke. Amber said she hung onto logs and drifted. The water wasn't moving very fast and Amber was able to reach shore and climb up a big hill. She said she yelled for help for a long time but nobody came. Kerri was still missing Saturday.

A makeshift morgue was set up in Shadyside and the Red Cross dispatched nine vans to help feed displaced people. Utility crews throughout eastern Ohio were working to restore service for those left without power and telephone service.

Mark Coffland, a trustee for Mead Township, who lost his own home, said he believed the list of those unaccounted for was fairly accurate.

''We're a small community. Everyone knows what everyone else is doing. If someone shows up missing, we know.''

But others had little hope for the missing.

''I don't believe there's any chance for them,'' said Charles Vogt, a coroner's investigator in Belmont County. ''They either got out or they're dead.''

DETROIT (JUNE 16) UPI - The FBI declined comment Saturday on broadcast and published reports that the name of Isiah Thomas, captain of the NBA champion Detroit Pistons, has surfaced in a federal investigation of gambling.

The reports by Detroit Free Press Saturday and WJBK in Southfield, Mich., Friday night came just after Thomas led the Pistons to their second consecutive NBA title Thursday night.

The Free Press said sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, stressed Thomas is not the target of the investigation, which allegedly concerns a multi-million dollar sports betting ring.

Those sources said no one has accused Thomas of betting on sporting events although he is alleged to have been involved in high-stakes dice games.

''The Detroit office of the FBI has no comment at this time,'' said spokesman Thomas Martin. He said he did not know whether a statement was planned at a later date.

The Free Press said Thomas could not be reached for comment.

Pistons General Manager Jack McCloskey said he was privy to some of the information but declined to elaborate.

John Campinigro, an agent for Thomas, told WJBK the Pistons star learned of the investigation Friday afternoon and vows to cooperate fully with the probe.

The paper and television station both said Thomas' name appears on checks totaling $100,000 dollars which have been subpoenaed by a grand jury innvestigation centering Henry Alan Hilf of West Bloomfield.

Those checks allegedly were cashed by Thomas at a Center Line supermarket owned by Imad Denha. The Free Press and WJBK said Denha is suspected of laundering gambling money.

Campinigro told WJBK Thomas admits cashing the checks but denies involvement in illegal gambling.

Campinigro could not be reached by UPI for comment Saturday.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 16) UPI - More than two-thirds of Americans support a proposed constitutional amendment to make burning Old Glory illegal, according to a Newsweek poll released Saturday.

But, the survey for the magazine's June 25 issue found that a growing number of Americans support a recent Supreme Court ruling that flag-burning is a protected form of free speech.

Thirty-seven percent of Americans surveyed said they agreed with the Supreme Court's latest ruling on flag burning, an increase from the 28 percent who backed a similar ruling by the court in June 1989.

Yet, when asked if Congress should pass a constitutional amendment to outlaw flag-burning, 68 percent said yes.

In addition, 73 percent of those surveyed said a candidate's position on flag-burning is important to them when they decide how to vote in an election for governor, member of Congress or state legislature.

On another free-speech topic, few Americans in the Newsweek survey supported court rulings against the rap music group ''2 Live Crew.'' A Florida judge ruled the group's lyrics are obscene, subjecting record sellers to criminal prosecution.

The survey found 65 percent believed that music with violent or explicit lyrics should be available in their communities. Five percent believe the music should be available to any buyer; 22 percent said it should be available with a warning label, and 38 percent think it should be available only to adult buyers.

Asked about standards in their communities on sexually explicit material, 46 percent said the standards should be kept as they are and 44 percent said they should be stricter. Only 5 percent said the standards should be less strict.

The Newsweek poll, conducted Wednesday and Thursday by The Gallup Organization, has a margin of error of 4 percent.

Galveston, TX (JUNE 16) UPI - With firefighters and salvage crews finally seizing control of the Mega Borg, efforts shifted Saturday to protecting Texas beaches from the remnants of 4.3 million gallons of light crude oil spilled by the crippled tanker.

Coast Guard Petty Officer Chuck Kalnbach said an oil sheen had floated on prevailing winds and currents to within 15 miles of Galveston Island, near where thousands of vacationers were playing in the sun and surf.

Despite the prevailing southeasterly winds, Kalnbach said currents off the island during the summer months will help keep the oil spill offshore. But he said he could not predict where the oil would spread.

''We essentially are playing a game of roulette,'' he said.

The maritime drama began eight days ago when an explosion ripped through the engine room of the 853-foot-long tanker, which was carrying a cargo of 38 million gallons of light Angolan crude oil. A fire quickly engulfed 200 feet of the ship while crude oil spilled in the Gulf of Mexico 57 miles southeast of Galveston.

Smit American, an international salvage firm hired by the KS Mega Borg II investment group and Mosvold Shipping of Farsund, Norway, pronounced the fire under control Friday.

''At this point, we have no smoke or flames, but we do have a hot (hull) surface,'' Coast Guard Petty Officer Mark Sedwick said Saturday.

The fire was fed by oil leaking from one of the ship's 16 cargo compartments, the No. 4 tank. Sedwick said that leak had stopped Saturday, though the below-decks area was still too hot for crews to find out why the leak stopped.

''We are saying that the leak has virtually stopped, but why, we really don't know at this point,'' he said.

Salvage crews said they believed mangled pipes in the No. 4 tank were causing the leak, and speculated the oil level had dropped below the leaking pipes.

The tanker, however, has so far spilled 4.3 million gallons of its cargo into the Gulf. Most of the light crude oil burned away on the water or evaporated and dispersed on its own. Thousands of gallons of chemical dispersants were dropped on it, turning the oil into a non-toxic mousse. In addition, skimmer boats have picked up 202,000 gallons.

Still, Coast Guard officials say, between 12,000 gallons and 40,000 gallons remain in the Gulf.

''The Coast Guard effort (to control the spill) will be taking an attack to the oil while it's offshore,'' Sedwick said. ''It makes more sense than trying to fight it when it reaches the shore. At this point, we think if anything does reach shore, it will just be tar balls. What's closest right now is a sheen, which is not near as serious as an oil slick.''

State, federal and private environmental groups mobilized hundreds of volunteers and equipment on shore to cleanup any oil as fast as it can hit shore and to help any wildlife caught in it.

Galveston Mayor Doug Matthews Saturday said equipment that had been set up on the west end of the island was shifted to the east end and across Galveston Bay to the Bolivar Peninsula, where latest projections say the oil had the highest probability of hitting.

''We're going with a zone defense,'' Matthews said. ''We're ready for anything that comes ashore in our area.''

Five skimming vessels were working along the leading edge of the oil, hoping to pick most of it up before it could hit shore.

Once the hull of the tanker cools, salvage crews planned to try to level the ship, which is heeling (bow up) and listing to port, by pumping oil and saltwater from one tank to another to redistribute weight. Once the tanker is level, the cargo will be pumped into smaller tankers and then the burned-out hulk will be towed to shore.

LOS ANGELES (JUNE 16) UPI - Federal officials plan to sue 16 companies accused of releasing toxic material into Southern California coastal waters to force them to restore wildlife habitats decimated by the pollution, it was reported Saturday.

The Los Angeles Times said the suits will be filed Monday by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration against firms it charges have polluted the waters off the Palos Verdes Peninsula as long as 40 years ago.

By all accounts, the suits could assess the companies millions of dollars, the Times said.

The legal action would enforce a long-ignored provision of federal environmental law that requires polluters to both clean up toxic waste and restore damaged wildlife habitats to their natural state.

The suits would represent a potentially sweeping effort to force environmental responsibility on corporate America, in which large tracts of polluted land and water - some of it damaged decades ago - could become the subject of government action, the newspaper said.

Possible targets of the suit, the newspaper said, include Westinghouse Electric Corp., Benjamin Moore & Co., Potlatch Corp., Simpson Paper Co., Montrose Chemical Corp. of California, Stauffer Management Co. and Stauffer Chemical Co., and Trans Harbor Services.

NOAA, a Commerce Department agency which oversees federal research services monitoring the nation's air and seas, is responsible for marine resources.

Officials from several companies facing suit declined comment until they could review the allegations, but others maintained that they were not liable for wildlife restoration costs.

''I know that some of the other companies say that some of these (pollution cases) trace back to times when these materials were thought not harmful,'' John Rafferty, general counsel of Benjamin Moore told the newspaper.

''And now they are having their feet held to the fire for something done then.''

NOAA biologists say that fish off Palos Verdes Peninsula are seriously contaminated, with Southern California's sea lions and dolphins carrying the highest body-fat concentrations of the long-banned pesticide DDT and polychlorinated bipheyls (PCBs).

Five months ago, the NOAA issued warning letters to 16 companies, indicating that the firms were liable for past pollution. The companies allegedly flushed the toxic DDT and PCBs into the Los Angeles County sewer system, which eventually dumped the material into the ocean.

The firms will be sued for damaging natural resources, under provisions of the 1980 Superfund Law and the 1972 Clean Water Act, which allows the government to assess polluters for restoration of wildlife.

While the government, notably the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, has long collected money for toxic cleanup, it rarely has forced polluters to pay for to restore wildlife.

Environmentalists, who have long called for such enforcement, hailed the promise of enhanced wildlife restoration.

''It's a very positive development to have the power of the federal government behind natural resource cleanups,'' Ann Notthoff, a senior project planner with the Natural Resources Defense Council told the Times. ''We've been waiting for it for a long time.''

PHILADELPHIA (JUNE 16) UPI - Dozens of pre-school children and eight

University of Pennsylvania veterinary students were exposed to lambs that had been injected with a potentially fatal virus, but school officials said Saturday the risk of anyone getting ill was extremely remote.

Nevertheless, the university is recommending that a score of students and staff be tested for the virus as a precaution, and has offered blood tests to about 100 children who came in contact with the lambs.

A university spokesman said a breech in laboratory regulations by a senior researcher exposed the students, staff and the children who petted the lambs during a field trip last month to Penn's New Bolton Center near Kennett Square, Pa. The lambs had been inoculated with the HTLV-1 virus, which can cause a fatal form of leukemia.

''It's a very serious violation,'' said Barry Cooperman, Penn's vice provost for research.

Cooperman said the inoculated lambs were supposed to be isolated during the experiment, but instead were allowed to mingle with a flock of about 150 sheep.

''There was an isolation barn prepared for the animals,'' Cooperman said. ''We're not clear as to why they were not sequestered there. We are now investigating that question.''

Cooperman said Penn has notified the parents of the pre-schoolers, and at a meeting last night at the Kennett Square Cooperative pre-school, offered to give blood tests to the parents and their children.

''We're not recommending they be tested, because their risk is extremely low,'' Cooperman said. ''But we have offered to do the tests at our expense.''

Cooperman said the injections to lambs were administered by Dr. Jorge Ferrer, a professor of Microbiology at Penn's School of Veterinary Medicine. He said Ferrer was conducting an experiment to find a vaccine for the virus.

Penn spokeswoman Carol Farnsworth said it is unlikely anyone who came in contact with the lambs will contract the virus, which can cause a form of adult leukemia. She said the virus, like AIDS, is only transmitted through sexual contact, mother's milk or blood.

Cooperman said the veterinary students faced a slightly greater risk of contracting the virus than the children because they may have come in contact with the lamb's blood.

But he noted that only a tiny percentage of people who are infected with the virus ever develop leukemia. He said that while the virus is rare in the United States, it is common in other parts of the world. He said that in Trinidad and Tobago and a section of Japan, 20 percent of the population carries the virus. But he said only about one in 600 of those develop leukemia.

The HTLV-1 virus, which is in the same family as AIDS, is a so-called retrovirus. Cooperman said it can take between 10 to 30 years for the virus to develop in humans.

(JUNE 16) UPI - Rescue crews are poring over flood-ravaged rural eastern Ohio today in search of 50 people who are missing after powerful flash floods swept the region. Officials say at least 14 people were killed in the torrential rains and subsequent flooding. Three six-inch-deep creeks were transformed into ragging torrents that knocked homes off their foundations and swept away cars.

A Mexican government oil skimming ship has arrived to help eight other vessels remove oil from the Gulf of Mexico near a disabled Norwegian tanker. The Coast Guard says the light crude oil remained about 28 miles from the coast as of last night... but it could reach Texas beaches ''any time this weekend.'' Divers are set to make a survey of the tanker's hull later today.

Nicaraguan President Chamorro says she wants to completely disarm her nation's military on a level similar to that of Costa Rica. Chamorro made her proposal at a summit conference of six Central American presidents in Guatemala. Costa Rica is the only Central American country without an army... relying on the United States for protection from invasion.

Authorities in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, say three people were killed last night when a sightseeing helicopter crashed at a fair. The helicopter crashed just after takeoff at the All-Iowa Fair... killing the pilot and two passengers. Witnesses say the helicopter was taking off and got about 100 feet into the air when is swerved sideways and went directly down. It crashed in a parking lot.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (JUNE 16) UPI - Astronauts on long space trips will be able to eat fresh produce with a ''salad machine'' being developed at NASA's Ames Research Center, it was reported Saturday.

Project manager Dr. Mark Kliss said the first working model of a machine was being tested that can produce three salads per person per week for a crew of four. It can also recycle the water transpired by plants back into the nutrient delivery system and possibly produce potable water for crew use.

Kliss said the presence of plants and the ability to ''cultivate'' plants in space will improve crew morale by providing them with a creative outlet during their free time, much like tending a garden on Earth.

''Our goal is to produce a variety of fresh salad vegetables for consumption by the crews of Space Station Freedom and other long-duration missions,'' Kliss said.

In the past, he noted, one of the first things astronauts asked for following days of eating freeze-dried or preserved foods was fresh produce.

He said garden-variety plants such as leaf lettuce, carrots, radishes, onions, sprouts, tomatoes, peppers and cucumbers are being considered for inclusion in the salad machine, which must grow the plants in 28.2 cubic feet of space.

Because of the limited space, he said, some plants will be smaller than the varieties found on Earth. Tomato plants, for example, will be less than 12 inches high and because there is no gravity they will grow upside down or sideways.

Kliss said the plants would be grown from seeds germinated in small cassettes. Once the seeds sprout, they will be placed in the plant growth chamber containing a nutrient delivery system.

He said the activity of planting sprouts and harvesting mature plants would only require 15 to 20 minutes of an astronaut's time every few days. Using hydroponic or soil-less techniques, he said, will make a plant's growth time much quicker than it's field-grown counterparts.

Kliss said he hopes to have the salad machine fully operational by Space Station Freedom's scheduled completion later this decade.

LITTLE ROCK, AR (JUNE 16) UPI - A man convicted of killing a Fort Smith, Ark., policeman was denied a stay of execution Saturday by the U.S. Supreme Court and was scheduled to die by electrocution at 9 p.m. Monday.

Lawyers for the convicted killer lost a round of appeals at the state level on Thursday and on Friday had asked the high court to stop what would be the first execution in Arkansas since 1964.

The nine justices voted 7-2 against granting the stay.

The inmate, John Edward Swindler, was moved Friday morning to a holding cell next to the death chamber and the electric chair at Cummins Prison near Pine Bluff, Ark., about 60 miles southeast of Little Rock.

The state Board of Parole and Community Rehabilitation voted 5-0 Thursday against recommending clemency for Swindler. Gov. Bill Clinton then turned down the convict's petition for clemency.

Later Thursday, a three-judge panel of the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis refused to block Swindler's electrocution.

Swindler, 46, of Columbia, S.C., received the death penalty for the 1976 shooting death of Fort Smith, Ark., police officer Randy Basnett. He was wanted for the 1976 slayings of two Columbia teenagers when he killed Basnett.

He would be the first inmate executed in Arkansas since Charles F. Fields in 1964, who was convicted of rape.

Defense lawyers Thurman Ragar Jr. and Gerald Coleman asked the Supreme Court Friday for a stay of execution. The request appeared to be the defense's last hope to prevent the electrocution.

Swindler has been convicted in the Basnett slaying twice. After his first conviction, the state Supreme Court overturned the verdict because the trial judge refused to move the trial from Fort Smith. The second trial was held in a different county, but the verdict was the same.

The second verdict and death sentence have been upheld by the Arkansas Supreme Court and the U.S Supreme Court.

VATICAN CITY (JUNE 16) UPI - Pope John Paul II praised cadets from the New York State Maritime Academy ship Empire State on Saturday, saying they ''inspire and promote the cause of peace in an exemplary way.''

The cadets attended a special audience in the Vatican's Clementine Hall.

In the English-language speech published by the Vatican, the pope addressed the cadets as ''Dear Marines of the USS Empire State,'' indicating they were Marines from a U.S. Navy ship. But the error was apparently due to a language confusion, using the Italian term ''marines'' instead of ''sailors''.

The pope said he was asking the Lord ''to sustain you in strength so that you can respond generously to your personal and professional duties.'' The Empire State is currently cruising in Mediterranean waters.

Pope John Paul recalled that during his October 1987 visit to the United States he said in a speech to then President Ronald Reagan in Miami: ''Service to humanity has always been a special part of the vocation of America and is still relevant today.''

''You carry on that noble tradition insofar as your professional activity is ultimately at the service of the cause of peace and the common good,'' the pope told the cadets from the New York State Maritime Academy ship Empire State.

''By serving your country and by putting aside your own personal preferences and plans, even to the extent of placing your lives at risk, you inspire and promote the cause of peace in an exemplary way.

''People see in you not merely young men who have undergone a strict training program but people of integrity, capable of making sacrifices for the good of their country,'' John Paul said.

TURIN, ITALY (JUNE 16) UPI - Three-time World Cup champion Brazil strolled to a 1-0 Group C victory over first-time qualifier Costa Rica Saturday to reach the second round.

The 57,007 fans who expected a scoring spree saw the South American soccer giants garner their only goal in the 33rd minute. Muller turned in a beautiful shot from inside the box which deflected off Costa Rican centerback Mauricio Montero into the net.

A dogged defense and some inspired goalkeeping by Gabela Conejo prevented the Brazilians from further scoring.

Brazil Coach Sebastiao Lazaroni was disappointed with his team's output but had praise for goalkeeper ConeJo.

''We had a lot opportunities for goals, but unfortunately the attackers didn't come through. The Costa Rican goalkeeper played a great match. He didn't let us score,'' he said.

The teams came into the match 1-0, the Brazilians having defeated Sweden 2-1 and Costa Rica upsetting Scotland 1-0.

''This was an important game because we played against one of the favorites,'' said Costa Rica's Yugoslavian coach, Velibor Milutonovic. ''The result was aceeptable. We still have a chance to qualify for the second round.

Brazil was in command right from the start, maintaining unrelenting pressure on the Costa Rican defense with near-goal shots being fired virtually without respite.

''We played with more confidence the first game, but we were more nervous this time,'' Milutonovic said. ''We were well-aware of the experience of the Brazilians. We can't feel too bad. They had a lot of opportunities.''

(JUNE 16) UPI - Rescue crews in eastern Ohio are still searching for more bodies in the rural mountain town of Shadyside and the surrounding area. At least 14 people were killed in flash floods... and another 50 remain unaccounted for. Authorities say the floods came so quickly three valleys were basically hit by 20-foot-high walls of water. Three six-inch-deep creeks were transformed into raging torrents that knocked homes off their foundations and swept away cars, trucks, and a 30-ton bulldozer.

Coast Guard officials say a salvage master will board the Mega Borg today to determine whether the fire aboard the Norwegian tanker is completely out. But officials add the blaze appears to be totally extinguished. A Mexican oil skimmer is helping eight U-S vessels clean up the light crude oil leaked by the tanker which was rocked by an explosion a week ago. The oil is about 28 miles from the Texas coastline.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IA (JUNE 16) UPI - Federal investigators arrived Saturday at the scene of a helicopter crash that killed three people during an excursion ride outside the fairgrounds where one of the largest state fairs was being held.

Authorities said a helicopter pilot from Michigan and two passengers were killed in the crash of a helicopter at the All-Iowa Fair Friday night. The cause of the crash remained unclear Saturday.

The victims were identified as the pilot, Thomas C. Brooks, 31, of Eaton Rapids, Mich., and his two passengers, Carey Carnahan, 18, and Shane Burlingame, 20, both of Cedar Rapids.

Authorities said the helicopter, owned by Badger Helicopters Inc. of Janesville, Wis., was giving rides to the public when it took off at 10:33 p.m.

The aircraft got about 100 feet into the air when it swerved sideways and went directly down, crashing into a parking lot about 200 feet from a carnival ride.

David Smith of Cedar Rapids, a witness to the crash, said the helicopter disappeared in a moment.

''We heard a muffled boom and I heard somebody scream 'oh my God, they crashed,''' Smith said.

Officials said the parking lot in which the helicopter crashed is at the entrance to the fairgrounds. The All-Iowa Fair is one of the largest fairs held in Iowa. The annual event continued operations Saturday.

Police Sgt. Joe Cerruto said his department turned the investigation into the crash over to the National Transportation Safety Board and the Federal Aviation Administration. The federal investigators arrived on the scene Saturday afternoon.

Cerruto said because the accident occurred late at night there were not as many people at the fair.

''It was late enough at night there wasn't as big a crowd as if it had been earlier,'' Cerruto said.

Officials said several people were waiting in line for the $10 rides when the crash occurred. The helicopter rides were intended to last 3 to 4 minutes.

One carnival worker said he heard the helicopter make an unusual ''tick, tick'' sound just before it crashed.

MEDINAH, IL (JUNE 16) UPI - Scott Simpson birdied five holes on the front nine to move in front midway through the third round of the U.S. Open Saturday and Curtis Strange stormed back into contention in his bid to win the tournament for the third straight year.

Strange shot a 4-under 68 to climb within five shots of the lead but despite his excellent score, found a crowd of would-be champions again taking advantage of the defenseless Medinah Country Club course.

Simpson, winner of the 1987 Open, began the day four shots out of the lead. His 4-under 32 on the front nine lifted him to 9-under for the tournament and put him a shot in front of Mike Donald, who had completed eight holes.

Second-round leader Tim Simpson bogeyed two of the first three holes and was at 7-under through seven.

The group at 6-under included Mark Brooks through nine, John Huston through 10, Ian Woosnam through 11 and Jeff Sluman through eight. Australian Craig Parry shot a 68 Saturday and was at 5-under for the tournament.

Jack Nicklaus shot a 68 to get to 3-under and admitted he needed a super score Sunday to have a chance.

''I'll probably have to shoot a 64 tomorrow,'' Nicklaus said. ''And I think a 64 can be shot on this golf course.''

The Medinah course once again took a beating from some of the best players in the world.

During the first two rounds, there were 86 sub-par scores, more than there ever have been in all four rounds of any other Open. And as the leaders were making the turn, 30 of the 68 players remaining in the field were under par for the day.

''On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday this course was very tough,'' said Greg Norman, who shot a 69 Saturday for a 54-hole total of 2-under 214.

''Then, after the rains (Wednesday night), we had to completely turn our thinking around. We started playing target golf and it became a putting contest.

''If the leaders come back to us, we will have a chance. But I can't see that happening. It just doesn't feel like an Open course. I'm sure the USGA is disappointed.''

WARSAW, POLAND (JUNE 16) UPI - Pope John Paul II will visit his homeland twice next summer to help the Polish people give thanks for the political change sweeping Eastern Europe, the country's bishops said Saturday.

The pope will make his fourth pilgrimage home in June 1991, then return in August of that year to host young Catholics from all over the world at the shrine of the Black Madonna in the southern city of Czestochowa, the bishops said.

In a communique carried by the news agency PAP, the draft program of the pilgrimage includes a visit to 11 cities in eastern and central Poland, including Warsaw. It gave only partial dates for the visit.

The bishops said the people will mark the occasion to thank God and the pope for the regained freedom of Poland and other areas of Eastern Europe.

''(The visit) will be a great thanksgiving to God for the recovered freedom as well as thankfulness to the Holy Father for his tremendous contribution to the changes which have taken place in Poland and in central and eastern Europe,'' the statement said.

Poland first shed communism last year and now has a Solidarity-led government. Hungary and Czechoslovakia also removed communists from power and there have been democratic elections in Romania and Bulgaria.

The communique said the pope invited young people from all over the world to meet him in Czestochowa Aug. 14-15, 1991.

The Solidarity government is implementing a tough free-market economic program that supressed the hyperinflation but brought deep recession and unemployment that topped 450,000.

In the northern city of Mlawa, Solidarity leader Lech Walesa met farmers who blocked roads for several days and occupied a local dairy to protest low prices for milk they supply. During three hours of talks, which were transmitted over the loudspeakers to a few thousand farmers, he convinced them to suspend the action, allowing time for the farmers union to negotiate on the issue.

''With the view to the supreme good which is the free fatherland we suspend the protest action,'' said a communique signed by Walesa and the protesters.

But they warned a full scale protest will be launched early in July unless milk production is restored to profitability.

The government decided Friday to use police to clear the roadblocks but after hours of talks the farmers were persuaded to remove their farm machinery while waiting for Walesa.

''It's the first time this government took a decision to send police against the people,'' Roman Jagielinski, an official of the Peasant Party, remarked angrily.

(JUNE 16) UPI - A Mexican government-owned skimming ship is helping at least eight other vessels today in the fight to keep spilled oil from the burned tanker ''Mega Borg'' in the Gulf of Mexico from reaching the coast of Texas. The Coast Guard says five skimmers were working near the tanker itself with three more between the northwestern point of the slick and the coast. Five more skimmer ships are on their way to the area.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir has warned that any distancing between the United States and Israel almost automatically leads to dangerous tension in the Mideast. Shamir also said in an interview that his government is NOT contemplating any attacks on Arab nations. He said only a ''strong and confident'' Israel will be able to make peace with the Palestinians.

BUCHAREST, ROMANIA (JUNE 16) UPI - Calm returned to Bucharest and political opposition leaders began to regroup Saturday after two days of vigilante violence in which pro-government coal miners brutalized opposition demonstrators and attacked Gypsy neighborhoods.

Opposition spokesman Dinu Patriciu told reporters Saturday the government's opponents would not be silenced by the miners' attacks, which left the headquarters of two leading opposition parties and a newspaper in ruins.

''In the present atmosphere, as in the past, we will fight for democracy '' said Patriciu, surrounded by debris from the miners' attack on the party offices Thursday.

''I am very optimistic because every time violence turns against who directs the violence.''

Patriciu said the Liberal Party would demand money from the government to help rebuild its offices and replace damaged equipment. But he said he does not believe the miners were under direct orders to attack the opposition.

''A mass of 10,000 people cannot be controlled,'' he said. ''But their behavior was influenced by certain propaganda,'' he said.

A state-run television broadcast Saturday said more than 1,000 people had been arrested during three days of unrest that left six people dead and more than 400 wounded.

The television report also said that about 500 Gypsies seeking revenge for the attacks on their neighborhoods clashed with miners Friday at a Bucharest train station. The report could not be independently confirmed.

Attacks on Gypsy neighborhoods appeared to be a racial sidelight to the miners' actions in the city center. In central Bucharest, the violence was politically oriented and, in some instances, random.

Victims of the attacks said windows were smashed and several men beaten.

''Two buses of miners came. They chased our children through the street, then jumped over the fence with knives, clubs, and axes,'' said Maria Comanescu, a 51-year-old widow and mother of three.

''They were shouting a lot and said they would kill us because we are Gypsies,'' she said.

She showed visitors a front window she said had been smashed by miners. The glass had been shattered and strips of moulding were broken and dangling.

Comanescu, whose story was backed up by about 15 family members and neighbors, said the miners came directly to the five-house compound in the residential section of Ferentari where about 60 Gypsies live. The miners, who are from the Jiu Valley in southern Transylvania, appeared to know exactly where they were going.

''They didn't go for the Romanians, just the Gypsies,'' said Radu Constantin, who displayed bruises on his back he said he from the miners.

''The miners couldn't know the places in Bucharest where the Gypsies live. That's why I think the police must have told them,'' he said. They said Gypsy homes were similarly attacked in two other sections of Bucharest and several men were beaten.

Interior Ministry officials were unavailable for comment.

The opposition National Liberal Party condemned the attacks on the gypsies. But Patriciu said he did not believe the ruling National Salvation Front had directed the raids.

There was no trace Saturday of the thousands of club- and truncheon-wielding miners who invaded Bucharest early Thursday, answering President-elect Ion Iliescu's appeal to workers to save his government from anti-communist demonstrators who attacked the television station and police headquarters Wednesday.

A steady rain kept many people indoors and washed some of the debris from the sidewalks, aided by a few Gypsy women using hand-made brooms.

Most of the miners returned home Friday after Iliescu thanked them for their help.

The miners wrecked the offices of the Romania Libera newspaper and two political parties and terrorized their leaders, effectively crushing political dissent in a two-day terror spree that began early Thursday.

The newspaper was unable to publish again on Saturday, but an editor said he believed it would be back on the streets by Tuesday.

''So far it has been impossible to work, because of these conditions,'' Petrika Cleg said.

''We only want to publish if the government guarantees the content of the newpaper will not be controlled,'' he said.

BOSTON (JUNE 17) UPI - Three hundred activists opposing Cardinal Bernard Law's position on AIDS, gay rights and abortion rights protested Saturday outside Holy Cross Cathedral during ordination ceremonies for 11 new Roman Catholic priests.

Police said the event outside the cathedral in the city's South End generally was peaceful. One man was arrested after crossing a barricade that was set up to keep the demonstrators away from the indoor ceremonies.

The demonstration was sponsored by the Aids Coalition To Unleash Power, ACT UP, the Massachusetts Coalition for Lesbian and Gay Civil Rights, and the Reproductive Rights Network.

Organizers said they were protesting Law's interference in public policy on all three issues, and his long-standing opposition to AIDS education, civil rights protection for gays and abortion rights.

David Stitt of ACT UP said Law has ''a hateful policy towards AIDS information.

''At a time when thousands of us are dying and we are being assaulted in the streets, for him to take a position to encourage that kind of behavior to come out and call us immoral and irresponsible, only encourages more violence and more hatred toward gays and lesbians,'' Stitt said.

Earlier, John Walsh, spokesman for the Boston archdiocese said, ''I think that while people claim to be opposed to, or are attacking the archbishop of Boston, what they are really opposed to is the teachings of the church.''

The demonstrators marched in a circle, most of them chanting and carrying signs.

David LaFontaine of the gay rights coalition called Law ''arguably the most powerful and most malicious enemy of gay and lesbian people in Masschusetts.

''He is really taking away our freedom in this state,'' LaFontaine said. ''Through pressure, calls to individual senators and by misinforming parishioners, he effectively directed the killing of the gay rights bill in 1983, 1987 and 1988. And this year, when we face a referendum question, he will try to use his influence to repeal, for the first time ever, a civil rights law in Massachusetts.''

On Friday, Mayor Raymond Flynn warned against violence at the cathedral and said police were prepared to arrest any demonstrators who disrupted the ordination.

After the ceremony, the head of a local Catholic civil rights organization issued a statement calling the demonstration ''an obscene assault on the Catholic faith.

''What we saw today was not an ordinary political demonstration, but a deliberate, orchestrated attempt to disrupt a solemn religious ceremony,'' said Philip Lawler, director of the Catholic League for Religious and Civil Rights.

(JUNE 16) UPI - The search continues today for more bodies in the wake of flash flooding that inundated eastern Ohio. ATLANTA (JUNE 17) UPI - The second AIDS patient to undergo an experimental blood-heating treatment showed progress and was ''doing very well'' Saturday, two days after the procedure to try ridding his body of the disease, his doctor said.

Tony Mascio, 38, who underwent the hyperthermia procedure Thursday at Atlanta Hospital, was awake and reported to be feeling ''better than I look'' in the intensive care unit, Dr. Kenneth Alonso said.

''He is stable,'' Alonso said. ''He is off his ventilator. He is speaking to his family. His white (blood-cell) counts are stable. Whereas at the time of his admission he had virtually no lymphocytes in his blood, he has nearly 800 now. He is doing very well.''

Family members, who traveled to the small hospital with Mascio, echoed the doctor's report.

''He looks great, he is alert and he is getting better and better by the hour,'' said a member of Mascio's family who asked not to be identified.

Mascio, who was diagnosed with acquired immune deficiency syndrome four years ago, came to the doctors with AIDS-related tumors on his lungs, tonsils and liver, four months after the procedure appeared to have helped an Atlanta waiter with the deadly virus.

The yet-to-be-proven AIDS treatment is being watched with guarded optimisim in the medical community, with some physicians expressing disapproval that the method is being widely publicized before being thoroughly tested.

The national Centers for Disease Control and the National Institutes of Health, where much of the federal research on AIDS is conducted, have refrained from commenting on the procedure.

The condition of the first patient to undergo the treatment, Carl Crawford has appeared to have improved steadily since he underwent the treatment Feb. 20.

Crawford and the doctors say his AIDS-related Kaposi's sarcoma cancers have virtually disappeared from his body and no sign of the virus has been detectable in his blood.

Crawford, who has made himself available for interviews in the past week while the spotlight has been trained on Mascio, appears to be in good health and claims to be feeling none of the AIDS symptoms that prompted him to prepare his will.

The treatment involves heating the body to 108 degrees Fahrenheit for two hours by passing the blood through a machine, where it is heated to about 115 degrees.

The theory behind the procedure is that it heats the body beyond a temperature it can naturally attain in order to kill the virus - in the same way fever fights disease.

Officials at one of the leading private AIDS organizations, the American Foundation for AIDS Research, are cautioning patients not to get too hopeful about the procedure.

''What scares me is ... frustration over not having many alternatives motivates people to go out and try something that is very unproven,'' said Dr. Mervyn Silverman, president of the organization.

''This is a single case report. It is something that has some real potential downside possibilities,'' he said. ''(Patients) should look at this with caution.''

MIAMI (JUNE 17) UPI - Eastern Airlines employees and property have been the targets of more than 500 incidents of violence and vandalism reported to police since the carrier's machinists began striking 15 months ago, a published report says.

The incidents ranged from pranks such as putting golf balls in gas tanks or human feces on sidewalks to more serious crimes such as throwing roofing nails at employees or planting bombs on property, said The Miami Herald in its early Sunday edition.

''This is one side of the strike that's never been reported,'' said Dade County police Lt. Sam Duncan. ''The criminal mischief that's gone on is incredible.''

The 9,300-member International Association of Machinists went on strike March 4, 1989. Since then, area police have handled 554 cases of violence and vandalism, the report says. The FBI is investigating three bombings.

Most of the incidents occurred close to Eastern headquarters and not near the airport's passenger terminals. Police blame the trouble on a small number of strikers.

A 1989 Eastern internal memorandum lists 828 incidents of ''harassment, vandalism and sabotage'' since January 1987, two months after Texas Air Chairman Frank Lorenzo took control of the company, the Herald said. The union calls that number an exaggeration.

The number of police reports has tapered off since court-appointed trustee Martin Shugrue was appointed two months ago to try to pull Eastern out of bankruptcy, the Herald reported.

But just three weeks ago, an airlines reservation agent was hit in the eye by a roofing nail as she left work, one of the most serious incidents reported. Police suspect strikers threw nails from a passing car.

''This strike has one of the highest levels of animosity I've ever seen,'' said Quinn Mills, professor of business administration at Harvard Business School. ''What began as a dispute over wages and hours has become a fight to the death. Both sides are killing the airline.''

The union and Eastern downplay the severity of the incidents.

''It's not a story,'' said Charles Bryan, president of District Lodge 100 of the IAM. ''I think the story is the absence of violence and vandalism, not the presence of it.''

Eastern spokesman Robin Matell declined to talk about specific acts of vandalism against employees or property. ''We've decided that it wouldn't serve any useful purpose to rehash these old incidents,'' he said.

Most of the vandalism was ''limited to the early stages of the strike,'' Matell said. ''People involved in that kind of vandalism obviously drew the line at anything that could have compromised safety.''

Eastern, which bolstered security when the strike began, has always been safe to fly, Matell said.

The Federal Aviation Administration agreed. ''I'm not aware of any sabotage that affected the safety of (Eastern) flights,'' said FAA spokesman Jack Barker in Atlanta.

Incidents reported to police include strikers spitting on workers and someone cutting transmission lines linking Eastern computers with its airport fuel tanks. Employees' property was hit by small bombs on three occasions, but no one was injured.

The picket-line violence has gone both ways. ''I've heard very little said about our guys getting knocked down and then being arrested when they were the ones being attacked,'' Bryan said.

Police said three of the 15 people charged with strike-related crimes were working Eastern employees.

Bryan condemned the violence. ''I have always admired Gandhi and Martin Luther King Jr. and people who advocate peaceful resistance,'' he said. ''My philosophy has always been crystal clear: We don't support or advocate anything destructive.

''But since Lorenzo's regime, Eastern has been like an occupied country to us,'' he said. ''All these people did was destroy and plunder Eastern, so obviously you have frustration and individuals who don't subscribe to a nonviolent approach.''

(JUNE 16) UPI - The American Civil Liberties Union says discrimination against AIDS sufferers is spreading faster than the epidemic itself. (JUNE 16) UPI - The drama that began eight days ago with an explosion aboard the tanker ''Mega Borg'' in the Gulf of Mexico is now shifting to Texas beaches. About one-thousand rescue workers are combing through mangled metal, logs and mud in eastern Ohio, searching for bodies in the wake of devastating floods. At least 11 people are confirmed dead in Thursday night's torrential rains... but officials fear there will be NO survivors among the 51 others still missing.

BEDFORD, MA (JUNE 18) UPI - A Delta Air Lines MD-80 jet bound from Dallas-Fort Worth to Boston's Logan International Airport was diverted Saturday to Hanscom Field after the pilot reported hydraulic problems, officials said.

Flight 694, with 150 passengers aboard, made an emergency landing at the Bedford airport at 3:09 p.m. after making two approaches at fog-shrouded Logan Airport, Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Michael Ciccarelli said.

''There was a fog bank right off (Boston) Harbor,'' said Ciccarelli. ''The pilot said he had hydraulic problems.''

The pilot made a ''missed approach'' to a Logan runway at 2:40 p.m. and another unsuccessful attempt at 2:55 p.m. before requesting permission to land at Hanscom Field, Ciccarelli said.

No injuries were reported, and the passengers were bused to Logan around 4:45 p.m.

The FAA was investigating the incident.

ANTIGUA, Guatemala (JUNE 16) UPI - Six presidents sat down Saturday for a Central American summit to ''put the wars behind us'' and discuss ways collectively to improve their struggling economies.

The two-day summit began Saturday morning in Antigua, a Spanish colonial town lined with cobblestone streets and topped with red-tile roofs in a valley about 30 miles from Guatemala City.

The meeting got off to a late start as presidents, economic ministers, foreign ministers and other officials from Guatemala, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua and Panama gathered around television sets to watch Costa Rica play Brazil in the World Cup.

A Costa Rican government source said President Rafael Calderon, an avid soccer fan, had asked the night before that he be able to watch ''at least the first half.'' Costa Rica lost 1-0.

In a speech opening the summit, Guatemalan President Vinicio Cerezo urged his colleagues ''to put the wars behind us and begin constructing the means for an exchange of ideas to strengthen democracy.''

''If war is an act against humanity, then poverty is an act for which humanity is responsible,'' Cerezo said. ''We have to confront the problems of poverty, injustice and political and social differences between us.''

The stated theme of the summit was to seek ways to collectively improve the region's economies, including the formation of a Central American economic community along the lines of the European Community for the six Central American countries to trade as a bloc on world markets.

''To do that, we first have to remove the internal obstacles to exchange '' said Guatemalan Foreign Minister Ariel Rivera. ''If we can't openly trade among ourselves, how can we open up to the outside?''

Midway through Saturday's work session, the presidents confirmed individually that free trade in the region and finding new markets for Central American goods figured prominently in the talks.

Calderon said his country, having the most stable economy of the six nations, would have nothing to lose by forming a common market.

''The situation of Costa Rica is very similar to what other Central American countries aspire to be,'' he said. ''We have to be very clear not to promote competition between ourselves.''

Secretary of State James Baker was scheduled to arrive in Guatemala Sunday night and meet seperately with each of the presidents.

Guatemalan President Vinicio Cerezo, asked if meeting individually with Baker would hamper opportunities for cohesion, said ''we are going to meet with him with a united front.''

''We are working all this weekend to make decisions in common,'' he said. ''We are going to ask the U.S. to maintain a common position towards the things we will discuss, including debt.''

A reliable source in international finance said Baker would encourage the formation of a Central American economic community, and he would propose allying it with the United States, Europe and Japan.

A document outlining Baker's proposals to the presidents, obtained Saturday by United Press International, said the United States would seek the formation of an international group similar to the Group of 24 nations which was formed to coordinate development of Eastern Europe.

''Given how well this G-24 process has worked for Eastern Europe, the U.S. has been looking into the possibility of establishing a G-24-like process to support democracy and economic development in Central America,'' the document said.

The proposal also suggested including a Latin American country, possibly Venezuela, to serve as one co-chair. It said both the EC and Japan have separately encouraged such a coordinated effort.

In addition to economic revitalization, the heads of state were expected to discuss demilitarization of Central America.

The topic arose at the last minute, prompted by the announcement Friday by Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro that she would carry out major reductions in the Nicaraguan army next month.

Chamorro said the reductions were only the first step toward an eventual elimination of the army, whose leadership is loyal to the former Sandinista regime. She encouraged the other Central American presidents to shut down their armies as well.

The idea was immediately opposed by others attending the summit.

(JUNE 16) UPI - Ohio Governor Richard Celeste says the state now has more experience than it wants in cleaning up from disasters.

As Celeste explains- ''We have folks who have been working on disasters for three or four weeks solid.''

The state is contending with what Celeste calls ''a natural disaster of extraordinary proportions.'' Celeste says at least 11 people were killed when floods Thursday night turned typically tranquil creeks into torrents of destruction.

At least 70 homes were destroyed and about 40 others were rendered inhabitable in the thunderstorms, which dumped five-and-a-half inches of rain in three-and-a-half hours.

While 11 people are known dead... officials predict the death toll will rise. 51 other people are still missing, and officials are offering little hope any will be found alive.

Emergency crews are looking for bodies among the wreckage... a search that is expected to continue for several days.

The floods are the latest in weather-related damage to strike Ohio. Last month, 14 counties were declared federal disaster areas after tornadoes and heavy rain swept the state.

The Coast Guard says it is NOT sure why... but oil has virtually stopped leaking from the tanker ''Mega Borg'' in the Gulf of Mexico.

The ship's below-deck area is still too hot for crews to climb in and see, but officials speculate that the oil level probably fell below the leaking pipes.

The fire aboard the ship was pronounced under control yesterday, with the focus now shifting to Texas coastal areas, where oil spilled from the tanker is expected to hit.

An estimated four-point-three-Million gallons of light crude has spilled from the tanker since it was hit by an explosion and fire eight days ago.

Most of the oil burned away or evaporated, with skimmer boats picking up 202-thousand gallons. Still, the Coast Guard says as much as 40-thousand gallons remains in the Gulf.

The Coast Guard says it is trying to clean up the oil before it hits shore where it's expected to arrive in the form of tar balls.

But state, federal and private environmental groups are mobilizing to clean up oil as fast as it hits shore.

(JUNE 16) UPI - A night of partying in Lynn, Massachusetts, turned into a night of violence.

Police say hundreds of people rampaged through the city's downtown early this morning, smashing windows and pelting police with rocks and bottles.

15 people were arrested in the Boston-area city before the crowds were dispersed. NO serious injuries were reported.

Police say the incident began just after midnight, when they cleared a predominantly Hispanic nightclub packed wall-to-wall with patrons... some of whom were smashing windows.

The estimated 250 party-goers then poured out into the city's main street in search of other drinking spots. And they NOT only ignored orders to disperse, but started throwing rocks and bottles at police.

Authorities finally cleared the streets by asking local bars to close their doors early.

Americans apparently are backing President Bush's attempt to change the Constitution in order to ban flag desecration.

Newsweek magazine says more than two-thirds of the Americans it surveyed support the proposed amendment to make burning the U-S flag illegal.

However, the magazine also says in the results released today that a growing number of Americans support a recent Supreme Court ruling on the issue. 37 percent of those questioned said they agreed with the high court decision that flag burning is a protected form of free speech.

The figure is an increase from the 28 percent who backed a similar ruling by the court last year.

And, President Bush is today following a week of political posturing on the flag issue by calling on Americans to mark Father's Day by flying the flag.

(JUNE 16) UPI - South Africa will dismantle its system of apartheid within five years.

That is the prediction... and the hope... of African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela.

The black nationalist today made the comments to a crowd of eight-thousand people in Amsterdam, the latest stop in his world tour to secure renewed economic sanctions against white-ruled South Africa.

Mandela's speech in part served to commemorate the 14th anniversary of a landmark uprising in the black South Africa township of Soweto .

The Soweto protest against the racial segregation of the South African school system resulted in tragedy when police killed about 600 protesters in an effort to quell the unrest.

In Johannesburg, tens of thousands of blacks are marking the anniversary, too. The rallies have an unusally festive flavor, however, as a result of the country's recent racial reforms.

Six Central American presidents are discussing ways of collectively improving their struggling economies at a summit that began today in Guatemala.

The two-day meeting is being held in a Spanish colonial town about 30 miles from Guatemala City.

The talks got off to a late start as the leaders gathered around T-V sets to watch Coast Rica lose to Brazil in the World Cup.

Guatemalan President Vinicio Cerezo opened the summit by urging his colleagues to- as he put it- ''put the wars behind us.'' Cerezo says the region has to confront the problems of poverty and social injustices.

U-S Secretary of State Baker is scheduled to arrive in Guatemala tomorrow night to meet with each of the presidents.

A reliable source in international finance says Baker will encourage the formation of a Central American economic community. The source adds that Baker will propose allying the community with the United States, Europe and Japan.

(JUNE 16) UPI - Police in San Francisco are bracing for a potentially explosive atmosphere as gay activists plan to protest against a major scientific conference on AIDS.

In the past, such a combination has led to street clashes and controversial police crackdowns.

Police Chief Frank Jordan does NOT want to see history repeat itself... and says he will rein in his forces during the Sixth International Conference on AIDS, which opens on Wednesday.

It was eight months ago when members of a riot squad ended a demonstration by the AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power, also known as ACT-UP, by beating protesters and bystanders.

The civilian injuries and criticism by Mayor Art Agnos pressured Jordan to change some crowd control procedures.

This time around, the chief and other top officers hope to keep the protests peaceful. He says all officers must watch a video that explains how AIDS is transmitted and what AIDS activists want to accomplish.

A group of two dozen gay officers volunteered to work the main protest site to further reduce tensions.

BOSTON (JUNE 17) UPI - Gov. Michael Dukakis, the 1988 Democratic presidential nominee, wants to remain involved in public service when his term ends in January and says he is very interested in the national health care debate, a published report said.

Dukakis has decided not to seek re-election and his term ends Jan. 3. He told the Boston Sunday Herald he had thought ''a little bit'' about his future career but was concentrating on Massachusetts' budget crisis.

''I want to be deeply involved in the national debate over health care,'' said Dukakis, 56, whose popularity in the Bay State has plunged since his 1988 loss to George Bush. ''That's one of the two or three most important domestic challenges and nobody's really dealing with it in Washington.''

Although unsure of what he'll do next, Dukakis said, ''It will be public service-connected. I'm very concerned about (getting) young people in public service. I don't want to see young people get turned off on it.

''When I'm out on campuses, I think I connect with kids. Here's a guy who's had high periods and low, great times and not so great, who's also got banged around and he's telling them to get into public service.''

His wife Kitty, who has been plagued by substance-abuse problems, is writing a book about the 1988 presidential campaign, but Dukakis said, ''I'm not much of a book writer. I like writing, but in short bursts.

''We are both young,'' Dukakis said. ''We've got a lot of energy. We've got a lot of things we haven't done we'd kind of like to do.''

Despite his fall from grace among Massachusetts voters, Dukakis said, ''I'll do everything I can to help my party.''

As for another bid for public office, Dukakis told the Herald, ''Maybe ... this is a crazy business.''

(JUNE 16) UPI - The search continues for flood victims in east-central Ohio...

Lithuania's government asked the parliament to freeze its independence declaration...

And, peace talks break down between the Liberian government and rebel forces...

These stories... and more... next, from United Press International:

One resident of east-central Ohio says it looks like ''a giant stepped on'' her community.

Floodwaters Thursday night did more than wash away houses and cars... it also killed at least 14 people and possibly more, with 46 still listed as missing.

About one-thousand rescue workers and volunteers continued today looking through twisted metal, logs and mud for victims or survivors. The difficult search is expected to last several more days.

What they found today was the bodies of three children.

Four of the dead found so far have been discovered outside Shadyside, a community of 43-hundred about 10 miles south of Wheeling, West Virginia. Six bodies were found in Dilles Bottom, seven miles to the south... and one was found near Glencoe, about 10 miles northwest of Shadyside.

In Shadyside, officials say they feel overwhelmed by the disaster. Mayor Anita Wiley is wondering how she can help families ''who have lost everything.'' Wiley says she doesN'T know how to help to families who have lost a child, adding some of those families doN'T even have a picture left of the child.

(JUNE 16) UPI - The stand-off between the Soviet Union and the freedom-minded republic of Lithuania continues to show signs of weakening.

The Lithuanian government today recommended parliament temporarily suspend its March 11th declaration of independence... a move that paves the way for a possible compromise with Moscow.

Lithuania's Council of Ministers... the equivalent of a cabinet... approved the recommendation one day after Moscow announced it would partially lift its fuel embargo on the tiny republic as a show of good faith.

Lithuania's Parliament is set to consider the recommendation on Tuesday.

But even if deputies approve the plan, it would take effect only after the Soviet Union totally lifts its fuel blockade.

The official Soviet news agency responded warmly to the action. Tass called the move- quote- ''an important decision'' which can lead ''to the solution of all so-called Lithuanian problems.''

Talks between the Liberian government and rebels broke off today.

Negotiators reportedly came up with NO deals for a cease-fire, but will meet again to try to end the six-month-old civil war in the west African nation.

The Liberian Council of Churches... which organized the talks in neighboring Sierra Leone... reports the two sides decided to break off discussions until June 25th so negotiators could consult with their leaders in Liberia.

A statement signed by representatives of the government and the rebel National Patriotic Front said both sides would- quote- ''exercise self-restraint in the use of military force and public pronouncements'' during the recess.

But one rebel says he expects the fighting will continue in the meantime.

(JUNE 16) UPI - Romania's political opposition is trying to regroup in Bucharest amid the ruins of a two-day terror spree by pro-government coal miners.

An opposition spokesman says the government's opponents will NOT be silenced by the violence- quoting- ''as in the past, we will fight for democracy.''

The headquarters of Romania's two leading opposition parties, as well as an opposition newspaper, were trashed by the miners.

The opposition spokesman says the Liberal Party will demand money from the government to rebuild. He adds he does NOT believe the miners were under direct orders to attack the masses. But he adds ''their behavior was influenced by certain propaganda.''

A state-run television broadcast says more than one-thousand people were arrested during the two days of violence that killed six people and wounded more than 400 others.

And residents of Gypsy neighborhoods say miners raged through their homes in what appears to be a racial sidelight to the miners' assault on the

The bad news is that the oil spilled from the ship is only some dozen miles off the beaches of Galveston, Texas... and drifting closer.

BELGRADE (JUNE 17) - Three major border crossings between Yugoslavia and Greece were open again Sunday after a one-day blockage by thousands of Yugoslavs calling for an end to Greece's tourist visa requirements.

The last of the demonstrators left peacefully overnight, permitting long tailbacks of tourist cars and caravans through the crossings.

Holiday-makers were stranded in their vehicles all day Saturday at the three border crossings. Demonstrators provided snacks and beverages to the stalled travellers.

Motorists who sought the alternate route south via Bulgaria found the border crossings there hopelessly clogged with thousands of other drivers who had the same idea.

The border protestors had objected to Greece's requirement of visas for all visitors, including Yugoslavs living just across the border.

They had also called on Athens to recognise the Macedonian minority in northern Greece. Ethnic Macedonians in southern Yugoslavia also demanded the return of property they formerly held in northern Greece. Athens has rejected all claims, fearing that Belgrade could make territorial claims.

Athens, in turn, has been pressuring Belgrade to allow Greek trucks to drive through Yugoslavia to Western Europe.

LONDON (JUNE 17) - Italian police were right to intervene quickly and toughly against football hooligans in Sardinia on Saturday night, British sports minister Colin Moynihan said on Sunday.

"I am grateful to the police for their swift, tough and decisive action which defused this situation and prevented further incidents, avoiding any serious confrontation between English and Dutch supporters," said Mr. Moynihan, who was in Cagliari for the match.

But some fans hit blamed the Italian police for the trouble just before England played the Netherlands.

Trevor Jones, 32, from Swindon, said: "The police over-reacted. They were throwing stones at us. We were caught at the back right in the middle of it.

"It's not the Dutch who are a problem to us, but the Italians and the police.''

Hundreds of English fans battled with police when they were diverted from a cafe full of Dutch people. The fans hurled stones and police fired tear gas.

According to the British Embassy about 500 fans were rounded up, but only four were still being held.

Mr. Moynihan said: "Having studied police reports overnight, the orchestrated incident before the match was a sickening reflection that a mindless minority of thugs can bring English football into international disrepute."

"Over 14,000 English and Dutch fans enjoyed a trouble-free and excellent match at the ground. There were no incidents after the game. This was largely due to the Italian authorities providing, at our request, adequate coaches to help disperse the fans from the stadium," he said

LONDON (JUNE 17) - Police arrested Sunday more than 230 youths in the northern English city of Wakefield after an early morning raid on an "acid house" where large quantities of drugs were found, police said.

About 300 police cars, aided by police dogs, converged on a local park where loudspeakers were blaring "house music".

About 700 people were taken to seven different police stations in the area and interrogated. The arrests were for disturbing the peace and drug trafficking.

Since the late 1980s, "acid house" parties have drawn thousands of youths throughout Britain to abandoned warehouses and makeshift tents in wooded areas where they take drugs and listen to "house music."

The "acid house" vogue is inspired by the psychadelic 1960s when young people took LSD. Today, youths also take another drug called Ecstacy.

BERLIN (JUNE 17) - The East German parliament Sunday began debating the proposed immediate unification of East and West Germany after a surprise motion at a special session of the assembly.

The Chamber of the People (parliament), meeting in an extraordinary session here, passed a motion by a two-thirds majority (267 out of 400) to put the debate on the agenda for Sunday afternoon.

The parliamentary proceedings were being broadcast live on East German television.

The motion for the debate was presented at the beginning of the special session, which began after more than two hours delay, by the ruling conservative German Social Union, which includes Christian Democrats (CDU).

The motion called for parliament to "decide on the entrance this day of the Democratic German Republic" into the Federal Republic of Germany (West Germany) under article 23 of the West German constitution.

Article 23 deals with procedures for the eventual unification of the two states.

A leader of the opposition group Alliance 90The Greens, Wolfgang Ullmann, had suggested earlier in the day that the debate on immediate unification be put on the agenda.

The proposal provoked a series of impromptu meetings by political groups and delayed the opening of the parliamentary session.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl, who met during the day with East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere, was present at the session with several other West German leaders.

The Chancellor is in East Berlin for ceremonies commemorating the workers' uprising of June 17 1953 in East Germany.

BOGOTA (JUNE 17) - Colombian police were investigating the alleged leader of a cocaine-trafficking cartel Sunday to determine if he was eligible for extradition to the United States on drug charges.

Salomon Shueter Benitez, the reputed 49-year-old chief of the so-called Costa cocaine cartel headquartered along Colombia's Caribbean coast, was captured Friday in the port city of Barranquilla, 700 kilometers (440 miles) north of Santiago.

Police seized a revolver, 20 bullets, a passport, and an automobile from him during the arrest.

U.S. authorities are seeking the suspect's extradition so that he can be tried in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, on drug charges, officials here said.

Lieutenant Colonel Gustavo Socha, Barranquilla district police commander, said the alleged cocaine chief was captured with the help of Barranquilla citizens.

Mr. Shueter Benitez allegedly used his leather-goods factory to ship cocaine to Aruba, Panama, the United States and Italy.

TOKYO (JUNE 17) UPI - Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu plans to tour four Middle Eastern countries in August on the first visit to the region by a Japanese chief executive in 12 years, a published report said Sunday.

The daily Mainichi Shimbun, quoting government sources, said the trip will take Kaifu to Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Jordan and Turkey, starting Aug. 16.

If the journey materializes, Kaifu will be the first Japanese prime minister to visit the Middle East in 12 years. Former prime minister Takeo Fukuda visited Saudi Arabia, Qatar, Iran and the United Arab Emirates in 1978.

He would also be the first Japanese chief executive to pay an official visit to Egypt.

In Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil producer, and the United Arab Emirates, Kaifu will seek assurances for stable crude supply to Japan in the future, the daily said.

The UAR and Saudi Arabia are the top two crude oil suppliers to Japan.

Kaifu's discussions with leaders of Egypt and Jordan will be focused on peace in the Middle East, the newspaper said.

CARACAS, Venezuela (JUNE 17) UPI - A U.S. military adviser to the Venezuelan air force was killed Saturday by burglars at his home in Maracay, 57 miles from the capital, a local newspaper said.

Taber Mark Ward was killed when two robbers wielding a knife and gun broke into his house in the La Pedrera district of Maracay and slashed his throat, the Caracas newspaper Ultimas Noticias reported.

The U.S. Embassy in Caracas and the Defense Department could not immediately confirm or comment on the killing.

The newspaper said Ward had been trying to protect his wife, who was also wounded in the attack, when the robber inflicted the fatal wound.

The thieves escaped from the house, apparently unhurt, stealing U.S. dollars and valuable objects, it said.

Maracay police said they have launched an investigation into the case but did not specify the time of the crime, the newspaper said.

BEIJING (JUNE 17) UPI - A Shanghai court sentenced at least five people to death on convictions of murder, robbery and other violent offenses in what a local newspaper called a major crackdown on serious crime.

The death sentences were handed down from June 11-15, the Shanghai daily Wenhui Bao reported in Saturday's editions, which reached the capital Sunday.

The newspaper said a number of suspects had been convicted of serious crimes, including the robbing and killing of taxi drivers, but gave no specific figures or details of their sentencing.

Five suspects were named as having been sentenced to death. Executions in China typically are carried out within hours of conviction but the newspaper did not say whether the five had been put to death.

The newspaper said the convictions were part of a continuing crackdown on violent crime in Shanghai.

National, provincial and local public security and justice officials have announced repeated campaigns against serious crime, including a major campaign in Beijing purportedly aimed at making the capital safe for China's first hosting of the Asian Games in September.

At least 11 people have been executed in recent weeks during the Beijing anti-crime campaign, according to reports in the state-run media.

Executions in China generally are carried out by a single pistol shot to the base of the neck.

HONG KONG (JUNE 17) UPI - A Taiwanese cargo ship capsized early Sunday in a tropical storm off Hong Kong, killing three of the 19 crew members and leaving one missing, authorities said.

Marine police, using three rescue boats and a helicopter, plucked 15 of the crew from the T.N. Fu as the Taiwanese vessel sank in waters northeast of Hong Kong's Waglan Island, police said.

Police said they received distress calls from the Hong Kong-bound freighter late Saturday night and rescue craft arrived shortly after midnight.

''The ship was listed over about 45 degrees when police launches arrived but at that time it was still relatively stable and the captain wanted to do his best to try and make port,'' a police spokesman said.

Shortly after 2:30 a.m. the ship began having generator trouble and started sinking, sending the crew to the lifeboats, police said.

''The situation was confused, weather conditions were very bad. A helicopter was called in and it was some time before we knew what was happening,'' the spokesman said. ''At the end of the rescue only 15 of the 19 men were saved.''

The 15 survivers were taken for treatment to a nearby hospital, police said.

(JUNE 17) UPI - It was supposed to be a pitching duel between two of the National League's most accomplished pitchers.

Instead the game became a scoring feast for hitters.

The Pittsburgh Pirates overcame 4-0 and 6-4 deficits Saturday night by pounding Frank Viola for seven runs in an 11-6 battering of the New York Mets.

Viola, who was looking to become the league's first 10-game winner, faced off against eight-game winner Doug Drabek in what was expected to be a low-scoring affair. However, the teams rung up 18 runs and 25 hits in the see-saw contest.

Unlike Friday night in which New York had built a 7-1 lead and then held on for a 7-5 win, the Mets simply could not hold their two leads.

''I didn't take advantage of the situation,'' Viola said. ''Given a four-run lead I usually hold it. I didn't give up one lead, I gave up two. Pittsburgh did the things it needed to win.''

The Pirates scored four times in the fourth inning to tie the game 4-4 and went ahead 7-6 with three sixth-inning runs after trailing 6-4.

Drabek failed to earn the win, and Viola, who was rocked for seven runs and fell to 9-3. Neither pitcher survived the sixth inning.

Bob Kipper, who started the season on the disabled list after off-season arm surgery, pitched three innings in relief to even his record a 1-1.

The Pirates, which collected 15 hits and stopped the Mets four-game winning streak, won for the first time against the Mets in their last five games.

With the win, Pittsburgh moved three games up on second place Montreal and seven ahead of New York in the National League East.

Sid Bream's two-out, three-run home run capped a four-run eighth inning, the Pirates third big inning of the night. Jose Lind's groundout scored R.J. Reynolds for the other run.

Pirates Manager Jim Leyland said that while the Mets were hitting well his team didn't let down.

''They are bombing the ball right now,'' Leyland said of the Mets. ''But we hung in there, stayed after it and got a nice win.

''I thought we pushed awful hard last night but didn't come back far enough. Then falling behind 4-0 tonight we could have let down. But we didn't. I think it showed a little quality.''

What Pittsburgh showed was that they could fight back.

--- AROUND THE NL ---

Elsewhere in the National League, San Francisco zipped Atlanta 7-0, Los Angeles dropped San Diego 5-2, Philadelphia shaded Chicago 2-1, Cincinnati edged Houston 5-4 and St. Louis beat Montreal 5-3.

Giants 7, Braves 0

At San Francisco, Scott Garrelts fired a three-hit shutout for his first complete game and Matt Williams drove in three runs to lead San Francisco to their 14th win in their last 15 games. Garrelts, 4-6, notched his first shutout of the year and third straight victory. John Smoltz, 3-6, took the loss. Williams extended his hitting streak to a career-high 13 games.

Padres 5, Dodgers 2

At Los Angeles, Ramon Martinez tossed a four-hitter, and struck out eight batters to increase his major-league leading total to 108 while Los Angeles snapped a five-game losing streak. Martinez, 7-3, retired the final 14 batters he faced en route to his league-leading fifth complete game. Mike Dunne, 0-3, remained winless since last August 1.

Phillies 2, Cubs 1

At Philadelphia, Darren Daulton belted a seventh-inning homer to snap a 1-1 tie and send Chicago to their sixth straight loss. Darrel Akerfelds, 2-0, picked up the victory. Greg Maddux, took the loss and dropped to 4-7.

Reds 5, Astros 2

At Cincinnati, Chris Sabo, Barry Larkin and Eric Davis belted consecutive home runs in the fifth inning to power Cincinnati. Glenn Braggs and Todd Benzinger also homered for the Reds, who have won four straight. Danny Jackson, evened his record at 2-2 and Rob Dibble notched his seventh save. Jim Deshaies, 3-4, gave up five runs to take the loss.

Cardinals 5, Expos 3

At St. Louis, Willie McGee had three hits and knocked in the go-ahead run, and Bob Tewksberry picked up his first victory of the season to lead St. Louis and snap a five-game losing streak. Drew Hall, 4-7, absorbed the loss. Tewksbury, 1-0, gave up three earned runs in seven innings of work in his first appearance since being called up from AAA Louisville.

(JUNE 17) UPI - The Worldwatch Institute says it's a bit too soon to celebrate the end of the Cold War. In a paper issued Saturday, the Washington think-tank says the psycholgical aspect of the Cold War may have passed. But- quoting here- ''scientific, industrial, and bureaucratic institutions with vested interests in a perpetual arms competition remain intact.''

The Lithuanian government Saturday took the UNprecedented step of asking the Baltic republic's parliament to back off its call for independence. The move came one day after Moscow eased its oil and gas blockade against Lithuania. Moscow has made Lithuania's postponement of its intention to secede the key factor to resuming normal bilateral relations.

A summit of Central America's leaders got off to a smooth start Saturday in Guatemala. The heads of the region's six nations agreed they must iron out differences that separate them if they are to make headway against their staggering international debt. The leaders also agreed they must develop an economic collective similar to the European Community to advance economically.

Political opposition leaders are beginning to re-group again in Romania's capital. An opposition spokesman said Saturday critics of the ruling party will NOT be silenced by the attacks of pro-government miners, who led a bloody two-day rampage to crush dissent. He says the Liberal Party will ask the government to pay to rebuild offices and replace equipment that the miners destroyed.

(JUNE 17) UPI - In Srinagar, India, about 600-thousand people left their homes Saturday to buy food and necessities. It was the the first time in four days Indian authorities let residents move about freely. But the independence was short-lived, with troops re-imposing the curfew six hours later. India is trying to break a popular independence movement in the region that borders Pakistan.

1988 Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis said in an interview he plans to remain involved with public service when he steps down as Massachussetts governor in January. EAST BERLIN (JUNE 17) UPI - A West German extremist arrested in East Germany for a 1985 terrorist attack on a U.S. military base confirmed that the secret police of the former Communist government had helped hide her for years, East German authorities said Sunday.

An interior ministry spokesman said Sigrid Sternebeck told interrogators that the now-disbanded secret police unit, known as Stasi, had helped her settle in East Germany after she arrived there in 1980 with a stolen passport.

Sternebeck is one of six alleged extremists being held by East German authorities. The six, who were captured over the past 10 days, are wanted in West Germany for their alleged participation in a series of violent attacks, including the kidnapping of Italian businessman Aldo Moro and the killing of West German banker Juergen Ponto in 1977.

Sternebeck, 40, is accused of taking part in the killing of a U.S. soldier and a bomb attack at a U.S. military base in West Germany, which left two U.S. soldiers dead and 20 others injured. Both attacks were carried out Aug. 8, 1985.

The spokesman said Sternebeck admitted to investigators that she had been a member of Red Army Faction but that she had no contact with the extremist movement since she moved to East Germany 10 years ago.

She said she had mainly lived in Holland and France between 1977 and 1980 before traveling to East Germany, the spokesman said.

Sternebeck said that once in East Germany, she was immediately contacted by the Stasi, which helped her settle in the country, providing her with a home and a job.

East German Interior Minister Peter-Michael Diestel said last week the Stasi had maintained ''devilish links'' with West German extremists on the run.

Diestel's West German counterpart, Wolfgang Schaueble, warned that there was a danger that former Stasi members could join up with the Red Army Faction.

In an interview published Sunday by the Welt am Sonntag weekly, Schaeuble said that after 40 years of Communist ''dictatorship, there still is a major extremist potential'' in East Germany.

Heribert Hellenbroich, the former head of the West German secret service said he did not believe West German extremists had received ''direct support'' from the East German authorities.

He said that those arrested in East Germany had quit the ''terror scene'' years ago.

In an interview with the West German Saarlandishes Rundfunk radio station, he said that members of the ''commando level of the RAF'' were thought to be hiding in Western European countries and not in East Germany.

LOS ANGELES (JUNE 17) UPI - An earthquake measuring 3.7 on the Richter scale rattled the San Bernardino-Riverside area Saturday night, but there were no immediate reports of injuries, authorities said.

The quake occurred at 11:08 p.m.and was centered 6 miles southeast of San Bernardino, said Doug Smith, spokesman for the Caltech Seismology Laboratory In Pasadena.

There were no immediate reports of damage or injuries.

Smith said the quake was probably not related to a series of temblors that shook the Upland-Pomona area earlier this year.

(JUNE 17) UPI - Pacific Northwest baseball fans came to see living legend Nolan Ryan Saturday night, but instead were impressed by Seattle journeyman left-hander Matt Young.

''That's as good a game as I've ever seen him pitch,'' said Texas Manager Bobby Valentine after Young hurled a three-hitter while striking out a career-high 11 in the Mariners 5-0 victory over the Rangers.

Jeffrey Leonard drove in four runs to back Young.

Seattle Manager Jim Lefebvre said Young, who had not won in his past five starts, turned his season around when he gave up five runs to the Chicago White Sox in the first inning June 6 and then settled down after that.

''The Chicago game was the turning point,'' Lefebvre said.

While Young was cruising, the Mariners took advantage of Ryan's wildness with an aggressive running game, stealing three bases.

''We pushed the offense on him,'' Lefebvre said. ''And Jeffrey had some great at-bats.''

Ryan, coming off a major league record sixth no-hitter Monday night, said his lower back injury, which sidelined him earlier in the season, was the same and not a factor in his performance.

Young, 2-7, outdueled Ryan on his way to first shutout since 1985 and surpassed his previous career-high of 10 strikeouts, set against the New York Yankees on May 22, 1985.

Ryan, 5-4, worked five innings, allowing three runs on four hits. He walked five and struck out nine.

Seattle took a 2-0 lead in the third. Harold Reynolds reached on an infield single, then went to third on Greg Briley's single to right. One out later, Briley stole second, and both scored scored on Leonard's single.

In the fifth, Seattle made it 3-0. Briley walked, stole second, went to third on a ground out and scored on Leonard's sacrifice fly.

Seattle added another in the sixth. Edgar Martinez greeted reliever Craig McMurtry with a single, went to second on a ground out and scored on a double by Matt Sinatro.

The Mariners picked up their final run in the seventh. Reliever Jamie Moyer hit Alvin Davis with a pitch and scored on Leonard's RBI double.

--- AROUND THE AL ---

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit crushed California 6-2, Boston blasted Baltimore 6-3, Cleveland clipped Milwaukee 10-9, Oakland drubbed Chicago 12-3, Toronto edged New York 2-1 in 11 innings and Kansas City edged Minnesota 5-3.

Tigers 6, Angels 2

At Detroit, Mark Salas hit a two-run home run and added two singles to help Jack Morris win his fourth start in a row. Morris, 6-7, gave up eight hits and walked three. Bert Blyleven, 6-4, had a five-game winning streak snapped as Detroit won its fourth straight.

Red Sox 6, Orioles 3

At Baltimore, Carlos Quintana drove in three runs, including two on a single during a four-run third inning to help Mike Boddicker gain his seventh straight win. Boddicker, 8-3, scattered seven hits over eight innings. John Mitchell, 0-1, who took the loss in his first American League start, gave up five runs and eight hits in the Orioles fourth straight loss.

Indians 10, Brewers 9

At Cleveland, Jerry Browne raced home from second base in the ninth inning when Milwaukee shortstop Bill Spiers committed a throwing error on a potential inning-ending double play, helping Cleveland rally for the victory. Doug Jones, 1-2, who blew a save opportunity, gained the victory and Bob Sebra, 1-1, took the loss.

Athletics 12, White Sox 3

At Chicago, Terry Steinbach hit an RBI single in a seven-run first inning and added a two-run home run to lift Oakland to a three-game lead in the AL West. Scott Sanderson, 8-3, gave up 10 hits over eight innings in his longest appearance of the year. Melido Perez, 6-5, took the loss, lasting just 2-3 of an inning.

Blue Jays 2, Yankees 1 (11 innings)

At New York, Pat Borders singled with two outs in the 11th inning to drive in Rance Mulliniks with the winning run. Alan Mills, 0-2, took the loss for the sinking Yankees. Frank Wills, 5-2, pitched 3 2-3 innings, in relief of Willie Blair to earn the victory. Duane Ward pitched the 11th for his sixth save.

Royals 5, Twins 3

At Kansas City, Mo., Danny Tartabull and Kevin Seitzer hit two-run home runs to power Kansas City, sending Minnesota to its ninth consecutive loss. Tom Gordon, 3-4, earned the win while Mark Guthrie, 2-1 took the loss. Willie Wilson stole three bases, increasing his career total to 603, moving him into 17th place on the all-time list.

TYRE, Lebanon (JUNE 17) UPI - Loyalists of Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat attacked gunmen of Abu Nidal's renegade splinter group in a southern Lebanese refugee camp Sunday, killing three people and arresting 30 others and proclaiming them ''Israeli agents.''

A spokesman for Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization in the Rashidiyeh camp near Tyre, 46 miles south of Beirut, said PLO forces controlled the entrances to the camp and arrested gunmen who assassinated an Arafat-backed PLO official three days ago and committed other crimes.

Palestinian sources and witnesses said at least three gunmen of the ''Fatah-Revolutionary Council'' headed by Sabri El-Bana, better known as Abu Nidal, were killed in the fighting that lasted five hours Saturday night and Sunday morning. They said 25 others, among them civilians, were wounded.

Sources and witnesses said a 120-member force of Arafat's mainstream Fatah group stormed the headquarters of the Abu Nidal group in the camp, only an hour after the assassination of another Palestinian official.

The sources said a group of fighters who recently defected from the Abu Nidal group killed their former military commander, Omar Hamidi, 35, early Sunday in the Rashidiyeh camp.

They said the killing of Hamidi was in retaliation for the assassination last Friday of Ahmed Selim Draz, who was a follower of Abu Nidal in the past but then defected to the mainstream Fatah. The PLO accused ''Israeli agents'' of killing Draz with the aim of ''inciting inter-Palestinian clashes.''

Sources informed on Palestinian issues said the assassination campaign reflected internal strife within the Fatah Revolutionary Council between supporters and opposers to the way Abu Nidal handles the group.

Last year, two officials of the FRC accused Abu Nidal of ''liquidating'' many members of the group. They then defected and fled to Tunisia where the PLO leadership maintains its headquarters.

The United States has described the Abu Nidal group as the most dangerous terrorist organization in existence, promoting an Arab revolution to create a Palestinian homeland. The group has waged a campaign to wrest control of the PLO from Arafat since the late 1970s.

Sources and witnesses said the PLO force that stormed Nidal's FRC headquarters wanted to arrest the assailants of Draz and control the camp to prevent inter-Palestinian feuding.

A PLO spokesman said the force attacked a school where some 30 loyalists to Abu Nidal were hiding. He said the unit bombarded the school with 120mm shells until the FRC gunmen surrundered and handed over weapons to the PLO.

''We have cleaned the camp of all pockets that collaborate with the enemy (Israel) and that had killed Ahmed Draz three days ago and had committed many crimes in the camp,'' PLO spokesman Sultan Abu El-Ainain said.

Security sources in Tyre said the main road linking the camp to some 25 villages was cut because of the fighting and about 100 families arrived on foot to this port city.

MANERPLAW, Burma (JUNE 17) UPI - Burma's armed rebels, in a show of support for the newly elected opposition party, have promised to end 40 years of civil war once a democratic federal union fair to minorities is formed in Burma.

In a meeting Saturday at its jungle headquarters at Manerplaw, about 130 miles east of Rangoon, the Democratic Alliance of Burma also warned its forces would launch a military offensive if the ruling military junta did not turn over power to the pro-democracy opposition party which won last month's elections.

''The federal system which has been demanded and fought for by the indigenous nationalities does not mean secessionism,'' the Alliance of 21 rebel groups said in a statement issued after the meeting.

The Alliance promised that once a democratic union treating all ethnic groups fairly was set up, the long civil war would end and the groups would ''never destroy such a federal union nor secede from such a union.''

Previously ethnic groups in the Alliance accused the central government of discriminating against them and demanded the right to secede from any federal system.

The demand sparked a sporadic civil war that began in 1948 and still continues in Burma's border areas despite strong countermeasures by the Burmese military.

The Alliance statement said such a union should provide states for each major ethnic group, power-sharing between the central government and the states, a multi-party system, and guaranteed human rights.

It demanded a smooth transition in power from the military government to the newly elected National League for Democracy and the release of NLD leaders under arrest.

''While we are waiting,'' said Gen. Bo Mya, the DAB president, ''we will request other countries and organizations to pressure the military government, economically and politically, so it will hand over power to the NLD.''

Bo Mya, who is commander of the ethnic Karen army, the strongest military group in the Alliance, said foreign aid had enabled the Burmese military to hang onto power despite disastrous socialist economic policies.

Dissident student leader Moe The Zun, chairman of the All Burma Students Democratic Front, warned that if the military regime failed to turn over power, both student and ethnic rebel groups would intensify their attacks.

The student leader said there are more than 2,000 students fighting with ethnic Mon and Karen troops in lower Burma and 1,000 students fighting with the Kachin Independence Army.

Rebel sources in Bangkok have said, however, the students have little military capability and all the ethnic groups are short of weapons and ammunition. The rebels have been on the defensive against the 200,000-man Burmese army for more than a year.

More of a threat to the military is the estimated 1,000 students working underground inside Burma to organize demonstrations against the military if it reneges on its reluctant pledges to yield power.

The Alliance did not say how long it would wait for the transfer of power.

''Within the next two months things will be very plain to the outside world,'' said U Thwin of the People's Patriotic Party, a former cabinet minister under former Prime Minister U Nu.

Alliance leaders said they were cautious about making direct contact with the NLD for fear the military would use it as an excuse to delay or halt the turnover of power.

Brang Seng, a Kachin leader and vice president of the Alliance, said the group formally recognized the NLD as the legal choice of the people, but said if it were stopped from setting up a new government, the rebels would consider forming their own interim government.

Despite their limited military power, the rebel groups have prevented the government from exploiting rich timber and mineral resources in the border areas.

They also have provided refuge for dissidents who escaped after a brutal crackdown on pro-democracy groups in 1988 and a base for underground anti-military political activity.

TOKYO, Japan (JUNE 17) UPI - Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu said Sunday Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev is scheduled to visit Japan early next year, news reports said.

Kyodo News Service and NHK public television said Kaifu disclosed Gorbachev's plan at a meeting of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party in the hot spring town of Atami southwest of Tokyo. Kaifu told the meeting Gorbachev made known his plan in a letter sent to him recently, the reports said.

In his meeting with President Bush at the White House June 3, Gorbachev said he would soon visit Japan but did not specify when.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze is scheduled to visit Japan in September.

Relations between Japan and the Soviet Union have been strained over Moscow's occupation of four islands off Japan's northern coast since the end of World War II. The issue has stymied Soviet efforts to increase trade with Tokyo.

Kaifu plans to tour four Middle Eastern countries in August on the first visit to the region by a Japanese chief executive in 12 years, a published report said Sunday.

The daily Mainichi Shimbun, quoting government sources, said the trip will take Kaifu to Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Jordan and Turkey, starting Aug. 16.

If the journey materializes, Kaifu will be the first Japanese prime minister to visit the Middle East in 12 years. Former prime minister Takeo Fukuda visited Saudi Arabia, Qatar, Iran and the United Arab Emirates in 1978.

He would also be the first Japanese chief executive to pay an official visit to Egypt.

In Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil producer, and the United Arab Emirates, Kaifu will seek assurances for stable crude supply to Japan in the future, the daily said.

The UAR and Saudi Arabia are the top two crude oil suppliers to Japan.

Kaifu's discussions with leaders of Egypt and Jordan will be focused on peace in the Middle East, the newspaper said.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (JUNE 17) UPI - Four policemen were fatally shot and two others were wounded in violence apparently politically motivated overnight across black townships, police said Sunday.

Police in separate incidents shot dead one person and injured five after coming under attack, they said.

The shootings followed the 14th anniversary Saturday of the bloody June 16 1976, anti-apartheid uprising in Soweto township outside Johannesburg, but police made no link between the attacks and the peaceful nationwide ''Soweto Day'' commemoration by thousands of blacks in stadiums countrywide.

All four policemen were killed by unknown assailants in Transvaal province townships, police said in their daily ''unrest'' report of political violence.

At Nkowakowa, a policeman was shot in the head ''when a group of blacks'' fired at his vehicle, police said. A traffic constable also was fatally shot in the head at Katlehong. At Dube, a policeman was shot by what police described as ''a group'' while on his way home, and in Soweto, an officer was fatally wounded in another ''group'' shooting, police said.

One policeman was wounded in the Transvaal's Eldorado Park when he was shot in the shoulder by a man who then stole a shotgun and ammunition, police said. Another came under fire while in his patrol vehicle and was slightly injured in the Cape's Nyanga township, police said.

Two policemen shot and killed one man and injured two after being ''surrounded by approximately 400 people'' in Transvaal's Stilfontein, police said.

Police said they shot and injured three people in strife-torn Natal province's Bruntville township while under attack by a crowd of 200 ''throwing stones and burning objects.''

Security forces have failed to quash South Africa's unrest, which has spread nationwide in the 14 years since the Soweto uprising, when at least 1,000 people died.

More than 3,000 people have been killed since 1987 in Natal, where rival Zulu factions are battling for territory, and thousands more have been killed during anti-government rioting in the rest of the country.

President Frederik de Klerk on June 8 lifted a 4-year-old nationwide state of emergency in all of South Africa except Natal. His action was partly a bid to draw the black opposition into negotiations on a non-racial constitution for a post-apartheid South Africa, but it also apparently marked a concession that the emergency had failed to quell the unrest.

BOSTON (JUNE 17) UPI - Nelson Mandela's forthcoming eight-city American freedom tour cannot escape the materialism that comes with sales of T-shirts, posters, buttons and other souvenirs.

But promoters of the South African leader's historic 12-day journey said Sunday they were working to keep the focus on his message - and keep the commercialism at a minimum.

Profits from sales of approved Mandela souvenirs, expected to gross more than $2 million, will be used to help defray the costs of the trip and aid the South African democracy movement.

''It is very important for everything we market to be as good as it can be. We want to do this with some dignity, but also some sense of fun,'' said Stephanie Vardavas of ProServ, the Washington firm hired as marketing agent for the tour.

Up to 15 percent of the proceeds will be given to Democracy for South Africa, the non-profit arm of the African National Congress that is organizing the Mandela visit.

''This being America, the organizers realized there were going to be T-shirts sold whether we licensed anything or not. They realized that the process could generate a lot of income to pay for the expenses of this visit.

''The work of this movement is not accomplished and there is a need for scholarships and money for people to do more work to accomplish racial democracy in South Africa,'' Vardavas said.

Mandela is to visit New York, Boston, Washington, D.C., Atlanta, Miami, Detroit, Los Angeles and Oakland, Calif.

Authorized souvenirs range from $50 silk tour jackets - similar to those worn by rock bands and their fans - to lithographs, coffee mugs, T-shirts, buttons, commemorative coins and window decals, Vardavas said.

The logo for the official souvenirs has Mandela's face in front of the ANC banner, with political demonstrators marching at the bottom.

''I was terrified people might think we are doing something tacky with the Mandela visit,'' said Vardavas.

Organizers expect at least 250,000 people to turn out for the main event in Boston, a six-hour concert and rally on the scenic Charles River Esplanade. Performers are expected to include Paul Simon, Bobby McFerrin, Johnny Clegg and Tracy Chapman.

MONROVIA, Liberia (JUNE 17) UPI - The break-up of Liberian peace talks dimmed chances for a peaceful solution to the conflict and only the resignation of President Samuel Doe is likely to prevent a battle for Monrovia, diplomats in the capital said Sunday.

That battle is likely to occur ''sooner rather than later,'' according to western military officials who asked not to be identified.

Five days of talks, held in the U.S. embassy in neighboring Freetown, Sierra Leone, broke up Saturday without substantive progress between representatives of Doe's government and envoys of rebel leader Charles Taylor.

There was a tentative agreement to talk again later this month and to minimize fighting in the 6-month civil war until then.

The negotiators, who met in response to a cease-fire call from both Moslem and Christian leaders, also issued a joint condemnation of massacres of unarmed civilians by both sides and, said a U.S. spokesman, conducted talks in an open and non-confrontational manner.

''It is a positive step that they negotiate,'' said David Krecke, of the U.S. Embassy in Monrovia. ''It is also encouraging that they decided to drop any posturing.''

But no public progress was made on the central item of the talks' agenda - the future of President Doe.

Taylor's central demand, and the reason for his invasion of Liberia almost six months ago, is the removal of Doe from office.

Doe has repeatedly stated - most recently on Friday - that he will not go.

Taylor has threatened that if his demands were not met at the peace talks, he would take Monrovia ''within 12 hours.''

There was, however, no sign of his attempting to do so by Sunday morning, and it was not clear how the negotiators' decision to meet again would affect Taylor's strategy.

''It won't be as easy as that in any case,'' said one Western military official. ''The rebels are reasonably competent but they have faced no real battles. And recently they've come up against the 1st Battalion (of the Liberian army) who are much more competent than people they've met so far,'' he said.

Military officials concur that rebel forces have pulled back from close to Liberia's main airport at Robertsfield, 35 miles from Monrovia, and regrouped at Cotton Tree about 5 miles further north in the Bridgestone-Firestone rubber plantation.

They said there appeared to be about 2,500 of Taylor's men in total but disbelieved rebel claims to number about 14,000 or even 15,000.

The Liberian Council of Churches, jointly with the National Moslem Council appealed last Thursday for direct military intervention by the United States. Liberia was founded by freed U.S. slaves in 1847.

The United States, however, has ruled out any intervention in the West African nation.

''Our position is open and shut,'' said U.S. Embassy spokesman David Krecke. ''We will not play a military role in the conflict.''

Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs Herman Cohen has denied meanwhile that Doe has sought refuge in the United States.

Last week, however, he had no comment on the question of whether the U.S. had offered such refuge. Most observers in Monrovia, including government ministers who asked not to be identified, assumed that Washington had at least offered safe passage out of the country.

Liberia is strategically important to the United States because Washington maintains an extensive network of transmitting stations there.

Between 1980 and 1985, the Reagan administration gave Liberia more than $500 million, more aid than to any other African country received per capita. Aid was suspended last year when arrears on loan repayments reached $7 million.

OMAHA (JUNE 17) UPI - A 74-year-old woman survived a 90-minute ordeal in which she was beaten, apparently raped, set on fire and shot in the head by a man who asked her for directions, authorities said Sunday.

The woman was listed in fair condition at University Hospital.

''She's a really tough lady,'' police officer Dave Newell said.

Police Sgt. Robert Frock said the incident began Saturday afternoon after the man approached the woman while she was trimming trees in her front yard. After he asked her for directions, she went inside to look in the telephone book to find the directions.

She told the man not to come inside, but Frock said he followed her, pulled out a gun and ordered her to lock her dog in a bedroom.

The gunman took her through the house and rummaged through drawers and closets. He then tied her to a chair with a telephone cord for a short time then took her to the basement.

He began striking her in the head and she lost consciousness for a short time. The man apparently poured gasoline over her and tried to burn her, Frock said. She was not burned but burn marks were on one of her pant legs.

Frock said the man apparently raped the woman, but she could not remember. There was physical evidence of rape, Frock said. He also shot her in the left side of her head. She was covering her head with her hand and the bullet went through one hand first.

The man then fled in the woman's car, taking a stereo system, a VCR and other items. The woman managed to climb up the basement stairs and called 911.

MIAMI (JUNE 17) UPI - Drug traffickers sought to use a Miami-bound cruise ship to smuggle marijuana into the United States over the weekend but were foiled when the ship's captain spotted two divers in the water near the hull of the ship, a Coast Guard official said Sunday.

The two divers and a third man found nearby, all Jamaicans, were arrested after authorities found four steel boxes bolted to the hull of the ship containing marijuana, officials said.

Although traffickers have used similar smuggling techniques with smaller boats before, a Coast Guard official said he believes the case represents the first time would-be smugglers used a cruise ship as a means of transport.

Miami is the world's busiest cruise port.

''I've been here six years, and this is the first time on a cruise ship,'' said Coast Guard spokesman Luis Diaz. ''It has been done on smaller boats. They would bring in drugs in that manner, but on a cruise ship, no.''

Diaz said the captain of the cruise ship Holiday alerted Coast Guard officials about noon Saturday after spotting two divers in the water next to his ship, which was docked at the Port of Miami.

The Carnival Cruise Lines' ship sails from Miami on seven-day cruises of the western Caribbean, with stops in Mexico, Grand Cayman and Jamaica. The ship returned to port Saturday.

The two divers were picked up, and police divers were called in to search the hull of the ship, Diaz said.

Police divers found four steel boxes measuring about 2 feet by 1 foot by 1 foot bolted to the hull of the ship. Inside was about 250 pounds of marijuana, Diaz said.

Diaz said officials do not know when or where the boxes were attached to the Holiday, but they suspect the smuggling effort was fairly recent, since the boxes displayed little evidence of marine growth.

''An investigation is going to be conducted on this, to detemine the origin,'' he said. ''The boxes that were taken off didn't have much marine growth. That would indicate they weren't there very long.''

Diaz said one of the three unidentified suspects was released into the custody of the U.S. Border Patrol for a previous immigration violation.

The other two men and a 25-foot support boat they used were turned over to Miami Beach police. The Holiday left port as scheduled Saturday, Diaz said.

A spokesman for Carnival could not be reached for comment.

TURNHOUT, Belgium (JUNE 17) UPI - Police captured two suspected Irish Republican Army members after a man heard gunshots from target practice in the woods. A third suspect was being sought Sunday by police using dogs and a helicopter.

Police were called to a wooded area a half-mile from the Dutch border late Saturday after a 57-year-old man heard gunfire on his property and suspected poachers.

''They were practicing in the woods,'' said a spokesman for Belgium's Interior Ministry, which investigates terrorist activities.

A woman was arrested at the scene, and a man was arrested while fleeing through a field just over the border in Holland. Another man was still at large.

The woman, identified as Donna Maguire, 23, of Ireland, has been sought by West German authorities in connection with a 1989 attack on a British army barracks in Osnabrueck, West Germany, in which no one was killed. West Germany was expected to seek her extradition.

Prosecutors said they would charge Maguire with illegal possession of firearms, false use of a U.S. passport apparently stolen from an Indiana woman and criminal association.

The man arrested in Holland was not identified by police.

Police said the two people arrested and the man still at large had used a Dutch-registered red Opel Kadet automobile, in which a Ruger pistol and other firearms were found. Evidence was sent to Brussels, the Belgian capital, for forensic examination.

The IRA, which opposes British rule in Northern Ireland, has recently stepped up attacks on the European continent, principally at British military bases in West Germany.

Two Australian lawyers were shot and killed last month in the Dutch town of Roermond, also near the Belgian border, apparently after the IRA mistakenly thought they were British servicemen.

SRINAGAR, India (JUNE 17) UPI - Thousands of Kashmiris staged anti-India demonstrations in strife-torn Srinagar during a 12-hour relaxation in a curfew Sunday, as police reported separatist violence left two more people dead and six wounded.

No incidents were reported despite the presence of armed paramilitary units in the state capital of 600,000.

In Srinagar's Nawa Kadal area, about 2,000 people gathered at the main market to demand that all paramilitary forces be withdrawn from the city 400 miles north of New Delhi.

Indian security forces stood guard nearby but took no action as the demonstrators shouted anti-army slogans. They dispersed after about two hours.

But in the Rajweri Kadal market, where another 2,000 people chanted ''Go home Indian soldiers'' and ''We want freedom,'' about 30 members of a paramilitary force unit pointed guns at the crowd and demanded they disperse.

''We were not there to be frightened,'' said Mohammad Iqbal, a cloth merchant. ''We stayed and registered our protest.''

The protesters, taking advantage of a 12-hour curfew relaxation that began at 6 a.m., finally broke up so they could attend midday Moslem prayers.

In the city's Eid Gah section, about 1,000 women staged a sit-in demonstration, chanting anti-India slogans and blocking traffic for three hours.

Police, meanwhile, said they recovered the bodies of two people apparently killed during the night.

One of the victims, a Hindu shopkeeper identified as Autar Krishen, had been shot, police said. His body was discovered in Shopian, about 40 miles south of Srinagar.

The other, identified as Ali Mohammad Khandey, was found hanging from a tree in Beeruah, about 15 miles west of Srinagar, police said.

In Srinagar, militants hurled a grenade at a paramilitary force patrol, wounding at least six members of the unit, police said.

They were taken to a hospital for treatment.

Anti-India scenes have become routine since a simmering two-year-old separatist movement erupted into a popular uprising against Indian rule in mid-January after security forces opened fire on demonstrators, killing at least 35 people.

Since then, at least 450 people have been killed in near-daily violence and tens of thousands of troops and paramilitary forces deployed to the region have failed to crush the movement, which is supported by virtually all of the area's 4 million Moslems living in the Kashmir Valley.

Authorities have imposed lengthy curfews, house-to-house searches and arbitrary arrests in attempts to locate militants and recover arms and ammunition.

Such tactics have proved highly unpopular. Kashmiris and human rights groups have complained that security forces have physically abused and unduly harassed citizens and damaged personal property. More than 600 Kashmiris have been taken into custody during the searches.

On Sunday, one member of a paramilitary unit was ordered by authorities to pay a shopkeeper in Srinagar the equivalent of $30 to replace a shop window that was shattered when his gun discharged.

It was the first report of any security force member paying compensation for damaged personal property since the uprising began.

Kashmiris claim separation from India is necessary because their interests have been consistently ignored by successive Hindu-dominated New Delhi administrations.

They also complain that the central government failed to hold a plebiscite so Kashmiris could decide if they wanted to remain a part of India or join neighboring Pakistan.

Many militant organizations advocate independence.

A ''civil curfew'' called by Moslem Kashmiri militants ended Saturday, allowing shops and restaurants in the main commercial district to open for the first time in three days.

(JUNE 17) UPI - TODAY'S PEOPLE:

BLUES BROTHERS: B.B. King was joined by fellow bluesmen Stevie Ray Vaughn and Joe Cocker for a night of blues in Atlanta. ''I feel fantastic,'' said King, who was treated for a sudden attack of diabetes last month. ''I'm becoming my old self again.'' Vaughn and Cocker performed separately before joining King for a few encore numbers during six hours of blues entertainment Friday, which included performers Dr. John and Irma Thomas.

ESTEFAN PREMONITION: Singer Gloria Estefan, recovering from spine injuries suffered when her tour bus crashed, said she had a premonition her entire life that she would become an invalid and a burden to her loved ones. ''That's why, when we began building our house, I had an elevator put in '' the Latin pop singer told People. ''I would tell people it was for moving equipment up and down. But in the back of my mind, I knew what it was really for. So when I was lying in the bus, I thought, 'This is the thing I've been waiting for.''' Estefen says her doctors told her ''the way my spine was mauled, I shouldn't be able to move.''

DONALD DEFAULTS, IVANA SHOPS: While real estate mogul Donald Trump struggles to hold his empire together, his estranged wife Ivana jetted to London to attend a posh antiques fair. The Sunday Mail said Ivana visited one of London's most expensive antiques fairs but did not spring for any of the works on display at Grosvenor House. ''I just came because I love antiques; I'm not staying long,'' she said before being whisked away in a blue Rolls-Royce.

THE FUTURE DUKAKIS: Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis says he wants to remain involved in public service when his term ends in January, and is very interested in the national health care debate. ''That's one of the two or three most important domestic challenges and nobody's really dealing with it in Washington,'' he told The Boston Herald. His wife, Kitty, who has been plagued by substance abuse, is writing a book about the 1988 presidential campaign. But Dukakis said he was ''not much'' of an author.

'NO' TO DRUGS: Entertainer Ben Vereen helped lead a ''Take Back the Neighborhood'' march down at a north Minneapolis street Saturday. Vereen was joined by about 350 people. The march was intended to let neighborhood residents show their opposition to crime and drugs.

MOTHER & SON: Award-winning Hungarian artists Agnes Garabuczy and her son, Tothlaca, were a hit in Washington. The two showed 61 of their oil paintings at a Georgetown gallery. At a champaign reception, they chatted with former Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler, who said she loved the paintings. ''It must be a first in Glasnost - mother and son from Eastern Europe exhibiting jointly in the nation's capital,'' Heckler said.

GLIMPES: David Cassidy has a new album due out this fall. The former star of The Partridge Family says he may sing his 1970 smash, I Think I Love You'' when he tours... A freedom of information award was given to convicted bank robber Dannie Smith, who wrote from his cell about conditions inside the federal penitentiary at Lompoc, Calif.

ATLANTA (JUNE 17) UPI - The second AIDS patient to undergo an experimental blood-heating treatment ''continued to improve'' Sunday, but a government health official criticized the doctors for publicizing an unproven procedure and dismissed claims it is a possible cure as ''extraordinarily unlikely.''

Tony Mascio, 38, Thursday became the second patient in four months with acquired immune deficiency syndrome to undergo the treatment that involves heating the body to 108 degrees Fahrenheit for two hours by passing the blood through a heating apparatus similar to a dialysis machine.

The theory behind the procedure is that it heats the body beyond a temperature it can naturally attain in order to kill the virus - in the same way fever fights disease.

Mascio, who came to the doctors with a depressed white blood-cell count and AIDS-related Kaposi's sarcoma legions on internal organs, has shown a steady white-cell increase and tumor shrinkage since the operation, his doctors said.

On Sunday, the count of Mascio's disease-fighting white blood cells was up to 7,000, well within the normal range, said Patrick Shipley, an intensive care unit nurse at Atlanta Hospital.

''As of 9 a.m, Tony continued to improve in his present condition,'' a statement issued by head nurse Audrey Yandel said. ''He is rested, more alert and increasing his activity level and is more metabolically stable.''

The statement said doctors planned to move Mascio from the intensive care unit to a private room Sunday afternoon or Monday morning.

In an interview on ABC's ''This Week with David Brinkley,'' Anthony Fauci, director of the National Institute of Allergies and Infectious Diseases, questioned claims that the method is a potential AIDS cure.

''I haven't had the opportunity to examine the data, but I can tell you from my experience with this virus that it is extraordinarily unlikely that that's the case,'' Fauci said. ''In fact, we have some experiments to show that when you heat virus-infected cells, you can actually induce the production of a virus.

''Having said that from a scienfitic standpoint, I think making a big splash about a single patient that may or may not have benefited is just an example of the AIDS theater, when one thinks in terms of the public perception. I think it's unfair and inappropriate to make the kind of splash that one patient made, because it's going to give false hope to a lot of people.

''It comes under the terminology of hot-dogging, I think.''

Dr. Kenneth Alonso and William Logan performed the hyperthermia procedure at the small hospital in Atlanta's midtown section that is currently under threat of being closed for violations unrelated to the AIDS treatment.

The doctors have remained cautious in their assessment of the procedure as a successful AIDS treatment and are restricting their conclusions to observations made on the two patients they have treated.

''Only time will tell,'' Alonso said about the procedure previously used only as an experimental cancer treatment. ''It appears to have had beneficial effects on the virus in one patient.''

The condition of the first patient to undergo the treatment, Carl Crawford has appeared to have improved steadily since he underwent the operation Feb. 20 after coming to the doctors with full-blown AIDS symptoms.

Crawford and the doctors say his AIDS-related Kaposi's sarcoma cancers have virtually disappeared from his body and no sign of the virus has been detectable in his blood.

The operation took place a day after Georgia health officials said they plan to revoke the hospital's license because of numerous violations, including several patient deaths. Hospital administrators, who claim the action by the state is being motivated by the unorthodox AIDS treatment, are appealing the decision.

Until Sunday, officials at the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and the National Institutes of Health, where much of the federal research on AIDS is conducted, have refrained from commenting on the procedure.

SHADYSIDE, OH (JUNE 17) UPI - Emergency crews Sunday discovered two bodies along the littered banks of the Ohio River as they pressed their search for victims of a rampaging flood that devastated valley towns and claimed at least 17 lives.

Capt. James Boling of the Ohio National Guard said the two bodies, one of a woman, was found Sunday morning. Officials did not disclose details of the second body.

Boling said he believed 22 people remained unaccounted for. He said workers from the Red Cross and the Census Bureau went through census lists to determine the number of missing in the aftermath of Thursday night's flooding.

Officials said they feared the death toll would rise as more than 600 National Guardsmen with 200 pieces of equipment continued in their search and cleanup efforts along the banks of the Ohio River.

''We will look until we are convinced we have done all we can,'' Shadyside Fire Chief Mark Badia said. ''We've not given up hope yet.''

But Shadyside Mayor Anita Wiley was less optimistic.

''Honestly, I think they're going to be (more) fatalities,'' she said.

Monsignor Frank Manieri, speaking to about 200 worshippers at St. Mary's Catholic Church, urged the congregation to look to the scriptures as a way to cope with the pain and suffering caused by the disaster.

''I don't think we are ever going to forget what has happened here the past several days,'' he said. ''Christ told us that one moment we are here and one moment we are gone.''

The rampaging floods turned the typically tranquil Pipe Creek and Weegee Creek into torrents of destruction after thunderstorms dumped 5.5 inches of rain in 3 1/2 hours.

The affected areas have been cordoned off to keep the curious out and to allow dog teams from Ohio, Kentucky, Maryland and West Virginia to work efficiently.

Disaster Assistance Centers will open Monday in Columbus, and Tuesday in Shadyside, Adena and Newark, officials said.

The floods were the latest in weather-related damage to strike Ohio. Last month, 14 central and southern counties were declared federal disaster areas after tornadoes and heavy rains swept the state.

''We have folks who have been working on disasters for three or four weeks solid,'' Celeste said. ''We have more experience than we would like.''

More than 100 residents stayed overnight at an elementary school shelter near Wegee Creek. Many others stayed with friends or family.

Rains sent a wall of water and debris as high as 20 feet smashing through the valleys of creeks that normally flow 6 to 12 inches deep. Hundreds of houses, mobile homes, cars and trucks were swept away.

A makeshift morgue was set up in Shadyside and the Red Cross dispatched nine vans to help feed displaced people. Utility crews throughout eastern Ohio were working to restore service for those left without power and telephone service.

OTTAWA (JUNE 17) UPI - Black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela began his North American tour Sunday, expecting a sympathetic response from Canadian political leaders to his plea that Ottawa maintain economic sanctions against the South African government.

Mandela, the 71-year-old vice-president of the African National Congress, is said to be deeply concerned about eroding support for sanctions in countries such as Britain. He is to address Parliament Monday - the only non-head of state to do so in more than four decades - before flying to Toronto and Montreal.

He is scheduled to visit the United Nations in New York later this week before flying to Washington to meet President Bush and address a joint session of Congress.

Senior Canadian government officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, told reporters Mandela's pleas for continued sanctions would likely be aimed more at European leaders than those in Canada.

The European Community, which adopted sanctions five years ago, will discuss the issue at a meeting next week in Dublin. The community is under strong pressure from Britian to end sanctions or ease them.

Mandela's North American visit is part of a whirlwind six-week, 13-nation tour that followed his release in February from prison, where he spent 27 years. Mandela is traveling with his wife, Winnie, senior officials of the ANC and his personal physician.

On Saturday, he told a Dutch crowd in Amsterdam that South Africa's system of racial segregation would be dismantled within five years.

Speaking to a crowd of 8,000 on the 14th anniversary of an uprising in the black South Africa township of Soweto, Mandela said the past should be put aside in order to build a new South Africa.

During his North American visit, according to officials, Mandela hopes to raise funds to help resettle ANC political exiles and their families in South Africa. Canadian officials said there were no reliable figures on the number of exiles, but estimates range between 15,000 and 50,000 people.

As many as 3,000 of those exiles may be in Canada, government officials said, adding exiles generally ''face a real crossroads decision'' on whether to return home.

Canadian officials view recent racial reforms in South Africa, among them the lifting of the state of emergency in three of four provinces, as ''very important,'' but insist they are only a first step on the long road to comprehensive changes.

Until there is irreversible change in the apartheid system, Canada has promised to maintain economic sanctions against the white minority regime in South Africa. Sanctions already in place include an oil embargo, and a ban on sports contacts and imports of South African gold coins and fruit. Canada also bans investment and bank loans to South Africa.

In March, after Mandela urged nations to intensify sanctions, Canada's Conservative government quietly approved new restrictions on transfers of high technology to South Africa.

Canada has led the way among Commonwealth countries in applying sanctions, carrying on a running dispute with Britain over their effectiveness.

Canada's External Affairs Minister, Joe Clark, also heads a Commonwealth special committee on sanctions that last year recommended a freeze on existing sanctions.

LONDON (JUNE 17) UPI - Amid widespread agreement that urgent action is needed to protect mankind, delegates from some 80 nations convene in London this week to strengthen an international treaty to save Earth's eroding ozone layer.

With scientific studies clearly showing ozone depletion is worse than previously believed, President Bush and European leaders already have publicly committed to speeding up the global phaseout of ozone-depleting chemicals - the main business of the conference.

However, there is concern about a simmering dispute over proposals to establish an international fund to help economically struggling Third World nations comply with an accelerated phaseout.

The United States - alone among the major industrialized powers - initially opposed creation of the new fund as unnecessary, saying additional aid should go through existing international lending institutions such as the World Bank.

Last week, under mounting international pressure, the Bush administration announced it would support a new fund, provided it was administered by the World Bank and did not exceed initial cost estimates, which range from $100 million to $260 million.

The proposal appeared to defuse a potentially explosive controversy, but the details remained fuzzy and it was not clear whether Third World nations - particularly China and India - would go along with the administration's plan.

''We hope our proposal gets a very good reception'' at the conference in London,'' said Steve Hart, deputy White House press secretary. ''Our proposal meets our concerns. If they (developing nations) say no, we're going to have to talk.''

The new U.S. proposal followed sharp criticism of the Bush administration last week by Mostafa Tolba, executive director of the United Nations Environmental Program, who warned that only a concerted world effort could stop ozone depletion.

''Western nations cannot do it alone,'' he said in a speech in Washington. ''We move together as a world community or not at all.''

Tolba also said that, with difficult negotiations on global warming scheduled to begin later this year, the ozone depletion fund was a crucial test of the international community's ability to cooperate on world environmental problems.

''London will be the first real test of whether nations are truly prepared to make the required grand bargain or whether we are still in the lip service phase,'' he said.

While the fund could prove a disruptive issue, it appears virtually certain the London conference will produce a new international agreement to eliminate by the year 2000 the use of ozone-depleting chlorofluorocarbons, or CFCs, widely used as refrigerants, cleaning solvents and in the production of foam products.

That is twice as fast as currently called for under the Montreal Protocol, the 1987 international treaty under which 57 signatory nations and the European Community pledged to roughly halve use of CFCs by 1998.

In addition to the accelerated CFC phaseout, it appears likely signatory nations will update the protocol to eliminate or sharply reduce other ozone-depleting chemicals, including halons - a fire extinguishing agent - and two heavily used solvents, methyl chloroform and carbon tetrachloride.

Scientists say those steps are essential in view of new atmospheric measurements indicating ozone depletion is worse than was thought in 1987 when the original protocol was signed in Montreal.

Even with the accelerated phaseout, they say concentrations of ozone-depleting chemicals in the atmosphere are so high that the ozone layer will remain vulnerable late into the next century.

Without additional restrictions on ozone-depleting chemicals, health experts say the world risks hundreds of millions of additional cases of skin cancer and cataracts because of heightened ultraviolet radiation from the sun allowed in by the weakened ozone layer.

Researchers also have found elevated ultraviolet radiation stunts crop and forest growth and could retard reproduction of plankton, the microscopic marine organisms that are the foundation of the ocean food chain.

Beyond the need to prevent such nightmarish scenarios, the London negotiations will be important in setting the tone for upcoming international negotiations on global warming that are likely to be much more difficult.

(JUNE 17) UPI - Millions of Americans across the country celebrated Father's Day Sunday, offering the traditional ties, tools and corny cards in recognition of the special role of the father.

President Bush, who spent the weekend at the presidential retreat in Camp David, Md., issued a proclamation designating Sunday as a day ''to honor our fathers and to express our gratitude for their generosity and devotion.''

''Father's Day is more than a day rich in family love and tradition - it is also a day when we are deeply mindful of the many ways fathers strengthen our communities and nation,'' Bush said in the proclamation issued Saturday.

Despite the traditional celebrations, Father's Day 1990 comes against a backdrop of changing roles for dads.

Professor Ronald Levant, a teacher of educational psychology at Rutgers University in New Brunswick, N.J., said men will have to acquire nurturing skills their fathers never dreamed of, skills far beyond customary breadwinner disciplinarian roles.

''As boys, we were told to listen carefully to what someone was saying - so we could attack it,'' Levant said. ''What men have to learn is to listen to their children and figure out what they are trying to say.''

Levant said the trend for men to be present at their children's births is helping create a new breed of more caring dads. In 1974, 27 percent of fathers were on hand to see their children born. That increased to 80 percent by 1984.

But a Duquesne University professor insists the role of the father really hasn't changed all that much.

In Pittsburgh, Professor Nicholas Hanna said tools and neckties, not flowers, remain Father's Day gift mainstays and are proof that men continue to have problems sharing their emotions.

Hanna, who studies relationships between men and fathers, said macho gifts given to fathers are evidence of the lack of emotional bonds between many dads and their children.

''You don't see father's getting flowers, that's interesting,'' he said. ''We still tell little boys they're not supposed to cry and we still train them to be macho. And little girls are taught that it's OK to cry and express their feelings.''

Hanna said Father's Day is little more than a commercial holiday that makes money for greeting card companies and other businesses.

''Father's Day draws attention to fathers but I don't know if it improves fathering,'' he said.

Still, Father's Day does have its joys. Just ask Roger Reedy of Crofton Md.

Reedy and wife Donna got to celebrate Father's Day Sunday by taking two of their triplets home from Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore.

The Reedys, who thought they would never have children, delivered two boys and a girl April 30 after conceiving the children through in vitro fertilization.

Daughters Julianne and Jillian were scheduled to come home Sunday while brother Jared has to spend a little more time with nurses because he is still eating far more slowly than his sisters.

Should the triplets have a sweet tooth, they're in luck. They've got a dad who will provide well for them: Roger Reedy is a refrigeration service manager for Jack and Jill Ice Cream in Hyattsville, Md.

(JUNE 17) UPI - Around the world... around the clock... the latest news from U-P-I.

About one-thousand firefighters, Army Reservists, National Guardsmen and volunteers sifted through waterlogged rural communities in eastern Ohio Saturday... looking for victims of Thursday's flash flood. Four more bodies were found Saturday, lifting the death toll to 15. Authorities say 44 people are listed as missing.

A report from Venezuela says a U-S military advisor to the Venezuelan air force was killed Saturday when he tried to protect himself and his wife from home invaders. A Caracas newspaper says Taber Mark Ward died from a knife wound in his neck. The American Embassy and the Defense Department have NOT confirmed the killing.

New York City police say a gunbattle between two rival gangs in Chinatown left two bystanders injured Saturday evening. A 17-year-old gang member suffered the most serious injuries in the gunfight... and is listed in critical condition. Police who heard the gunshots arrested two suspects who fled the crime scene on foot.

A poll suggests that Americans are becoming more tolerant when it comes to burning the U-S flag. 37 percent of those surveyed voiced support of a Supreme Court ruling which said flag burning is a constitutionally protected right. Last year, 28 percent of those polled said flag burning is a form of free speech.

A professor at Rutgers University says fathers of the 1990's must learn to do so-called ''women's work.'' Scholar and author Ronald Levant says men will have to acquire nurturing skills their fathers never dreamed of... skills far beyond their traditional bread-winning roles. Levant is the founder of the Fatherhood Project and heads a series of child-caring workshops.

It looks as if it's truly the ''best of times'' for publishing bigwig Steve Ross. A report indicates the head of Time Warner raked in a 22 and one-half Million-dollar compensation package last year... the top salary in New York City. The nearest competitors in the big money sweepstakes made less than half as much as Ross, with packages around nine-Million dollars.

LONDON (JUNE 17) UPI - All British blood donors will be tested for a virus that leads to AIDS following discovery of the virus, previously considered rare in Britain, in blood donated last year, a British newspaper reported Sunday.

The Independent newspaper reported Sunday that officials are worried some blood infected with the HIV-2 virus may already have entered the national blood supply.

Until now, the HIV-2 virus was considered rare in Britain. Tests for HIV-1 the main strain of human immunodeficiency virus leading to AIDS, have been performed routinely. But tests for HIV-2 were performed only on donors who said they had lived in West Africa, where the HIV-2 is considered widespread, the newspaper said.

Screenings for the HIV-2 strain began earlier this month, National Blood Transfusion Service director Harold Gunson told the Independent.

At least one person in Britain is believed to have died of AIDS caused by the second strain of the virus. About 12 people, many of them patients at sexually transmitted disease clinics, have tested positive for HIV-2, the newspaper said.

''It may have been possible for other HIV-2 infected blood to slip through'' into the blood supply before HIV-2 testing began, said Abraham Karpas of the department of hematology at Cambridge University.

At the time blood was drawn, the donor whose blood was discovered to be infected with HIV-2 told technicians he had lived in Africa, but denied any association with West Africa. Results of a test for HIV-1 on the donor's blood showed it was neither positive nor negative for the virus.

Further tests showed it was positive for HIV-2, the paper said.

The donor does not live in Britain and reporteldy cannot be traced, the transfusion service that provided the blood said.

SOFIA, Bulgaria (JUNE 17) UPI - Bulgaria held the second and final round of its first free elections since World War II Sunday with the former Communist Party, now called the Socialists, expected to gain an absolute majority in Parliament.

Voting was held in 81 constituencies where no candidate had won the necessary majority in the first round of balloting last week, the first multi-party elections in the Balkan country in 44 years.

By 2 p.m., seven hours after the polls opened, 54.3 percent of the eligible voters had cast their ballots, the official news agency BTA said.

The run-off results were expected to be known Tuesday, Electoral Commission Secretary Dimitar Popov said.

The United States had given its support to the opposition Union of Democratic Forces despite the communist reforms.

In its Sunday edition, the newspaer ''Douma'' called for voters to be ''calm, cheerful and wise.''

It carried an interview with a group of French parliamentarians led by Michal Coffineau, vice president of the French National Assembly, who assessed the first round of voting as basically fair and free.

Opposition groups had claimed the polls were rigged and held several mass rallies last week in protest.

After the first round, the former Communist Party, renamed the Socialist Party after the November ouster of former leader Todor Zhivkov, held 172 seats in the 400-member Grand National Assembly.

The UDF held 107 seats after the first round, the Agrarian Union 16 and the Movement for Rights and Freedoms, which represents the large ethnic Turkish minority, 21. Three other groups got one seat apiece.

The Socialists have carried out a number of reforms since Zhivkov was removed and its leadership is allowing many democratic rights.

Seventy of Sunday's races were straight fights between the Socialist Party and the UDF. In five other constituencies, the Socialist candidates are standing against candidates for the Movement for Rights and Freedoms.

Prime Minister Andrei Lukanov is among those contesting a seat in the second round.

Half of the seats in the Grand National Assembly, or parliament, were elected on party lists on a proportional representation basis. The other 200 seats were based on individual candidate races.

Socialist Party leader Alexander Lilov said his party is seeking a broad-based coalition government. Both the UDF and the Agrarian Party have said they will refuse to enter into a coalition with the socialists and instead intend to form a strong parliamentary opposition.

UDF leader Zhelyu Zhelev has suggested the possible formation of a government of competent experts which would enjoy support from the major political forces.

He said the main task of the new government should be to present a package of economic reforms no later than November, and prepare a local election law by October to remove the remaining bureaucratic structures of the former totalitarian regime.

The country, with a foreign debt of some $12 billion, is close to bankruptcy.

Much of the debt is owed to the West.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 17) UPI - President Bush spent a quiet Father's Day Sunday at the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., with his wife Barbara but without his five children and the other members of the family on hand.

But the Bush children and their families are frequent visitors at the White House and usually gather in August for a reunion with the 12 grandchildren at the Bush seaside summer estate at Kennebunkport, Maine.

The Bushes usually refrain from giving each other gifts on birthdays and special days such as Mother's Day and Father's Day.

The president, instead, looked forward to another busy week. He a session Tuesday, following up a similar meeting last week, with his White House budget summit advisers to review developments and strategy.

So far, meetings with bipartisan congressional leaders have not resulted in any movement toward a resolution of how to cope with the deficit or enhance Treasury Department revenues to reduce the red ink spending.

Also Tuesday, Bush will get an update on his legislative agenda from Republican congressional leaders as he prepares to veto the parental leave bill, which would give a parent 12 weeks of unpaid leave to take care of sickness in the family.

The president has only one foreign visitor this week: Namibian President Sam Najoma, with whom he will review African problems.

Bush scheduled a private lunch this week with Attorney General Richard Thornburgh, who has been beleaguered by internal problems in the Justice Department and staff shakeups.

The president will be on the road all day Wednesday, mainly for political reasons, when he travels to Huntsville, Ala., and Charlotte, N.C.

In Huntsville, he will visit a NASA facility and speak at a fundraiser for Gov. Guy Hunt. In Charlotte, he will attend a fundraising dinner for Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

As he has done with other sports teams, Bush invited the Detroit Pistons, the winning professional basketball team, to come to the White House Thursday for a Rose Garden recognition ceremony. It's a return visit for the Pistons, who won the crown last year.

The chief executive was beginning to turn his attention to the forthcoming economic summit with the leaders of six other industrialized nations to be held in July 9-11 Houston. The meeting will follow a quick trip to London July 4 to attend a two-day NATO meeting with many of the same leaders.

Bush planned to gather his economic summit team Thursday to get an update on the U.S. role at the conference.

BOMBAY, India (JUNE 17) UPI - A torrential downpour dumped more than 22 inches of rain on India's largest city, flooding most neighborhoods, cutting off air and rail traffic and killing at least 21 people, authorities said Sunday.

The 22.34-inch downpour between Friday night and Saturday night was the heaviest 24-hour rainfall in the city in 104 years, the Weather Bureau reported. The bureau said 16 inches of rain fell during one six-hour period.

Eight people drowned and six were killed in weather-related electrocutions in Bombay, officials said. Another seven people drowned in the nearby Thane district.

The rainfall left many neighborhoods under 3 feet of water, and while some of the flooding had receded by Sunday, authorities were still trying to assess the damage.

The city's international airport closed Friday night because of the rain and five flights were diverted to New Delhi, Karachi or Muscat. The airport reopened Sunday morning.

Long-distance train service to Bombay was partially restored after being cut by the storm, but power outages were reported in much of the city.

(JUNE 17) UPI - Ohio officials are trying to cope with the aftermath of a flash flood in the small eastern town of Shadyside. The death toll from Thursday's flood stands at 15, and 44 people are still missing. The normally quiet town of 43-hundred was drenched by five and one-half inches of rain in just three hours. A deputy meteorologist at the National Weather Service says the rainfall was so swift that such a calamity would probably only happen every 500 years.

United Airlines officials say a jet made an unscheduled landing at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport last night after crewmembers reported smoke in the cockpit. Authorities say they did NOT discover any fire... but two crewmembers were treated for smoke inhalation. The jet was flying from Seattle to New York.

F-A-A officials in Massachusetts say a Delta Air Lines M-D-80 jet en route from Dallas to Boston was diverted to Hanscom Field in Bedford yesterday after the pilot experienced hydraulic problems. The jet made an emergency landing in fog after attempting two previous unsuccessful approaches to Boston.

Authorities in California say an earthquake measuring three-point-seven on the Richter scale shook the San Bernadino-Riverside area last night. A spokesman for the Caltech Seismology Laboratory in Pasadena says the quake was centered six miles southeast of San Bernadino. There are NO reports of any damage or injuries.

(JUNE 17) UPI - Italian authorities say 35 Romanian World Cup Soccer fans are requesting political asylum. The dissidents arrived in Rome yesterday from a town northeast of Naples where the Romanian team is set to play Argentina tomorrow. A West German extremist arrested in East Germany for a 1985 terrorist attack on a U-S military base says the East German secret police hid her for years. East German authorities say the woman told investigators the now-disbanded secret police unit helped her settle in East Germany in 1980 after she arrived there with a stolen passport. Sigrid Sternebeck is one of six alleged extremists being held by East German authorities.

Doctors at the Atlanta Hospital say the second AIDS patient to receive an experimental blood-heating treatment for the virus is ''doing very well.'' PHILADELPHIA (JUNE 17) UPI - Detectives were looking for suspects Sunday in seven separate murders, and were investigating the murder-suicide of a man and his daughter, in one of the bloodiest weekends on record in the city of Brotherly Love.

The virtual bloodbath, which began at 8 p.m. Friday and lasted until 2 a.m. Sunday, boosts the city's murder rate to 244 for this year, or 60 murders above last year's record pace that saw 501 people dead by year's end.

By mid-June last year, 184 homicides had been reported.

Police said the latest murder occurred in North Philadelphia early Sunday when Ronald Lowery, 47, was engaged in an altercation with another man.

Lowery was stabbed in the chest at about 1:55 a.m. and later died at Hahnemann University Hospital, police said.

A 2-year-old North Philadelphia girl was also listed among the murdered.

Police said Tasha Harris was shot in the head late Friday evening by her father - Andre Harris, 29 - who had barricaded the girl and himself in his home for four hours in a standoff with police.

After killing his daughter, Harris shot and killed himself. Police finally entered the home and discovered the bodies at 12:30 a.m. Saturday.

Police said they know of no specific motive for the murder-suicide, although they said it appears to have been the result of an argument between Harris and his girlfriend.

The first to be killed in the weekend carnage was Anthony Thomas, 22, of West Philadelphia, who was shot in the chest while sitting in a car at a traffic light shortly before 8 p.m. Friday.

Thomas apparently had words with a man in another car. The man, for reasons still unknown to police, opened fire on Thomas, who was pronounced dead half an hour later at the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania.

No one had been arrested in the Lowery, Harris or Thomas cases, nor in any of the other five weekend murders, police said.

LOS ANGELES (JUNE 17) UPI - A huge building mural promoting a new film starring raunchy comedian Andrew Dice Clay was splattered with paint Sunday by a protest group that also unfurled a banner criticizing the studio chief behind the film.

The mural promoting ''The Adventures of Ford Fairlane'', on the side of a multi-story storage building alongside a Freeway, was attacked about 7 a.m., said a caller to United Press International, who claimed to be a spokesman for a group calling itself Activists Against Sexist Pigs.

The mural was splattered with paint and a roughly 15-foot-long red banner hung from the top of the building. The caller said the banner was intended to criticize Barry Diller, the head of 20th Century Fox studios, which produced Dice Clay's film.

The incident was the third attack in recent weeks on advertisements for the film featuring the Brooklyn comic, who is reviled by some for his jokes about women, homosexuals, immigrants and others.

The caller said the assault on the mural was carried out by a ''diverse group of people, men and women, gay and straight.''

Last Sunday, a poster for ''Ford Fairlane'' outside 20th Century Fox studios was splattered with paint by the same protest group.

(JUNE 17) UPI - One person is dead and hundreds others are homeless following widespread flooding in Iowa. County authorities say the worst flooding occurred in the southeastern part of the state yesterday. In Le Claire, a girl drowned as she tried to walk across a flooded street. She slipped and got caught in a drainage pipe five feet under water. Heavy rains also hit northwestern Illinois. Slippery rail tracks caused a freight train to derail, killing the conductor.

A spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization says the Abu Nidal gunmen assassinated a P-L-O official three days ago.

Los Angeles Times says federal officials are going to sue 16 companies for allegedly releasing toxic chemicals into Southern California coastal waters. The reports says the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration will file the suits tomorrow. The legal action would enforce a long-ignored environmental law requiring polluters to clean up their mess and restore damaged wildlife habitats to their natural state.

Lithuania's government is asking the republic's Parliament to consider imposing a moratorium on its independence declaration. Such action would open the door for talks with Moscow concerning Lithuanian secession. If the moratorium is approved, it would take effect as soon as Moscow lifts an economic blockade and agrees to hold negotiations.

(JUNE 17) UPI - The long summer nights in Siberia are starting to pulse with the sounds of American jazz and contemporary rock-n-roll. The music is coming from tapes provided by the Voice of America to a partly commericial radio station. The station also is broadcasting readings from

NEW YORK (JUNE 17) UPI - The Avianca jet that ran out of fuel and crashed in Long Island in January was delayed partly because federal controllers accepted too many jets that rainy night, a published report said Sunday.

The report in New York Newsday came as the National Transportation Safety Board prepared to open hearings in New York this week into the crash, which killed 73 people.

Avianca Flight 052, which originated in Medellin, Colombia, and was bound for John F. Kennedy International Airport, was placed into a holding pattern for more than an hour over New York before it ran out of fuel and slammed into a Long Island hillside.

''The flow program fell apart,'' the newspaper quoted one source familiar with the investigation as saying. ''It did not work the way it was supposed to work. The (air traffic controllers) were playing a game of catch-up all afternoon. They never caught up.''

The newspaper said more than 12 hours before the 9:34 p.m. crash, a Kennedy air traffic supervisor recommended the flow of incoming planes be slowed to about 22 per hour - about one-third the number of planes handled on a clear day.

Airport records show that was the maximum the airport could accept on the gusty, rainy day, New York Newsday said.

But that ceiling would have led to ground delays of up to four hours.

''That's unacceptable to the airline system,'' the newspaper quoted one unidentified source as saying. ''It would have shut it down.''

Federal Aviation Administration officials, pressured to keep departure delays at Kennedy at a minimum, overruled the recommendation and set the rate at 33 per hour, New York Newsday said.

''We can live with it,'' the newspaper quoted the supervisor as saying when he was informed of the decision.

The 33 plane rate was set two hours after the FAA had issued a 30-plane-per-hour advisory. Ground delays averaged 86 minutes.

The Avianca flight - whose crew never declared a ''fuel emergency'' that would have cleared the plane for an immediate landing - missed a landing attempt and crashed minutes later as it made another approach.

(JUNE 17) UPI - There is some confusion regarding how many people remain missing in eastern Ohio following a flash flood. The National Guard says between 40 and 50 people are missing but the Red Cross says 23 remain unaccounted for. At least 15 people died in the flash flood which devastated the town of Shadyside and neighboring hill communities. Emergency crews are continuing their search for more possible victims today.

New York City police say they foiled a ''gay-bashing'' early this morning and arrested three young men. The three suspects chased two men on a Greenwich Village Street, shouted anti-homosexual slurs and brandished a baseball bat, a knife, and a golf club. Two Port Authority police officers initially spotted the would-be attackers and saw the trio try to run over the two men with their car.

(JUNE 17) UPI - Another body has been found in flooded areas of eastern Ohio, raising the death toll to 16. Emergency crews are still looking for bodies three days after rampaging flood waters devastated at least three counties. But there are conflicting accounts on the number of missing. The Ohio Air National Guard says as many as 50 are missing... but a list compiled by the Red Cross and local officials stands at 23. Whatever the number, officials say it could be days before a final death toll is reached.

(JUNE 17) UPI - Rescue workers in eastern Ohio have found the body of another victim of Thursday's flash flooding... lifting the death toll to 16. However, there are conflicting reports as to the number of people UNaccounted for in the region. The Red Cross and Census Bureau say 23 are still missing, while the Ohio National Guard says between 40 and 50 are missing.

The National Weather Service says the swiftness and severity of Thursday night's disaster is of a type that occurs approximately every 500 years. Three normally docile creeks were turned into torrential currents after thunderstorms dumped five-and-a-half inches of rain in three-and-a-half hours.

South African officials have NOT linked the fatal shootings of four policemen overnight with yesterday's anniversary of the Soweto uprising. WASHINGTON (JUNE 18) UPI - A homosexual advocacy group may launch a demonstration on the grounds of a Marine Corps barracks in the nation's capital to protest alleged attacks on homosexuals by leathernecks, a spokesman said Sunday.

Michael Petrelis, a spokesman for the group Act-Up, said homosexual-bashing incidents in Washington, D.C., and elsewhere is getting out of hand and that his group is prepared to do something about it.

He spoke with District of Columbia police Sunday about an incident in which several Marines allegedly assaulted a homosexual man outside a gay establishment on Saturday night. The spokesman said there were no charges brought, but a criminal complaint was filed.

Petrelis said police told him of another attack last week, in which Marines allegedly assaulted a hairdresser near the barracks. He said a third incident occurred last month when a smoke bomb was lobbed into the Hill Haven, a lesbian bar near the Marine barracks.

No suspect ever was identified, but the spokesman said he thinks Marines are responsible.

He said Act-Up is considering a protest march Friday to draw attention to the alleged attacks.

''We're discussing having a march on the Marine barracks this Friday night '' Petrelis said, noting the intent would be to disrupt the weekly parade, open to the public, that features ''All-American boys'' marching in drill teams with military music.

''We're going to demand that the barrack's institute educational classes about gays and lesbians.''

Petrelis says Act-Up will contact the White House to take advantage of an apparent rapprochement by the Bush administration during the recent signing of anti-hate crime legislation.

''What we're hearing from the White House is more tolerance for gay and lesbian people and I think that message has to filter down through the Marines and the other armed services,'' Petrelis said.

The spokesman said he would like the military to teach soldiers to be more sensitive about the rights of homosexuals.

Act-Up has about 100 members in Washington, where the group, which normally focuses on AIDS-related issues, was established about six months ago.

The local chapter belongs to a larger organization that has about 40 Act-Up groups nationwide, and is strongest in New York, Petrelis said.

(JUNE 17) UPI - The death toll from Thursday's flash flood in eastern Ohio now stands at 17 following the discovery of two more bodies today. 22 others are still UNaccounted following the inundation of hill communities along the Ohio River three days ago. However, an official in one town particularly hard hit by the disaster says rescue efforts will continue. In the words of Shadyside fire chief Mark Badia- ''We will look until we are convinced we have done all we can.''

Emergency teams also are trying to clean up the soggy mess in Iowa. But the efforts are likely to be put on hold with thunderstorms headed for the eastern part of the state. Numerous flooding problems are reported throughout the state and a flash flood watch has been issued for southeast Iowa. Predictions of dry weather may enable western and central sections to return to normal.

ROME (JUNE 17) UPI - Add Miguel ''Michel'' Gonzalez to the list of players who have scored more World Cup goals than the United States.

Michel, as the flashy Spaniard is known, recorded the first hat trick of the tournament Sunday, powering Spain to a 3-1 victory over South Korea in the northern Italian city of Udine.

The midfielder joined West Germans Rudi Voeller and Lothar Matthaeus atop the World Cup scoring race with three goals. Ten players have more goals than the U.S. team, which has one from Paul Caligiuri in its first two matches.

Caligiuri, a midfielder and forward, said Sunday he has been approached about the possibility of playing for a lower-seeded Italian first division team. He met with a talent scout at the team's training facility in Tirrenia.

Caligiuri, 26 and the grandson of Italian immigrants, scored in the 5-1 U.S. loss to Czechoslovakia. His goal against Trinidad & Tobago last November qualified a U.S. team for the World Cup for the first time in 40 years.

He is under contract for 1990 to the U.S. Soccer Federation, which also holds an option for 1991. Caligiuri said he has a clause that must allow him to play in Europe if he signs with a pro team.

Michel scored in the 23rd, 60th and 81st minutes as Spain romped to victory in front of a crowd of 32,733 at Friuli Stadium. The World Cup record for most individual goals in a game is four, accomplished six times the last in 1986 by Spain's Emilio Butragueno against Denmark.

''According to you, Michel shouldn't have played,'' Spain Coach Luis Suarez told Spanish journalists. ''It's a good thing I didn't listen to you.''

Spain, 1-0-1, virtually assured itself a place in the second round, but it will need a good effort on Saturday against Group C leader Belgium to be safe.

''Until yesterday, it seemed we were going to be eliminated in the first round,'' Suarez said, taking another jab at the Spanish media. ''Now it seems like we're going to make it to the final. Those of you who criticized us, consider yourselves justly renounced.''

Belgium, 2-0, qualified for the second round with a 3-1 triumph over Uruguay in Verona. The Belgians held off a Uruguay charge over the final 22 minutes, when the South Americans missed numerous opportunities.

Uruguay, which had been considered a dark horse to win the World Cup, is in danger of being eliminated.

''The responsibilty for this loss is mine, not the players,'' said Uruguay Coach Oscar Washington Tabarez, whose team is 0-1-1. ''We adopted defensive tactics and this was death for us.

''We must win the last game (against South Korea) and then see what happens. Things are turning out different than what we thought, but this is the World Cup and you pay for mistakes in the World Cup.''

In Sunday's other match, Egypt and Ireland played a scoreless draw in Palermo, Sicily, leaving all four teams in Group F deadlocked. Holland, England, Egypt and Ireland have all drawn their first two matches and they've all scored and allowed one goal each.

''I didn't like anything about the game,'' Ireland Coach Jack Charlton said. ''I didn't like the way the Egyptians played. We take some of the blame ourselves because we didn't score goals, but at least we tried. We had four chances. Egypt had none.''

Group F closes Saturday with Egypt playing England and Holland against Ireland.

In Cagliari, Sardinia, a Japanese television reporter and his cameraman were attacked by a mob of English soccer hooligans Sunday night as they attempted to film the supporters on the streets of Cagliari.

Police said Juzuro Saito of Tokyo's NHK-TV network and cameraman Isoyama Katsuni were set upon as they filmed on the via Roma, located in the center of the port city.

The TV crew, who had been on the island for several weeks, had their video camera destroyed in the melee, which occured one day after England and Holland played to a scoreless tie in a Group F match.

According to officials, the team's camera was smashed on the ground and Saito's glasses were destroyed. The Japanese were rescued by a passing police patrol and taken to a hospital.

Doctors said Saito suffered a cut eyebrow after being hit by a rock and Katsuni will need a week to recover from severe chest bruises caused by his beating.

(JUNE 17) UPI - Ohio and Iowa cleanup after flooding... Atlanta doctors are under fire for blood-heating... communists head toward expected victory in Bulgaria... and fatherhood is celebrated with some motherly advice. All this and much more coming to you across the wires of U-P-I.

Ohio authorities took advantage of a dry conditions to continue looking for more victims of Thursday's disastrous flooding in the Allegheny Plateau.

The Ohio National Guard boosted the confirmed number of dead to 17 after finding two more bodies along the littered banks of the Ohio River today. An additional 22 people remain UNaccounted for.

Officials expect to find even more victims as hundreds of National Guardsmen and Red Cross workers sift through the rubble of homes that were washed from their foundations.

Also picking up the pieces are Iowa residents. Last night, a tornado reportedly touched down near Sioux City, damaging more than 30 homes and destroying an as-of-yet UNdetermined amount of farm land.

UNlike Ohio, however, the folks in eastern Iowa may have to delay their efforts if predictions of rain hold true. Forecasters warned that additional thunderstorms were headed toward the area and could trigger more flooding.

(JUNE 17) UPI - The second AIDS patient to undergo a controversial blood-heating treatment reportedly continues to make progress at the Atlanta Hospital. But his bid to defeat the deadly virus comes amid stiff criticism against his doctors by a senior federal health official.

On Thursday, 38-year-old Tony Mascio underwent hyperthermia... a process which involved pumping his blood through a device that heated it 115 degrees Fahrenheit and then returning it to his body.

The theory behind the procedure is that it induces a disease-killing fever which the body would NOT normally attain.

And while Dr. Kenneth Alonso reports his patient is doing well, there are those in the medical community which have criticized the procedure for what is an experimental procedure.

Anthony Fauci, the director of the National Institute of Allergies and Infectious Diseases, blasted doctors for publicizing hyperthermia without substantiating its effects.

Fauci said today that he has evidence which suggests that heat would actually ''induce the production of a virus.''

The first AIDS patient to receive hyperthermia... Carl Crawford... says his AIDS-related cancers have vitually disappeared from his body in the four months since he underwent the treatment.

A lot of dads are probably putting on their best smiles today... and maybe some ugly neck ties... as Millions of Americans celebrate Father's Day.

President Bush... who is relaxing at the presidential retreat in Camp David, Maryland, issued a proclamation designating the day as a day to- ''honor our fathers and to express out gratitude for their generosity and devotion.''

But despite the traditional celebration, Father's Day 1990 comes against a backdrop of calls to change traditional roles for dads.

Professor Ronald Levant, a teacher of educational pyschology at Rutgers University in New Brunswick, New Jersey, says men will have to learn how to perform so-called ''women's work.''

(JUNE 17) UPI - Bulgaria's re-fashioned Communist Party is expected to gain an absolute majority in parliament after run-off elections today.

Voters went to the polls in constituencies where NO candidate had won the necessary majority in first-round elections held earlier this month.

Reports from the capital and the countryside indicate polling went smoothly.

Following the last round of elections, the opposition alleged the Communist Party... now re-named the Socialist Party... manipulated the vote in the nation's rural areas.

But one voter says she thinks Soviet President Gorbachev has changed people's minds about communists. She now believes they can be ''totally reformed.''

Officials say second-round results are scheduled to be announced Tuesday.

The assembly will sit for approximately one and one-half years and will (JUNE 17) UPI - 23-hundred men in Belgium donned period uniforms today and re-enacted the legendary Battle of Waterloo to mark its 175th anniversary.

With cannons roaring, mock soldiers on foot and horseback clashed for hours on the fields where Napoleon met his match on June 18th, 1815.

The outcome of the battle was the same this time around. After an early stalemate, the Frenchman was sent packing by Britain's duke of Wellington and a Prussian general.

A sea of spectators marveled at the pageant from slopes of a 131-foot artificial mound built to commemorate the battle.

The battle ended Napoleon's renewed dreams of glory after returning from exile in Elba, and made ''Waterloo'' a name forever synonymous with disaster.

A performance of Beethoven's music is also planned at a local church to honor the battle's 62-thousand fallen soldiers.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK (JUNE 18) UPI - A former national aerobatics champion performing stunts at an air show in a Soviet-made plane Sunday was killed when the craft slammed into the ground near thousands of spectators, authorities said.

Tom Jones, 44, an organizer of the Aero Space America '90 air show at the Will Rogers Airport, was killed shortly after 2 p.m. when the plane, a Sukhoi SU-26 fighter, crashed nose first.

Jones had purposely stalled the Soviet-made plane, but the engine apparently did not start again, officials and witnesses said.

''On the first leap, he went up and came down too low. He went up again spinning around and then he crashed,'' said spectator Pam Svetgoff. ''We saw flames coming out of the engine. It flat hit the ground right in front of us.

''I cried. I'm still shaky. I knew he was dead,'' she said.

Svetgoff said hundreds of spectators ''screamed and ran in the other direction. ... They thought it was coming towards us and it was for a while.''

Other witnesses indicated that just before the crash, the plane released a type of smoke different than that often used as part of a stunt show.

''What I'd seen was the plane going up and making a stall and then he tried to pull out of the stall,'' said Dean Brenner, who was working in the airport parking lot at the time of the accident. ''He didn't quite make the height. He came in head first, and then there was a big puff of black smoke.''

Estimates of the crowd on the third day of the air show ranged from 75,000 to 90,000.

Air show officials said the crash, between 100 and 200 yeards from the nearest spectators, was the first major accident in the five years of the event.

After Jones' crash, the rest of the day's events were canceled, and the other U.S. and Soviet pilots participating in the air show conducted a mass fly-by in tribute to the fallen pilot.

ANCHORAGE, AK (JUNE 18) UPI - Soviet officials were among military attaches from 35 countries invited to visit a remote outpost Monday where Alaska National Guard Eskimo scouts keep an eye on the Soviets across the Bering Strait.

''I'm excited to see that,'' Soviet Lt. Col. Mikhail Olimpiyev said in anticipation of his visit to the remote village of Gambell on St. Lawrence Island, 35 miles from the Soviet mainland. ''The world has changed.''

Military officials from Israel and the Middle East, from South Africa and black African countries, from China, the Soviet Union and the United States sat elbow-to-elbow Sunday in an Anchorage hotel meeting room far from the world's hot spots for a briefing about the military on America's Last Frontier.

The frank briefing probably would have been unthinkable until recently - certainly with military attaches from countries in the East Bloc, the Arab world and others not always on the best of terms with the United States.

A booklet available for the attaches described in even more detail the Air Force structure in Alaska - complete with history, the number of F-15 jet fighters available to intercept Soviet bombers, the number of Air Force personnel, a list of radar stations, cost breakdowns, a few skimpy facts about the closed base on Shemya Island, a map of military facilities in Alaska along with a list of some key personnel and phone numbers - including numbers for such things as the barber shop and golf course on Elmendorf Air Force Base.

The National Guard Bureau in Washington, D.C., brought the military attaches to Alaska for a show-and-tell visit about the Guard's unique operations in the 49th state. The group arrived Saturday in Juneau, flew to Anchorage Sunday and was to spend Monday at National Guard outposts in Gambell and Nome on the Bering Sea coast.

The Quonset hut in Gambell where Eskimo scout guardsmen operate is full of pictures of Soviet military planes, ships and weapons to help citizen guardsman identify what they see along the U.S.-Soviet maritime border.

''I don't think it's any secret that Alaska scouts have the mission of border coverage,'' said Maj. Bob Dunlap, a guard spokesman from Washington. ''Unless you've been sheltered, you're aware of that.''

The wallpapering of the Gambell National Guard building with pictures of Soviet military paraphenalia and planes ''won't insult the Soviet officers '' Lt. Col. Bob Pool said. ''... These are changing times.''

This is the third annual National Guard Bureau trip for foreign military attaches. Two years ago, attaches visited Utah. Last year, invited military men visited California and Idaho. But this year's trip, which began in Idaho and ends in Minnesota, was unique because there were no restrictions and an open invitation was issued that included the Soviets and Chinese, Pool said.

Other countries were eager to learn about the National Guard organization because essentially it is a civilian force that answers to a local governor in peacetime but can be mobilized to answer to a central federal government in wartime, Dunlap and Pool said. They said it can save money over a large standing army and that no other country has anything quite like it.

''With the changing environment in Europe, many countries have expressed interest in the National Guard,'' Dunlap said.

But one European country, Romania, bowed out of the trip at the last minute because of domestuc strife, Pool said.

Oman Lt. Col. Mohammed-Al Kindy said he was most impressed by the progress of improved U.S.-Soviet relations.

Israeli Col. Yoash Shapira, whose country already has one of the biggest reserve forces in the world, said he was interested in whether the National Guard offered any lessons to Israel with its different problems.

Soviet Lt. Col. Vladimir Gontar, said he felt no awkwardness at either the unique itinerary or being with the diverse group of attaches.

''Our task is to understand each better,'' Gontar said. ''As far as the Soviet Union and the United States, the future belongs to our cooperation.''

Olimpiyev added that the Soviet military supports President Gorbachev's policies of glasnost (openness), perestroika (change) and democratization.

Brazil, France, Germany and the Soviet Union each sent two officials.

One military attache came from each of the following countries: Australia, Bangladesh, Canada, Chile, China, Ivory Coast, Denmark, Ecuador, Finland, Great Britain, India, Indonesia, Israel, Jordan, Mexico, New Zealand, the Netherlands, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Paraguay, Peru, Senegal, South Africa, Spain, Sudan, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Uruguay and Yugoslavia.

(JUNE 17) UPI - The search for bodies continues today, three days after floods pulverized eastern Ohio. Emergency crews found two more bodies today to lift the total to 17. Emergency workers say 22 people are still missing and hundreds are homeless after the sweeping waters destroyed or severely damaged their homes.

Iowa officials say heavy rains and strong winds that spawned tornadoes during the weekend have caused Millions of dollars in damages. A funnel cloud reportedly touched down last night near Sioux City, damaging homes and farmland. More flooding was expected in eastern Iowa with predictions of continued rainfall this afternoon.

As the Senate Ethics Committee considers the fate of Republican Senator Dave Durenberger for alleged financial misdeeds, newspapers in his home state of Minnesota are calling for him to step down or submit to a special election. A published report today says a special referendum should be held in November to decide whether Durengerger should be ousted from office.

New York Cardinal John O'Connor insisted today he never threatened to excommunicate Catholic politicians who support abortion rights. O'Connor said many politicians and reporters misinterpreted a column he wrote in last week's archdiocesan newspaper. O'Connor wrote that those who support abortion law- quote- ''must be warned that they are at risk of excommunication.''

(JUNE 17) UPI - Philadelphia officials may be re-thinking the accuracy of their municipal motto today. A weekend of violence in the city of brotherly love has left nine people dead, including a two-year-old girl whose father shot her before shooting and killing himself. It is the bloodiest weekend in recent city history.

Representatives from Solidarity citizen committees met in Warsaw today where they voted to give the Polish government the initial go-ahead to form a national political federation to back its reforms. Solidarity founder Lech Walesa opposes the move on grounds it may ultimately dominate Polish politics.

Things looks brighter in Texas. Coast Guard officials say oil has stopped leaking from the Mega Borg. Calm seas held the spill's movement steady overnight and the Coast Guard now says the oil may NOT even hit the shoreline. Clean-up crews are getting extra help from experimental oil-eating microbes.

Nelson Mandela arrives in Ottawa today to begin a tour of North America. Stops include the Canadian Parliament, the U-N, the White House, and Congress. The black rights leader will push for continued sanctions against South Africa. Canadian officials support the sanctions and are expected to greet Mandela warmly.

WOODS HOLE, MA (JUNE 18) UPI - The crippled cruise ship Bermuda Star was drained of its fuel and patched up Sunday, one week after it ran aground in heavy fog, spilling 7,500 gallons of oil into Buzzard's Bay off Cape Cod, Coast Guard officials said.

More than 95,000 gallons of heavy No. 6 fuel was pumped out of four tanks on the 617-foot vessel and into a fuel barge which headed for Providence, R.I., shortly after noon, Coast Guard Petty Officer Arthur Lebeau said.

Final repairs to the 90- by 2-foot gash in the vessel's hull ripped open in the June 10 grounding were also finished Sunday morning, Lebeau said.

Divers used neoprene-treated sheets of plywood to plug the opening and a smaller crack which was found during an inspection of the hull later in the day, he said.

The gleaming white cruise ship, carrying more than 1,000 passengers and crew, was more than a mile outside a cleary marked shipping channel in the bay when it hit a rock ledge in heavy fog south of the entrance to the Cape Cod Canal. It was planning to stop in Provincetown, on the tip of the cape, on its journey to Nova Scotia from New York.

About 1,000 gallons of the 7,500 gallons of oil which escaped later washed ashore on private Naushon Island and two others located south of the cape.

More than 50 workers from a private cleanup company continued shoveling up the globs of oil and debris from the island beaches Sunday.

The ship's operator, Bermuda Star Lines of Teaneck, N.J., has been charged with violating the federal Clean Water Act, which could carry a fine of up to $50,000.

Another 120 crew members, meanwhile, were taken off the hobbled cruiseliner Sunday, Lebeau said, leaving a handful of crew members and Coast Guard representatives still on board.

The hull of the vessel must be thoroughly cleaned of all remaining oil clinging to the waterline area before the ship can be towed to a New York shipyard for repairs, probably late Monday or early Tuesday, Lebeau said.

VANCOUVER, BRITISH COLUMBIA (JUNE 17) UPI - Gilbert Perreault, center of the Buffalo Sabres famed ''French Connection'' line and Bill Barber, who helped the Philadelphia Flyers win two straight Stanley Cups in the 70s Sunday were elected to the Hockey Hall of Fame.

Fern Flaman, defenseman with Toronto and Boston was elected in the veterans category and Norman ''Bud'' Poile, a former NHL executive and IHL president was named in the builders category.

Voting was conducted by a 12-member panel of hockey writers, former players and hockey executives. Inductees need a 75 percent vote from the committee to gain election.

The four will be inducted Sept. 24 at the Hockey Hall of Fame in Toronto.

Danny Gallivan, chairman of the selection committee, said that Perreault's election was unanimous, the first since Bobby Clarke.

Perrault was the first player selected in the 1970 entry draft by Buffalo and in 1975, along with linemates Rene Robert and Rick Martin helped the Sabres gain the Stanley Cup finals against the Flyers.

''I think the year we went to the final was a great thrill,'' Perreault told reporters in a conference call. ''Buffalo was a new team and against Philadelphia it was the first time two new teams met in the final.''

Perreault played 17 seasons with the Sabres and in 1,191 games he accumulated 512 goals, 814 assists for 1,326 points, the eighth highest total in NHL history. He captured the Calder Trophy as the league's outstanding rookie in 1971, and was named to the league's second all-star team in 1976 and 1977.

He retired after 20 games of the 1986-87 season and is currently coach and general manager of the Victoriaville team in the Quebec Junior Hockey League.

Perreault said the only shortcoming of his career was never winning the Cup.

''That's the only thing, no Stanley Cup. I had a very good career with the Buffalo Sabres,'' said Perreault.

Barber, a left-winger, helped the Flyers to the Cup in 1974 and 1975. Those Flyers, nicknamed the ''Broad Street Bullies'' for their aggressive checking style and a penchant for fighting, had more talent than most people remember, according to Barber.

''I believe our teams that won those Stanley Cups were very talented teams.'' Yes, we were very physical, but we were willing to pay the price '' Barber said. ''We had gifted people.''

Barber played for 12 seasons and was named to the league's first all-star team in 1976 and second team in both 1979 and 1981. In 903 games, he had 420 goals and 463 assists for 883 points. His career ended after knee surgery in 1984 and he currently works in the Flyers front office.

''I'm very honored,'' Barber said. ''It is the thrill of a lifetime I'll cherish forever, to be included with all the greatest players in the game.''

Flaman played 17 seasons with Boston and Toronto from 1944-45 through 1960-61. He was a member of the Toronto's Cup-winning team in 1951 and played in six All-Star Games.

Poile retired as president of the International Hockey League last year. He was one of four winners of the Lester Patrick award for contribution to hockey in the United States in 1989.

He was the original general manager of the Vancouver Canucks and lost a coin toss at the 1970 draft which could have given Vancouver first choice and the rights to Perreault.

(JUNE 17) UPI - More trouble in Romania. Anti-government demonstrators in Bucharest today re-claimed the city's main square... just three days after it was cleared by club-swinging coal miners loyal to the ruling National Salvation Front. The protesters demanded the release of more than one-thousand people arrested in last week's unrest. Today's protests came in spite of warnings that miners might return to the capital to crush political dissent. The protesters are calling for the government to resign.

Black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela is in Ottawa for the start of his North American tour that will include stops in Toronto, Montreal, New York and Washington, D-C. He arrived in Canada earlier today and was greeted at the military airport by about two-thousand people. The African National Congress leader predicted the end of apartheid in South Africa is near, and urged Western nations to ''keep up the offensive'' against his country's white minority government.

A breath of summer blessed much of the nation today, allowing officials in Ohio to press their search for more victims of Thursday's freak flooding. The state National Guard says the death toll now stands at 18... and 18 others are still missing. Residents in Iowa might have to postpone cleaning up from a tornado that damaged more than 30 homes near Sioux City last night... as more rain is expected.

(JUNE 17) UPI - NASA engineers are busy preparing the shuttle Atlantis for its midnight trip to the launch pad at Cape Canaveral, Florida. The ship is set to blast off on a secret military mission next month. Officials are NOT saying when the exact launch date is, but sources say blast-off will take place around July 13th and the mission is scheduled to last four days.

Security forces in Iran reportedly had a weekend-long shoot-out with drug traffickers. Iran's official news agency says fighting erupted when security forces attacked drug trafficking bases in the country's remote southeast. The report did NOT say if there were any deaths or injuries. More than 13-hundred people have been executed for drug smuggling since last year, when Iran passed new drug laws.

(JUNE 17) UPI - The search for victims of Thursday's flood along the Ohio River continues...

More protests in Romania today...

And black nationalist Nelson Mandela arrives in Canada...

These stories... and more... next, from United Press International:

The tragedy in Ohio continues to unfold.

Rescue workers in Shadyside found three more bodies today... raising to 19 the death toll from Thursday night's flash floods.

And officials say they're bracing for the worse. 18 people remain UNaccounted for.

Hundreds of National Guardsmen and others continue their painstaking search for more victims along the littered banks of the Ohio River. One rescue worker says he'll continue to look until he's convinced he's done all he can.

Iowa residents may NOT have much of a chance to clean up from last night's tornado that touched down near Sioux City... damaging more than 30 homes. Although they awoke to sunny skies today, more rain is in the forecast.

Thunderstorms also rumbled through parts of Illinois, Wisconsin and Florida today... but much of the nation enjoyed a blast of summer.

(JUNE 17) UPI - Romanian demonstrators tonight called for the resignation of government officials and the release of imprisoned protesters.

Some one-thousand people gathered in Bucharest to press for the release of a nearly equal number of people arrested last week. The twin chants of ''Resign!'' and ''We want them back!'' rang through the capital's University Square at dusk.

That's the same square where thousands of club-wielding miners beat suspected opponents of the government just three days ago. The miners wrecked the offices of opposition groups and dragged political activists from their homes.

Tonight's protests came in spite warnings the miners might return if there was further unrest.

To add to the turmoil, today marks the six-month anniversary of Romania's pro-democracy uprising. The protesters charge the new government is still dominated by communists.

Today's run-off elections in Bulgaria are expected to result in a majority in parliament for the former Communist Party.

Voting was held in 81 areas where NO candidate had won a majority in last Sunday's election... the first multi-party elections in the country in 44 years. The former communists... now dubbed the Socialist Party... went into the runoff already owning 172 seats in the 400-member Grand National Assembly.

A NON-partisan watchdog group reports polling went smoothly and fairly. International observers also gave the polling a clean bill of health following the first round of balloting.

Opposition groups have charged the elections were rigged. Final results should be known Tuesday.

The two leading anti-communist parties intend to form a strong parliamentary opposition. The parliament's main task will be to draw up a new constitution.

(JUNE 17) UPI - Nelson Mandela today kicked off his tour of North America in Ottawa, Canada.

Some two-thousand people... including several hundred school children... turned out at the city's military airport to welcome South Africa's leading black nationalist. Crowds chanted in Zulu and sang the black African national anthem.

Ottawa is the latest stop in a world tour by Mandela to recruit fresh support for economic sanctions against the white-ruled South African government. But Mandela may have found himself preaching to the converted.

Canadian leaders already had promised to keep sanctions in full force.

Mandela told the crowd the end of what he called the ''hard and costly'' struggle was in sight. And he urged them to ''keep up the offensive.''

Canada's Prime Minister Brian Mulroney told Mandela the black leader's release from prison in February had rekindled hopes for a democratic South Africa.

Mandela flies to Toronto and Montreal before heading to New York and Washington, D-C, later this week.

Newsweek magazine says the U-S invasion of Panama was marred again and again by deadly military foul-ups.

An article this week quotes ''well-placed'' military sources saying that nine out of the 23 Americans killed in the invasion were accidently gunned down by other U-S troops.

The sources estimate 60 percent of all U-S casualties may have been caused by so-called ''friendly fire.''

Newsweek also reports that, although the invasion was intended to be a surprise attack... word was leaked to military leader General Manuel Noriega on at least a dozen different occasions.

The magazine says those leaks came from the local girlfriends of American soldiers and Panamanian customs agents who warned Noreiga's forces of incoming U-S military cargo.

Noriega reportedly was tipped off only hours before the raid, but dismissed the report as a false alarm.

Newsweek also says the December 20th invasion had been on the drawing boards for weeks... contradicting President Bush's assertion that it was in response to recent attacks on U-S troops in the region.

(JUNE 17) UPI - Delegates from some 80 nations are meeting in London this week to strengthen an international treaty to save Earth's ozone layer.

Scientific studies clearly show ozone depletion is worse than previously believed. President Bush and European leaders already have publicly committed to speed up the global phase-out of ozone-depleting chemicals.

That's the main business of the conference.

But there's a simmering dispute over proposals to start an international fund to help Third World nations comply with an accelerated phase-out. The United States was alone among the major industrialized powers when it initially opposed the new fund... saying aid should go through existing institutions.

Under mounting international pressure last week, the Bush administration announced support of a new World Bank fund if it did NOT exceed initial cost estimates of up to 260-Million dollars.

That proposal appeared to defuse the controversy. But the details remain fuzzy and it is NOT clear whether Third World nations such as China and India will go along with the plan.

(JUNE 17) UPI - The Coast Guard says oil stopped leaking today from the Norwegian tanker Mega Borg after spilling four-point-six Million gallons into the Gulf of Mexico.

Much of the oil evaporated or burned off in the fire that followed an explosion aboard ship more than a week ago. Officials say only 12-thousand to 4-thousand gallons of oil are still in the water. The 30-mile-long slick is within 12 miles of the Texas coast. Landfall is expected tonight or tomorrow between Louisiana and the tourist-packed beaches of Galveston Island.

Oil-loving bacteria have been scattered on parts of the spill. An official of the Texas general land office says from the air, the microbes appear to be breaking down the oil.

The sharp eyes and quick thinking of a cruise ship captain reportedly foiled a drug smuggling operation in Miami, Florida.

The Carnival cruise liner had just docked at the Port of Miami after leaving the Caribbean when the Coast Guard says the captain spotted two divers in the water near the hull of his vessel.

The captain notified authorities about the divers. Police sent a team down to check out what all the fuss was about. The police divers found four steel boxes bolted to the hull of the ship... all of them stuffed with marijuana.

Three people are in custody... the two divers spotted by the captain and a third person... all of them Jamaican.

A Coast Guard official says he thinks it's the first time would-be smugglers used a cruise ship to channel drugs.

(JUNE 17) UPI - Crews in Ohio today found three more bodies... raising to 19 the death toll from flash flooding on Thursday. A Belmont County sheriff's spokesman says the three victims found today include a married couple. A Red Cross spokesman says as many as 16-hundred families were affected by the flooding that destroyed up to 100 homes and damaged hundreds more. 18 other people are still missing, and officials fear the death toll will climb.

The worst of the Mega Borg oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico may be over. Officials say oil has stopped leaking from the damaged tanker, and experimental microbes seem to be eating up some of the spill. The Coast Guard says less than 40-thousand gallons of oil remain in the water. The bad news is that it's expected to hit land tonight or tomorrow. The Texas shores at risk stretch from south of the Louisiana border to 30 miles north of Galveston Island's beaches.

(JUNE 17) UPI - Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir presided over the first meeting of his new hard-line Cabinet today. Army radio says Shamir told the Cabinet its top priority is to settle thousands of Soviet Jewish immigrants. Officials say Israel's relations with the United States were NOT discussed at the meeting in Jerusalem. Later, one minister defended Shamir's rejection of U-S Secretary of State Baker's proposal for peace talks.

A Boston Sunday Globe poll indicates 61 percent of Americans believe the government is NOT doing enough to fight AIDS. An overwhelming 86 percent of those questioned said more tax money should go to increased drug treatment facilities. Nearly everyone polled knew how AIDS is actually transmitted. DENVER (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - TRI-R Systems Corp. (NASDAQ:RRRC), a Denver-based diversified recycling firm, Monday announced a three-year aluminum beverage container supply contract with Container Recovery Corp., the recycling arm of Anheuser Busch Companies.

Under the agreement, Container Recovery Corp. will purchase a projected three million - four million pounds per year of used aluminum beverage containers that TRI-R collects through its network of neighborhood TRI-R Recycling Centers. Container Recovery Corp. will support TRI-R's collection efforts through advertising and the provision of equipment.

At current selling prices, and assuming that the contract remains in effect throughout its full term, TRI-R estimates that it would generate from $4.5 million to $6 million in revenue over the life of the contract. The level of advertising support and specifics of equipment support were not disclosed.

Headquartered in Denver, TRI-R Systems Corp. is an innovative, customer-oriented recycling firm that collects a wide range of reusable materials from consumers, businesses and government, processes these materials and sells them to domestic and foreign manufacturers.

Commodities purchased include aluminum cans and scrap aluminum, glass, copper, brass, stainless steel, plastic containers, and a variety of paper products including computer printout paper, office paper, newspaper and cardboard.

The company's stock trades on the over-the-counter market (NASDAQ) under the symbol RRRC.

BROOMFIELD, CO (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - McDATA Corp. has announced that TCP/IP (Telnet) support is now available for its LinkMaster 6100E Ethernet-to-SNA channel server.

The TCP/IP software module of the channel server provides the emulation for UNIX users on Ethernet Local Area Networks (LAN) and attached to TCP/IP (Telnet) terminal servers to access 3270 applications on an IBM or IBM compatible host.

With the TCP/IP module and the Local Area Transport (LAT) module, announced in January 1990 and available since April, one LinkMaster 6100E can support both DEC and UNIX terminals on up to six Ethernet LANs.

''In many corporations UNIX systems are used for engineering applications while the IBM system runs administrative applications. In order for UNIX users to access the IBM system, companies have had no option but to add expensive, cycle-consuming emulation software to the IBM, VAX and/or UNIX hosts,'' said Brian Witt, product manager for interoperability products at McDATA.

''The 6100E eliminates the need for 3270 emulation in any host. This reduces expense and maintenance costs for network managers, and beta site users are reporting excellent response times,'' Witt added.

The channel server provides emulation for Telnet and LAT users by appearing to the IBM host as an SNA-based controller.

File transfer protocol (FTP) is available with the TCP/IP support. FTP makes file tansfer from UNIX users on an Ethernet LAN to 3270 users on the IBM and other compatible systems possible. ''FTP allows an engineer on the Ethernet LAN to send, for example, a list of MRP part numbers to a 3270 user for editing,'' Witt said.

The 6100E also utilizes existing channel connections for a direct NetView interface, reducing the hardware and software investments needed for NetView/PC and increasing management function. No operator training is required for NetView users.

The TCP/IP channel server provides full support for UNIX terminals for up to 128 concurrent users. No additional IBM or UNIX host software or hardware is required. In addition the TCP/IP channel server option offers multiple session support and status line access for terminals in 3270 emulation.

The base price of the LinkMaster 6100E is $26,250. TCP/IP support lists at $5,000, while LAT support is $15,000.

KANSAS CITY, MO (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - US Sprint announced Monday that it now offers callers immediate credit for wrong numbers and calls experiencing transmission difficulties.

The new service invalidates a recent advertising campaign that touts AT&T as the only operator services provider to give immediate call credit. Prior to offering this service, US Sprint required that customers call a customer service ''800'' number. The request was then processed and a credit was noted on their bill.

''This move separates US Sprint from other long- distance providers because customers will see the actual credit on their bill,'' said Dan Evanoff, vice president and general manager of Sprint Services. ''Unlike AT&T, we put it in writing.''

US Sprint has stepped ahead of the competition by assuring immediate call credit even if the customer makes a credit request a day or two later. US Sprint customers now may give their information to a Sprint Services agent and be assured that the credit will appear on a subsequent bill. This eliminates the customer inconvenience of requesting the credit again upon receiving their monthly invoice.

According to Evanoff, research indicates that even though a customer requests call credit via other operator service providers, if the request is not within five minutes of the occurrence, the chances that the credit will appear on the customer's bill is jeopardized.

Established in 1988 to provide operator support for US Sprint customers, Sprint Services now provides a variety of call assistance and 900 services to a rapidly growing market.

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Ventura Software Inc., a Xerox company, Monday introduced FormBase 1.1, a powerful forms processor integrated with a fully relational database.

FormBase allows users to manage information faster, easier and less expensively than existing forms processors or database products. The new version has been redesigned to benefit from Microsoft's recently released Windows graphical environment version 3.0 for personal computers.

The company made the announcement at the eigth annual PC Expo, being held in New York this week at the Jacob K. Javits Center.

In addition to compatibility with Microsoft Windows 3.0, other key enhancements to FormBase 1.1 include support for the development of international versions, new powerful design tools and increased printing and sorting speed.

''What distinguishes FormBase from other forms processors is the unique way in which the program combines forms creation with data management and data manipulation,'' said Lydia Chaverin, director of product marketing for Ventura Software. ''The user only designs forms; the program takes care of the rest by automatically setting up the underlying relational database.

''We feel that with the combination of these capabilities, FormBase sets new standards in the emerging category of forms processing software.''

FormBase 1.1 supports Windows 3.0 and can offer all the advantages of the power, ease of use and extended memory support provided in that environment. The product will continue to support Windows 2.1 and above; it will be shipped with Single Application Environment (run time) Windows 2.11

The redesign of FormBase allows international versions to be developed based on the popular ANSI (American National Standards Institute) standard. The addition of ANSI code to FormBase 1.1 provides support for the majority of characters which are unique to Europe and were not previously achievable using the OEM (original equipment manufacturer) code.

Other international enhancements include support for country-specific sort sequences and international date formats.

FormBase 1.1 also offers enhancements in database sorting and printing speed. Forms printing speed is up to four times faster with the popular Hewlett-Packard laser jet series printer.

FormBase 1.1 will continue to allow users to import and export data from software products such as Microsoft Excel, Lotus 1-2-3 and dBASE III.

FormBase 1.1 has a suggested retail price of $495. All registered users can upgrade for $49. Detailed upgrade information will be distributed to users in July.

Ventura Software has a worldwide marketing strategy and will be shipping U.S., Canadian and Australian versions of FormBase 1.1 in the third quarter of 1990. Versions currently in development for the United Kingdom France and Germany will be available later this year. Additional international versions are also planned.

Ventura Software, a Xerox company (formerly Xerox Desktop Software), is a leading supplier of publishing, forms processing and database management software solutions for IBM PCs and compatibles. The company markets its software solutions through a dealership network of more than 2,200 outlets. Ventura Software has its headquarters in San Diego.

BERKELEY, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Mt Xinu Monday announced the release of K-AShare , a software product that turns a Sun Workstation into an AppleShare file server.

K-AShare is a full implementation of AFP, the Apple Filing Protocol, Apple Computer Inc.'s standard technology for sharing files between networked Macintoshes.

AppleShare is Apple Computer Inc.'s client-host networking system which lets Macintosh users share and exchange files and applications. Client software is shipped free of charge with every Macintosh. The host software, which controls the file sharing, is purchased separately and was designed to run on a dedicated Macintosh computer.

When a Macintosh becomes ''dedicated'' to file serving, it can no longer be used as a personal computer.

With Mt Xinu's K-AShare, the AppleShare host resides in the background on a Sun Workstation instead of a dedicated Macintosh. This allows every Macintosh on the network to be fully used as a personal computer.

It also provides Macintosh users with the additional speed and hard disk space of the Sun workstation, as well as the additional network security inherent in UNIX-based networks. K-AShare supports up to 100 Macintoshes per copy.

K-AShare for Sun workstations is now available from Mt Xinu directly. K-AShare will be available on the Hewlett Packard 9000 and VAX Ultrix platforms beginning August 1990. Other XINET Products:

K-AShare for Sun workstations is a new addition to a suite of AppleTalk-to-Unix connectivity packages offered by Mt Xinu's XINET division. Other software available includes K-Spool, a UNIX-resident spooler for sharing of PostScript printers, and T-Serve, TOPS (network file sharing software for UNIX hosts.

All of these packages are based on K-Talk, AFP protocols for Sun, Hewlett Packard 9000 and Vax platforms.

K-Spool is a companion product for K-AShare and T-Serve. K-Spool allows Macintosh and UNIX users to share PostScript printers. It is transparent to Macintosh users, who see nothing new except for the availability of printers anywhere on the network--on LocalTalk, ethernet, or serially connected to the host. In addition, K-Spool provides no-wait printing; once a print job is sent, the Mac is immediately free.

Mt Xinu is a privately held California corporation with offices in Berkeley, Calif. It was incorporated in 1982 and has developed system software products and provided consulting for UNIX environments. In addition to the XINET products, Mt Xinu offers MORE/bsd, an enhanced version of 4.3bsd UNIX and MACII, a UNIX operating system currently available for research and development facilities.

SAN FRANCISCO (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - The Department of Insurance has ordered Maxicare Life and Health Insurance Co. to stop transacting insurance business in California.

It alleges that Maxicare, based in St. Ann, Missouri, is threatened with insolvency and conducting business in a manner hazardous to its policyholders, creditors and the public.

Pending the outcome of a department hearing, the insurer is barred from transacting, soliciting or writing any new or renewal business except for renewals that are statutorily and contractually required.

The public hearing is scheduled at the Department of Insurance, 100 Van Ness Ave., San Francisco, on July 11 at 10 a.m. If the charges against Maxicare are justified, the department will permanently bar the insurer from doing business in the state.

CALABASAS, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Tekelec Monday announced that it has signed an agreement with Northern Telecom to provide $500,000 worth of test equipment for analyzing and simulating SS7 (Signaling System 7) digital networks. Northern Telecom will be using Tekelec's MGTS (Message Generator Traffic Simulator) to test RTP FAST, the largest captive network in North America.

"Tekelec's MGTS was the most cost-effective surveillance system we evaluated," stated John Crabtree, Northern Telecom's manager of hardware management, RTP FAST Customer Service. "We also were impressed with Tekelec's aggressive development programs."

This agreement is just one of many for Tekelec's signaling test systems. "More companies are becoming aware of the complexities involved in sophisticated data networks. SS7 networks will be relied on for telephone services uptime," stated Peter N. Vicars, Tekelec president and chief executive officer.

Northern Telecom will be using the MGTS to produce simulated SS7 traffic to load a DMS bus and associated SS7 peripherals. "The MGTS had the lowest cost per traffic attempt," commented Crabtree. The MGTS can simulate any part of an SS7 network, including signal transfer point (STP), signal control point (SCP) and signal processor (SP) nodes concurrently. Users can set up worst-case scenarios and determine thresholds for technician alert procedures.

Recognized as a leading test equipment manufacturer, Tekelec's product line encompasses testing of data protocols (ISDN, X.25), transmission services and equipment, signaling (SS7) and emerging intelligent network applications. Its products are actively marketed worldwide with subsidiaries in Japan and the United Kingdom.

SANTA BARBARA, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Mi Piace, the Italian restaurant at 25 E. Colorado Blvd., Pasadena, has installed two Sharp 3310 computerized cash registers purchased from Western Data Systems, according to Wayne Poirier, account manager at Western Data Systems.

Mi Piace is a restaurant-bakery combination owned and operated by Armand Shirvanian and Takese Markoutsis.

''In the restaurant, we cater to Italian tastes,'' Markoutsis said, ''but the bakery features international desserts.''

Markoutsis said recipes for his restaurant originated in southern Italy. He said, ''They are from Calabria and Sicily where my father lived. I challenge you to come and taste our coffee and see whether it is not the best!''

The restaurateur said Mi Piace has been open for only a little more than three months and that the versatile Sharp 3310 registers assist the combined bakery-restaurant operation in many ways.

''They have no bugs in them,'' he said. ''The system saves money and works well.''

The Sharp registers, which may be expanded to perform additional services, are uniquely suitable for such a two-function situation, Poirier said.

''One of the 3310 registers was set up especially for the in-house bakery and the other is a restaurant register,'' said Brian Griffith, the programmer with Western Data Systems who installed the system. ''They are equipped to communicate with each other; this gives management the ability to pull both totals from one register.

''Mi Piace is a neat restaurant,'' the programmer said, in an aside that reflected all the gusto of a natural food critic. ''I'm glad I had a chance to install a system there. The place doesn't look like much from the outside but inside it is nice. It has a good atmosphere. The music they played appealed to me and I liked the food; the coffee was excellent, the first I ever have had that was that strong but didn't have any acid bite to it,'' he said.

Griffith said the Sharp 3310 is a versatile register, offering many options, from inventory control to automatic food pricing and menu engineering. He explained that the owners of Mi Piace did not feel they needed the more elaborate systems at this time, but that they would be able to upgrade simply by installing another computer board.

''For the most comprehensive system,'' he said, ''of course, they would have to install and interface with a PC in the back room.''

Western Data Systems is the authorized sales-and-service dealer for NCR, ICL Retail Systems (formerly ICL/Datachecker) and Sharp. It sells electronic cash registers and point-of-sale systems, which use the computerized registers as devices to collect and transmit information for analysis. The firm also sells computers, custom software programs and supplies for cash register systems.

Western Data Systems has offices at 4 W. Calle Laureles in Santa Barbara and at 1429 E. Thousand Oaks Blvd., 200, in Thousand Oaks.

LOS ANGELES (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - SalePoint Systems Corp., a San Diego-based IBM industry remarketer of point-of-sale (POS) systems, Monday announced a multimillion-dollar contract with retailer and specialty catalog company Williams-Sonoma.

This agreement was announced at the National Retail Merchants Association (NRMA) conference held in Los Angeles this week.

The contract includes the installation of Feature ''T'' enhanced 4683 POS terminals with OS/2 extended edition operating system (OS/2 EE) for each of the company's 118 stores throughout the United States. In addition to Williams-Sonoma locations, the agreement covers Pottery Barn and Hold Everything stores.

Williams-Sonoma POS requirements were very specific. They included combining reail and mail-order systems into a single merchandising system, automating their Memphis warehouse through its expansion to 700,000 square feet and installing OS/2-based point-of-sale systems in all retail locations to keep pace with the company's record growth.

Through OS/2, Williams-Sonoma can provide a common interface for all store systems -- which leads to more simplified store operations, reduced training time and minimized cost.

The IBM 4683 is one of the most flexible and cost-effective specialty store POS solutions available. It is comprised of POS terminals and store controllers and utilizes industry-standard operating systems such as MS-DOS and OS/2.

San Francisco-based Williams-Sonoma is a dominant force in the retailing and specialty catalog market. With one of the most extensive lines of home products available in the United States today, the $215 million company operates 118 retail stores across the United States, including Williams-Sonoma, Pottery Barn and Hold Everything.

With headquarters in San Diego, SalePoint is an industry remarketer (IR) of DOS and OS/2-based IBM 4683 and 4684 POS systems. In addition to specialty stores, SalePoint provides IBM POS solutions to universities, amusement parks and other custom POS applications requiring OS/2 flexibility and connectivity advantages.

SAN JOSE, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - C-Cube Microsystems Monday introduced the Compression Master/PC, the first image compression board for IBM PC/ATs and compatibles based on the proposed international JPEG standard for image compression.

Compression is a key requirement for applications that use color photographs or motion video, such as image databases, desktop publishing and video editing.

The Compression Master/PC is a single ISA (Industry Standard Architecture) board that incorporates C-Cube's CL550 processor. It allows original equipment manufactures (OEMs) and software developers to evaluate the CL550 and to integrate compression/decompression capabilities into their products.

''The C-Cube Compression Master/PC is a major advance in bringing high-quality graphics and imaging capabilities to the PC platform,'' said Mauro Bonomi, manager of product marketing at C-Cube. ''With the Compression Master/PC, hardware vendors can dramatically reduce the time-to-market for their next-generation graphics and video products.''

The Compression Master/PC is targeted at OEMs of consumer electronics, communication and PC products such as digital cameras, color faxes, graphics systems and printers. These kinds of products require compression to handle color.

The Compression Master/PC also benefits developers of PC applications that include image databases, CAD and photorealistic rendering, animation, video editing, desktop publishing and digital photography.

Recently, Adobe Systems Inc. announced that PostScript Level 2 will incorporate the JPEG (Joint Photographic Experts Group) proposed standard for image compression. VLSI (very large scale integration) implementations of JPEG, such as the C-Cube CL550 and Compression Master/PC, will enable OEMs to develop PostScript-compatible printers that offer increased performance for processing color images.

The Compression Master/PC is based on the C-Cube CL550 processor, the first and only single-chip processor to implement the proposed JPEG international standard for image compression, as defined by the CCITT/ISO standards organization. Using a symmetrical algorithm, the CL550 can compress or decompress still images or motion video by a factor of 20 -- without visible degradation in quality.

The Compression Master/PC is compatible with the leading IBM PC/AT and compatible series computers. It interactively compresses and decompresses 16- and 32-bit true-color images in the standard TGA format using the JPEG baseline image compression standard. Compression ratios vary from 10:1 to 100:1 and can be set by the user. The Compression Master/PC runs at up to 10MHz.

The supporting software utilities include several tools to simplify application development, including a C language hardware interface library and an application to compress/decompress TGA images.

Available now, C-Cube's Compression Master/PC development boards are priced at $3,000.

C-Cube Microsystems is the leading developer of digital media technology used in applications such as color desktop publishing, image databases, digital photography and digital video systems. Based in San Jose, C-Cube was founded in July 1988 to establish its digital media technology as the industry standard for computer, communications and consumer electronics applications.

SAN DIEGO (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - HNC announced Monday at the International Joint Conference on Neural Networks (IJCNN) its new ExploreNet 3000 software for the PC.

HNC's ExploreNet 3000 is the first neural network software to provide users with a major new application development environment that employs the recently introduced Microsoft Windows Version 3.0.

The product includes a wide variety of predefined example applications that significantly speeds development, and MS-Windows 3.0 makes the software easy to use for non-technical professionals. Neural networks offer superlative capabilities for data analysis, pattern recognition and classification, but are considered by some users to be too complicated for non-experts.

ExploreNet 3000 insulates users from the complexity under a flexible, icon-based environment, and allows users to define and create their applications without programming. ExploreNet 3000 applications are 100 percent compatible with HNC's ANZA Plus hardware coprocessors.

''ExploreNet 3000's exceptional ease of use allows business users to finally tap the power of neural networks,'' said David N. Shlager, HNC's vice president of sales and marketing. ''Operating under MS Windows 3.0, ExploreNet 3000 with its icon-based architecture can get a user's application up and running very quickly.''

ExploreNet 3000 will be available for shipment in July, 1990 and is specially priced at $750 through Aug. 30, after which the price will be $1,495.

ExploreNet 3000 is an advanced neural network software development and user interface environment that enables users to develop neural network applications in a fraction of the time normally required. ExploreNet 3000 contains a wide variety of predefined example applications that embody core functionality. The user can customize these example applications, or construct an application from scratch.

Applications are developed simply by selecting icons on the computer screen, specifying parameters, and linking individual modules together.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - A contract valued at more than $13 million has been awarded to Litton by The Limited, the nation's largest women's apparel retailer, with headquarters in Columbus, Ohio, to provide material handling and control systems for The Limited's two new distribution centers in Reynoldsburg, Ohio.

The systems will be installed by spring 1991.

Litton's Material Handling Systems division will produce and install the systems, totaling more than 11 miles of conveyors. The distribution centers, now under construction, will have combined floor space of over 1 million square feet.

Large wholesale lots of women's fashion garments will be trucked to the new distribution centers for sortation and shipment to Limited retail outlets nationwide. Incoming lot shipments will be broken down, inspected sized and priced, sorted and stored, then picked and shipped for individual store orders.

The high-speed Litton conveyor system will facilitate sorting of materials in the distribution centers at a rate of 90 containers per minute in the packing area, and 80 cases a minute in the shipping area.

Litton's Material Handling Systems division, based in Hebron, Ky., provides a full line of automated material handling and management systems and services to customers in the automotive, aerospace, electronics, food and beverage and distribution markets.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Adobe Systmes Inc. (NASDAQ:ADBE) Monday announced a new version of the Adobe Type Library which includes a new utility that allows users to print Adobe's IBM PC-format typefaces to HP LaserJet Plus, II, IID, IIP, and III printers.

The upgrade utility, Font Foundry, also allows users to automatically build screen fonts to any size and monitor resolution.

''By offering our IBM PC users the ability to print their Adobe Type Library typefaces to a LaserJet, as well as to a PostScript printer, we greatly expand their options,'' said John Kunze, director of Product Marketing, Adobe Systems.

''Combined with our other new products, we now offer a complete typeface solution for the PC user: all laser printer owners, either PostScript language of LaserJet printers, can take advantage of the over 650 typefaces in the Adobe Type Library; for LaserJet II owners, there's the PostScript Cartridge and Adobe Type Cartridges; and for Windows 3.0 customers, we have Adobe Type Manager.''

The new version will begin shipping with every IBM PC-Format Adobe Type Library package this summer, and all registered customers will automatically receive a free upgrade from Adobe. Interested customers should contact Adobe at 1-800-83-FONTS.

There are over 650 typefaces in the Adobe Type Library for both the IBM and Macintosh personal computing environments. Adobe also designs and develops its own Adobe Originals typeface families, such as Adobe Garamond Lithos and Minion.

In addition, the company has licensing agreements with such prestigious type foundries as International Typeface Corp. (ITC), Monotype, Linotype, Bigelow & Holmes, Neufville, Alpha Omega Typograhy and Morisawa.

Adobe Systmes, founded in 1982 by Dr. John Warnock and Dr. Charles Geschke has headquarters in Mountain View. Adobe is the developer of PostScript the industry standard page-description language for the electronic printing and publishing fields, and Display PostScript, a device-independent graphics imaging model that drives screen displays.

In addition, the company develops and markets a complete line of application software programs, including the award-winning Adobe Illustrator 88 and Adobe Type Manager, Adobe TypeAlign, Adobe Type Reunion the Adobe Type Library, the Smart Art graphic-effects library, the PostScript Cartridge, Adobe Type Cartridge 1: Display Faces, Adobe Type Cartridge 2: Best Sellers and Adobe Photoshop. MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Adobe Systems Inc. (NASDAQ:ADBE) announced Monday Adobe Type Manager -- Windows Version software and three additional PC type products, the Adobe Plus Pack, Adobe Type Set 1 and Adobe Type Set 2 for IBM and compatible personal computers.

Like the popular Macintosh version, ATM allows Windows 3.0 applications to display and print smooth, high-quality text at any size, automatically. With ATM, Windows 3.0 users can now get scalable PostScript language fonts on both their display and their PostScript or non-PostScript language printer.

As in the Macintosh version, the ATM-Windows Version contains 13 scalable PostScript language fonts including Helvetica, Times, Courier and Symbol.

''Adobe Type Manager provides Windows users with several key benefits,'' said John Kunze, director of Product Marketing, Adobe Systems. ''Most notably, they will get high-quality screen fonts at any point size and the ability to print those fonts on their printer of choice.''

Adobe Type Manager will be available in September 1990 from all Adobe authorized dealers and has a recommended U.S. retail price of $99.

The Adobe Plus Pack contains 22 typefaces that, when combined with the 13 fonts included with Adobe Type Manager, provide users with all the fonts needed for the typical laser printer. In addition, the Adobe Plus Pack's large selection of typefaces provides dot matrix or non-laser printer users with a valuable collection of typefaces for a variety of applications.

The Adobe Type Set 1 and Adobe Type Set 2 each contain seven different display typefaces for all IBM personal computer users. All three packages offer a significant savings over purchasing each typeface individually.

The Adobe Plus Pack, Adobe Type Set 1 and Adobe Type Set 2 typeface packages are compatible with the new Adobe Type Manager -- Windows Version and the new IBM PC version of the Adobe Type Library (see news release ''Adobe announces new version of PC fonts,'' June 18).

The Adobe Plus Pack, Adobe Type Set 1 and Adobe Type Set 2 have a suggested U.S. retail price of $198, $99, and $99, respectively, and will be available in July 1990 from Adobe authorized dealers.

Customers can also order Adobe Type Manager, the Adobe Plus Pack and the Adobe Type Set packages through ''Font & Function,'' Adobe's type catalog. Customers interested in the Adobe Type Library can contact Adobe at 1-800-83-FONTS.

HERCULES, CALIF. (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Bio-Rad Laboratories Inc. (ASE:BIO.A, BIO.B) announced that the Food and Drug Administration has recently approved its Novapath HIV-1 Immunoblot test for the detection of antibodies to individual proteins of Human Immunodeficiency Virus Type 1 (HIV-1), the virus known to cause AIDS.

The Novapath HIV-1 Immunoblot is nearly five times faster than comparable tests using the same technology. FDA approval will allow the use of this product in virtually any laboratory or blood bank in the United States.

The world-wide market for confirmatory testing of the HIV-1 antibody is approximately $18 million per year. With the FDA approval, Bio-Rad expects to gain market share due to the significant time savings of the Bio-Rad test.

Although the financial impact of the increased sales cannot be quantified at this time, the company indicated that this test is one of several new products which will allow Bio-Rad to continue to achieve its overall growth and profitability objectives.

REDMOND, WA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Microsoft Corp. and Olivetti Systems & Networks (OS&N), the Olivetti Group company operating in the distributed information sector, Monday announced that several Microsoft products have been chosen by OS&N as key components of its Olivetti-IBIS 3.0 (Integrated Business and Information System), a third-generation Office Information System based on Olivetti Open System Architecture (OSA).

Microsoft Windows graphical environment version 3.0, Microsoft Excel for Windows and Microsoft Word for Windows will be offered as the suggested standard components of the Olivetti-IBIS 3.0, the company's most recent release of IBIS, which automates and interconnects various office activities. Olivetti's choice of Microsoft as a key partner and its recognition of Microsoft products as emerging standards in the market is consistent with Olivetti's policy of supporting industry and de facto standards.

The Microsoft Windows graphical environment is the suggested interface for every Olivetti-IBIS 3.0 workstation. Customers will have the option of selecting the Microsoft Windows graphical environment along with any of the Microsoft family of Windows applications.

Microsoft and Olivetti Systems & Networks are jointly developing software hooks that allow Olivetti-IBIS to communicate transparently with Microsoft Excel for Windows and Word for Windows. OS&N and Microsoft will also develop hooks for the recently announced Microsoft PowerPoint graphical presentation program and Microsoft Project for Windows.

Choosing Windows and Windows applications provides Olivetti-IBIS users with the highest level of integration with native IBIS applications, such as CCITT standard X.400 electronic mail, and with other Windows applications. At this level of integration, the Windows applications are encapsulated within the front-ends to the IBIS system. The Windows applications understand the object-oriented IBIS filing system and appear to end users as native IBIS applications. For example, a user could easily integrate data from within IBIS SQL database front-end into Microsoft Excel for Windows or Word for Windows.

Microsoft Corp. (NASDAQ: MSFT) develops, markets and supports a wide range of software for business and professional use, including operating systems languages and application programs, as well as books, hardware and CD-ROM products for the microcomputer marketplace.

SANTA CLARA, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - 3Com Corp. Monday announced summer availability of two products enabling users of 3+Open networks to interoperate transparently with NetWare and Macintosh systems.

Both will be offered as part of 3Com's continuing enhancements that add value to LAN Manager networks by simplifying access to a broader range of applications.

3+Open Connection for NetWare will allow LAN Manager and Novell NetWare systems to operate as a single network, giving DOS users access to files and applications in both environments. 3+Open for Macintosh allows Apple Macintosh systems to act as clients in 3+Open networks, along with DOS and OS/2 workstations, giving Macintosh users direct access to LAN Manager resources for the first time.

The products were demonstrated for 3Com customers, including 3Com's San Francisco Bay Area Users Group, during a press conference at 3Com's headquarters today.

3+Open Connection for Netware takes advantage of 3Com's Demand Protocol Architecture (DPA) and supports Novell's native IPX protocol stack to give 3+Open users access to NetWare-based applications, files and resources while making client-server applications on 3+Open servers available to Netware users.

With 3+Open Connection for NetWare, applications written to Novell's IPX protocol will run without alteration in a typical NetWare environment. In addition, Netware users, through DPA, have access to such 3+Open LAN Manager applications as 3+Open Mail, 3+Open Internet and 3+Open TCP with DPA. DPA also gives PC workstation users access to other industry-standard network transport protocols and allows loading/unloading of protocols without rebooting or using gateways or bridges.

3+Open for Macintosh further increases the multivendor connectivity options for 3+Open LAN Manager. Use of industry-standard protocols, including Apple's AppleTalk Filing Protocol (AFP) and Printer Access Protocol (PAP), ensures compatibility with all Macintosh applications.

In addition, because 3+Open for Macintosh uses AppleShare client software, which offers the familiar Macintosh interface, Macintosh users require no retraining. 3+Open for Macintosh operates with existing 3Com electronic mail products, allowing users of Macintoshes and personal computers to correspond transparently.

3+Open Connection for NetWare will be available in August for $250 for a single user license, $995 for a 10 user license, and $2,195 for a server license. 3+Open for Macintosh is available now. It is offered as part of the 3+Open 1.1 LAN Manager without charge from 3Com until July 31; for a special promotional price of $250 until July 31 for customers who already have 3+Open LAN Manager 1.1; and will be offered for $1,195 thereafter.

Both 3+Open Connection for Netware and 3+Open for Macintosh are available from 3Com and its worldwide network of resellers and distributors.

3Com Corp. is a leading independent global data networking company, providing multivendor connectivity that spans organizations and businesses worldwide. The company designs, manufactures, markets and supports networking systems based on industry standards and open systems architecture.

SAN FRANCISCO (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Pacific Bell announced Monday plans to test a new fiber-to-the-curb technology manufactured by Raynet Corp. as a potentially cost-effective alternative to traditional copper wires for providing residential telephone service.

The technology test of Raynet's LOC (Loop Optical Carrier) system will be conducted among 142 Raynet employees on the company's Menlo Park campus who will use a Centrex-based, fiber-optic network for telephone service and low-speed data transmission.

"Technological advances are reducing the costs of fiber optics into the range of traditional copper cable," said Geoff Cullimore, Pacific Bell director of customer premises broadband operations.

"This test with one of the leaders in the development of fiber-loop systems will give us the opportunity to gain practical experience and to evaluate the cost and performance of Raynet's system."

"In addition to testing the LOC system, we will work with Pacific Bell to verify how easily our RIDES operations support system integrates with Pacific Bell's existing provisioning and maintenance system," said Ed Davis, president and chief executive officer of Raynet.

"Raynet's LOC system features RIDES, a unique operations support software system that is designed to interface with exising operations support systems and ensure telephone companies complete functionality and compatibility."

Fiber-optic systems, which transmit voice and data as encoded streams of laser light, have demonstrated significant benefits in capacity, signal quality and dependability. Until now, however, the cost of these systems was justifiable only for dense, high-volume applications, such as transmission of long-distance telephone service, high-speed computer data and studio-quality video.

Cullimore said Pacific Bell will be evaluating the LOC system as a means of bringing the benefits of fiber optics into the "last mile" of the telephone network.

In a residential setting, the optical fiber system would provide service from a distribution terminal serving a neighborhood to pedestals along the curb. Each pedestal would be connected to several homes via traditional metallic telephone lines. The same architecture will be replicated in the Menlo Park test where the system will serve Raynet employees in five buildings.

SANTA CLARA, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - 3Com Corp. Monday announced two additions to its 3+Open product line that give network workgroups access to OS/2 and Unix servers and hosts running TCP/IP and XNS protocols.

Both products are part of 3Com's continuing enhancements that add value to LAN Manager networks by providing easier access to a broader range of applications.

3Com's 3+Open TCP NetBIOS eases resource sharing within multivendor and multi-operating system environments by incorporating NetBIOS functionality with the Transmission Control Protocol/Internet Protocol (TCP/IP). 3+Open XNS provides access to the widespread installed base of systems using the Xerox Network System (XNS).

3+Open TCP NetBIOS, available today, operates directly with 3+Open LAN Manager. Together, the software manages the exchange of data between network workstations and servers running Hewlett-Packard LAN Manager/X (LM/X) and OS/2 LAN Manager on a TCP/IP network.

Also shipping is a new version of 3Com's companion product, 3+Open TCP with DPA, which provides workstation access to Unix hosts via ARPA-standard applications, including the File Transfer Protocol (FTP) and Telnet.

3+Open support of the XNS protocol will also provide terminal-to-host access to network resource. 3+Open/XNS will allow DOS workstations to communicate with host systems through communication servers running XNS, extending communications options and protecting customers' investments in existing XNS-bases resources.

In addition, 3+Open/XNS works with any product incorporating the Network Driver Interface Standard (NDIS), regardless of the network operating system environment.

XNS terminal-to-host connectivity will be accomplished through 3+Open/XNS terminal emulators, which will co-exist with 3Com's 3+ and 3+Open LAN Manager operating systems on DOS workstations.

This will enable 3+Open users to extend their networks to include mainframes and minicomputers running the XNS protocol.

3Com Corp. is a leading independent global data networking company, providing multivendor connectivity that spans organizations and businesses worldwide.

The company designs, manufactures, markets and supports networking systems based on industry standards and open systems architecture.

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Informix Software Inc. (NASDAQ: IFMX) announced Monday that it is offering both the Windows 3.0 and OS/2 Presentation Manager versions of its Wingz graphic spreadsheet in a single two-for-one package. Available immediately, the Wingz PC Bonus Pack frees PC users from having to decide today whether to run Windows or OS/2.

Wingz is the first graphic spreadsheet to fully exploit the Windows 3.0 and OS/2 Presentation Manager graphical environments. With Wingz, PC users can for the first time easily combine text, numbers, 3-D graphs and imported images on one page with one product.

The Bonus Pack is Informix's response to the changing PC marketplace, in which users are now beginning to choose between DOS and the multiuser OS/2 operating environment. Through the Wingz PC Bonus Pack, customers receive Wingz for both Windows 3.0 and OS/2 Presentation Manager for the price of the Windows version alone.

"Wingz PC brings sophisticated information management capabilities to millions of PC users worldwide who are choosing Windows today, but who may want to switch to OS/2 Presentation Manager tomorrow," said Douglas Edwards, executive director of software marketing for Informix.

"By offering the Windows 3.0 and Presentation Manager versions of Wingz in the same package, we can give PC users the outstanding graphic capabilities, flexibility and power of Wingz without forcing them to decide today between DOS and OS/2.

"If Windows users want to migrate to a new graphical platform in the future, the planned availability of Wingz for every major graphical environment lets them move their Wingz applications and files to whatever desktop environment they choose - whether that environment is OS/2, Macintosh, or UNIX."

Wingz is the largest and most versatile graphic spreadsheet for desktop platforms. It features advanced charting with 3-D graphics, desktop presentation capabilities and the HyperScript application development language.

With the recently introduced Wingz-DataLink technology, PC users can use the graphical environment of Wingz to access or update information in local or remote Informix SQL databases. Data can be retrieved directly into a Wingz worksheet or into a customized Executive Information System (EIS) created with HyperScript.

With the availability of Wingz PC, Wingz now supports every major graphical desktop environment. In addition to Windows and Presentation Manager, Wingz is also available for Open Look for Sun, NextStep for the NeXT Computer, and the Apple Macintosh and A/UX. Wingz is also scheduled to be available for the Motif graphic interface for UNIX-based workstations later this year.

SUNNYVALE, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - DAVID Systems Monday announced the creation of a European sales office and the appointment of Robert (Rob) J. Thorpe to the position of Managing Director-Europe. Thorpe will be located in London and will be responsible for overall European strategy sales, and service for all DAVID products.

''This is the latest step in our European distribution plan,'' said Henry R. Nothhaft, president and chief executive officer of David Systems. ''We have now established major distribution channels throughout Europe and Rob will provide us with a full-time, experienced senior manager to implement and further our European penetration.''

Thorpe most recently served as managing director of Xionics Limited, and was previously marketing manager and then general manager and director of Nestar Systems Limited in Europe. He holds a bachelor arts from London University, a masters of arts from Wilfrid Laurier University in Waterloo, Ontatio, Canada, and a masters of business administration from McMaster University in Hamilton Ontario, Canada. He has extensive experience in networked computing and LAN products. DAVID Systems is now represented by the following distributors in Europe: Trend Communication (Denmark), Trend Data (United Kingdom), Pirelli FOCOM (United Kingdom and Italy), Pan Dacom (Germany), XMIT (Switzerland), G2R (France), and Alcatel (Europe).

The DAVID LAN product family includes the DAVID ExpressNet 10BASE-T Hub, Intelligent Concentrators (48 and 132 port), the DAVID ExpressView network management system, the recently announced VolksNet 10BASE-T Ethernet LAN for small network configurations, and the DAVID Ether-T Adapters for IBM personal computers and compatibles. DAVID Systems is currently shipping over 10,000 ports of 10BASE-T per month.

Formed to enhance the role of integrated digital communication, DAVID Systems supplied its first EtherNet LAN products in 1985. As a technical leader in its field, DAVID holds six communications patents and is an active participant in the IEEE802.3 10BASE-T Consortium at the University of New Hampshire.

DAVID Systems products emphasize integrated solutions for LANs, voice and data which are easy to expand and adapt to changing customer needs.

LONDON (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Motorola Semiconductor Products Sector and Philips International Monday announced their agreement to supply a full screen, full motion video IC for CD-Interactive applications. This part is central to the cooperation announced by the two companies in November 1989 and completes the full audio/visual capabilities of CD-I.

As a part of the development of CD-I, Philips Interactive Media Systems has created a highly cost-effective solution to video decompresssion and display. It is the device, implemented in Motorola's High Density CMOS technology, which is to be offered to third party CD-I manufacturers.

Motorola will be supporting the silicon as a part of their announced CD-I chip set, and will be assisting Philips IMS and their parters to realize CD-I as a global success in consumer electronics and Multimedia computing.

Availability of this revolutionary video processing device is time to coincide with major CD-I equipment launches in 1991. More details will be made available following the meeting of the MPEG committee in September 1990.

MPEG - The Motion Picture Experts Group is a joint ISO/CCITT standard committee, chartered with the task of defining a global standard for video compression.

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Nichols Institute (AMEX:LAB) and Med-Chek Laboratories Inc. announced Monday their decision not to proceed with their previously announced merger.

The parties were not able to establish mutually satisfactory contractual arrangements for the merger, but Nichols Reference Laboratory and Nichols Diagnostics division will continue to supply Med-Chek its services and products as required.

Med-Chek operates a clinical reference laboratory in Pittsburgh, serving customers in Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia and Western New York.

Nichols Institute provides clinical reference laboratory services on a nationwide basis and manufactures kits for domestic and international clients to perform their own medical diagnostic tests inhouse.

LONDON (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Motorola Semiconductor Products Sector Monday announced their intent to provide CD-I silicon chip sets to hardware manufacturers worldwide.

Motorola announced their cooperation with Philips Interactive Media Systems on the chip set in November 1989. This latest development coincides with the Multimedia Conference on Interactive CD hosted by Philips, Sony, Matsushita and Polygram.

The chip set includes the MC68340 32-bit microprocessor, a highly integrated solution for graphics applications, plus dedicated still video and video processing devices. A part of this set is a full screen, full motion decompression processor for the CD-I standard.

Motorola will be offering these parts as a part of their global semiconductor offering. Further details plus comprehensive applications support will be announced later this year.

By providing a global source of high quality silicon, Motorola aims to ease the development of hardware products conforming to the CD-I ''green book'' standard. This will accelerate the acceptance of CD-I as a Multimedia standard and add momentum to its rate of growth as the next major consumer product innovation.

Already, over 100 companies have signed up to support CD-I, the majority of them developing the innovative software titles which will drive consumer and professional usage.

Based on this latest announcement, the hardware companies will be able to accelerate their product developments, while guaranteeing conformance to the standard. This standardization is critical for such a global consumer product, guaranteeing that any disk bought anywhere in the world will play on any manufacturer's hardware.

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Micrografx Inc. of Richardson, Texas, the leading developer of Windows-compatible business graphics applications, announced Charisma, a powerful business graphics program that integrates word charts, business charts, desktop presentations, illustrations and over 2,200 free chip art images into one product.

With an inituitive interface which the user can customize, Charisma uses a common template approach for interfacing with each of its major graphics components: word charts, business charts, illustrations, and clip art.

The word chart templates completely automate creating word charts by defining paragraph margins, indents, alignment, bullets and fonts for multiple levels.

Charisma created business charts and graphs from data files in all of the common chart types: area, bar, column, line, pie, scatter, table and combination charts, and unlimited 2-D and 3-D variations.

Users can store their custom chart features in the visual chart folder for later use. Charisma directly imports data and graphics from Harvard Graphics, Excel, and Lotus 1-2-3.

Charisma's extensive illustration features include Bezier curve drawing and editing and an extensive drawing tool set. Gradient fills, over 16 million colors, color mixing and predefined custom color palettes round out the illustration feature set.

For desktop presentations, Charisma includes SlideShow, an electronic slide utility with over 30 fade and wipe effects, over 20 predefined master pages, over 20 predefined word chart templates, and over 80 predefined business charts.

Users can have up to 30 slides per file with no limit on the number of files in a single presentation. SlideShow is a separate program which does not require Charisma to run.

It lets users organize electronic presentations selecting images created with Charisma, Micrografx Designer and Draw Plus, and color or black-and-white PCX and TIF files. Users can choose from a variety of transition effects and length of duration, and advance the slides automatically or manually.

Support for image service bureaus is included through TeleGrafx, a remote service driver. TeleGrafx, compatible with Windows applications, completely automates communications between a PC with a modem and an imaging service bureau. TeleGrafx currently supports MAGICorp and Slidemasters.

ALAMEDA, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Ingres Corp. (NASDAQ: RELY) announced Monday it has entered into a contract with BellSouth Services Inc., one of the seven Regional Bell Operating Companies, to supply the Ingres line of relational database management system (RDBMS) products for BellSouth's distributed application environment.

The software is initially slated for use in BellSouth's Regional Negotiation System (RNS), an application that handles service startups and changes for residential customers.

The Ingres software purchased by the Birmingham, Ala.-based telecommunications company includes the base product, embedded languages, Ingres/Net, Ingres/Star, Ingres/Windows 4GL, a visual programming tool and fourth-generation language (4GL) development system that dramatically accelerates development of applications on workstations. BellSouth anticipates INGRES-driven systems to be up and running by the first calendar quarter of 1991.

Ingres executive vice president Chris Kenber said: "BellSouth is known as a sophisticated systems innovator with demanding database requirements. After carefully evaluating their choices, they chose Ingres."

With 17 million customers in nine southeastern states (North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana), BellSouth ranks as one of the world's largest corporations.

Ingres Corp. is a world leader in information integration products for mission critical applications. The company's primary product is the Ingres RDBMS.

Installed on more than 10,000 manufacturing and enterprise-wide commercial systems worldwide, and available on over 40 types of computers including PCs and UNIX workstations, the Ingres RDBMS enables organizations to quickly access data spanning a variety of computer systems connected in a network.

SAN DIEGO (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Security Pacific Corporation has announced a $3 million challenge grant to the San Diego National Training Center Foundation (SDNTCF) for the construction of the aquatics complex at the new Olympic Training Center/San Diego.

"For every $2 you (SDNTCF) raise, up to $3 million, Security Pacific will match those two dollars with one of its own," said Nicholas B. Binkley, president and chief operating officer of Security Pacific Financial Services System Inc., a subsidiary of Security Pacific Corporation headquartered in San Diego.

Binkley made his remarks at the June 16 groundbreaking ceremony for the new Olympic Training Center/San Diego sanctioned by the United States Olympic Committee to be built on the western shore of Lower Otay Reservoir in Chula Vista, California. The aquatics complex will be named after Security Pacific. Matching gift donors will also be recognized.

Binkely also announced that Security Pacific Bank and the United States Olympic Committee (USOC) had entered into an agreement for a long term operating $25 million line of credit. Security Pacific will become the USOC's bank of account.

The San Diego National Training Center Foundation is the non-profit organization responsible for the development of the training center. The center is a cooperative effort with the United States Olympic Committee (USOC) which will own and operate the center upon its completion.

The United States Olympic Committee, headquartered in Colorado Springs, Colorado, is the only official representative of the International Olympic Committee in the United States, and the body charged by the U.S. Congress with the responsibility for developing and promoting Olympic activities in the United States. The USOC has sole authority over Olympic affairs in the United States.

Security Pacific National Bank is the principal subsidiary of Security Pacific Corporation, the nation's fifth largest bank holding company with assets of more than $86 billion.

LAS VEGAS (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - System Integrators Deutschland GmbH, the West German subsidiary of System Integrators Inc. announced the installation of its first newspaper publishing system in East Germany.

Gruner & Jahr, a West German customer of SII which uses SII Editorial System/55 to publish the newspaper Morgenpost in Hamburg, will use the second system to demonstrate SII Editorial System/55 capabilities at the Sachsische Zeitung, a newspaper published in Dresden, East Germany.

Gruner & Jahr controls the installation and operation of the SII system which went live on the 11th of June in time to cover the 1990 World Cup soccer matches in Italy. Gruner & Jahr is using the Dresden newspaper for the production and distribution of Dresdener Morgenpost in East Germany, making it one of the first West German newspapers to be published in the East.

Commenting on the installation, SII President/CEO Al Edwards said: "Western Europe's publishing needs have been changing greatly just in the last two years. With the changes in Eastern Europe, we anticipate considerably more activity.

"These are exciting times for newspapers and the free press. The Eastern newspapers can jump directly from very old technology to the latest applications. SII is in a position to lead the technology revolution to the new free press of Eastern Europe."

The SII system in use at Sachsische Zeitung is based on two Tandem CLX processors and initially supports 10 SII Coyote publishing workstations for both editorial and classified advertising applications.

Tandem Vice President of Industry Applications Marketing, Ed Peverell said "Our relationship with SII has shown that they have been very successful in selling into the publishing industry, and we are very optimistic about future opportunities.

"Third party partners have been fundamental to our success across the world and this early success in Eastern Europe signals a continuation of our joint strategies into these exciting new markets."

MARKHAM, ONTARIO (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - International Semi-Tech Microelectronics Inc. (ToSE:ISE) Monday announced results for the year ended Jan. 31.

On a comparable basis, 1990 net income was $13,381,000, or $1.11 per share ($1.06 per share fully diluted). Net income for 1989 was $6,482,000, or 62 cents per share (60 cents per share fully diluted).

During fiscal 1990, the company's investment in Semi-Tech Microelectronics (Far East) Ltd. (STMFE) was reduced from 51 percent to 41 percent. This was as a result of the issue of further common shares by STMFE. As a result, the company accounted for STMFE on an equity basis in 1990, as compared with a consolidated basis in 1989.

Group revenues were $1.6 billion compared with $405 million last year.

On an equity accounting basis, the company reported revenues of $228.6 million for 1990. To facilitate comparison, the following table presents summary financial information by business segment for the years ended Jan. 31, 1990 and 1989.

FOSTER CITY, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Blyth Holdings Monday announced that Joseph J. Elkins has resigned as a director and as president and chief executive officer of Blyth Holdings Inc. and its Blyth Software Inc. and Blyth & Associates Inc. subsidiaries.

Elkins will, however, continue to be associated with Blyth as one of its independent Omnis developers.

A. Brean Murray, a director of Blyth, assumed Elkins' position as president and chief executive officer on an interim basis while the board of directors seeks a permanent successor for Elkins. Murray is also currently serving as acting chairman of the board of directors of Blyth while Paul N. Wright, Blyth's chairman, recovers from a recent illness.

Blyth also announced that in order to obtain additional financing for Blyth's working capital, Blyth has entered into an agreement with Brean Murray, Foster Securities Inc., a New York Stock Exchange member firm and the underwriter of Blyth's initial public offering in October 1987 (''BMFSI''), pursuant to which BMFSI has agreed to use its best efforts to privately place up to $2 million of Blyth's securities on terms to be negotiated with prospective investors.

BMFSI or its affiliates have agreed to invest $650,000 in such private placement and, pending the consummation of the private placement, will lendsuch amount to Blyth in installments on or before July 15, 1990. Such loan will be exchanged for the same class of securities to be purchased pursuant to Blyth's private placement upon the consummation of such placement.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Adobe Systems Inc. (NASDAQ:ADBE) and Birmy Graphics Corp. announced Monday that they have signed an agreement giving Birmy licensing rights to Adobe's PostScript language interpreter.

Birmy will incorporate Adobe's recently announced Emerald controller, which is based on the R3000 RISC microprocessor from MIPS Computer Systems into its line of low-cost, high-resolution imagesetters.

''We are pleased to welcome Birmy Graphics into the family of Adobe OEMs '' said Charles Geschke, president and chief operating officer, Adobe Systems.

''They have established a reputation as an innovative and flexible company and we look forward to working with them on integrating PostScript technology into their product line.''

''To get the fastest, highest-quality PostScript implementation, it makes sense to go to Adobe, the company that invented the PostScript language,'' said Ted Birmingham, executive vice president, Birmy Graphics.

''By incorporating the Emerald controller into our products, we're able to offer our customers a BirmySetter with an Adobe PostScript interpreter that processes PostScript language files three to seven times faster than imagesetters based on Adobe's Atlas controller.''

Birmy expects to ship the first imagesetters with the Emerald controller later this year. According to Birmy, adding an Emerald controller to the BirmySetter 300 will cause a minimal increase in the price of the product.

The BirmySetter 300 is the company's basic system priced at approximately $35,000. The company's popular Q-Station software will operate as before and disk buffering will continue to be a standard feature in the BirmySetter line.

All Birmy controllers drive a variety of imagesetting engines, from high-resolution paper laser printers to 4,000 dpi film imagesetters.

The Emerald controller implementation Birmy will incorporate into its products is the one shown at the recent DRUPA90 trade show in Dusseldorf, West Germany.

It is faster than previous Adobe controllers not only because the company has ported its PostScript software to a RISC-based system, but also because the new controller makes use of static RAMs for configurable instruction and data caches.

Its R3000 central processor runs at a clock frequency of 20 Mhz, and the controller incorporates a MIPS R3010 floating-point processor.

SOLANA BEACH, CALIF (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Kaypro Corp. Monday filed an 8-K document reporting the termination of Andrew F. Kay as an employee, that the company lost its NASDAQ listing, that a struggle for control of the corporation has erupted, and that the SEC has requested certain documents of the company pertaining to its financial records for 1988 and 1989.

As previously reported by the registrant on March 16, 1990, on March 1, 1990, the registrant filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of California, case number 90-01609-M11. Registrant is continuing its business operations as a debtor-in-possession under that filing and Roy Y. Salisbury continues to serves as a director and holds the position of president and chief executive officer of the company.

Mark Seaver continues to serve as a director and holds the position of vice president of operations of the company.

On March 29, 1990, the company filed its original verified statement of financial affairs and schedules thereto. A copy of this document is available by request.

Effective April 2, 1990, Andrew F. Kay, the founder and controlling shareholder of the company, was terminated as an employee of the company. Kay remains a director of the company together with his wife and retains the nominal title of chairman of the board.

The company has lost its listing on the National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotation System (NASDAQ). The company lost this listing due to the fact that it was unable to file its annual report on Form 10-K for the year ended Sept. 1, 1989, and its Forms 10-Q for the quarters ended Dec. 1, 1989, and March 1, 1990.

New management of the company, which took control of the day-to-day affairs of the company on or about March 1, 1990, has been unable to complete the company's annual report on Form 10-K due to its unfamiliarity with the company's operations for the year ended Sept. 2, 1989.

As was previously reported in the company's current report on Form 8-K, dated Feb. 15, 1990, the company's auditors have informed the company that they are unable to express an opinion as to the company's financial statements for its year ended Sept. 1, 1989, because of the insufficiency of the scope of their work as a result of serious deficiencies in the company's accounting records, the lack of audited statements for the company's foreign subsidiary and the auditor's inability to independently confirm certain company accounts payable, accounts receivable and notes payable.

Current management is unable to determine the extent or effect of such deficiencies in the company's accounting records for past periods, but is currently taking those steps that it believes necessary to institute internal accounting procedures that will result in reliable accounting records in the future.

However, current management is unable to ascertain whether those financial results set forth in the unaudited financial statements appended to the company's current report on Form 8-K, dated Feb. 15, 1990, are reliable and accurately reflect the company's financial condition as of Sept. 1, 1989.

Furthermore the company admonishes investors in the company's securities and others who have an interest in the company's current financial condition that there are, in all likelihood, at the present time no current records that accurately reflect the company's financial condition in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

As a result, the company's management believes that any persons who currently by or sell the company's securities are, to the extent that they rely on currently existing financial reports in connection with such purchases or sales, not in possession of reliable financial information concerning the company upon which to base such purchses or sales.

Kaypro Corp. has more than 38 years of experience in the high-tech/ electronics industry, and is an internationally recognized brand name. Currently Kaypro injoys a user base of more than a half-million computer systems worldwide and markets a full line of microcomputers for businesses and individuals.

SUNNYVALE, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Two multinational semiconductor manufacturers currently developing advanced products for local area network systems Monday announced a new strategic alliance for LAN devices.

Under the agreement, effective immediately, Fujitsu's Advanced Products division and Philips Components-Signetics will provide complete Ethernet chipsets to LAN manufacturers who require easily-integrated, high-performance standard products.

The agreement also establishes a long-term basis for cooperative development of new generations of products, such as advanced controllers for Ethernet and other networking protocols, and other significant advances in LAN technology.

Under the terms of the agreement, Signetics obtains the rights to supply Fujitsu's proven, advanced EtherStar MB86950 controller and MB502A Ethernet encoder/decoder. Fujitsu APD obtains similar rights to the newest transceiver on the market, Signetics' NE8392A coaxial transceiver interface chip.

Each device meets the Ethernet (IEEE 802.3 10BASE5) and thin Ethernet (10BASE2) interface standards and the ISO 8802-3 standard for local area network systems and configurations.

Both companies have been leaders in providing innovative new advanced communications devices. The MB502A was introduced by Fujitsu as part of the first integrated Ethernet solution. The MB86950, an advanced controller, was introduced in production quantities in 1988. It is a highly integrated CMOS device designed to perform network interfacing with minimal bus loading and host supervision.

The controller provides access from both the CPU and LAN media at the same time, reducing software overhead and simplifying software programming requirements.

Due to these attributes, Fujitsu's EtherStar controller has demonstrated superior performance in tests against other controllers in independent benchmarks, such as Novell's Perform2.

Philips Components-Signetics is a division of North American Philips Corp. a wholly owned subsidiary of N.V. Philips, Eindhoven, the Netherlands. Philips Components-Signetics currently employs more than 7,000 worldwide. Philips' integrated circuit operation worldwide ranks 11th among the largest semiconductor manufacturers in the world.

Fujitsu's Advanced Products Division, formed in 1984 as part of Fujitsu Microelectronics Inc., is an innovative, proven designer, developer and marketer of sophisticated semiconductor products.

Based in San Jose, Calif., APD employs systems-level design expertise and state-of-the-art, high-volume manufacturing to provide high-performance MPU and micro-peripheral solutions to its customers worldwide.

SAN JOSE, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - CrossCheck Technology Inc., San Jose, and Fujitsu Ltd., Japan, announced Monday that they have a technology and development agreement covering the ASIC test and diagnostic methodology developed by CrossCheck.

While exact financial terms were not disclosed, in licensing the CrossCheck technology, Fujitsu and its U.S. subsidiary, Fujitsu Microelectronics Inc., acquired non-exclusive rights to include CrossCheck's patented on-chip test electronics in both ASIC and standard semiconductor devices.

In addition, Fujitsu acquired rights to use CrossCheck software for fault simulation, test pattern generation and device diagnostics for its customers.

Headquartered in San Jose, Fujitsu Microelectronics Inc., Integrated Circuits Division designs, develops, manufactures and markets a broad line of standard and custom semiconductor devices and electronic components.

Fujitsu Microelectronics Inc. was founded in 1979 and is a wholly owned U.S. subsidiary of Fujitsu Ltd. The company employs over 1,300 people and has five operating divisions and one subsidiary.

Fujitsu Microelectronics Inc., Integrated Circuits Division, is located at 3545 North First St., San Jose, Calif., 95134; 408/922-9000.

CrossCheck Technology Inc. is a design automation company offering a breakthrough solution to two of the most serious problems plaguing the ASIC marketplace: test and diagnostics.

CrossCheck's on-chip hardware structures and proprietary electronic design automation software significantly reduce the development effort and time to market of ASIC devices, while providing high-test coverage and superior diagnostics.

CAMPBELL, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - StataCom and Digital Equipment Corp. have strengthened their ties with the announcement that Digital has purchesed a minority interest in the California-based manufacturer of fast packet networking systems.

The move is expected to lead to Digital's world distribution of StrataCom's IPX fast packet networking system and to StrataCom becoming the preferred T1 supplier for Digital's internal communications network.

The equity agreement underscores a growing relationship between Digital and StrataCom. The two companies already have a joint marketing agreement and have been working together on co-development programs for almost two years.

StrataCom is a four-year-old, privately held company which specializes in the manufacture, sale and service of fast packet networking systems for building private voice and data communications networks for large organizations. The IPX, the company's networking system, is currently the only commercially available fast packet system in the world.

StrataCom and Digital began their association in September 1988 when StrataCom became one of the original seven members of Digital's Network Enterprise Management Strategic Vendor Program. A joint marketing relationship was formed in May 1989 to supply customers with wide area networking solutions.

In September of the same year, the two companies announced their intention to co-develop one of the world's first implementations of frame relay -- a faster and more cost-effective method of transmitting data traffic through the network.

StrataCom Inc., based in Campbell manufactures, markets and services the IPX family of FastPacket networking systems. The IPX integrates voice, data, video and other traffic over high-speed digital lines, such as T1 and, in Europe, E1. StrataCom, FastPacket, and IPX are registered trademarks of StrataCom Inc.

Digital Equipment Corp, has headquarters in Maynard, Mass., is the leading worldwide supplier of networked computer systems and services. Digital offers a full range of computing solutions and systems integration for the entire enteprise -- from the desktop to the data center.

MILPITAS, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Logic Modeling Systems Inc. and Racal-Redac announced Monday an agreement under which Racal-Redac's Systems Business Group will market and distribute Logic Modeling's hardware modeling products worldwide for use with the CADAT simulation family.

The two companies will integrate their EDA (Electronic Design Automation) products to transparently provide Logic Modeling's LM-1000 family of hardware modelers to CADAT users. This will mean that Racal-Redac's customers will now be able to explore the advantages of both the LM-1000 family and Racal-Redac's CATS hardware modelers.

''By their focus, Logic Modeling has built a comprehensive library of models and has emerged as the universal standard supplier to the simulation community,'' said Carl Melone, Racal-Redac's Systems Group vice president. ''The market requires of EDA tool vendors that they do not 'lock out' their customers by delivering only proprietary solutions. ''Our view of customers as partners means that we will make available the array of third-party tools necessary for customers to create the best designs with cost-effectiveness,'' he added.

''As pioneers in this area, Racal-Redac will continue to develop the state-of-the-art in hardware modeling technology by extending its CATS modeler line, along with the marketing of the Logic Modeling modelers,'' Melone concluded.

''Racal-Redac is one of the leaders in system level simulation tools,'' said Russell Hall, vice president of marketing for Logic Modeling. ''Racal-Redac's concentration on full-system simulation and test matches our direction and makes for a very powerful combined offering for board and ASIC designers,'' added Hall. Hardware modeling is the only source of accurate models for simulaton of complex parts by system and ASIC designers. Because the physical VLSI device models its own behavior during design verifications, a hardware model offers full-function accuracy, high-fidelity and hardware speeds.

The LM-1000 family provides designers with easy access to the largest selection of models of complex parts available anywhere. Over 600 hardware models of important VLSI devices are offered today, and ASIC models can be developed in less than one day. The LM-1000 family works with all major simulators.

Logic Modeling sells through OEM relationships with EDA vendors including Cadence, GenRad, Harris Scientific Calculations, IKOS Systems, Mentor Graphics, Siemens, Valid, Vantage Analysis Systems, Viewlogic Systems, Zycad Corp., and companies with internally developed simulators.

Logic Modeling is a privately-held company with headquarters in Milpitas. Racal-Redac is a unit of Racal Electronics Plc with worldwide revenues of approximately $2.7 billion and 34,000 employees. Racal Redac, whose strategic focus is ''optimizing design for manufacturability'', is a world-class EDA software supplier with over $100 million in sales. In addition, Racal-Redac, which includes HHB Systems and Silc Technologies, is the number one supplier of computer aided design (CAD) tools for printed circuit board layout. In North America, Racal-Redac is headquartered at 1000 Wyckoff Ave, Mahwah, N.J.

MIAMI (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - FRENCHTEX, INC., (NASDAQ Symbol: FRCH) Friday announced the results of its operations for the third quarter and nine months ended April 30, 1990.

For the third quarter ended April 30, 1990, revenues increased 72 percent to $654,899 from $379,715 for the comparable quarter in fiscal 1989. The company reported net income of $47,422, or $0.02 per share, for the third quarter ended April 30, 1990, compared to net income of $36,846, or $0.03 per share, for the same period last year.

Revenues for the nine months ended April 30, 1990 were $2,248,006, an increase of 157 percent over revenues of $875,574 for the comparable nine month period in fiscal 1989. The company reported a net loss of $52,067, or $0.03 per share, compared to net income of $119,372, or $0.11 per share for the nine months ended April 30, 1989.

Per share results for the quarter and nine months ended April 30, 1990 were affected by an increase in the weighted average number of shares outstanding due to the company's initial public offering of 747,500 shares (including the underwriter's overallotment option, which was exercised) in July, 1989.

Commenting on the results, Don M. Waters, president and director of FRENCHTEX, INC., stated, ''Given the inventory losses suffered in the last quarter and the uncertainties in the retail market, we are extremely encouraged that we were profitable in the third quarter. The increase in direct sales is attributable to the company's expanding customer base, which now includes J.C. Penney, Sears, MAAS Brothers, Strouds and Macy's.''

Commenting on the company's future outlook, Waters added, ''We anticipate that sales will continue to grow and that the company's expected profitability in the fourth quarter should result in an overall profitable fiscal year.''

FRENCHTEX, INC., distributes European home textiles, including coordinated sheets, pillow shams, pillow cases, comforters, bed ruffles, blankets, duvet covers, down comforters, down pillows and bedspreads, as well as robes and towels.

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - NMB Technologies Inc., one of the leading suppliers of electronic components to the PC industry, Monday premiered its redesigned, low-cost ''clicker'' keyboard at the PC Expo show.

The company's new Hi-Tek mechanical ''clicker'' keyboard provides an audible ''click'' sound in response to contact and is especially suited for office applications where an audible response is preferred. The mechanical series Right Touch keyswitches are rated at 100 million cycles, ensuring long life and trouble-free use.

Costs to NMB Technologies' customers have been reduced through the use of a more powerful microprocesser which eliminated the need for costly peripheral components in the keyboard.

In addition to its top-of-the-line clicker model, NMB Technologies' Hi-Tek Keyboard Division offers linear and tactile versions with its RT-101, RT-101+ and RT-102 models. All of NMB Technologies' keyboards are IBM plug-compatible.

NMB Technologies is the world's leading supplier of broad-based products for the EDP market. NMB Technologies is the electronics marketing division of NMB (USA) Inc., the North American headquarters of the Minebea Group of companies. Minebea is one of the world's four largest keyboard suppliers.

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Borland International (NASDAQ:BORL) announced Monday that a forthcoming SQL connectivity version of its popular Paradox relational database will support Rdb/VMS, the strategic relational database from Digital Equipment Corp.

Paradox running with Rdb will be demonstrated this week at PC Expo in New York.

Paradox SQL connectivity allows Paradox users to access, combine and manipulate SQL data from Rdb without programming. Paradox retains its ease of use and provides transparent access to data. Once a connection is established, Paradox manages the connection with the server without requiring the user to know or learn SQL.

Paradox will let users automatically create SQL statements through QBE (Query by Example), Paradox's intuitive method of analyzing and manipulating data. In addition, Paradox will allow users to write reports based on SQL data and access SQL data through PAL (Paradox Application Language) programs.

Digital Equipment Corp., headquartered in Maynard, Mass., is the leading worldwide supplier of networked computer systems and services. Digital offers a full range of computing solutions and systems integrations for the entire enterprise -- from the desktop to the data center.

Borland International Inc., Scotts Valley, Calif., is a leading developer of high-performance software products. Borland offers some of the world's most widely used business applications and software development tools, such as Paradox, Quattro Pro, SideKick, Turbo Pascal, Turbo C, Turbo C++ and Turbo Debugger & Tools.

SANTA CLARA, CALIF. (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - National Semiconductor Corp. Monday announced that sales from continuing operations for the the fourth quarter ended May 27 were $456.3 million compared to $419.1 million for the comparable quarter a year ago.

The company reported net earnings of $4.7 million, or 2 cents per share, compared to earnings of $77.1 million, or 73 cents per share in the fourth quarter a year ago. The previous year's fourth quarter earnings include a one-time gain of $174.9 million as a result of the sale of National Advanced Systems to Hitachi Data Systems.

Sales from continuing operations for fiscal year 1990 were $1,675.0 million compared to $1,647.9 million in fiscal year 1989. The company reported a net loss of $25.0 million, or 34 cents per share, compared to a net loss of $23.2 million, or 32 cents per share, in fiscal year 1989.

Charles E. Sporck, National Semiconductor's president and chief executive officer, said: ''National Semiconductor's operating performance in the fourth quarter, as well as for the fiscal year as a whole, represents a significant improvement over the company's operating performance a year ago.

''I am also pleased to report that the company achieved record revenues in the past year, as well as in the quarter just completed.

''While we are cautious in our outlook for the seasonally slow first quarter, we are encouraged by the fact that the company experienced record bookings in the past quarter.''

LOS ANGELES (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - VideoRated Inc. (OTC), a supplier of videocassette rental systems for use by the guests of hotels across the nation, disclosed Monday that merger talks which it had been pursuing have been terminated and that it will cease operations.

VideoRated had, for some time, been in negotiations for a combination with other companies in its business. These negotiations could not be concluded due to the complexity and cost that any such combination would involve. A VideoRated spokesman noted that absent a business combination the company's revenues will be insufficient to meet its operating and other expenses.

Following this decision, VideoRated's largest creditor, which had loaned the company more than $1 million on a secured basis during the past 18 months, began steps to collect its debt and enforce its various security agreements. Upon completion of this process, VideoRated will retain no business assets and will be unable to continue operations.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF. (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - National Medical Enterprises Inc. Monday announced the promotion of Ronald T. Bernstein to executive vice president of NME's Specialty Hospital Group and chief operating officer of its Psychiatric Institutes of America (PIA) subsidiary.

He succeeds Bill R. Vickers who returns to California as a PIA regional senior vice president.

NME Specialty Hospital Group President Norman A. Zober indicated that Bernstein will direct all activities of the Group's 67 psychiatric hospitals. He most recently served as a PIA senior vice president and regional administrator, coordinating the operations of nine psychiatric hospitals primarily in the Northeast.

He joined the company in 1986 as administrator of PIA's Tidewater Psychiatric Institute, a 61-bed hospital in Norfolk, Va.

Bernstein, 39, previously held administrative positions in the mental health field for more than a decade. A native of New Jersey, he graduated in 1973 with a bachelor of arts degree in English from Upsala College in East Orange, N.J., and earned a master's degree in education in 1980 from Antioch College in Philadelphia.

The Specialty Hospital Group currently operates 67 psychiatric hospitals, 27 physical rehabilitation hospitals and 13 substance abuse treatment centers throughout the United States. In addition, the Group manages more than 70 psychiatric, physical rehabilitation and substance abuse units in acute care hospitals.

Its parent company, National Medical Enterprises, one of the nation's largest health-care services companies, also operates 41 acute care hospitals throughout the United States and internationally.

Bernstein and his wife, the former Kate Thurlow, reside in Silver Spring, Md., with their sons, Ethan and Ryan.

TAMPA, FL (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Silk Greenhouse Inc. (NASDAQ:SGHI) announced Monday that the company sustained a net loss of approximately $5.7 million for the quarter ended April 30, or a net loss of 60 cents per share, as compared to net earnings of $360,000 during the first quarter of the prior fiscal year, or net earnings of four cents per share.

Net sales for the quarter ended April 30, were $27.5 million, as compared to $15.8 million for the comparable quarter of the prior fiscal year. The company attributed the net loss to a substantial increase in all major categories of expenses during the first quarter of fiscal 1991.

The company also reported that, in an effort to reduce the company's expenses, the company has reduced its store personnel by several hundred employees over the past few months through attrition and lay offs and has laid off approximately 80 employees at the company's corporate headquarters over the like period.

The company does not believe that the lay offs will adversely affect the company's sales or its operations.

Jere Bradwell, the company's chairman and president, stated that the company has also reduced significantly the salaries of certain of the company's senior management, including his own.

Silk Greenhouse also announced that on June 8, John Stokely, who joined the company as a senior vice president in May, 1990, resigned from the company. In addition, subsequent to April 30, two of the company's outside directors resigned. Both of the directors and Stokely resigned for personal reasons.

Bradwell stated that ''The Company is in the process of conducting an executive search for a qualified executive to join the Company as the Senior Vice President - Finance and we are confident that the Company will hire a qualified executive in the near future.''

PHOENIX (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Phoenix-based America West Airlines (NASDAQ:AWAL; PSE:AWA) has been selected by Kinder, Lydenberg, Domini & Co. for inclusion on the Domini Social Index, a market capitalization-weighted common stock index comprised of 400 companies.

KLD is a registered advisor specializing in providing social research to institutions and investment professionals.

Al Frei, senior vice president of finance and chief financial officer for America West said, ''This is a tremendous honor to be chosen for the Domini Social Index. A large portion of the investment community view this index as a performance benchmark and a source of investment ideas, similar to Standard & Poor's as well as Moody's.''

In selecting companies for the Domini Social Index, KLD looks for positives such as solid environmental records, good relations with employees, emphasis on quality in products and services, and outreach to charitable, civic and cultural organizations.

''America West's employees are shareholders in the company. The pride of ownership is not only reflected in the high quality product they provide, but also in their genuine desire toward being a good corporate citizen. Our employee-owners have supported company efforts ranging from the national charitable commitment we have with the Make-A-Wish Foundation of America to the development of America West's environmentally safe dry-stripping paint facility,'' Frei stated. ''We have worked very hard to 'do the right thing' throughout our history. Being recognized for our efforts, particularly by the Domini Social Index, is most pleasing,'' he concluded.

America West currently operates a modern, fuel efficient all-Boeing fleet of over 90 aircraft including 747s, 757s, 737s and de Havilland Dash 8s. The airline employs more than 12,000 people in its 60 city route network which stretches from coast-to-coast and across the Pacific to Honolulu. PALO ALTO, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Hewlett-Packard Company Monday introduced a family of workstations that can perform up to 26 million instructions per second (MIPS), delivers outstanding price/performance and leading graphics technology.

The new family also includes a 12-MIPS system available for less than $5,000. These introductions represent the first hardware platforms and graphics products developed jointly by HP and Apollo, which HP purchased in May 1989.

The new HP Apollo 9000 Series 400 product line is based on the Motorola 68040 and 68030 processors and are fully compatible with previous-generation HP and Apollo 68000-based workstations. This compatibility allows customers to choose from more than 3,200 software applications available today.

The Series 400 runs both the Domain/OS and HP-UX operating systems, which are based on and fully comply with AT&T's UNIX system. They give HP/Apollo customers a common workstation-hardware environment.

In addition to price/performance advantages, the Series 400 offers leading graphics technology with the new HP Apollo 9000 VRX graphics family and advanced ease of use through the recently introduced HP Visual User Environment (HP VUE).

The HP Apollo 9000 VRX graphics line provides high graphics performance and a broad range of new features. HP VUE is a graphical user interface based on standards that creates a common-user environment for workstations running Domain/OS and HP- UX operating systems and thus makes these workstations easy to use.

SANTA CLARA, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Valisys Corp. Monday announced that McDonnell Douglas Corp., which sells Valisys software in conjunction with its Unigraphics II CAD/CAM system, has sold more than 100 Valisys software licenses.

Sales of the Valisys software have increased steadily since 1988, with a record number of sales in the second quarter of 1990. Many of the second quarter sales were to companies in the automotive and aerospace industries.

Valisys Corp. was incorporated in 1987. Its charter was to develop software which ensured that computer aided designs reflected the intent of the designer, that these designs were communicated accurately to manufacturing and inspection, and that the manufacturing process reliably produced parts according to the design.

''Valisys represents true added value to our Unigraphics II CAD/CAM system '' said Steven B. Dong, a marketing vice president in the Manufacturing and Engineering Division of McDonnell Douglas Systems Co. ''With Valisys, customers can leverage the benefits of the CAD model throughout the manufacturing process.''

''Manufacturers are realizing that the accurate communication of design intent throughout the process has a measurable impact on the quality of finished goods,'' added John J. Clancy, president and chief executive officer of Valisys Corp. ''Other capabilities pioneered by Valisys, such as the ability to inspect and rework parts without removing the part from the numerical control machine, are the future of discrete parts manufacturing.''

Valisys Corp. develops Valisys software, and provides customer support and consulting services. Valisys is a set of interconnectable software modules spanning design engineering, manufacturing engineering, quality assurance, production and inspection.

Valisys modules can be combined to solve a series of manufacturing problems, not previously addressed by CAD/CAM technology, that can traced to an inability to quickly and accurately specify, communicate and adhere to tolerance specifications.

SAN FRANCISCO, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Homestake Mining Co. (NYSE:HM) announced Monday that its wholly-owned subsidiary, Felmont Oil Corp. has agreed to participate with its joint venturers in the acquisition of oil and gas reserves associated with Felmont's Main Pass 299 sulphur deposit.

The purchase from Chevron U.S.A. Inc. provides Felmont with a 16.67 percent working interest in the project which contains reserves of about 35 million barrels of oil and 8 billion cubic feet of natural gas.

Felmont's portion of the purchase price will be DLRS 22.8 million in cash plus certain costs already incurred by Chevron associated with the development of the oil and gas reserves.

The reserves being purchased are contained in the same caprock reservoir on Main Pass Block 299 as are Felmont's sulphur reserves and were discovered during the drilling of sulphur exploration wells. Chevron owned the oil and gas rights on the block under a much earlier lease than the 1988 sulphur lease purchased by the joint-venture.

In addition to the purchase price of DLRS 22.8 million, Felmont estimates expenditures of approximately DLRS 19 million will be spent for the development during next 16 months.

The Main Pass Block 299 joint-venture is owned 16.67 percent by Felmont; 58.33 percent by Freeport-McMoRan Resource Partners, Limited Partnership, an affiliate of Freeport-McMoRan Inc.; and 25 percent by IMC Fertilizer

Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of IMC Fertilizer Group Inc.

SEATTLE (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Arctic Alaska Fisheries Corp. (NYSE:ICE) Monday announced the appointment of Ronald R. Jensen as president of the company.

Effective July 1, 1990, Terry J. Baker will resign as president and chief executive officer and assume the duties of a newly created position of vice chairman. He will remain as a director of the company.

During Baker's 11 year association with the company and its predecessors, Arctic Alaska has developed from a small crab processing company to a major participant in the North Pacific bottomfish and crab industry. Revenues during Arctic Alaska's past five years have risen from $22 million in 1985 to $143 million in 1989. Under Baker's presidency, the company made an initial public offering in 1988 and listed its shares on the New York Stock Exchange.

Baker cited the desire for more personal time to spend with his family and to pursue outside interests as the reason for the change. ''I have shared the helm of Arctic Alaska with Francis Miller, who continues as chairman, for over 11 years,'' said Baker. ''Never before have I felt that the company was in so strong a position as today. And never before have we had such a strong team throughout all levels of the company. Now, with Ron Jensen ready to assume the presidency, the company's strength, together with my personal need for time with my family, make this an excellent transition.''

Ronald R. Jensen will join the company as president, effective July 1, 1990. As president, Jensen will serve as the company's chief executive officer and on its board of directors.

Jensen, 52, comes to Arctic Alaska with extensive background in the fishing industry. The president of Sea Alaska Products, a ConAgra Inc. company, from 1982 to 1987, Jensen was also, over the years 1963 to 1982, vice president of Castle & Cooke Inc., chairman and president of Pan Alaska Fisheries and Bumble Bee Seafoods, and Senior Vice President and General Manager-Seafoods for Castle & Cooke Foods. Jensen has also presided as president or chairman over many organizations, including the National Fisheries Institute, the Northwest Fisheries Association and the Alaska Fisheries Development Foundation, and as a director in numerous other business and trade associations. He has also been advisor and spokesman in U.S./Japan and U.S./U.S.S.R. fisheries negotiations. Jensen is a graduate of the University of Washington and the Harvard Business School (AMP) and is a CPA.

Arctic Alaska Fisheries Corp. is the largest fishing and at-sea processing company in the United States. The company's vessels operate year-round in the U.S. 200-mile zone off Alaska catching crab and bottomfish such as pollock, cod, ocean perch and sole. The catch is processed at sea into a variety of seafood products that are sold in the United States, Japan and other export markets primarily under the Arctic Ice trademark.

JACKSON, MISS. (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - The purchase of Unifirst Bank for Savings deposits by Trustmark National Bank was announced Friday by the Resolution Trust Corp. (RTC) and Frank R. Day, chairman of the Trustmark Corp. (NASDAQ:TRMK), holding company of Trustmark National Bank.

The purchase became effective June 15, 1990.

''We are pleased to welcome Unifirst customers to the Trustmark family,'' said Day. ''And we plan to make the transition from Unifirst to Trustmark as easy as possible.''

Chartered in 1889, Trustmark National Bank is one of Mississippi's oldest and largest financial institutions. Acquisition of Unifirst Bank for Savings will increase Trustmark's presence in Mississippi by adding 14 new locations, including eight in Jackson, one in Clinton, Hattiesburg, Louisville, Meridian, Pearl and Ridgeland, to Trustmark's over 100 existing locations. This expands Trustmark's presence in four Mississippi markets.

This major purchase, the largest in Trustmark's history, will increase the bank's assets to over $3.6 billion.

Day announced that, on June 18, these Unifirst offices will open and operate as Trustmark National Bank and will assume protection under the bank's FDIC insurance. In addition, he said: ''Unifirst customers will be able to conduct business on their accounts from any Trustmark office.

''We believe Unifirst customers will be pleased with their choice of new banking services and many convenient locations as well as the security and stability of Trustmark's 100 years of financial strength,'' Day added.

REDMOND, WA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Tricord Systems Inc. and Microsoft Corp. Monday announced that Microsoft LAN Manager, an advanced local area network (LAN) operating system for PCs, will be available on the Tricord PowerFrame family of high-performance network servers for LANs and client-server computing.

LAN Manager provides complete file and print sharing services as well as a foundation for client-server computing, enabling networks of PCs and servers to support mission-critical applications formerly reserved for minicomputers and mainframes.

LAN Manager was designed to provide high throughput file and print services as well as a standard platform for sophisticated client-server applications. It incorporates advanced features such as a network optimized I/O system that takes advantage of the power of 80386-based computers, centralized administrations tools, fault tolerance, and sophisticated security systems. LAN Manager supports both MS-DOS(R) and OS/2 client workstations.

Tricord is a Microsoft Lan Manager original equipment manufacturer (OEM) and will sell Lan Manager for their PowerFrame servers.

Tricord Systems, Inc., is a privately held company headquartered in Minneapolis. It was founded to design and manufacture a new generation of PC compatible network servers to meet the increasing performance and reliability requirements of client-server network computing based on leading industry standards.

WALTHAM, MASS. (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Parametric Technology Corp., developers of the Pro/ENGINEER family of mechanical design automation software, recently announced the availability of its new Cooperative Software Program and that Structural Research and Analysis Corp., developers of the COSMOS/M finite element system, is its first participant in this program.

Louis J. Volpe, Parametric Technology's vice president of marketing and operations, stated that ''Parametric Technology's new Cooperative Software Program expands the suite of applications integrated with Pro/ENGINEER to address a broad spectrum of customer requirements.

Pro/ENGINEER has a variety of software tools that make it easier for other software companies to integrate their applications into the Pro/ENGINEER environment.''

''We are pleased to have SRAC as our first participant in the Cooperative Software Program. This agreement is attractive to Parametric Technology becasue it not only allows us to provide customers an advanced design optimization solution, but it is also the first software deveopment agreement with a highly reputable company as a result of our new Cooperative Software Program,'' said Volpe.

The Pro/ENGINEER product family provides a new generation of mechanical design automation software based on a unique parametric, feature-driven, solid modeling technology. Pro/ENGINEER provides rapid interactive modification to the model, allowing an engineer to quickly evolve a design into a finished product, while maintaining complete associativity between the model and all engineering drawings.

Since its inception, Structural Research and Analysis Corp. has concentrated on developing and distributing COSMOS/M finite element analysis software for PCs and workstations. Due to a market-driven aproach to product development, Structural Research has gained a reputation for producing highly functional, user friendly software for the engineering community.

Parametric Technology Corp. (NASDAQ:PMTC) is the leader in the mechanical design automation industry. Its new generation of CAD/CAM/CAE technology is revolutionizing the mechanical design automation process with a strategy that emphasizes technological leadership, aggressive price/performance, hardware independence, worldwide distribution, and extensive customer support.

MIAMI (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Bank of North America announced that it acquired all of the deposit liabilities of Bank M, after federal regulatory authorities closed Bank M on June 15.

Bank of North America is a newly formed commercial bank chartered by the State of Florida. It is wholly owned by Dr. M. Lee Pearce, a Miami based investor.

All deposit customers of Bank M now have their deposit accounts at Bank of North America. Bank of North America will have an initial capitalization of approximately $5 million, well in excess of regulatory requirements. All deposits remain insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Bank of North America has an option to acquire certain assets of Bank M, but has made no determination as to whether it will do so.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Great Western Bank of Beverly Hills and Carteret Savings Bank of Morristown, N.J., Monday announced a definitive agreement for Great Western to purchase deposits and selected Florida offices of Carteret.

Under the terms of the agreement, Great Western will assume, for cash, deposits totalling $700 million.

The transaction will increase Great Western Bank's Florida deposits to $2.4 billion and total Florida retail bank branches to more than 60. Great Western also operates 25 home loan offices in Florida and is one of the state's leading residential real-estate lenders.

Great Western will assume all deposits in 13 branches for a premium of approximately $26.5 million. Eleven of the branches are located in Palm Beach County, where Great Western already has 20 branches. The two other branches are located in Broward and St. Lucie counties.

''Great Western will increase its Florida deposit base by 40 percent and substantially strengthen its presence in Palm Beach County, one of the state's fastest-growing and most affluent markets,'' said James F. Montgomery, chairman and chief executive of Great Western.

Carteret President and Chief Executive Officer Robert C. Walsh stated, ''The sale of these offices and deposits is a key element in Carteret's strategy to streamline its retail branch network and focus on its core operations in New Jersey. Although Carteret exceeds all regulatory capital requirements, the sale will dramatically improve the bank's capital position and future profitability.''

The agreement is subject to federal regulatory approval and other conditions.

Great Western Bank is the principal subsidiary of Great Western Financial Corp. Great Western, with assets of $38 billion is a real estate-oriented retail bank. One of the nation's leading residential mortgage lenders, the company operates 1,000 mortgage lending, retail banking and consumer finance offices nationwide.

Carteret Savings Bank, a subsidiary of AmBase Corp., has more than $6 billion in assets and operates over 70 retail banking and loan offices primarily in New Jersey and Florida.

LOS ANGELES (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - HarCor Energy Inc. (NASDAQ:HARC) Monday announced it has completed its previously announced agreement in principle with Los Angeles-based Trust Company of the West (TCW) as investment adviser for certain pension funds, whereby TCW has contributed $1.75 million to HTAC Partners, a limited partnership of which HarCor is a sole general partner and TCW is the sole limited partner.

HTAC Partners has used such proceeds to purchase 1.2 million newly issued common shares of Calgary, Alberta-based Consolidated HCO Energy Ltd. at a price of $1.70 (Cdn.) per share and warrants to purchase an additional 1.2 million common shares of HCO at an initial price of $1.85 per share, subject to adjustment that is dependent on the net asset value of HCO on Dec. 31, 1993.

The transaction is the final part of a $3.0 million commitment by TCW that was entered into in February of last year. The initial funding of $1.25 million was completed in April 1989. As part of the new $1.75 million funding, the initial $1.25 million funding was restructured so that TCW's entire contribution will be subject to the same terms and conditions.

The final terms of the transaction are substantially identical to those previously announced by HarCor on March 1, 1990, when an agreement in principle between the parties was reached, except that HarCor and TCW have substituted HTAC Partners for HTAC Inc., a HarCor subsidiary, as the vehicle for the $3.0 million investment.

As a result of the completion of this transaction, HarCor and HTAC Partners collectively own 50.04 percent of the outstanding common shares of HCO.

Commenting on the completion of the transaction, Mark Harrington, chairman and chief executive officer of HarCor, said: ''The recent TCW transaction will facilitate an expanded exploration effort by our Canadian subsidiary and allow us to consolidate the results of that program. HCO plans to drill approximately 20 exploratory prospects in Canada this year.

''We are extremely pleased with the support shown by Trust Company of the West for our efforts in the United States and Canada.''

LONG BEACH, CALIF. (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Robert J. McNulty, chairman of HQ Office Supplies Warehouse Inc. (OTC:HQOSA, Class A common stock: PSE:HQO), reported that the company successfully completed its public offering of 10,000 units Monday.

Each unit consists of $1,000 principal amount of automatically convertible subordinated debentures due June 1, 1995 and 200 Class C warrants to purchase 200 shares of Class A common stock. Each unit is priced at $1,000. The company will receive initial net proceeds of $8,635,000 to be used to open up three stores during the summer of 1990, to repay debt and for working capital purposes.

McNulty concluded, ''If all the Class C warrants are exercised, the company would receive additional net proceeds of approximately $14 million.''

McNulty also reported that the annual meeting of the company's stockholders was held on June 12. All management proposals were approved including the re-election of the current board of directors, the proposal to restate the company's certificate of incorporation to (i) create a staggered board of directors, (ii) increase the amount of authorized shares of the company's Class A common stock to 50 million shares, and (iii) create a class of preferred stock, and the adoption of the company's 1989 incentive stock option plan.

In his address to stockholders, McNulty stated, ''1989 was a landmark year for HQ Office Supplies Warehouse. The strength of our management team combined with our ever expanding foot-hold in the Southern California office supplies market, positions our company for future growth.''

He continued, ''Our rapid expansion has positioned the company to lock in the key retail centers at much lower costs than our competitors now entering the market. This, combined with the company's strong sales volume, gives all of us at HQ Office Supplies Warehouse great excitement for the future.''

HQ Office Supplies Warehouse Inc.'s merchandising strategy is to offer a wide selection of quality, brand-name office products, including general office supplies, business machines, office furniture and other business-related products at discount prices primarily to small and medium sized businesses. The stores will average at least 25,000 square feet of selling space with an inventory of approximately 8,000 stock keeping units.

COSTA MESA, CA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - CIMCO Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:CIMC) Monday announced the completion of the company's 31st year of business with final period sales and income representing an all-time high for quarterly results.

Consolidated net sales for the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990 rose 21 percent to a record high of $16,821,595 from $13,898,383 for the comparable period last fiscal year. Net income for the period increased 35.9 percent to a new fourth-quarter high of $1,083,966, or 36 cents per share, from $797,375, or 26 cents per share, for the same period of the previous fiscal year.

Consolidated net sales for the year increased to $57,399,857 from $55,016,824 in fiscal year 1989, while net income was $2,003,985, or 66 cents per share, vs. $3,217,997, or $1.06 per share, last year.

A temporary softness in customer orders during the first quarter, aggravated by the start-up expenses of several new programs and higher fixed overhead associated with recent expansions of manufacturing capacity resulted in a slow start for the year.

Backlogs have since increased and the proprietary medical products, the medical molding and the materials compounding segments of the business have shown substantial improvements in both sales and income over the previous year. Margins for Cimco's custom-molding operations improved as new programs moved into production; however, profits are still below prior levels.

Founded in 1959, CIMCO, a major manufacturer of high-precision thermoplastic custom and proprietary products and a supplier of special-purpose and custom polymeric compounds, serves more than 100 original equipment manufacturers in the electronics, computer, construction, health care and defense industries.

MARLBORO, MA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Stratus Computer Inc. Monday announced that PORTAL, the world's first electronic private placement market, has begun operation on a Stratus XA2000 Continuous Processing System.

PORTAL is operated by the Washington, D.C.-based National Association of Securities Dealers Inc. (NASD) for computerized trading of securities in the private market.

On June 15, the first day of trading in PORTAL, 20 major U.S. and European securities firms, which in aggregate account for 80 percent of the activity in the $200 billion private placement market, had joined PORTAL as subscribers. The subscribers include Cresvale International Inc.; The First Boston Corp., Goldman Sachs & Co.; Herzog, Heine, Geduld Inc.; Kleinwort Benson North America Inc., Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc.; Deutsche Bank Capital Corp.; and Salomon Brothers Inc.; among others.

The first qualified institutional buyers to be fully approved for PORTAL are Aetna Life & Casualty; Grantham, Mayo, van Otterloo & Co.; The New England; and Standish, Ayer & Wood Inc. In addition, the initial PORTAL-eligible securities are Atlas Copco AB, the Swedish manufacturer of industrial equipment -- a $200 million offering; Huhtamaki Oy, a leading consumer products firm in Finland -- a $100 million offering; and Nestle, the giant Swiss-based food processor -- ordinary shares of the company.

On April 19, PORTAL was approved by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). At the same time, the SEC adopted Rule 144A to lessen regulatory restrictions of the U.S. private placement market. Together, an automated market and deregulation are expected to increase liquidity and spur growth in the private placement market.

PORTAL offers a faster and more efficient and reliable alternative to the traditional method in which private placement transactions are handled over the phone or by mail. Now, users worldwide can access the Stratus-based PORTAL market to launch issues, access real-time prices, execute orders, and clear and settle trades -- using any of the world's major currencies.

Stratus' advanced fault tolerance will play a key role in allowing PORTAL to offer investors continuous online access to the private placement market. Continuous online availability is expected to become a more critical requirement as PORTAL's trading hours must be expanded to support the rapidly-growing international private placement market.

Stratus systems also offer online system expandability to allow PORTAL to smoothly adapt to expected increases in trading volumes. Stratus computers are widely used in high-volume applications in financial institutions worldwide, including International Stock Exchange, Yamaichi Securities, American Stock Exchange, Industrial Bank of Japan, and Korea Stock Exchange.

The U.S. private placement market has grown from $15.7 billion in 1980 to $200 billion in 1988. Among issuers, finance companies are the most active participants, followed closely by industrial corporations, and to a much lesser extent, utilities. Private placement investors are almost exclusively financial institutions, and insurance companies are far and away the leading investors in the market.

Other investors include private pension funds, state and local retirement plans, state and local governments, bank trust departments and bank holding companies.

Based in Marlboro, Mass., Stratus Computer Inc. supplies the XA2000 family of continuously available, fault-tolerant computer systems for online transaction processing and communications control. The company offers the most technologically advanced architecture for online, distributed, and networked applications, and has set a new standard for computer reliability.

One of the fastest-growing companies in the industry, Stratus reported revenues of $341.3 million for fiscal year 1989, up 29 percent from $265.3 million in 1988.

NEW ORLEANS (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Freeport-McMoRan Inc. (NYSE:FTX) Monday announced that it has signed an agreement with two U.S.S.R. agencies calling for the creation of a joint venture to construct and operate Soviet sulphur exporting facilities on the Black Sea, including a sulphur granulation, transportation, storage and terminal system with an initial capacity of 1.5 million metric tons per year of liquid and solid sulphur.

Under the terms of the agreement with the U.S.S.R. State Association Agrokhim and the U.S.S.R. State Concern Gazprom, FTX, through its 62-percent-owned agricultural minerals affiliate, Freeport-McMoRan Resource Partners, Limited Partnership (NYSE:FRP), would, with certain limited exceptions, be the joint venture's sole marketing agent for sulphur exports from the Soviet Union.

FRP would receive a commission on the joint venture's sulphur sales and would share in the profits of the joint venture, which would be owned 60 percent by the Soviets and 40 percent by FRP.

The agreement is subject to ratification by the FTX board of directors and the top managements of Agrokhim and Gazprom. Work on the preliminary feasibility study is expected to be completed late in 1990. Actual formation of the joint venture will be subject to governmental approvals and the execution of definitive agreements, among other conditions. FTX will arrange project financing for the joint venture.

This joint venture should enable the Soviet Union to establish a system for the economic and environmentally acceptable handling of sulphur produced by the purification of natural gas and provide the government with a major hard currency revenue stream from the export sale of sulphur.

The U.S.S.R. State Association Agrokhim, formerly the Ministry for Mineral Fertilizer Production, is a major producer and consumer of sulphur in the Soviet Union and is the organization charged with managing the country's sulphur supply/demand balance. The U.S.S.R. State Concern Gazprom, formerly the Ministry of Gas Industry, is responsible for the Soviet Union's natural gas resources and is thereby a major producer of sulphur recovered from the processing of sour natural gas at its Astrakhan, Orenburg and Mubarek facilities.

FTX is a leader in the exploration, mining, development, production, processing and marketing of natural resources. The company's businesses include agricultural minerals, oil and gas, and metals.

FTX is the oldest active sulphur company in the world, with over 75 years of experience and an international reputation for technical leadership, commercial success and environmental responsibility. The company is currently the second-largest domestic Frasch sulphur producer and will become the largest U.S. Frasch sulphur producer when the Main Pass Block 299 sulphur deposit reaches full production in 1993.

FTX is also the largest U.S. transporter of sulphur produced by others.

SHELTON, CONN. (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Transnational Industries Inc. (NASDAQ: TRSL), a diversified aerospace company, Monday reported a net loss for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 ended April 30, 1990 of $132,000 or 6 cents per common share after giving effect to preferred dividends of $38,000.

This compares to a net income of $226,000, or 7 cents per common share after giving effect to preferred dividends of $49,000, in the first quarter of fiscal 1990.

Net sales for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 were $6,250,000 compared with $7,498,000 a year earlier. Commenting on the results, Thomas J. Flaherty, Transnational president stated that, ''Magna Mill Products, our airframe components business, has been operating at below planned levels due primarily to late shipments of forgings which are provided to us by our customers.

''The resulting inefficiencies coupled with normal start-up costs on new commercial programs were primarily responsible for Magna Mill's decline in sales and earnings. During the period, however, backlog at Magna Mill continued to be strong at $27.2 million compared to $16.9 million for the similar period last year.''

AlloyTek, Transnational's jet engine components business continued its profitability during the period. ''These results were achieved despite lower sales as AlloyTek gears up for greater deliveries in the remainder of the year,'' stated Flaherty.

''AlloyTek's backlog hit a three year record high of $28.3 million in May '' he added.

Headquartered in Shelton, Conn., Transnational, through its subsidiaries, AlloyTek Inc. (Grandville, Mich.) and Magna Mill Products Inc. (South Gate Calif.), specialize in fabrication of oil tanks and precision components of afterburner assemblies for jet engines, and in the machining of landing gear and other complex airframe components.

Through its Spitz Inc. subsidiary (Chadds Ford, Penn.), the Company designs and manufacturers a variety of state-of-the-art simulation equipment, including computer-controlled astronomical simulators and simulation domes.

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - BET, the support services specialist, Monday announced record annual results, with pretax profit up by 19 percent to 322.3 million pounds and earnings per share up by 12 percent to 28.5p, and signalled a switch of emphasis from acquisitions to internal growth.

Revenue for the year ended Mar. 31, 1990 increased by 21 percent to 2.7 billion pounds, with all major service lines achieving improvements.

Operating profit from the core support services business increased by 40 percent, with all service lines improving their contributions and overall margins up from 12.9 percent to 13.5 percent. The largest increase was in North America, where operating profit rose by 125 percent to 40.5 million pounds - or 13 percent of the support services total.

The contribution from Europe grew by 32 percent to 243.9 million pounds, with the United Kingdom up 29 percent and the rest of Europe rising by 49 percent to a record 12 percent of the support services total.

By activity, BET's ''industrial and commercial services'' - security, cleaning, textile rental, waste and personnel services - produced an operating profit of 148.5 million pounds, with Hestair contributing 3.5 million pounds in its first three months in BET. Plant and construction services made 112.4 million pounds and distribution services, 51.2 million pounds.

Property profit was 23.7 million pounds, as BET continued to rationalize its trading sites.

Following BET's announcement that it intends to withdraw from the joinery and home improvements markets, Anglian Windows' and Boulton & Paul's results, as well as those for Hestair's non-personnel services operations, have been moved to the non-core operations category. However, the total for this category fell from 59.5 million pounds in the previous year (when it included the publishing operations sold that year) to 42.7 million pounds.

Total operating profit was therefore up by 24 percent to 362.2 million pounds with the core support services accounting for 86 percent of the total, compared with 77 percent in the previous year.

Internal growth accounted for 52 percent of the increase in operating profit in support services and BET invested 266.9 million pounds in capital expenditure (up from 215.9 million in 1989).

438.5 million pounds was spent on 52 acquisitions, including acquired debt and net borrowings rose from 98.0 million pounds to 434.2 million pounds.

The higher borrowings, and interest rates, doubled interest charges from 21.6 million pounds to 42.4 million pounds, but interest cover remained conservative at 8.6 times.

Pretax profit, rose by 19 percent to 322.3 million pounds and the tax rate returned to its five-year average of 29 percent. After the payment of 13.5 million pounds in preference dividends, earnings per share increased by 12 percent to 28.5p, and the board has recommended a final dividend of 9p, making 13p for the year - an increase of 13 percent over the previous year.

AUSTIN, TEXAS (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - On Location, the innovative software utility from ON Technology Inc. that provides the fastest way to find and view files on the Macintosh, will be bundled at no additional charge with every new Protege hard drive ordered from MacAvenue.

MacAvenue's new Protege drives are the only ones on the market packaged with On location, a $129.95 value.

''The exclusive bundling agreement with ON Technology gives our new Protege drives an immediate and distinct competitive advantage,'' said Michael Shapiro, general manager of MacAvenue. We're pleased to be at the forefront with On Location because Mac users across the board are discovering it's one of the most significant utility programs ever introduced.''

Mitchel Kapor, president of ON Technology said, ''We're excited about participating in the launch of a significant new line of hard drives from MacAvenue. The Protege operates quietly, but we expect it to make a lot of noise in the marketplace.''

On Location -- which only takes a few minutes to learn -- was designed for Mac users suffering from ''folderitis,'' a condition caused by creating and accumulating so many files that keeping track of them becomes a problem.

On Location alleviates this headache by helping users quickly locate specific files among the hundreds or thousands stored on a hard drive.

CLEVELAND (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Continued improvement in both revenue and earnings were reported today by American Greetings for the first quarter of Fiscal 1991, ended May 31, 1990.

Total revenue for the first three months increased to $311 million, up 7.4 percent from the $290 million recorded in the corresponding period last year. Pre-tax income for the quarter rose to $30.4 million from last year's $28.3 million, an increase of 7.5 percent.

Net income jumped to $19.3 million, a 10.4 percent increase compared to $17.5 million for the same period last year. Earnings per share were 60 cents versus 54 cents.

President and Chief Executive Officer Morry Weiss said the results reaffirm the Company's expectation that Fiscal 1991 will be a record year in both revenue and earnings.

Weiss said the first quarter's revenue increases are attributable to strong sales of everyday cards, particularly alternative, or "anytime" cards. For example, the new Couples line has been a major success, with more than 20 million Couples cards sold during the first six months the line was in retail stores.

In August, American Greetings will introduce its newest "anytime" card line, this one targeted to kids under 12. The line, called Kid Zone, is expected to fill a consumer need for better communication with children.

Weiss said earnings are being positively influenced by controls on costs and expenses and better management of assets.

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Managing Director of Westpac Banking Corp. (NYSE:WBK), Stuart Fowler, expressed dissatisfaction at Moody's decision to lower the bank's long-term credit rating.

''The level of rating accorded the bank is a matter of judgement,'' Fowler said. ''We do not agree with the judgement made by Moody's, but we must accept it.''

''Westpac is the largest and strongest financial institution in Australia and the rating does not change this.''

Moody's Investors Service confirmed Westpac's existing short-term debt at the highest level on Friday, June 15.

''Because we do not rely on long-term debt for our funding program, being reaffirmed at the short end means there will be little impact on funding cost,'' Fowler said.

''Westpac is very strongly capitalized. The fundamentals of the group are sound. Our core businesses are in good shape, and we are more tightly focussed then before. I look forward to a restoration of our long-term rating at the earliest possible date,'' Fowler said.

Westpac Banking Corp. is an international financial services group headquartered in Australia, with operations extending offshore to 29 countries. Westpac ranks among the top 100 banks worldwide in terms of assets.

In its home markets of Australia, New Zealand, Papua New Guinea and the South West Pacific, Westpac offers a full range of banking and financial services. Specialized services are provided through the Westpac offices in Asia, Europe, and the United States.

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Borden, Inc. (NYSE:BN) Monday announced the acquisition from Richdale, Ltd. of the Quinlan Pretzel Company, a privately owned pretzel manufacturer serving the eastern third of the United States.

The company, which has estimated 1990 sales of $13 million and operates a plant in Denver, Pa. (15 miles southeast of Reading), employs 85 persons. Terms of the cash transaction were not disclosed.

''The acquisition of Qunilan pretzels brings another strong regional snack brand into our family, and adds to our presence in the large and growing pretzel category,'' said R.J. Ventres, chairman and chief executive officer of Borden, Inc. The business will be integrated into Wise Foods, Borden's largest snack food operation. Quinlan pretzels already are sold largely through independent Wise distributors in New York, New England, Pennsylvania, Florida, and North and South Carolina.

Borden is the second largest North American snack producer. Its national snack brands include Krunchers!, New York Deli and Cottage Fries potato chips; Seyfert's pretzels, Wise and Wise Choice popcorn; Bravos and LaFamous tortilla chips; and Cheez Doodles corn snacks. Borden also markets popular local snack brands through its network of regional snack companies across the United States and in Canada.

Borden, Inc. is a worldwide producer of food and non-food consumer products, as well as packaging and industrial products, with worldwide sales of $7.6 billion in 1989. The Company ranks number one in the world in pasta, wallcoverings, forest product adhesives and vinyl wrapping films; number one in U.S. dairy; number two in salty snacks in North America; and number one or two (nationally or regionally) in 26 U.S. niche grocery product categories.

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - ECC Group plc has Monday disposed of its 29.02 percent shareholding in Bryant Group plc. The shares were placed with institutional investors by Charterhouse Tilney and realized 49.9 million pounds net of expenses. The book value of the holding at Sept. 30 1989, was 46.7 million pounds.

In May 1990, ECC Group announced the proposed 310 million pounds acquisition of Georgia Kaolin to expand its worldwide interests in industrial minerals. At the time the board indicated that it was seeking to realize at least 100 million pounds through the disposal of non-core assets. The sale of the shares in Bryant Group forms a part of this strategy.

With sales of approximately $1.6 billion, U.K.-based ECC Group is a leading producer of industrial minerals for the paper, specialty chemical and ceramic industries worldwide. It produces kaolin (or china clay), calcium carbonate, ball clay and other industrial mineral products. The company is also engaged in the production of construction materials and home building.

KING OF PRUSSIA, PA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - The SFT Environmental Awareness Fund was ranked the third leading mutual fund in America by Lipper Analytical Services.

This environmental fund, one of 10 mutual funds managed by SFT Inc. of King of Prussia, invests in companies involved in the environmental clean-up. Specific areas of investment include solid and hazardous waste management, water and waste water resource management, resource recovery/recycling, waste minimization and alternative energy development.

According to M.W. Groshans, president of SFT Inc. and a former chemical engineer, ethical investing is the way of the future.

''Like most of our population, investors have become increasingly concerned with the environment,'' said Groshans. ''Now, with the added bonus of such high financial returns, this fund is even more difficult to ignore.''

SFT Inc.'s Environmental Awareness Fund, the oldest and first fund of its kind in the nation, quadrupled its assets to well over $2 million in the past year.

CHICAGO (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Sears, Roebuck and Co. (NYSE:S) said Monday it will open nearly 200 Brand Central superstores-within-stores in 16 states and Puerto Rico this week, completing its national rollout in less than 15 months.

Michael Bozic, chairman and chief executive officer of Sears Merchandise Group, said home appliance and home electronics superstores will open in 198 stores, bringing the total to more than 840 Brand Central superstores in Sears stores in all 50 states and Puerto Rico.

Of the 198 Brand Central openings this week, he said, 53 are in Texas, 47 in Florida and 21 in the state of Washington. Metropolitan areas where Brand Central is opening include Dallas; Denver; Houston; Miami and Orlando, Fla.; Portland, Ore.; Salt Lake City; San Antonio; Savannah, Ga.; and Seattle.

Completion of the Brand Central rollout is the first major step in Sears strategy to become a ''store of superstores'' featuring up to seven power format departments under one roof, Bozic noted. These power formats, which feature dominant presentations of brand name and private label merchandise, are: Brand Central, Homelife furniture, Kids & More apparel, The Women's Store at Sears, The Men's Store at Sears, Craftsman Home & Yard Centers and Sears Auto Centers.

Bozic said Sears will open a total of 37 Homelife furniture superstores this year, both in Sears stores and free-standing. In addition, he said, Sears is remerchandising 300 auto centers and will open approximately 50 superstore departments in each of the other four power formats.

Marvin M. Stern, vice president, home appliances and electronics, said all Sears stores throughout the nation will celebrate the Brand Central grand opening on June 21.

Brand Central is the only retailer carrying the top three brands of appliances -- Kenmore, General Electric and Whirlpool, Stern said. The Brand Central rollout is being completed ahead of schedule, he said, making Sears the largest nationwide retailer of home appliances and home electronics, with more than 840 stores and 7.7 million square feet of selling space.

When introduced in 18 pilot stores in Indiana and Kentucky in 1988, Brand Central featured 60 name brands. The stores now carry more than 80 brands he said.

In addition to Kenmore, General Electric and Whirlpool, Brand Central features Amana, Jenn-Air, Sharp, Speed Queen and Tappan appliances. Bissell, Eureka and Hoover vacuum cleaners and Brother and Singer sewing machines.

Home electronics include Advent, Bose, Hitachi, Magnavox, Marantz, Panasonic, Pioneer, RCA, Sharp, Sony, Soundesign, Technics, Toshiba, and Zenith, in addition to Sears LXI brand.

Home communications and office equipment brands include AT&T, Brother, Cobra, Code-A-Phone, Commodore, Franklin, GTE, Laser, Motorola, Panasonic, PhoneMate, Texas Instruments and Xerox.

NORTH SPRINGFIELD, VT (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Vermont Research Corp. (VRC) has recently signed RESTOR Industries Inc. of Florida to exclusively distribute and service VRC's Model 6256 solid state disk drive that replaces the Burroughs Disk File mechanical drive currently used by the telephone industry and Bell Operating Cos. on the 1A ESS Central Office Switch.

VRC's plug-and-play device provides significantly more reliability and data integrity than the Burroughs Disk File. The contract has a potential value to VRC in excess of $1 million if anticipated sales orders for the new product materialize.

''This agreement represents a major development for our company, as it now enables RESTOR to sell a high-quality, non-service product to our existing customer base,'' explains Dick Williams, RESTOR chairman. ''By combining VRC's 30 years of experience with our professional service and strategically located plants, we can assure our customers high-quality, efficient attention.''

VRC's Model 6256, which was specifically designed to replace mechanical disk drives in telecommunications applications, features a mean-time-between-failure exceeding 100,000 hours, a comprehensive, on-the-fly error detection and correction capability, a complete and extensive, built-in self-test and diagnostic system, and audible warning and LED visual indicators to provide the user with unit status information.

Optional product features, which extend the system's reliability, consist of: 1) a sophisticated battery backup and management circuit providing 12 hours of backup in the event of power failure; 2) silicon file chips to extend the battery backup from 12 hours to more than 150 hours; and 3) a streamer tape that can be used as a permanent data storage device as well as media to distribute data or software for the Disk File.

RESTOR Industries Inc. is a diversified telecommunications company, specializing for more than seven years in circuit board and pay telephone repair and refurbishment to the Regional Bell Operating Cos. and the Independent Telco industry.

Vermont Research Corp., a member of the American Stock Exchange, has provided high-performance memory products for process control, communications and real-time industries for more than 30 years. VRC's Model 6256 is the latest in a series of solid state disk replacements that include more than 180 different emulations, such as SMD, SCSI, Diablo, ESMD, plus many specialized versions.

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Western Publishing Group Inc. (OTC:WPGI) announced that it has reached an agreement in principle to acquire Sight and Sound Inc., the nation's largest publisher of children's interactive electronic storybooks, toys and games that talk, play music and create sounds.

Sold under the trade name ''Sound Story,'' these products feature licensed characters from Disney, Sesame Street, Looney Tunes and Peanuts. Sight and Sound Inc. has already received orders for in excess of 500,000 copies of its soon-to-be-released Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles Sound Story licensed product. Sight and Sound also produces toys and inexpensive musical instruments utilizing the same sound technology and licensed characters.

In the present year, Sight and Sound anticipates net sales well in excess of $20,000,000. A closely held corporation, Sight and Sound products are primarily based on technology developed by its chairman, Zeb Billings, who will join Western to head a new Electronic and Technology R & D Group.

Richard A. Bernstein, chairman and chief executive officer of Western Publishing Group Inc. said ''the acquisition of Sight and Sound makes great sense for Western, both financially and strategically. From every standpoint, our businesses fit neatly together.

''They license from the same sources, distribute through the same channels and serve the same consumers as our Golden Books and Golden Games product lines. Their sound technology brings a new dimension to our current youth electronic business.''

Western Publishing Group Inc. also reported sales and earnings for the first quarter of fiscal, 1991 ended May 5, 1990.

Revenues for the first quarter were $100.9 million compared with $105.6 million for the same period in fiscal 1990. Net earnings for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 were $2 million or 9 cents per share based on an average of 20,045,000 shares outstanding compared with $3.8 million or 18 cents per share, based on 20,001,000 shares outstanding for the same period in fiscal 1990.

Bernstein said, ''The first quarter results reflect the anticipated drop in sales of Pictionary, still among the top selling games in America.

''This is the last period,'' he continued, ''in which Pictionary, on a quarter-to-quarter comparison basis, will dramatically affect the results of both our sales and earnings. We are, however, pleased with the increase in sales of our proprietary games and our core consumer product lines as well as our Diversified and Penn Corp. businesses.

''The first quarter results also reflect the long term trend of our sales and earnings migrating to the second half of our fiscal year. With our very strong position in both the classic and proprietary board game businesses, we would expect to see this trend continue for the next few years.''

Through its Western Publishing Co. subsidiary, Western Publishing Group Inc. is the nation's largest creator, publisher, printer and marketer of story books and other activity books and products for children. These products are sold principally under the GOLDEN and GOLDEN BOOK names.

The company is a major producer and marketer of puzzles, games, children's video and special interest books for adults. Western Publishing Co. also ranks among the largest commercial printers in the United States, offering a wide range of printing, graphic and creative services to customers in industry and government.

Western Publishing Group Inc., through the two operating divisions of its Penn Corp. subsidiary, Beach/Contempo products and Ritepoint/Vitronic ad specialty products, is engaged in the manufacture and sale of disposable paper tableware and party goods, stationery and advertising specialties and promotional business products.

LAS VEGAS (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Northern Telecom (NYSE:NT) Monday announced a set of software enhancements to the Meridian 1 business communications system that provides new Integrated Services Digital Network (ISDN) functionality and additional call processing features designed for the hospitality and telemarketing environments.

The package is called X11 Release 16.

New ISDN features include the ability of X11 Release 16 to support Meridian 1 connectivity to AT&T's 5ESS central office switching system via a Primary Rate Interface (PRI). The Meridian 1 now offers PRI connectivity to other Meridian 1 systems and to Meridian SL-1, Meridian SL-100/SuperNode, DMS-250, DMS-100 and DMS SuperNode switches, as well as the AT&T 4ESS and 5ESS, the Ericsson AXE 10 and the ITT System 12 switching systems.

The announcement was made at the International SL-1 Users' Association Conference in Las Vegas.

With the new functionality, the Meridian 1 supports Integrated Service Access (ISA) to the 5ESS. ISA employs various call set-up messages so that the Meridian 1 can inform the network which service is needed on a call-by-call basis. Similarly, the network can indicate to a Meridian 1 on a call-by-call basis the service for the incoming call.

Such services essentially are designed to increase network efficiency, reduce facilities required and thereby lower costs for customers who need a variety of different services from local telephone companies.

X11 Release 16 also enables the Meridian 1 to provide In-Band ANI (Automatic Number Identification), which allows interexchange carriers (such as MCI) to send calling parties' 10-digit phone numbers (area codes and seven-digit numbers) via standard digital trunks (T1) to the Meridian 1.

Prior to the In-Band ANI, the only way to receive ANI digits was via ISDN services. Until ISDN is fully deployed through local or interexchange carrier networks, In-Band ANI provides a means of delivering the ANI digits to the Meridian 1.

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - S&P CreditWire 6/18/90 -- S&P lowers its rating on Salant Corp.'s $75 million senior subordinated extendible reset notes, due 1995, to 'D' from triple-'C'-plus. The change was prompted by the company's default on its bank debt payment and its announced intention to suspend payment on its public debt until the bank default is cured.

Since its 1987 emergence from Chapter 11 bankruptcy, Salant has been acquisitive, purchasing several firms including Manhattan Industries, Inc. Denton Mills and North American Garment Finishing.

While the acquisitions diversified the apparel manufacturer's product offerings and built Salant's branded product portfolio, the companies were underperformers in need of turnarounds and capital infusions.

An aggressive principal repayment schedule placed additional strain on the already overcommitted cash flow.

While Salant's management had proven itself in prior turnaround situations the firm's ongoing viability depends upon a successful renegotiation of bank covenants, a more favorable retail environment, and successfully improving operations within a relatively short time frame, S&P said.

TALLAHASSEE, FL (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Patient Care of America Inc. a 2,000 member HMO operating in Dade and Broward counties has been sold to new owners who will continue to honor existing memberships, State Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher announced Monday.

Gallagher said the HMO was liquidated Thursday by Leon County Circuit Judge N. Sanders Sauls, at the insurance department's request because of insolvency. The HMO served 7,000 members at its peak and had liabilities exceeding assets by $1.7 million.

Following the liquidation order, the department received court approval to sell the HMO's membership lists, provider networks, and license to Physician Corp. of America, also known as PCA Health Plans of Florida Inc. Under the terms of the sale:

-- Physician Corp. pays the department -- as reciever for Patient Care -- $500,000;

-- All claims up to the time of sale remain in the estate of the failed company, to be paid out of the $500,000;

-- Physician Corp. accepts all Patient Care members and will honor their existing membership terms. Gallagher emphasized that no members will suffer loss of medical care, as a result of the sale.

''Obviously, it's never good news when an HMO becomes insolvent,'' Gallagher said in a statement. ''Fortunately, in the case of Patient Care's insolvency, we were able to locate an alternative health care benefit provider so that Patient Care's members won't face a disruption of patient services.''

''PCA Health Plans of Florida Inc. is looking forward to serving the former members of Patient Care,'' its spokesperson said in a release Monday. ''The coverage provided under the Patient Care Group Medical and Hosptial Services Agreement will remain in force until the contract renewal date.''

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - At their General Meeting held here Monday the OSI/Network Management Forum announced the completion of their Release 1 technical program, including Network Management Conformance Test Tools.

The Forum also announced its Network Management Showcase program to begin this fall. In addition, the Forum elected new officers and restructured the Board of Trustees to reflect its growth in membership.

Members now total nearly 100 companies. With Release 1 implemented, any element in a network can be represented.

Users can see network composition, obtain network status, and make network changes across vendor systems -- as easily as within a single vendor system. For example, a system can create an end-to-end view of a network, retrieve alarm histories or obtain the current configuration of a network element managed by another system.

Showcase begins this fall as the tangible demonstration that vendors are implementing the Forum's specifications. The announced shows include CBTA in Montreal, Canada, September 18-20, TCA in San Diego, California, September 25-27, Interop in San Jose, California, October 10-12, and ComNet in Washington D.C., January 28-30, 1991. Other shows are planned for the spring and fall of 1991 including shows in North America and Europe.

Release 1 is a complete set of specifications and conformance test tools for both Fault and Configuration Management. This comprehensive package has design specifications, implementation conformance statements and conformance testing requirements. Specific documents include Protocols, Application Services, Architecture, the Object Framework, Object Library, Shared Management Knowledge, Naming and Addressing, and Conformance Testing Requirements.

'Release 1 is a major achievement for the Forum,'' said Keith Willetts, in his Presidential address to the General Meeting. ''Taken together, the Release 1 specifications provide Forum members with all of the necessary building blocks to develop conformant network management products,'' Willetts continued. ''Our goal has been to accelerate the use of OSI standards for interconnection of network management systems. These Release 1 specifications will enable companies to proceed with product development.''

The availability of a suite of Conformance Test Tools concurrent with Release 1 represents a significant benefit for developers and customers alike. The tools result from a strategic relationship formed between the Forum, COS in the United States and SPAG-CCT in Europe.

Out of that strategic relationship, COS committed to provide lower layer test systems and SPAG-CCT committed to provide application profile test systems. These are now in beta test and will be available shortly to verify that products conform to the Forum's Release 1 Specifications.

''COS is pleased to see the real progress the Forum has made in advancing open network management and we look forward to working closely with the Forum membership throughout 1990 and 91,'' said Lincoln D. Faurer, COS President and CEO.

''Conformance testing is essential if users are to be able to purchase products with confidence,'' commented Robert Montgomery, newly elected President of the Forum.

''That is why it was important to utilize the expertise of COS and SPAG. They are independent, third-party organizations who share a lot in common with the Forum and, in addition, can provide the Forum with many years of experience in the area of conformance testing. The Forum has always sought to work within the existing standards framework. This is a perfect example of how groups can cooperate to benefit the customer,'' Montgomery added.

Conformance also plays a role in Network Management Showcase. Network Management Showcase is a series of trade shows in which the Forum will be highlighting member progress in building Forum conformant products.

Showcase serves as a window for users. Attendees at a Showcase show, will see member products being developed, interoperable product demonstrations, and recognition for passing conformance tests.

'The Forum will assist Showcase attendees in locating member's demonstrations at each show,'' explained Montgomery. ''We anticipate that the early shows in the Showcase series will feature the network management progress of our members with interoperable demonstrations appearing shortly thereafter as members pass conformance testing. Users will benefit the most from Showcase, because they can now look forward to buying these types of products in the near future,'' Montgomery added.

BRANFORD, CT (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - For the third quarter of fiscal year 1990, ended May 31, Echlin Inc. (NYSE:ECH) earned profit after tax of 24 cents per share.

The results were announced by Frederick J. Mancheski, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer.

Earnings per share were the same as those reported in the same period last year, but increased 100 percent from the 12 cents per share earned in the previous quarter ended February 28, 1990. While net income of $13.6 million this year was up less than 1 percent from $13.5 million net income reported last year in the third quarter, last year's earnings included approximately 3 cents per share from gains on the sale of surplus assets.

Net sales in the third quarter this year totaled $426.6 million, up 12 percent from sales of $380.5 million last year. Approximately three-quarters of the increase was the result of recently acquired businesses, mainly Hobourn Group Ltd., a U.K. manufacturer of fuel system products and water, oil, and power steering pumps, and Vera, a U.S. importer/distributor of replacement parts for imported vehicles.

In the 9-month period ended May 31, 1990, net sales totaled $1.174 billion up 9 percent from sales of $1.081 billion in the prior year period. Most of the gain was due to the recent acquisitions. Unit sales of comparable operations, those part of Echlin for at least a year, were down about 2 percent in both the third quarter and the first nine months of fiscal year 1990.

Net income after tax was $33.7 million in the first nine months, down 18 percent from $41.2 million reported last year for the same period. Earnings per share amounted to 60 cents this year, a drop of 19 percent from the 74 cents per share reported last year. Last year's results also included the 3 cents per share gains mentioned earlier.

''Slower unit sales, experienced throughout our industry, and translation losses mainly by Echlin's Brazilian business, have resulted in lower earnings per share so far this year,'' Mr. Mancheski said. ''However, following seven consecutive quarters of decline, we are cautiously optimistic that unit sales will improve soon.''

MCLEAN, VA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - The Strategic Air Command (SAC) and Unisys Defense Systems recently put into operation a state-of-the-art ''trusted'' computing network, known as SACINTNET, at ceremonies held at SAC Headquarters, Offutt AFB, NB.

SACINTNET, the Strategic Air Command Intelligence Network, is the first operational intelligence network based on the latest Fiber Distributed Data Interface (FDDI) technology. SACINTNET offers SAC commanders and the entire defense intelligence community faster, more reliable and secure means to communicate important intelligence data.

With this system, SAC has securely integrated all its intelligence systems. The system also includes a critical gateway to the Defense Data Network.

As prime contractor and systems integrator on the project, Unisys Defense Systems successfully completed the system-high portion of the project, providing a commercial solution to what would have been a full-scale development.

By using powerful off-the-shelf components with a 100-Megabits/second FDDI technology, SACINTNET satisfies the strict needs of the DoD intelligence community for communication bandwidth, reliability, availability, and maintainability. The commercial products used in the SACINTNET system are part of the NetCap program sponsored by Air Force Intelligence Agency.

Unisys Corp. announced in January that the commercial product line is being offered worldwide through its subsidiary, Timeplex, based in Woodcliff Lake. Timeplex offers the TIME/LAN Family of commercial off-the-shelf (COTS) local area network products to government and commercial users which compliment its LINK+ Family.

The TIME/LAN Family provides LAN/WAN internetworking and LAN/LAN connectivity for major high-speed LANs, including FDDI, Ethernet and token ring. The TIME/LAN Family consists of TIME/LAN 100 FDDI-based Routers, a Network Management Systems and TIME/LAN FDDI Concentrator+.

The strategic melding of Defense Systems FDDI LAN technology and wide-area technology from Timeplex makes Unisys the first major computer/communications company to address the rapidly expanding LAN/WAN markets.

SACINTNET interconnects commercial host computers, workstations and local area networks (LANs), using an FDDI backbone network and two powerful management tools:

Network Security Server (NSS) - The central point for network security management including operator and subscriber access, data management, and security audit data collection and analysis.

Network Control Center (NCC) - Provides Network Management via the Simple Network Management Protocol. Functions include a network topology map, a configuration management tool, a status monitoring tool, and a performance monitoring tool.

Both the NSS and NCC are hosted on identical Sun Microsystems 3/470 server systems. Each are equipped with 16 megabytes of memory, more than 600 megabytes of hard disk storage, and a 150- megabyte 1/4-inch tape drive.

A third server, the Shared Network Server (SNS), provides common resources available to the SACINTNET users. The SNS offers file storage, electronic mail, printing, graphics and other capabilities.

SACINTNET's main function is to efficiently transfer data between components of SAC's Intelligence Data Handling System with a capacity six times that of the current workload.

It promises to reduce manual handling of intelligence data, streamline processing and dissemination, and support distributed processing by accommodating advanced workstations. Designed as a truly open system, SACINTNET will accommodate growth and future technology.

Long active in fiber-optic communications, Defense Systems began developing its FDDI technology in 1986 as part of a company-funded research and development program. Defense Systems Networks and Information Security Division, located in Camarillo, Calif., is responsible for the development of the FDDI products.

ATLANTA (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - KLM Royal Dutch Airlines (NYSE:KLM) recently launched its Product '90 campaign, an innovative program which will include significant developments and amenities to be enjoyed by all passengers flying KLM's Business, Royal and Tourist classes.

Those flying KLM's Business Class on European routes will soon enjoy more spacious seating. Especially designed for KLM, the new business class seat is wider, offering passengers more comfort.

Conversion of the 18-strong KLM Boeing 737 fleet began in April and will be completed by the end of June. Four KLM Airbus A310 aircraft flown on European routes will also be equipped with the new business class seat; the completion date is set for mid-September.

A number of other amenities will be available to the business class traveler, including articles to increase passenger comfort and meal upgrades served in three courses on KLM's newly-designed china. These innovations will go into effect by Oct. 28. Also, by the end of 1990, business class travelers will be able to enjoy a new lounge at Schipsol Airport in Amsterdam.

KLM's Royal Class passengers will reap the benefits of the Product '90 program as well. A greater selection of high quality travel articles will be available to ensure their comfort during flights.

Health-conscious passengers will enjoy nutritious meals made with only the freshest products and served on newly-designed KLM china. For passengers who wish to sleep or work as soon as possible, the option of being served a three-course meal immediately after boarding will also be available.

Product '90 will bring the Tourist Class newly-designed electronic headphones to keep passengers entertained during flights.

As part of the Product '90 campaign, a number of trials will be held this year as a way of translating customers' wishes into the service KLM offers. For example, fall 1990 will see the introduction of telephone links for passengers on two aircraft.

These will be accessible to all passengers on board through use of their credit cards. As always, customer opinion will decide which type of telephone link is ultimately selected.

Through the Product '90 program, KLM has introduced a wide range of innovative services. The company views these as part of an ongoing campaign to be sensitive to customers' wishes and to fine-tune service to meet their needs.

KLM's improvements were designed to place an even greater emphasis on a customer-oriented approach to every facet of KLM service. In order to involve the 24,000-strong KLM workforce in the preparations leading to Product '90, the launch was preceded by a corporate information campaign.

The oldest commercial airline in the world, KLM was established in 1919, just 16 years after the invention of the airplane. It started passenger service a year later with its first route between London and Amsterdam.

In addition to Atlanta and Orlando, Fla., KLM currently serves New York, Chicago, Houston, Los Angeles and Anchorage, Alaska. Direct service to and from Baltimore begins June 22. KLM flies to more than 140 cities in 77 countries.

HOUSTON (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Robert C. Thomas has been named chairman and chief executive officer of Tenneco Gas, a unit of Tenneco Inc. (NYSE:TGT).

Thomas formerly was president of the natural gas pipeline company. In a related move, Stephen D. Chesebro' has been named president and chief operating officer of Tenneco Gas. Chesebro' formerly was executive vice president, marketing, for the unit.

Thomas, 61, will give increased attention to the longer term business ventures currently being developed by Tenneco Gas together with the legal, governmental and strategic planning required for potential new projects.

Chesebro', 48, will oversee the day-to-day operations of the existing system which has 18,000 miles of pipeline transporting natural gas to customers in the Northeast, Southeast and the Midwest together with the company's existing non-pipeline activities.

''This new alignment recognizes that Tenneco Gas has two primary tasks that deserve our full attention,'' Thomas said. ''The first is to maintain Tenneco Gas as a premier pipeline for our current customers along the existing system. The second is to fully develop our aggressive plans for expansion and new ventures. We must attend to each of them if we are to capture the opportunities they present.''

Thomas joined Tenneco in 1956 as an engineer. He held various positions in oil and gas exploration and production units, pipeline international energy contracting and staff administration before assuming general executive duties in the natural gas pipeline division in 1976.

He was elected president of Tennessee Gas Transmission in 1983 and president of th Tenneco Gas Pipeline Group in 1987. That group was expanded to include natural gas liquids and methanol operations in 1988 and with the corporate name of Tenneco Gas. Thomas was graduated from the University of Oklahoma in 1951 with a bachelor of science degree in geological engineering.

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - S&P assigns its single-'A' rating on Browning-Ferris Industries Inc.'s $400 million of 6 3/4 pc convertible subordinated Eurodebentures, due 2005.

Proceeds will be used to refinance floating-rate debt.

Ratings are affirmed on single-'A'-plus senior, single-'A' subordinated debt, and 'A-1' commercial paper, affecting about $700 million of debt.

Browning-Ferris benefits from its position as the second-largest U.S. waste services firm, strong profitability and cash flow levels from core solid-waste services, and favorable growth prospects. To expand and strengthen this business and to pursue growth in related, capital-intensive activities such as resource recovery, medical waste services, and recycling, BFI is implementing an ambitious $4.5 billion corporate development program.

Heavy financing requirements result in higher debt usage than in the past. However, a strong market position and favorable prospects for solid waste services should ensure continued healthy earnings and cash flow generation.

Consequently, cash needs and debt usage are anticipated to subside gradually. Through growth of retained earnings, debt leverage over the next two to three years should decline to a level appropriate for the current ratings, S&P said.

DERRY, NH (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Cornerstone Financial Corp. (NASDAQ:CSTN), a Derry, N.H. based bank holding company, announced Monday it intends to merge its two banking subsidiaries, Cornerstone Bank and Derry Bank and Trust Co., on October 1, 1990.

The new bank will operate as Cornerstone Bank. It will have combined assets of approximately $162 million, 11 retail locations and will serve seven southern New Hampshire communities. The merger is subject to receipt of required regulatory approvals.

In announcing the plan, bank officials explained that the merger will provide greater convenience to its 25,000 customers and will enable customers to more fully utilize the financial strength a unified banking operation affords. Additionally, the merger is expected to reduce operating expenses by eliminating a variety of duplicative operating costs.

''The first and most obvious advantage our customers will realize is the convenience of being able to bank at 11 retail locations throughout southern New Hampshire,'' said Vice Chairman and Chief Executive Officer John M. Terravecchia, in making the announcement. ''In addition to that important consideration, we have evolved into a bank which now serves a much wider region than the name Derry Bank suggests. While we are proud of where we have come from, we feel it is time to use a name which more accurately reflects the entire region we now serve.''

Terravecchia emphasized that the merger was a strategic decision to enhance the organization's strong financial condition and its record of successful operations. In 1989, Cornerstone Financial Corp. reported a net after-tax profit of $1.0 million and returned .66 percent on assets. It maintains a capital ratio in excess of 10 percent, which substantially exceeds the national average.

''We feel the combined assets of the two banks will perfectly complement the banking partnership we have had with our customers through the years '' Terravecchia explained. ''Despite the fact that there will be no noticeable differences in our retail operations overall, services will be expanded. Our enhanced financial strength enables us to meet almost any small business or commercial need, and that is a clear benefit to our customers.''

Derry Bank and Trust Co. was established in 1969. Cornerstone Bank was established in 1987 to serve the Nashua market. Following the merger, Cornerstone Bank will serve the southern New Hampshire cities and towns of Candia, Chester, Derry, Hampstead, Manchester, Nashua and Windham.

DALLAS (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Uranium Resources Inc. (''URI''), a Dallas-based uranium mining company, has been informed that Rio Algom Mining Corp. (''Rio''), a wholly-owned subsidiary of Rio Algom Limited, has acquired the ownership interest in URI previously held by Elders Resources Finance Inc. (''Elders'').

Such interest consists of 2,096,497 shares of common stock (approximately eight percent of the issued and outstanding common shares of URI) and a warrant to acquire 7,109,235 common shares of URI which, if exercised, would increase Rio's total ownership interest to approximately 25 percent on a fully diluted basis.

Rio also acquired Elders' 10.5 percent ownership interest in Belt Line Resources Inc., the principal asset of which is 750,000 common shares of URI.

Rio indicated that the shares and warrant were acquired ''as an investment with a veiw to the possibility that Rio or an affiliate may ultimately be able to acquire all of the outstanding shares of URI.''

In October 1989, Rio and URI entered into a non-binding letter of intent which, subject to the satisfactory completion of due diligence and other conditions, contemplated the acquisition by Rio of all of the outstanding common shares of URI at $2.55 per share pursuant to a merger between Rio or an affiliate thereof and URI.

Negotiations between Rio and URI were terminated without agreement in November 1989.

In May 1990, Rio initiated discussions with management of URI with a stated view to determining ''if there was a basis for Rio making an offer to acquire all of the common shares held by management as well as consummating a merger between URI and Rio at a price substantially lower than U.S. $2.55 per share but somewhat greater than U.S. $1.50 per share.'' Such discussions were terminated without resolution.

Uranium Resources Inc. is a Dallas based uranium mining company, whose shares trade on The Toronto Stock Exchange under the symbol URI and on NASDAQ under the symbol URIX.

The company's warrants and units trade on NASDAQ under the symbols URIXW and URIXU, respectively. The company produces uranium in South Texas using low cost in situ solution mining techniques, and holds substantial uranium reserves in New Mexico.

MOSCOW (JUNE 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Arthur Andersen & Co. announced Monday that the U.S.S.R. Ministry of Finance approved a joint venture agreement between Arthur Andersen & Co. and two leading Soviet companies, making Andersen the first professional services organization of its kind to be authorized to audit balance sheets of Soviet companies and to do audits of Western/Soviet joint ventures in the U.S.S.R., effectively breaking the audit monopoly previously held by the Soviet company A/O Inaudit.

The Arthur Andersen Worldwide Organization is the first Western professional services organization to have a controlling interest in a joint venture in the Soviet Union. The venture, named ''Arthur Andersen in the U.S.S.R.,'' combines Andersen with a 70 percent majority share of the capital; Promstroybank of the U.S.S.R., the largest bank of the U.S.S.R. with a 25 percent share; and the engineering industrial company NPO Dinamo Moscow, with a 5 percent share. As part of the Arthur Andersen audit, tax, financial and business consulting unit, this joint venture will provide assistance to Soviet state and other enterprises in adapting themselves to free market management techniques. It also will consult with Soviet Western joint ventures and is the first western organization authorized to audit such ventures.

Primarily the company is to assist the worldwide clients in their business activities in the U.S.S.R. This marks the first time that a global professional services organization with controlling interest has established an audit and financial consulting group in Moscow with permanent people -- Soviet nationals and expatriates, familiar with the accounting system in the Soviet Union. Twelve Soviet specialists are currently commencing business operations in Moscow.

With 70,000 people in 2,000 offices, Promstroybank is the largest bank in the U.S.S.R., having effective financial control over several thousand enterprises. Seventy-percent of all financial transactions in the U.S.S.R. pass through Promstroybank. Dinamo Moscow is an engineering-industrial company, closely linked to the Bureau of Mechanincal Engineering. This bureau, which belongs directly to the U.S.S.R. Council of Ministers, controls the management of about 2,000 industrial companies in the country.

Arthur Andersen's Dr. Andrea von Knoop was named General Director of the new auditing and financial consulting venture in Moscow. Dr. von Knoop is a former employee of the Deutsche Bank and is experienced in Soviet business methods. In the West, Heinz-Jurgen Weiss, partner of Arthur Andersen in Frankfurt, is responsible for the joint venture.

The Arthur Andersen Worldwide Organization is a leading provider of professional services.

VALLETTA, Malta (JUNE 18) UPI - Sam Spade bagged the Maltese falcon, but even the fictional detective would now fail to find any of the proud predators on Malta, where avid hunting has blasted most birdlife from the skies, land and seas.

Malta probably has the world's highest density of hunters, with an average of 50 gun-wielding sportsmen combing quarry on every square kilometer of the Mediterranean island's arid countryside.

About every tenth Maltese male is licensed to hunt, and the national obsession has resulted in some 56,000 firearms registered among Malta's 350,000 residents.

Whether inspired by tradition, bloodlust, or a weird urge to down creatures that can traverse the seas and are not island-bound, Malta's hunting legions have decimated the republic's bird population.

''The birds come over, and think 'oh nice, an island,''' mused taxi driver John Camelli. ''They land and then - 'boom, boom' - they are dead. We now only see birds on television.''

The fate of the peregrine falcon is typical.

It was not unique to Malta, but falconers throughout the Middle Ages were lured to the island's coastal cliffs, an ideal habitat for the predator coveted by aristocrats for its ability to hunt game.

When the Spanish Emperor Charles V in 1530 gave control of the island to knights of the Order of St. John, he charged a nominal rent of two falcons a year, one of which he took, the second going to the viceroy of Sicily.

The birds became linked with the martial prowess of the 700 knights, who with Maltese troops in 1565 defeated a force of 40,000 Turks after a grueling four-month seige, and effectively checked the spread of Islam into southern and western Europe.

U.S. writer Dashiell Hammett used a priceless icon of a Maltese falcon as the centerpiece of one of his Sam Spade detective stories, which was later immortalized into the classic film, ''The Maltese Falcon,'' starring Humphrey Bogart.

But Malta dosn't have any more falcons.

Paulo Portilli, director of the Malta Ornithological Society, said the last pair were killed in 1983, shot by a hunter who used a boat to get a good aim at their cliffside lair.

''I call it the Rambo syndrome,'' Portelli said. ''Don't come to Malta if you want to see falcons. They won't come back. They would be shot within hours.''

Experts are divided over the exact impact of hunting because no conclusive studies have been done.

But it is certain that Malta has few remaining resident birds, virtually no large predators, and that its migratory populations - which seasonally drift across the island between Europe and Africa - are steadily decreasing.

Portelli estimates between 1 million and 3 million birds, mostly quail and turtledoves, are killed or trapped annually in Malta. The absence of predators has left crop-damaging rodents unchecked, he said.

Lino Farrugia, treasurer of the rather incongruously titled Association for Hunting and Conservation, attributes the overall decline to rampant development and the perennial clash between humanity and nature.

''The lack of habitat for the birds is the main problem,'' he said. ''If we dont't do something about it we won't need hunters and we won't need ornithologists. There will be nothing left.''

Hunters have responded to the paucity of landbound quarry by taking to sea aboard fast boats, where they use electronic callers to entice birds and shoot them out of the sky.

But their egregious tactics may soon end.

If Malta fulfills its wish to join the European Community, it must also adhere to the Berne Convention, a 1979 treaty that obliges members to meet strict rules on catch-weight, seasons, habitat protection, tactics and weaponry.

The government is also concerned that excessive hunting could scare away other timid creatures, tourists, who may become wary of taking a vacation on an island where gunfire is a common sound.

''Tourism is a very delicate baby because we have no natural resources,'' Farrugia said. ''We get people who say they will not come to Malta because we shoot turtledoves, but we don't get people who say they won't go to Britain because they have abortion.''

The dispute has spilled into the political arena, with some hunters saying a ban on their sport could prompt them to vote against the government, a Christian Democrat administration which won power in 1987 from socialists by a very slender majority.

But hunting will always remain as long as many Maltese choose to rise at dawn, pack their gun and roam fields looking to shoot creatures fluttering across their island on the long journey to and from Africa.

''The season allows you to go every day,'' said Lawrence Camilleri, a 22-year-old office worker who has been shooting all his life. ''This month I have been going all out with the hope that the north wind blows.''

BOSTON (JUNE 18) UPI - The smaller computers become, the faster they work, the more they do - and the less we know about them.

The Computer Museum is taking a giant step this month toward removing a lot of the mystery about computers and expanding visitors' understanding of how the high-tech machines work.

Its Walk-Through Computer, going on permanent display beginning June 23, is a tabletop personal computer with a gland problem. This $1.2 million working model is 50 times larger than the average PC.

The keyboard is 25 feet long. Each key is large enough to sit on, sturdy enough to stand on. It has a 6-foot floppy disk, a 40-inch trackball to control its cursor on the 14-foot-high monitor.

You can wander around inside, weaving between the power supply, processing and memory chips the size of a Volkswagen. While that scale can make a visitor feel like the main character in ''The Incredible Shrinking Man,'' there is nothing scary about the prospect of becoming Lilliputian.

By making this computer super-huge, the designers have found a way to convey basic technology in a way that doesn't scare people who are unfamiliar with it.

''Large-scale exhibits break down barriers,'' says museum Executive Director Oliver Strimpel, a British-born computer wiz who came up with the display concept three years ago.

''Many people have a mental block about what a computer is,'' Strimpel says. ''You remove that block by making the explanation fun.''

The first introduction into the information processing system comes through a program called World Traveler, which with visitor help is able to locate the shortest driving route between two specificied cities.

Using the keyboard and trackball, the visitor selects the targets from among 300 different cities.The wall-size monitor then shows the route and gives a brief slide show of sights along the way.

As you step inside the ''computer'' itself and weave among its components, viewports let you peer inside the microprocessor, the random access memory chips and its giant spinning hard disk. Pulsing lights simulate the data flow through the computer.

The heart of the exhibit is the computer's control center, a replica of the Intel 486 microprocessing chip that carries out all of the instructions written by the programmer and stored in its memory. Visitors looking through a window on the chip see an enlarged picture of the lines etched in silicon.

Computer-generated art work zooms down to the surface for an animated portrayal of the chip's operation - showing the steps it accomplishes millions of times per second. Video footage taken by a scanning electron microscope shows the voltage changes that occur in a real 486 chip at work.

Two minicomputers hidden inside the Walk-Through Computer run the model. A Macintosh II runs World Traveler. A Digital Equipment Corp. Microvax coordinates all of the lighting and special effects throughout the exhibit's hardware and software.

As visitors emerge from the computer, a software theater humorously introduces them to the world of programming. The next stop is a bank of six computer learning stations, with actual PCs that give visitors a chance to dig deeper, and even write a program.

The intent of this out-of-scale voyage is to emphasize how the computer works, how the user communicates with it, how it stores information, how the various components work together.

''The major challenge was in simplifying things,'' Strimpel says. ''What really goes on is immensely complicated. We decided to focus on the major points and ensure they don't get lost. At the same time, since our visitors often include technical people who revel in detail, we had to make sure it was accurate.''

Strimpel compares a stroll through the Walk-Through Computer for someone unfamiliar with computer workings to a tourist's first-time visit to a foreign country.

''Even though you don't understand a thing you see, just the sense that you've been there makes you feel more confident,'' he says. ''You are then willing to go back and explore or ask questions on your own.''

The Computer Museum is housed in a former wool warehouse on the Boston waterfront. Its collection of vintage computers, robots and interactive displays draw 100,000 visitors a year. The computer industry kicked in much of the $1.2 million cost of the display either in cash, equipment or services.

It has a few features no other computer has - or would even want. Due to design and space limitations, the power supply board includes a men's room.

''I'm not sure we're going to start a trend on that one,'' Strimpel says.

But neither does he want the Walk-Through Computer to become outmoded in an industry where technology changes rapidly.

''We want it to still be viable in 10 years here. There's even an expansion slot on the floor, so we can give it a mid-life kicker if we want to.''

STAMFORD, CT (JUNE 18) COMTEX - A Japanese court has enjoined Coon Rapids, Minn.-based Endotronics Inc. from importing its cell culture instruments to Japan because of a patent dispute.

The provisional injunction was issued against Endotronics' Japanese distributor in May by a Japanese court, according to a Securities and Exchange Commission filing.

Endotronics believes the patent claim is invalid and is appealing the ruling.

About 24 percent of the company's fiscal 1989 sales were represented by sales to its Japanese distributor.

By WILLIAM H. INMAN

GALVESTON, Texas (JUNE 18) UPI - At 11:30 on a windless night, the Mega Borg's chief mate ordered his pumpman to begin crude oil washing in the starboard wing tanks.

The washing was to clear lines so 20,000 barrels of oil an hour could be shoved through pipe into a smaller receiving vessel. It was the last order of Togo Sagar.

Some heard his death as a loud pop on the walkie-talkie. But most testified to flame pushing like the spout of a volcano through the steel casings of the pump room. Togo Sagar stood on the roof of the pumproom.

Both were vaporized.

''The fire was clean and white,'' recalls Putham Mahamood, 42, the pumpman who caught a piece of metal in the leg.

A week after the June 8 blast, authorities are no closer to explaining the blast that killed Sagar and three others and spilled at least 3 million gallons of crude oil into gray seas off the Texas Coast.

Another 35 million gallons of oil are aboard the Mega Borg, threatening a vast and fragile ecosystem, and an equally fragile tourism and fishing business. The giant tanker was anchored at the edge of the continental shelf where shallows turn into true sea, 150 feet deep, 57 miles from Galveston.

Days of review by a board of inquiry commissioned by the government of Norway, where the ship is registered, have shed little light on the disaster.

''The answer could be a tiny thing, a broken bearing the size of a BB pellet or a spark of static electricity from a crewman's shirt,'' says Erik Leikvang, Norway's consul-general in Houston and co-chairman of the board.

''The fact is we may never know. But we have to try to know.''

Complicating the search for knowing is the loss of records. Unlike commercial aircraft, international rules of the sea do not require tankers to keep electronic black boxes. Instead the shipmaster keeps a handwritten log, which of course, is of questionable use deciphering a disaster spanning microseconds. Computer data, primarily key instrument readings, are also aboard. But in the case of the Mega Borg, unreachable. The data, the log and other documents were stored in the bridge. The bridge became a chimney, too hot to approach.

But thanks to the Norwegian investigation, conducted in Norwegian, Hindustani, Tagalog and other languages, much is known about the Mega Borg her crew, and the crucial seconds bracketing the explosion when the difference between life and death was the turn down an alleyway or through a door.

The Mega Borg left the port of Palanca, Angola, May 15. She took on 131,000 tons of light crude, 10,000 short of capacity. While a vessel like the Mega Borg, a notch below a supertanker, is only twice as long, twice as wide and twice as deep as a standard 21,000-ton tanker, she can carry seven times as much oil. A large tanker moves through the water with less resistance and hence is easier to automate, which encourages the use of cheap Third World crews.

The Mega Borg's trip was uneventful and she anchored in the Galveston lightering zone June 4. Lightering is the term used when tankers discharge into smaller vessels. Transferring oil in the open sea is riskier than in a protected harbor, but the state of Texas could not afford to deepen its harbors - none handle ships above 80,000 tons - nor pay for floating docks storage terminals or floating breakwaters. Such a superport costs too much.

Six hours before the explosion, shortly before the lightering process began, a coupling loosened on a pressure meter in the pumproom. Third Mate Jaipal Mahlawat tightened it with a wrench and testified no oil or gas spewed out. ''It was fixed, fixed altogether,'' he testified. ''No leak.''

An investigator later wondered.

''Vibration is everywhere and there's no way to keep gas (vapor) from escaping the seals,'' says Aasmund Saglokken, a former tanker shipmaster who sat on the inquiry, an expert for the Norwegian government. ''Pumprooms leak explosive fumes. They always have. They always will. That's a fact.''

The trick is to keep the explosive mix at a minimum. The Mega Borg was fitted with an IGS, an inert gas system which sucks out fire-causing oxygen and particulates from cargo pipes. If the oxygen level in the pipes remains below 20 percent, the cargo transfer operation is considered safe.

Pressure meter readings reported a 4 percent oxygen load, well within the safety margin.

''The vacant space was fully inerted,'' testified First Engineer Balinder Singh, a Sikh, turbaned and bearded despite 23 years on the international waterways.

The shipmaster - tankers are run by masters not captains - was in the radio room, transmitting to his home office in Hong Kong, when the superstructure began to shudder.

''Suddenly there was a sort of a bump,'' he said, ''not really an explosion, more a strong vibration.''

At the moment of the explosion, Singh is in his office just above the main deck. ''There was a light as bright as day. Then total darkness.''

The ship loses all power, all communications save the cackle of walkie-talkies. No alarm goes off, although there are separate systems for fire, gas leaks and smoke. All are activated by a battery pack on the bridge. Investigators believe cables to the bridge were broken.

A backup generator in the engine room, flanking the pump room, fires up then quits. Valve controls designed to automatically shut the flow of oil are destroyed, so crude spills from the stern and lays a carpet of flame across the flat sea.

First thoughts of Master C.M. Mahidhara are to save his family. He travels with his wife and two children, an arrangement commonly permitted on long voyages. They huddled in his cabin. ''All around I saw bright flames licking up out of the pumproom and ventilation screens,'' he says, ''flames coming right up over the bridge and where we were.''

He manages to send his family through a narrow companionway to safety, then tries to round up the crew.

''I shouted at them,'' he says. ''I told everybody to get to their emergency stations.''

Nobody heard or nobody listened. At least five languages are spoken by the crew, and panic is prevalent. Many feared the fat tanker would go up like a Molotov. They mustered in the aft deck, 800 feet from the fire, waiting to be rescued by a circling tug.

Meanwhile the pumpman, his leg crippled, crawling on his hands, yells to the master to switch on the only automated fire-fighting equipment aboard, a carbon dioxide pump designed to shoot a high-pressure stream into the pump and engine rooms. Two men are believed inside the engine room, possibly alive, but it is gushing heavy black smoke. It's either the men or the carbon dioxide.

The master orders the release of the gas. It spurts. A witness aboard the receiving vessel, the Framura, saw the flames drop. ''It was working, working,'' says boarding master, Capt. James Banks. ''The flames got less and less intense. The fire was being subdued.''

Then a line somewhere breaks and gray gas hisses on deck. The crew is in danger. Mahidhara orders the gas system shut down. The flames shoot higher. Banks orders his crew to cut ropes and hoses and disconnect quickly from the burning Mega Borg.

''There was nothing we could do to stop the fire,'' he says. ''We had to save ourselves.''

Third Mate Mahlawat slips on an oxygen mask and volunteers to go into the engine room three stories below deck.

''I ordered him back,'' says Mahidhara. ''I had to think of lives. It did not seem wise to send down more men, have more die.''

The remains of two are found.

Fernando Palaboy, 27, who was fishing amidships when the blast took place, hears the clatter of falling objects. He is 400 feet from the pumproom, but finds portions of the pumproom's steel casings. He also finds portions of the chief mate.

Mahidhara spots the body of AB (able-bodied seaman) Bernardo Cortez. Cortez stares into space, a piece of the pumproom's skylight bloodied and nearby. But there are no apparent injuries. He looks okay.

Mahidhara tries his pulse. There is none. He turns Cortez over. The back of his head is missing.

Mahidhara and his chief engineer are the last to be evacuated, and only after the Coast Guard insists.

While the hulk of the Mega Borg still smoulders, the Norwegian government convenes a special commission of inquiry. It spends three days in hearings listening to crew accounts, reports of inspectors, ship builders and Coast Guard officials. It reviews diagrams of the ship and tries to determine why so many things went wrong at once.

''There are no conclusions to draw,'' concludes Chairman Leikvang. ''We just have a lot of facts, and no good answers.''

Unfortunately, he says, ''our best witness couldn't make it.''

He was Togo Sagar, first mate. He was standing on the roof of the pumproom.

SCHEDULE 13D

SEC - AMENDMENT NUMBER: 6

ANNOUNCEMENT:

On June 7, 1990, the shareholders agreement among the reporting parties granting to each other the right of first refusal on the Hasbro (TICKER: HAS) Common Stock owned by each member of the group expired.

On May 17, 1990 the stock purchase agreement among Hassenfeld and Warner Communications Inc. which granted Warner the right of refusal on the Hasbro common stock owned by each member of the group expired.

As a result, the relationship of the reporting parties as a group terminated and each of the reporting parties ceased to be deemed a beneficial owner of more than five percent of Hasbro common stock with the exception of Alan G. Hassenfeld, who holds 5,812,634 shares, representing 10 percent of the outstanding shares.

The reporting parties have sole dispositive power over 10,301,960 shares and shared dispositive power over 728,794 shares, but the total stake for the group is unclear.

By MICHAEL STRAUSS - Comtex Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (JUNE 18) COMTEX - The chairman and chief executive officer of First Executive Corp. today denied allegations he engaged in special dealings with former junk bond king Michael Milken and said he still believes in the soundness of a diversified junk bond investment strategy despite writedowns of over $1 billion during the past several months.

Fred Carr said First Executive, whose junk bond holdings have been reported from 45 percent to 58 percent of total portfolio depending on how a non-investment grade investment is defined, is a sound, solvent insurance company which has been able to ride out the recent turmoil in the junk bond market created by the fall of Drexel Burnham Lambert.

"The principal investment-related mistake we made is that, in hindsight, we owned too many of the wrong high-yield bonds at the wrong time," Carr told the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on oversight and investigations.

First Executive Corp. is the nation's 15th largest life insurer, and its subsidiaries include Executive Life Insurance Co., headquartered in Los Angeles, California and Executive Life of New York, which is based in New York.

Carr added he considers a broadly diversified portfolio of junk bonds is a safer alternative to more traditional investments in real estate and mortgages.

"Executive Life (California) holds high-yield bonds instead of large amounts of real estate and mortgages," Carr said. "I believe that over the longer term the default risk for a mortgage and real estate portfolio is greater than for a properly constructed high-yield bond portfolio."

"If you hold a diversified portfolio of the bonds of many issuers, the defaults and higher yields should average out to produce a total return -- net of defaults -- no less than a portfolio of highly rated bonds," Carr added.

Following the writedowns for last year, Carr commissioned two "worst case" scenario studies projecting the financial health of the company.

"In two studies, a total of 65 scenarios were analyzed by one of the nation's leading independent actuarial firms," Carr said. "We survived every one."

However, the full study has not been released publicly, prompting Rep. Ron Wyden (D-Ore.) to remark, "Seems like they would be tripping over themselves to get this study out. But no one seems to be able to get a complete copy ... the subcommittee cannot expect to believe this study sight unseen."

Patrick Johnston, the chairman of the California State Assembly finance and insurance committee, says Executive Life Insurance has been the subject of an investigation concerning its relationship with one of its reinsurer subsidiaries, First Stratford. First Stratford is 45 percent owned by First Executive and controlled by Execor Inc., which is in large part owned by Michael Milken.

At issue in the California investigation, is the financial security supporting a contract of reinsurance with First Stratford that allowed Executive Life to reduce its liabilities by over $500 million in 1989, Johnston said. To guarantee that it can meet its reinsurance obligations, First Stratford must back its reinsurance with a letter of credit or establish a reserve trust fund.

Rep. John Dingell (D-Mich.), the subcommittee chairman, said his panel has received information that Milken was observed on Friday afternoons dictating to assistants a number of trades for First Executive.

"There were no special deals with Milken," Carr said. "He had no authority to trade in any of our accounts and I have no knowledge of this."

"Could Milken's assistant have recorded these trades without contacting you?" Dingell asked.

"I don't think so," replied Carr.

Under a management contract with First Stratford, First Executive is the sole manager of the reinsurer, Carr added.

"Execor is merely a stockholder of First Stratford," Carr said. "They make no policy decisions. Milken is a stockholder of Execor. After 1981, I did not discuss reinsurance with Mr. Milken."

WASHINGTON (JUNE 18) - Namibia has made an official application to join the International Monetary Fund (IMF), the organization said Monday.

The IMF Board of Governors will make the final decision, the fund said in a statement.

Namibia -- which was administered by South Africa from 1915 until last March -- is a mineral-rich desert country on Africa's southwest coast. Minerals such as diamonds, uranium, copper, lead and tin, and natural gas, represent 40 per cent of the country's gross national pruduct.

Namibia's population was 1.3 million last July, with a workforce of about 500,000 people and a 21 percent unemployment rate.

PARIS (JUNE 18) - French airline Brit Air has signed an agreement to use the Amadeus electronic reservation system, Amadeus announced in a communique received Monday.

The system was set up in 1987 by Air France, Iberia, Lufthansa and Scandinavian Airlines System (SAS).

The decision means that Brit Air's 30 daily flights will be shown on the 22,000 European travel agency terminals connected with the Amadeus system, 65 percent of all travel agencies on the continent, the announcement said.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 18) - President George Bush's administration has asked Congress to boost covert aid to Angolan rebels by as much as 15 million dollars and to upgrade the insurgents' firepower, a congressional source said Monday.

Some of the money would be used to purchase Hawk anti-aircraft missiles, the source said, speaking on condition of anonymity. The arsenal of the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA) already includes U.S.-made, shoulder-held Stinger missiles.

The current allocation for aid to UNITA, administered by the Central Intelligence Agency and overseen by congressional intelligence committees, is said to be 50 million dollars for the fiscal year that ends September 30.

The Washington Post Monday quoted an unidentified source as saying the panels -- one each in the House of Representatives and the Senate -- approved the request for increased aid last week.

The request comes as UNITA and the Marxist government of Angola are engaged in talks to end their 15-year-old civil war.

Last June, Angolan President Jose Eduardo dos Santos and UNITA leader Jonas Savimbi held a historic meeting under the aegis of Zairean President Mobutu Sese Seko, but fighting flared up towards the end of the year in southern Angola.

TOKYO (JUNE 19) - Toyota Motor President Shoichiro Toyoda has said his company had no immediate plan for car production in Eastern Europe, Toyota officials said on Tuesday.

Mr. Toyoda made the remark at a news conference in Nagoya on Monday on the top Japanese carmaker's plan for local production in the region.

"It is still too early to move into Eastern Europe for local car production because of the fast-changing situation in the region," Mr. Toyoda was quoted by a Toyota spokesman as saying.

Toyota sent a market survey mission to Czechoslovakia May 12 to 24.

Toyota car exports to East Europe totaled 4,971 units last year, down from the previous year's 5,080 units.

JAKARTA (JUNE 18) - Indonesia's central bank has borrowed 400 million U.S. dollars in commercial syndicated loans to provide the government with standby funds, Bank Indonesia (BI) officials said Monday.

The loan, underwritten by the Bank of Tokyo, the Industrial Bank of Japan, Commerce Bank and the U.S.-based Morgan Guarantee Trust Co., would be used as a standby loan, BI Director Binhadi said.

Bank sources here said the loans were taken out to help beef up the country's reserve funds following the announcement of the 1990 aid commitment by Jakarta's main western donors, grouped in the Inter-Governmental Group on Indonesia (IGGI).

IGGI Wednesday agreed to provide 4.5 billion dollars in aid for Indonesia in 1990. The state budget for the fiscal year 1990-91 which started April 1, projected a need for a total of 5.3 billion in foreign aid.

Officials said the loan carried commitment and management fees of 0.25 percent each with interest set at 0.5 percent over the London Interbank Offered Rate (LIBOR, the rate banks in London charge one another for funds).

Repayment is over three years with a two-year grace period, they added.

KUALA LUMPUR (JUNE 18) - Malaysian companies, riding a three-year boom, posted substantially higher profits for the 1989-90 year, with the exception of the plantations sector, the Malaysian Investors Association (MIA) said Monday.

Association president Patrick Lim said local companies listed on the Kuala Lumpur Stock Exchange (KLSE) showed a 29 percent or 1.47 billion dollar (544 million U.S.) jump in pre-tax profits in the 12 months to June 10, 1990, compared to the preceding year.

He said the 262 Malaysian companies listed on the KLSE posted total pre-tax profits of 6.51 billion dollars (2.4 billion U.S.), with the 30 biggest earners contributing just over 66 percent of the total.

Mr. Lim said the highest earnings per share were posted by the local unit of Shell, the government majority-owned Malaysian International Shipping Corp., casino operator Genting Bhd. and the Malaysian Airline System.

An MIA study showed high profits among companies in the manufacturing, financial services and car sectors while food, beverage and cigarette companies also benefitted from higher consumer spending resulting from the sharp rise in purchasing power.

Malaysia's gross domestic product (GDP) grew 8.7 percent in 1988 and 8.5 percent last year, according to the central Bank Negara.

The bank has projected this year's growth at 8.3 percent and said it will largely be fuelled by a surge in foreign private investment from countries such as Taiwan, Japan, South Korea and Singapore.

But the MIA study showed that plantation companies associated with natural rubber and palm oil which once dominated Malaysia's exports suffered from the decline in commodity prices with pre-tax profits dipping some 40 per cent.

Mr. Lim said that despite this several plantation companies, among them Golden Hope, Kumpulan Guthrie and KL Kepong were among the top 30 earners.

He said that the performance of local stocks was affected by an increase in rights issues, loan stocks and new issues which siphoned some six billion dollars (2.2 billion U.S.) from the local financial system and reduced liquidity.

TOKYO (JUNE 18) - Japan's top beer producer Kirin Brewery Co. said Monday its stocks would be listed on the London and Paris stock markets in the next two weeks.

Trading in Kirin's shares is to start in London on Tuesday and in Paris on Friday next week, company officials said.

Kirin plans to expand exports which now account for only one percent of its total sales, the officials said.

CANBERRA (JUNE 18) - Australia's Defence Department has licensed a private firm to market aircraft repair know-how which could restore ageing commercial fleets at a fraction of today's prices, officials said here Monday.

A Defence Department spokesman said Helitech Industries Pty. Ltd. last week won the right to apply the technology from Aeronautical Research Laboratory DSTO (ARL) that has already attracted interest from Boeing Corp. of the United States.

ARL uses mainly boron-fibre materials to restore and strengthen damaged aircraft structures that it said had saved the airforce more than 100 million dollars (77 million U.S.) of repairs in the past 15 years.

Alan Baker, senior research scientist at ARL who discovered the technique in 1971, said the invention had huge commerial potential if accepted by civil aviation authoritIes around the world.

"Boeing are interested, in fact they are doing some trial runs themselves " he said.

"The technique is very cost effective. It's safer in that it does not involve further damage to the cracked or defective structure."

"The traditional method of repairing cracks in aircraft structures is to rivet a metal patch over an area, while ARL's technique is to bond a boron-fibre patch over the crack."

Drilling holes the old way could damage the aircraft further, he said.

"ARL's technique cuts repair time on some airforce aircraft from six working days to one working day."

Conventional repairs on commercial aircraft could cost up to 10,000 dollars (7,735 U.S.) whereas the same repairs using composite materials could cost as little as 300 dollars (232 U.S.).

Joe Moharich, managing director of Helitech, said he expected the company to carry out repairs worth at least 30 million dollars (23 million U.S.) in the next three years.

Much depended on how quickly world aviation authorities approved the technology.

"We have to be approved by authorities where the aircraft is registered. Our campaign is well under way."

NICOSIA (JUNE 18) - Oil prices could collapse if members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) continue to ignore a May production cutback agreement, OPEC President Sadek Boussena has warned.

The Nicosia-based specialized journal Middle East Economic Survey (MEES) reported Monday that Mr. Boussena, Algeria's minister of mines, had sent a blunt letter June 11 to his OPEC counterparts.

Mr. Boussena warned that if world oil prices continued to slide there could be "a serious price collapse akin to the one experienced in 1986, with its full consequences on member countries' revenues and economic prospects," MEES said.

The letter spoke of a "deep-rooted feeling" in the market that the May accord, worked out in Geneva, "is not being implemented by OPEC."

The 13-member organization agreed to reduce output in May, June and July by 1.445 million barrels a day to 22.05 million bd.

But Mr. Boussena cited "major secondary sources' figures on OPEC production for the month of May, which vary from 23.22 million barrels a day to 23.68 million."

If unchecked, "things may soon get out of control with all the damaging consequences on OPEC cohesion and credibility and our member countries' ability to continue working together to the benefit of all," he wrote.

Adherence to the May accord, he added, was therefore critical.

"As soon as clear signals of effective full implementation are given to the market, the present downward pressure on prices will ease, thus allowing OPEC not only to take advantage of the expected increase in demand, but to tackle and solve the outstanding problems we still have in a satisfactory manner during our forthcoming meeting in July," Mr. Boussena said.

The next OPEC meeting is scheduled for July 25 and is to discuss output levels for the second half of 1990.

LONDON (JUNE 18) - Britain's public sector budget showed a deficit of 1.7 billion pounds (2.9 billion dollars) in May, the Treasury said Monday.

This was more than double analysts' forecasts of a deficit of around 750 million pounds (1.25 billion dollars) and sent government bonds downwards.

The figures published Monday gave a total deficit for the first two months of the current fiscal year to 3.8 million pounds (6.5 billion dollars).

The government has set a target for the current fiscal year of a seven billion pound surplus, down from eight billion last year.

The public sector budget, including central and local government and state-owned enterprises, had shown a surplus of 1.53 billion pounds (2.55 billion dollars) in May last year.

Local government, which had shown a 1.8 billion pound deficit in April, accounted for only 100 million of the May deficit but the Treasury nonetheless held it largely responsible for the increased public sector deficit, along with the fact that there was no income in May from privatisations.

State-owned enterprises showed a surplus of 200 million pounds for the month.

Other figures issued Monday by the Central Statistical Office showed a slowdown in growth of British industrial production in April.

Industrial production was up 0.5 percent over the March level, against a two percent rise the previous month, the Office said.

April production was up 0.6 percent over April last year, against a year on year rise of 1.5 percent in March, but the figures were still better than market forecasts of stagnation in industrial production for April.

In the three months to April, industrial production was up 0.7 percent over the previous quarter and 0.5 percent over the same period last year.

The April increase was due entirely to a 2.3 percent rise in energy production over the March level thanks to mild weather in the North Sea boosting oil production.

Manufacturing production was down 0.1 percent.

The latest figures confirm a slowdown in British industry in the face of tight government monetary policy over the past two years.

BRUSSELS (JUNE 18) - The European Commission said Monday it had decided to impose a 6.7 percent anti-dumping tax against Thai ball bearings.

The Thai government has meanwhile pledged to impose an export tax of 1.76 baht (seven U.S. cents) on each ball bearing to counterbalance subsidies it provides to manufacturers, a spokesman for the European Economic Community executive said.

The two Thai firms involved, Pelmec Thai Ltd. and NMB Thai Ltd. are both 100 per cent owned subsidiaries of Japanese ball bearings giant Minebea Co. Ltd.

The EEC opened an anti-dumping enquiry into the imported Thai ball bearings on the request of a number of European companies.

Thailand has increased its ball bearings sales in the EEC tenfold in three years, rising from 3.1 million in 1985 to 31.5 million in 1988, the Commission spoikesman said.

Over the same period, EEC firms' market share had shrunk from 33.6 percent to 32.5 percent.

LONDON (JUNE 18) - British regional water company Severn Trent said Monday that its taxable profit rose 33 percent in the year to March to 129.9 million pounds (216.5 million dollars) from 97.5 million (162.5 million dollars).

Turnover for the group privatised in December was up 14 percent over the previous year's level to 544.1 million pounds (906.8 million dollars) from 476.4 million (794 million dollars).

The result was in line with market forecasts and Severn Trent shares were down a penny at 148 pence in mid-session trading in London.

KUALA LUMPUR (JUNE 18) - Malaysian Overseas Trading Corporation Sdn. Bhd (MOTC) will export goods worth about 15 million U.S. dollars to Africa under a joint-venture agreement with the Nairobi-based Africa Barter Trade Company (ABTC), it was announced here Monday.

The products include medical equipment, computers, latex-foam toys and commodities.

MOTC's general manager, Nagantran Sivam, said the joint venture would see more Malaysia-made products gaining a foothold in the African market.

He said that MOTC had been exporting latex-foam toys to the United States and Canada, and medical equipment to Indonesia, and hoped to undertake countertrading in Papua New Guinea, Vietnam and Burma.

Mr. Sivam said that MOTC was embarking on a joint venture to set up a factory to make disposable syringes and examination gloves in Malaysia for export to Zimbabwe, Tanzania, Uganda, Zaire, Botswana and Zambia.

The factory will subsequently be relocated to Kenya, with MOTC transferring the expertise and technical know-how to ABTC, which will be the joint venture partner in the deal, he said.

Mr. Sivam signed for MOTC, while ABTC was represented by its general manager, Pradip Chavda.

COPENHAGEN (JUNE 18) - Denmark's leading bank, Den Danske Bank, is considering setting up a joint company with insurance group Hafnia and possibly the country's leading home loan company Kreditforeningen, an informed banking source said here Monday.

The plan followed the announcement on Thursday that Unibank, the country's second largest bank, home loan company Nykredit and insurance company Tryg were to merge to create Denmark's first "financial supermarket" with capital of some 39.1 billion kroner (six billion dollars).

Bank spokesman Carsten Winkler said Monday that "Den Danske Bank is looking at several possibilities of links with other groups in the financial sector which could result in common subsidiaries."

Den Danske Bank director Knud Soerensen said in an interview with Danish economic daily Boersen on Monday that Unibank's move "has given us cause to think and to see things differently."

Den Danske Bank had previously said that it was planning cooperation with Kreditforeningen Denmark, but stressed that this would not be a merger.

It is already linked to Hafnia through the insurance company Phoenix, in which each hold a 50 percent stake.

The joint company being planned by Den Danske Bank, Hafnia and Kreditforeningen would hve capital of 44.3 billion kroner (6.8 billion dollars) and 20,000 employees, the informed banking source said.

NICE, FRANCE (JUNE 18) - Several leading artists and Culture Minister Jack Lang have said that they will boycott the opening on Thursday of a modern art museum here because of links between the town mayor, the right-wing National Front party, and a former SS soldier.

At the heart of the surrealistic row is Mayor Jacques Medecin who said earlier this year that "I do not know of any Jew who would refuse a gift even if he did not like it".

He made the remark after three Jewish members of the Nice council resigned in protest against the holding of a National Front congress in the town.

The National Front seeks to expel foreigners from France, and among those invited to the congress was the leader of the West German Republikaner party, Franz Schoenhuber, who served in the Waffen-SS, the military arm of the Hitlerian SS security force during World War II.

Medecin said that he shared "99.9 percent" of the views of the National Front, which is led by Jean-Marie Le Pen.

French-American sculptor Arman has cancelled a retrospective exhibition of his work which was to have marked the opening.

Arman, who is one of the founders of the Nice school, said that after "the royal reception given to Jean-Marie Le Pen and to Schoenhuber, and Medecin's rather anti-semitic remarks, I did not have the heart to inaugurate this exhibition, hand in hand" with the mayor.

Subsequently 13 internationally-known artists, including Daniel Buren, Pierre Klossowski, Roy Lichtenstein, Julian Schnabel, Pierre Soulages, Daniel Spoerri and Zao Wouki, decided to reject invitations to exhibit their work in the museum.

Culture Minister Jack Lang withdrew agreement in principle to lend 11 works to the museum and urged artists to boycott those who "rub shoulders with racialism".

Medecin, who has left the neo-Gaullist RPR party to join small right-wing party allied to the RPR, the National Centre of Independents, has attacked what he termed the "diktat" of the minister and his "Fascist" methods.

Many French art critics, many of whom are members of the International Association of Art Critics, decided in May to boycott the opening ceremony.

TEHERAN (JUNE 18) - Three Irish MPs have arrived here on a two-day private visit during which they are to meet several Iranian Foreign Ministry officials, the Teheran Times newspaper reported Monday.

The paper did not disclose the plans of the three, David Andrews, an MP in the Dail (parliament), his brother Niall, a Euro-MP, and Senator Eoin Ryan. All three are members of the ruling Fianna Fail party.

It said a spokesman for the Irish embassy here had refused to comment on the object of the visit, although he said the embassy had provided practical assistance for the mission.

An Iranian delegation visited Dublin in May for talks with senior European Economic Community officials from France, Italy and Ireland, which authorities here said could point to a "new chapter" in EEC-Iranian relations.

Sources close to the EEC delegation said the issue of Western hostages in Lebanon had been raised at the discussions. An Irishman, 39-year-old Brian Keenan who disappeared in April 1986, is among 15 Westerners believed held in Lebanon.

Several of the hostages are reported to be in the hands of pro-Iranian Shiite factions. Iranian mediation contributed to the release of two Americans in west Beirut last April.

MANERPLAW, Burma (JUNE 18) - Karen rebel leader Bo Mya has threatened to assassinate Americans and other foreigners working in Burma in a hardening of strategy despite a pro-democracy victory in the southeast Asian nation's recent general elections.

"Anyone helping the Burmese government is our enemy," General Bo Mya told Agence France-Presse in a surprising toughening of his line after the party of populist leader Aung San Suu Kyi swept general elections in Burma May 27.

Karen troops kidnapped a young French couple in 1983 and held them for 38 days to draw international attention to their fight for regional autonomy. Young commando leaders have said in recent months that they were now ready to target Japanese or Americans.

Ms. Aung San Suu Kyi's opposition National League for Democray has won three quarters of seats in the 420-seat parliament according to official returns of the May 27 poll with the count still continuing. But the ruling military Junta has so far said nothing of a transfer of power.

Gen. Bo Mya, whose 5,000-10,000-strong Karen army has been fighting in Burma's longest-running of some 12 insurgencies, said he doubted the ruling junta would hand over power to the elected party.

"If they give power smoothly then there will be peace. If they don't then there will be no peace," he said at his jungle headquarters here on the Moei river marking the Thai-Burmese border, 200 kilometres (120 miles) northeast of Rangoon.

The portly guerrilla leader, who is in his 50's and has headed the Karen insurgency since 1975, said the foreigners had "at least one year" to heed his warning.

"If they come and get understanding with us, then it's okay, no problem," he said in Karen through an interpreter.

"If that fails we'll go in and assassinate them, not only Americans, anybody, all foreigners," he said.

He said the targets were "company people, businessmen, not the diplomats."

"The international community can see very clearly that the present government is the worst and so we ask them not to give any help in any form to them," Gen. Bo Mya said.

MOEDLAREUTH, WEST GERMANY (JUNE 18) - Villagers in Moedlareuth, cut in half by the West-East German border, made their own contribution to German reunification over the weekend, border police said on Monday.

To the surprise of local authorities, they tore down 200 hundred metres (yards) of the wall between them since 1965 during a village party.

Moedlareuth, known as "Little Berlin", has been divided since 1965, one half in the West German province of Bavaria, the other in Thuringe in East Germany.

On Dec. 9, villagers pierced a hole in the wall that was later widened to serve as a passageway for pedestrians.

Border inspections are expected to cease within the next several days.

MOSCOW (JUNE 18) - The new prime minister of the Russian Federation, Ivan Silaev, said Monday he wanted to see the largest Soviet republic win true economic independence.

He also said he favoured privatisation of small businesses and economic freedom for producers in the republic.

Mr. Silaev was confirmed as the republic's president on Monday when the congress voted him in, with 699 votes for, 137 against and 33 abstentions, officials said.

He had already been elected by the republic's parliament on Friday.

Mr. Silaev said that the "main objective" of his government's actions "will be the working out of an economic mechanism guaranteeing true economic independence for Russia as a sovereign state within the framework of the (Soviet) Union."

He complained that the Russian Federation's resources were being used to provide "hidden" financing for the development of other Soviet republics by means of "unbalanced" trade.

He said that the Russian Federation had contributed 100 billion roubles (160 billion dollars at the official rate) to the development of the rest of the Soviet Union but that the federal budget from Moscow allocated the republic only 30 billion roubles.

Mr. Silaev said his government planned to take measures this year aimed at re-balancing trade between the Russian Federation and other Soviet republics.

The Russian parliament has complained that the republic's huge natural resources such as oil and gas are not being paid for at the full price when they are sold to other republics.

The new prime minister also said he was in favour of "total economic freedom for producers" in the republic as a way of boosting Russia's sovereignty.

He said the republic's government will propose the privatisation of small businesses, particularly in the services and consumer goods sectors, and that the republic will be open to foreign companies. He did not give further details.

KHARTOUM (JUNE 18) - The American oil exploratory company, Sunoil, has pulled out of Sudan after eight years, Energy and Mining Minister Abdul Moneim Khogali said Monday.

Sunoil was exploring for oil in the Kordofan region in partnership with the state-owned General Petroleum Administration.

The official Sudan News Agency (Suna) quoted unnamed officials of the energy and mining ministry as saying that ''Sunoil abandoned the search for oil in the country over financial difficulties facing the company and it partners.''

The company, which spent about 100 million dollars in exploratory work in Sudan, was not available for comment as it had already left the country.

Sources said the six wells drilled by the company ''were either dry or not viable commercially.''

The Sunoil pullout leaves the American company Chevron and the French firm Total as the oil foriegn oil concerns in Sudan.

ABU DHABI (JUNE 18) - The leaders of Senegal and Mauritania may meet in Cairo shortly to resolve differences that nearly brought them to war last year, a United Arab Emirates (UAE) daily reported on Monday.

Al-Ittihad, quoting unidentified Egyptian Foreign Ministry sources, said President Hosni Mubarak had sent urgent messages to the two countries urging them to resolve their differences before the Organisation of African Unity (OAU) meeting in Addis Abeba in mid-July.

"In the light of this, a summit meeting is expected to be convened in Cairo between Mauritanian President Maouya Ould Sid Ahmed Taya and Senegalese President Abdou Diouf, attended by President Mubarak," the paper said.

Mr. Mubarak, current OAU chairman, has been mediating between the two African states and recently arranged a tripartite meeting in Paris at the level of foreign ministers.

Al-Ittihad said Mr. Mubarak wants to see Mauritania and Senegal reconciled before the expiration of his tenure as OAU chief in July.

Ethnic violence sparked by border clashes left more than 200 dead in the two West African countries in April last year, when Senegalese people took against the Moorish traders in their midst and reprisals against black people swept Mauritania.

The violence led to a massive international airlift in which many thousands of Senegalese and Mauritanians were repatriated to their homelands. There have since been persistent reports that Mauritania has continued to expel black Africans across the river dividing the two countries.

FREETOWN (JUNE 18) - Nearly 20,000 teachers in Sierra Leone have threatened to stay out on strike until all members of the Sierra Leone teachers union executive resign.

The strikers say the executive has become "non-functional" and are calling for the secretary general of the union, Emanuel Fatoma, to "step down immediately".

Fatoma, who has held the post since 1980, is one of the seven nominated members of parliament which President Momoh has the right to appoint.

The teachers were on Monday backed by the powerful Conference of Principals group, which said they will continue to close schools until July 25 when it is hoped the matter will be resolved.

The ruling party paper We Yone said on Sunday that the teachers had a strong case and called for Fatoma's resignation.

The strike, which began on May 24, turned violent four days later. Four people were shot dead during a confrontation with security forces.

Education Minister Moses Dumbuya has called for a meeting with the teachers on June 21 to discuss a date for new elections to the teachers executive.

BONN (JUNE 18) - West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said here Monday that he thought East and West Germany would achieve political union before the end of the year.

"1990 will be the year of a united Germany," Mr. Kohl told the Federal Commission of the ruling Christian Democratic Union (CDU), of which he is president.

It was the first time Mr. Kohl had stated publicly that he believed political union could come about before the end of the year.

East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere, as president of the East German Christian Democrats, also participates in the CDU Commission.

The Commission must give the go ahead before the two parties can be formally united, a process expected to be completed at a joint party congress in early October.

But if Mr. de Maiziere shares Mr. Kohl's optimism about the speed of political union, he has not mentioned it publicly so far.

The East German government has yet to respond to the proposal put forward by Bonn to replace West Germany's legislative elections in December with general elections encompassing the two Germanies.

Mr. Kohl emphasized to the CDU Commission Monday that it was up to East Germany to fix a date for joint general elections.

The East German coalition government remains divided on the issue, with the Social Democrats, the junior member in the government, holding out for joint elections no earlier than the spring of 1991.

East German CDU general secretary Martin Kirchner has said his party wants common general elections by December 16 so the electoral campaign did not run into the Christmas holiday season.

The unification process received a jolt Sunday when the East German parliament voted by a two-thirds majority to consider a proposal, later sent to committee for study, that East Germany unite with West Germany immediately under Article 23 of the West German constitution.

PARIS (JUNE 18) - World Bank president Barber Conable has said he favors the introduction of new debt easing mechanisms, in an interview published in the Echos newspaper here Monday.

Asked what would happen to debtor countries which were not benefitting from either the Brady plan or the Toronto initiative for the poorest countries, Mr. Conable said he had raised the issue in talks last week with the West German,
French and British governments.

"I am strongly encouraging the seven major countries who will attend the summit in Houston in July to examine new mechanisms," Mr. Conable said in a reference to the Group of Seven involving West Germany, Britain, France, the United States, Canada, Italy and Japan.

Mr. Conable also said that developing countries which devoted a large part of their revenue to military spending and were therefore unable to carry out economic reform effectively "should benefit from only limited programmes with the World Bank."

Asked about a possible devaluation of the CFA franc, the currency of many West African countries linked to the French franc, Mr. Conable said it was a difficult issue.

"I cannot say that a devaluation is a sine qua non for the solution of the crisis which some countries in the franc zone are undergoing," he added.

He also warned developing countries that private investment and financing would be concentrated on eastern Europe "if they do not make a greater effort to improve their economy and attract investors."

THE HAGUE (JUNE 18) - Swedish auto maker Volvo wants to buy the Dutch Government's 70 percent stake in Dutch subsidiary Volvo Car B.V., the economy ministry said here Monday.

Volvo Car B.V. produces and markets medium-sized cars, accounting for about a third of Volvo's total world production.

Volvo said in Gothenburg, Sweden, on Monday that group president Pehr Gyllenhammar had sent a letter to the Dutch Government saying it wanted to boost its stake in the Dutch subsidiary.

Volvo "intends to open negotiations with the Dutch government" aimed at "boosting Volvo's presence in the medium-sized car market," the Swedish company said in a statement.

Volvo was hoping for a decision before September 1, and that the two sides could have an accord by January.

Volvo Car B.V. makes cars in factories formerly operated by DAF, in which Volvo acquired a 33 percent stake in 1972.

AMMAN (JUNE 18) - Jordan has agreed in principle to the opening of a branch in the country of the human rights group Amnesty International, an Amnesty official said here Monday.

Ahmad Othmani, responsible for Amnesty sections in the Middle East and North Africa, said Jordan had refused to authorize an Amnesty office in 1985.

But he said a democratization process currently underway in the kingdom "allows for new steps and new hopes."

Jordan earlier this year froze martial law regulations in effect since 1967 and adopted a series of measures that will gradually restore political rights. The country held its first legislative elections in 22 years last November.

Amnesty International in a report issued June 13 found that Jordan had taken "significant" steps to protect human rights, notably in the release of political prisoners, but said the kingdom needed to go further to ensure that abuses were prevented.

It noted that a draft defense law would allow authorities to detain security suspects without charge or trial.

LONDON, June 18 (AFP) - African countries should relaunch their commodities sectors in a bid to improve their economic performance in a lasting way, according to a U.N. report published here Monday.

The report, "Africa's commodity problems: towards a solution," was drawn up by a group of experts headed by former Australian prime minister Malcolm Fraser, who presented its recommendations in London.

Mr. Fraser said that, contrary to the idea in vogue in recent years that African countries should reduce their dependency on commodities and diversify their economies, it was important for them to develop a strategy for the commodities sector, which was the key to their economic success.

Commodities account for between 90 and 100 per cent of export revenue for the majority of African countries.

"Instead of neglecting what is the main source of food, income and investment surplus, African policymakers must use commodity production and trade as a motor for expansion," Mr. Fraser said.

A strategy focussed on commodities would aim at achieving greater food security, diversification into new products, increasing capacity for treatment of raw materials and an improvement in inter-African cooperation and between producer and consumer countries.

These objectives would be achieved more easily if governments went in for less direct involvement and allowed the private sector and farmers to play a greater role, the report said.

When management structures in the commodity sector cannot be privatised, they should be decentralised, it added.

Both domestic and foreign investment should be encouraged, particularly in the fishing, minerals and forestry sectors.

MANAMA (JUNE 18) - Over a Million moslem worshippers from all over the globe are expected to perform this year's annual Haj or pilgrimage to the holy cities of Mecca and Medina in Saudi Arabia starting June 24.

Saudi Arabia has made elaborate preparations to host the worshippers, including distribution of cold water to beat off the heat, as the Haj falls in one of the hottest periods of the year.

Temperatures are expected to reach a peak of 50 degrees centigrade. Instructions were given to worshippers on how to avoid sunstroke, as most Haj rites are performed in the open.

Some 22 hospitals and 137 medical centres, some equipped with special beds for heat exhaustion cases, will remain open 24 hours during the 10-day performance of the rites.

Apart from providing the necessary facilities to the pilgrims, the Saudi Arabian authorities are keeping a watchful eye on security.

PARIS (JUNE 18) - East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere has said a united Germany will not be a source of worry and unification will be the best guarantee of peace.

Mr. de Maiziere, who arrived in Paris Monday on two-day visit, said in an interview published in Le Figaro the same day that the changes taking place in Europe assured that a united Germany would not be a danger.

"The more power we give to supra-national structures, the less danger there is of singularity and nationalism," the prime minister said.

Mr. de Maiziere's Paris visit comes just a day after the East German parliament passed a resolution to consider merging with West Germany through an accelerated process under the West German constitution.

Mr. de Maiziere convinced East German MPs to send the proposal to a parliamentary committee for study.

A united Germany "will not be a worrying Germany" and its "integration within existing European structures will be the best guarantee of peace in Europe," he told Le Figaro.

Mr. de Maiziere said he was bringing to Paris a "very important and very simple" message: "It is worth the trouble to reconstruct" East Germany.

France is the second largest trading partner with East Germany, after West Germany, among members of the 24-nation Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development.

LONDON (JUNE 18) - Renault Trucks, the British subsidiary of Renault Vehicules Industriels, has won a 10-million-pound (17-million-dollar) subcontracting order from the Boughton Group on defence work, the two firms announced here on Monday.

The work relates to an order put in with Boughton by the Defence Ministry for 846 utility vehicles. The total contract is for more than 20 million pounds (34 million dollars) for the two groups.

The 4 x 4 vehicles, developed for the British Army, will be a combination of the Reynolds Boughton Ltd RB44 and RVI's Renault 50, of which 23,000 have already been sold in various civilian and military forms.

Renault Trucks will assemble the vehicles at its plant in Dunstable, north of London, starting in November. The first ones will be delivered in December, with 40 being turned out per month.

The ministry has an option on a further 160 vehicles.

Renault Trucks officials expressed relief at getting the order, as it has had eight straight loss-making years. It had sales of about 90 million pounds last year, and has abolished 300 jobs out of an original 1,000 since the start of last year.

Renault Trucks Managing Director Dieter Merz said "the size and duration of this contract give the lie to speculation about an impending closure of the Dunstable plant".

PARIS (JUNE 18) - The French treasury issued nine billion francs' (1.5 billion dollars) worth of fixed-rate bonds on Monday at slightly lower yield rates.

The treasury issued 6.5 billion francs' worth at 13 weeks at 9.26 percent, down from 9.27 percent a week ago.

It also issued 2.5 billion francs' worth at 29 weeks at 9.16 percent against 9.27 percent for a 26-week issue last Monday.

The total amount bid for was 18.65 billion francs for 13-week and 6.02 billion franc for 29-week bonds.

MOSCOW (JUNE 18) - Four Jewish tombstones in the centre of Moscow have been found with the Nazi swastika drawn on them, a Soviet interior ministry spokesman said Monday.

Police are investigating the desecration of the graves, which was the work of "thugs," the ministry source said.

Police were informed on June 11 that the vandalism had been perpetrated at the well-known Vagankovskoy cemetry, where the poet Serge Essenin (1895-1925) and the singer Vladimir Vyssotski, who died 10 years ago, are also buried.

The ministry source said nobody one had been arrested in connection with the acts of vandalism.

The Soviet news agency TASS reported Monday that a group of adolescents had recently desecrated Jewish graves in Tashkent, the capital of the Soviet republic of Uzbekistan. No further details were given.

LUXEMBOURG (JUNE 18) - The European Economic Community decided here Monday to put off until September any decision on lifting sanctions on China imposed after the bloody repression of pro-democracy protests a year ago.

The foreign ministers of Ireland, Luxembourg and Italy -- as current, future and preceding holders of the rotating EEC presidency -- would meet Chinese representatives on the sidelines of the U.N. General Assembly in New York in September, French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas said.

The EEC could then make a decision on whether to lift the sanctions.

Ireland, which holds the EEC presidency until June, on Monday proposed resuming ministerial-level contacts with China, but other EEC foreign ministers failed to reach agreement on what line to follow.

France and Britain were tending towards a more flexible approach, but the Netherlands and Belgium were against lifting sanctions.

The 12 EEC members decided at a summit in Madrid last June to suspend ministerial and other high-level contacts with Beijing and to postpone examination of new credits although this measure has since been dropped.

CHAAM, NETHERLANDS (JUNE 18) - Dutch police Monday captured an IRA terrorist suspect who escaped from Belgian police on Saturday when two other alleged IRA militants were caught with him.

The suspected Irish Republican Army militant caught here Monday was carrying false documents identifying him as Andrew Edward Thornton, Dutch police said.

They said the man, who appears to be in his 30s, had refused to disclose his real identity.

(In Belfast, Sinn Fein, the political wing of the IRA, categorically denied reports that the man was Michael Anthony Collins, 31, an Irish Republican activist.

(Mr. Collins is in Northern Ireland, where he "fears for his life," a Sinn Fein spokesman said.

(But the group confirmed the identities of the two arrested Saturday in Belgium, Gerard Harte, 26, and Donna Maguire, 23, who was freed by a Dublin court in February despite a request from West Germany for her extradition.)

The man arrested here Monday was spotted by villagers who raised the alarm. When arrested, he was still wearing the handcuffs snapped on his wrists by Belgian police.

He and Mr. Harte had managed to run away after being intercepted Saturday with Miss Maguire in a forest at the Belgian-Netherlands border.

Mr. Harte was recaptured by Dutch police a few hours later. He was found to be in possession of false papers in the name of Peter John Watson.

Stephan Worm of the Dutch police said the man was arrested Monday was caught "with no problem."

He was unarmed and did not attempt to run away. He had no form of transport and had been wandering around since Saturday, Mr. Worm said.

ECONE, SWITZERLAND (JUNE 18) - The traditionalist St. Pius X Catholic community founded by ex-communicated archbishop Marcel Lefebvre is to ordain 12 priests on June 29, sources at Msgr. Lefebvre's Fraternity Seminary in Econe, southern Switzerland, said on Monday.

Msgr. Lefebvre's presence at the ordination ceremony is "probable," the sources said, but added that the new traditionalist priests would be ordained by Mgr. Richard Williamson, a 50-year-old British former Anglican converted to Catholicism.

Msgr. Williamson was one of the four bishops consecrated by Mgr. Lefebvre on June 30, 1988, without the authorisation of Pope John Paul II. The pontiff ex-communicated Mgr. Lefebvre and his followers for going ahead with the consecrations without papal approval, and there has since been a schism between the Vatican and Econe.

Mgr. Lefebvre's and his fundamentalist Catholic followers have contended that theirs is not a schism but a legitimate protest against evil, as represented by the decisions of the Vatican II church council and its associated ecumenism and religious freedoms such as non-Latin masses.

Among the traditionalist priests to be ordained, there are seven French, two Americans, one from New Zealand, and one from Spain. There are currently 45 seminarians at Fraternity.

MONROVIA (JUNE 18) - Liberian President Samuel Doe made major concessions to the opposition Monday, including lifting a ban on two political parties and professional bodies and issuing a general amnesty for leaders of the rebel National Patriotic Front (Npf).

A statement from Doe's office said the moves take immediate effect.

The ban was lifted on the Liberian Business Caucus, the Liberia National Student Union (Linsu), the Liberia People's Party (Lpp) of former University of Liberia professor Amos Sawyer and the Liberia Unification Party of former school teacher William Gabriel Kpoleh.

The statement said the amnesty was intended to ''heal the nation's wounds, restore peace and allow the full participation of all Liberians in the political process''.

It also said the move was a ''further demonstration of the seriousness the government attaches to the ongoing peace talks and the need to ensure the foundation which has been laid for the democratic process is not destroyed''.

It said Doe took the decision to facilitate the peace process and to ensure that members of the Npf ''will now be able to mobilize themselves into a political party if they so desire, and contest the 1991 general elections''.

The statement said Doe confirmed receiving proposals put forward by the government and Npf representatives during a peace conference, held under the auspices of the Liberia Council of Churches in Freetown last week.

The Lpp was banned by the government in 1985, while the business caucus and Linsu were barred later on when they exerted pressure for more democracy in Liberia.

LAGOS (JUNE 18) - The death toll stood at 54 on Monday after the collapse on Friday of a school building during classes in Port Harcourt, in southeast Nigeria, the official Nigerian news agency NAN reported.

The death count includes bodies found in the rubble after the accident as well as survivors taken to hospital who later died.

Emergency services said the final death toll could be over 100.

The independent daily, Vanguard, said the accident appeared to have been caused by work to add a third floor to the two-story building.

MUENSTER (JUNE 18) - Foreign Ministers Hans-Dietrich Genscher of West Germany and Eduard Shevardnadze of the Soviet Union expressed hope here Monday that foreign-policy problems posed by German unification could be solved by the time the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe convenes in November.

Speaking at a press conference after meeting with Genscher in this West German town, Shevardnadze said ''the most serious problem'' was to find a way to revamp European security structures on a timetable in keeping with progress in German unification.

Genscher said the six hours of talks were devoted largely to the question of national alliances. For the first time, he said, the talks had focused on ways in which the seven members of the Warsaw Pact and the 16 Nato members could redefine their relations with one another.

He said differences remained between the two sides regarding future troop strengths in a united Germany.

DEAUVILLE, FRANCE (JUNE 18) - The oldest man in France died on Monday at the age of 110, only two days after receiving the Legion d'Honneur, France:s highest decoration.

Henri Perignon, born on October 14, 1879, died in an old people's home in this Normandy town in northwest France.

Mr. Perignon, who appeared tired at the ceremony on Saturday, was not the oldest person in France. That record is still held by a woman, 115-year-old Jeanne Calmant.

Mr. Perigon lost an eye during World War I, when he was chauffeur to Marshall Lyautey, but had not been decorated because the loss had resulted from an accident, not during combat.

A former laundryman, he was finally honoured on the recommendation of the Ministry of Commerce and Crafts.

QUITO (JUNE 18) - The ruling Democratic Left (ID) party of President Rodrigo Borja suffered a sharp setback in weekend legislative elections because of its economic policies, opposition leaders said Monday.

"Yesterday, the people told the president that he should straighten up," said former interior minister Heinz Moeller.

Mr. Moeller coordinated the political campaign of the conservative Social Christian Party of former president Leon Febres Cordero.

Mr. Borja, who succeeded Mr. Febres Cordero as president in 1988, shrugged off the opposition parties' electoral victories as "part of the democratic game."

"A Congress in which there are opposition elements is part of the proper system of democracy, discussion, and controversy. That should frighten nobody," Mr. Borja said.

In Sunday's balloting, Ecuadorans elected 60 deputies to the 72-member unicameral Congress, as well as 54 provincial councilors, and 536 city council members.

Despite government promises that a computer link between provincial electoral headquarters and the Supreme Electoral Council would provide a rapid vote count, final official results were not expected for several days.

Projections based on the first official vote results and private surveys indicated that the number of legislative seats held by Mr. Borja's ID would decrease from 27 to 11 seats in the next Congress.

The PSC emerged as the most powerful party, with initial reports indicating it would control 17 seats when the new legislature convenes August 10.

The populist Ecuadoran Roldosista Party (PRE) of self-exiled former presidential candidate Abdala Bucaram gained three seats for a total of nine, while the Socialist Party gained four seats for a total of seven, reports indicated.

PARIS (JUNE 18) - A delegation of UNITA rebels has held further "exploratory" direct talks with representatives of Angola's ruling MPLA party in Portugal and been recalled "for consultations", UNITA announced Monday.

In a statement issued from its headquarters in Jamba, southeastern Angola, and made available here, the UNITA leadership said that it had "thought best" to recall the team because of "difficulties in communication".

The National Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA) said the rebels had held "two days of direct talks" with the People's Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA) in Lisbon "under the auspices of the Portuguese government".

It cited difficulties in the discussions without specifying what they were, and did not say when the two sides had met, but added that the "exploratory talks should be pursued at a later date".

In Lisbon, the influential Portugese daily Diario de Noticias on Monday said that Angolan government representatives and UNITA had met over the weekend for secret discussions at the Sao Joao de Barra citadel about 15 kilometres (10 miles) from the capital.

Portuguese officials refused to comment on the talks, which according to the paper focussed on bringing about a ceasefire in Angola's 15-year-old civil war. The delegations first met in Portugal at the end of April.

The UNITA statement added that notification of the consultative recall of its delegates had been given to the Portuguese government, to Zaire's President Mobutu Sese Seko, mandated as mediator by African heads of state to the United States "and to other countries interested in the Angolan conflict".

Last June, Angolan President Jose Eduardo dos Santos and UNITA leader Jonas Savimbi held a historic meeting under the aegis of Marshal Mobutu, but renewed fighting flared up towards the end of the year in southern Angola.

ISLAMABAD (JUNE 18) - France on Monday became the first Western country to reopen its mission in Afghanistan, Radio Kabul monitored here said.

The mission, at the charge d'affaires level, was closed in February 1989 when several Western states pulled out their diplomats from Kabu for security reasons as the last of the Soviet soldiers backing President Najibullah's government left Afghanistan.

Radio Kabul said the return of French diplomatic staff to Kabul was welcomed by a foreign office spokesman as a friendly move.

The Afghan government hoped that since the situation in Afghanistan had "changed," other Western countries would also reopen their embassies in Kabul, the official said.

LONDON (JUNE 18) - A former vice-president of the British electronics group Ferranti was sentenced in the High Court here on Monday to repay 189 million dollars embezzled from two subsidiaries of Ferranti U.S. subsidiary International Signal and Control (ISC), of which he is the former boss.

Last autumn, the Ferranti management discovered a fraud involving false contracts in the ISC accounts, committed before Ferranti took control of ISC in 1987, with a resulting shortage of 215 million pounds (368 million dollars).

Last December, Ferranti filed suit in Britain against Mr. Guerin, the ISC boss at the time of the events) and three of his associates to try to recover 127 million pounds of the embezzled money.

The High Court rejected Mr. Guerin's defence arguments because he ignored an injunction ordering him to supply the two subsidiaries, ISC Technologies Ltd and ISC London Plc, with information on the amounts misappropriated.

Mr. Guerin was also sentenced to pay the costs of the proceedings and damages for fraudulent operations. He will also have to inform the Ferranti subsidiaries in question of any profits made on the embezzled funds and of the identity of persons involved in the transactions.

The two Ferranti subsidiaries paid out about 450 million dollars starting in 1984 to Panamanian companies in connection with several contracts, only part of which was recovered, leaving a shortfall of 190 million dollars.

The High Court found that Mr. Guerin, now in the United States and being investigated by U.S. legal authorities, refused to give information on what happened to that money, while admitting that the Panamanian firms had been set up, managed and dissolved on his orders.

BUCHAREST (JUNE 18) - The Romanian parliament approved a motion Monday backing any eventual action by the security forces against protestors who have staged anti-government demonstrations in a square here for nearly two months.

The motion passed by the Chamber of Deputies, where the National Salvation Front (NSF) has an absolute majority, was introduced at the request of the new Interior Minister Doru Viorel Ursu.

Mr. Ursu said before the vote that his "messages and proposals for a dialogue" with students, who have been among the protestors occupying central Bucharest's University Square, had "not brought results."

Prime Minister Petre Roman urged MPs to approve the motion allowing the security forces to clear away demonstrators blocking traffic in the square.

"It is not a case of (legitimizing) acts of violence but returning to a normal situation," Mr. Roman said. "It is not a vote for repression but a legitimate action."

Protestors were driven away from the square and brutally beaten last week by thousands of miners mobilized by the government. The miners rampaged through Bucharest attacking suspected opposition militants and ransacking the offices of opposition parties.

According to a health ministry toll, six people were killed and 502 injured in the violence, which led the United States to cut off all non-humanitarian aid to Romania.

About 1,000 anti-government demonstrators had returned to University Square late Monday. They sat or stood around talking in groups. There was no shouting of slogans as in the past and no banners were to be seen.

There were brief clashes earlier in the day between factions supporting and opposing president-elect Ion Iliescu. No injuries were reported.

Parliament voted Monday to set up a commission to conduct an enquiry into the "events of last week."

The authorities also announced Monday that Mr. Iliescu, who won 85.07 per cent of the vote in the May 20 presidential election, is to be officially inaugurated Wednesday.

In other developments, the Senate and Chamber of Deputies elected leaders on Monday.

TEHERAN (JUNE 18) - President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani on Monday said representatives from Iran and Iraq were holding talks to prepare the ground for direct negotiations, the official IRNA news agency said.

"The main focus of our work is (U.N. Security Council) Resolution 598 and we have called on the U.N. Secretary General to continue his efforts so that the role of the secretary-general and 598 is not undermined," Mr. Rafsanjani said.

It was not immediately clear if the Iranian president was referring to letters he had received from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein calling for an Iraq-Iran summit to remove obstacles on the way to a peace treaty between the two states.

Mr. Hussein has suggested the summit take place in Mecca, Saudi Arabia.

Iran has welcomed the suggestion but refuses to hold the talks in Saudi Arabia, with which it has no diplomatic ties and earlier this month Mr. Rafsanjani expressed doubts about Baghdad's desire for peace.

U. N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar has also been trying to find a settlement between Iran and Iraq by resuming direct talks between them -- under the terms of Resolution 598 -- one year after they broke them off.

Iran and Iraq have been observing a U.N.-brokered cease-fire along their border since August 1988, eight years after a costly war, but they have yet to resolve difference leading to a formal peace treaty.

On June 1, Mr. Perez de Cuellar agreed in principle to visit Iran at the invitation of Mr. Rafsanjani to help advance the cause of peace and suggested he could also visit Iraq.

MUZAFFARABAD, PAKISTAN-CONTROLLED KASHMIR (JUNE 18) - A leader of the main guerrilla groups active in the anti-India struggle in Kashmir launched a ''provisional government of the independent state of Jammu Kashmir'' here Monday.

Amanullah Khan, chairman of the Jammu and Kashmir Liberation Front (Jklf), told a press conference he would act as spokesman of the provisional government until a 24-member council of ministers and advisers of the government elects a president and prime minister.

The list of members announced by him was broad-based representing the Moslem, Sikh and Hindu communities of both sides of Kashmir divided between India and Pakistan. Many are under detention in Indian Kashmir.

However on questioning, Amanullah said those listed were members not because they had consented, but because they had not communicated ''No'' to his offer.

Jklf is in conflict with most of the Pakistan-based Kashmiri liberation organisations which seek accession of Kashmir with Pakistan.

Amanullah did not expect Pakistan to respond positively to the so-called provisional government. ''In fact I might be arrested after I leave this press conference,'' he said. He was not.

In reply to a question about the political rifts in Pakistan-controlled Kashmir, he said. ''The freedom fighters in occupied (Indian) Kashmir are 10 times more united than people here.''

ATHENS (JUNE 18) - The government is determined to apply its full economic recovery program, and will not "suppress any measures" it has already taken in that connection, Economy Minister George Souflias said on Monday.

He told correspondents that "The drachma will not be devalued". He said the labor scene was improving, a fact that should strengthen the currency.

The balance of payments improved in May, and will do so again in June, he added.

The minister said that some measures to cope with the very large deficits of social insurance funds will be adopted this year, as recommended in a report by the International Monetary Fund (IMF).

He said the combined deficits of the funds for employees (IKA), farmers (OGA) and sailors (NAT) will hit 576 billion drachmas (3.6 billion dollars) this year.

Mr. Souflias and Commerce Minister Athanassios Xarchas announced the closing of three government-owned commercial firms established by the Socialists while they were in power in 1981-89 to promote exports. The conservatives had said they would close them because of their interventionist role on the market.

ACCRA (JUNE 18) - Ghana's finance and economic planning secretary, Kwesi Botchwey, said here Monday that a suitable solution to the crisis in the world cocoa industry should address both over-production and weak demand.

M. Botchwey was opening a three-day meeting of the International Cocoa Organization (ICCO) advisory group meeting here. He said there are good prospects for the expansion of consumption in Eastern Europe, China, India and the producing countries themselves. However, the investments involved cannot be made by the producing countries because of resource constraints aggravated by poor commodity prices.

The meeting is being attended by some 70 delegates from 15 producing and consuming countries and representatives of international organizations including the European Economic Community and the cocoa producers' Alliance.

Countries represented are Ghana, Ivory Coast, West Germany, Soviet Union, Togo, United Kingdom, the United States, France, Switzerland, Papua New Guinea, Netherlands, Nigeria, Mexico and Hungary.

Issues to be discussed include cocoa processing in producing countries and the implications of a single European (EEC) market after 1992 for producers. Reports will also be given on the work of an experts' working group on quality stocks and rationalization supply.

Cocoa-producing countries are smarting from a slump in world prices caused chiefly by over-production. There are some 1.3 million tonnes of surplus beans hanging over the market today.

LUXEMBOURG (JUNE 18) - European Economic Community foreign ministers on Monday failed to overcome divisions about when -- or even how far -- the EEC should ease its sanctions against South Africa in order to encourage the reform process there, diplomats said.

The failure fuels the risk of a showdown at the EEC summit in Dublin next Monday and Tuesday, when Britain will call on its partners to scrap a ban on investment in South Africa, they said.

"There was not a majority in favour of lifting the sanctions," Irish Foreign Minister Gerard Collins told reporters.

But British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd insisted that the Community had now rallied behind Britain's belief in a progressive easing of the four-year-old restrictions as South Africa dismantles apartheid and moves toward full democracy.

"All are now endorsing the step-by-step approach, i.e. you do not have to wait for apartheid to end before you start relaxing the pressures on the South African Government," he said.

Ending the investment ban would be "the logical first candidate" for a signal of encouragement to South African President Frederik De Klerk, although there was no consensus yet as to when this step should be taken,

he said.

A French diplomat described the Community as being in "two minority camps," with Britain and Portugal on one side and Ireland on the other, and the other members in the middle, largely undecided.

SAO PAULO (JUNE 18) - Brazil's state-owned aircraft manufacturer, Embraer is negotiating to sell its new turbo-prop military training plane, the Super Tucano, to 10 countries, including the United States, company sources said Monday.

They said the plane -- priced at four million dollars -- could become one of Embraer's hottest sellers.

The United States has said it will bid for purchase of 900 of the planes in February 1993, with the possibility of licensing arrangements with U.S. manufacturers, an Embraer spokesman said.

The sale of another 150 of the Super Tucanos is being negotiated with nine other countries.

Among firms interested in licensing are Short Brothers of Northern Ireland, which was recently purchased by Canadair; Learjet; and the U.S. firms McDonnell Douglas and Cessna, said the Embraer spokesman.

Those companies were said by Embraer to be prepared to invest some 40-50 million dollars to develop the Super Tucano and will try to push the final price tag down to three million dollars, the Embraer source said.

BERLIN (JUNE 18) - An East German woman and her husband convicted of suffocating and starving to death five of their newborn sons were sentenced to 15 years each in prison on Monday.

Manfred Fiedler, 40, and his wife, Margitta, 38, were stony-faced when the sentences were read out in a court in Magdeburg, in the west of the country, the East German news agency ADN said.

The couple, who lived in Wernigerode, also in the west of East Germany, were convicted of killing five baby boys between 1984 and 1988.

Prosecutors said the couple already had four boys and wanted a girl.

Margitta Fiedler apparently feared that abortions, relatively easy to obtain in East Germany, would leave her sterile.

The court heard that Manfred Fiedler, on the orders of his wife, filled the mouths of the newborns with cardboard to stop their cries and left them in a laundry hamper for several days, where they suffocated or starved to death.

Their bodies were then disposed of in the incinerator of a foundry.

Neighbors of the couple were aware of the pregnancies but were apparently not suspicious.

A doctor finally brought the situation to the attention of the authorities.

JOHANNESBURG (JUNE 18) - A top African National Congress (Anc) guerrilla commander who only months ago was regarded as one of South Africa's most wanted men, flew into Johannesburg Monday after 16 years in exile.

Chris Hani, 47, chief-of-staff of Umkhonto We Sizwe (Spear of the Nation), the military wing of the Anc, is in the country to attend a three-day conference on the internal reorganisation of the movement since its unbanning by President Frederik de Klerk in February.

Some 70 previously exiled members of the Anc have returned since Pretoria agreed to indemnify them to facilitate preliminary power-sharing negotiations with the black majority.

While the organisation has not officially abandoned its 29-year armed guerrilla war against white minority rule, it has not claimed responsibility for attacks on police targets which have occurred since February.

Police meanwhile confirmed Monday that an Anc dissident who had accused the organisation of human rights abuses had been shot and killed by unknown gunmen after visiting Anc offices in the tribal homeland of Transkei.

Sipho Pungulwa, 26, who was one of a group of eight Anc dissidents detained and tortured by the Anc after a mutiny in Angola, was killed by automatic rifle fire when he alighted from the taxi he was travelling in. A brief Anc statement said such an act (the slaying) would never have been sanctioned by the organisation.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 18) - Jordan's Crown Prince Hassan bin Talil warned Monday that a failure to bring peace and economic stability to the Middle East could result in the region's ''Lebanonization''.

In an essay in the Washington Post, the prince called on the superpowers not to neglect the Middle East, as spiraling economic woes could inspire a new surge in fundamentalism that might break down into inter-regional wars.

''Unless peace prevails, there will be a different kind of war, a war that knows no territorial or national boundaries. It will be a war not between nation-states but against the nation-state,'' he said.

''The aim of this war would be to reduce national entities to their socio-ethnic components. It's only triumphant residue will be politico-religious fundamentalism - Islamic, Christian and Jewish.''

JOHANNESBURG (JUNE 18) - South Africa's debt crisis is over, Reserve Bank Governor Chris Stals announced here Monday.

He told state-run television that within 10 days, South Africa would repay the last of its instalments under the terms of agreement of the second arrangement of the debt standstill, initially announced in 1985 soon after American banks put a stop to new loans to South Africa.

This would take total payments of foreign debt over the past three months to 1.2 billion dollars.

While South Africa still has large debt commitments to meet, Mr. Stals said the total debt due for repayment would be substantially lower in the next few years.

Much of the pressure on the current quarter had been alleviated in the first three months of this year, when there was a substantial inflow of foreign funds, he said.

Mr. Stals said that the country had had to dip into its reserves to meet the payments, but that a sharp increase in exports of manufactured goods had helped.

Although the currently low gold price is a complicating factor, South Africa is in a good position to meet its commitments, he said.

JERUSALEM (JUNE 18) - Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir explicitly said here Monday that Israeli leaders have had contacts in the past with King Hussein of Jordan and he hoped these ties would continue.

"King Hussein has a long experience of contacts with Israel," Mr. Shamir told Israel television. "I hope this will continue."

"Sometimes King Hussein expresses extremist views but deep down he knows he has nothing to fear from us and that he can, in all tranquillity, envisage relations of coexistence with Israel," Mr. Shamir added.

According to press reports, King Hussein had secretly met with most of the Israeli leaders over the past decades. Certain reports even said that some of the meetings took place in Tel Aviv.

Mr. Shamir, who has since June 11 been leading Israel's most hardline government to date, said his administration had "ideas to promote the peace process in the Middle East."

King Hussein, in an interview with Agence France-Presse earlier this month, warned that Israel's new right-wing government could fan the flames of extremism in the Middle East.

LUXEMBOURG (JUNE 18) - European Economic Community transport ministers agreed Monday to give European airlines more latitude in offering cut-rate fares, in advance of the full freedom of the air transport market planned for 1993.

At present, an airline may not lower its fares if the government of the departure or the arrival country objects. The new rules, to go into effect next November 1, give greater flexibility in certain cases.

They also provide that as of January 1, 1993, airlines may set their rates freely, unless both governments concerned veto them.

In the meantime, there will be a system of three price "zones" based on a reference fare (economy class): a normal zone (95 to 105 percent of the economy fare), a reduced-fare zone (80 to 94 percent), and a very-reduced-fare zone (30 to 79 percent).

The "normal" fares must be approved by the two member countries concerned, and an arbitration procedure, through the EEC Commission, is provided if the two countries cannot agree.

The reduced fares may be charged only for round-trip flights, with restrictive reservation conditions. The same applies to the very reduced fares, but in addition the stay must include a Sunday or last for at least six days.

There are other possibilities for reduced fares for young and old people, as well as for flights at off-peak times.

EEC Transport Commissioner Karel Van Miert called the agreement "a decisive step toward a unified air services market", offering "immediate benefits for consumers".

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) - The United States will lose its footing in the global economic race and most U.S. employees could face a lifetime of low-paying jobs if worker training is not radically overhauled, a commission warned Monday.

"What we are facing is an economic cliff of sorts. And the front line working people of America are about to fall off it," said a study by the Commission on the Skills of the American Work Force.

Seventy percent of the workforce - clerks, secretaries, machinists, farm workers, and other non-college-educated workers - will face the greatest setbacks if drastic job training is not undertaken, the commission said.

The 34-member commission, which issued the report "America's Choice: High Skills or Low Wages," was chaired by Bill Brock and Ray Marshall, both former secretaries of labor.

The commission recommended, among other things, that U.S. firms devote at least one percent of payroll to skills training and that no one under 18 hold a job until national education standards are met that are as tough as any in the world.

The study was based on 2,000 interviews at more than 550 companies and agencies worldwide.

BUCHAREST (JUNE 18) - Three Romanian opposition figures, including student leader Marian Monteanu, have been arrested and charged, the official Rompres news agency announced late Monday.

Mr. Monteanu was seriously hurt last week when miners backing President Ion Iliescu took over Bucharest from early Thursday to Friday night in a crackdown on anti-government protestors.

Also arrested were Dimitru Dinca, one of the leaders of a six-week sit-in in University Square, central Bucharest, and Nica Leon, a leader of the small National Democratic Party, Rompres said.

The agency did not specify the nature of the charges.

The sit-in protest straddled elections held last month and won by Mr. Iliescu's National Salvation Front. Protestors accuse many officials of having close ties with the communist regime of the late dictator Nicolae Ceausescu, ousted and executed last December.

NAPLES (JUNE 18) - Argentina and Romania moved into the World Cup second round in a thrilling 1-1 tie here on Monday night.

The all-vital point gave the two sides three points each - enough to keep them in the tournament.

A curling corner from Maradona in the 61st minute was headed home by Pedro Monzon against the run of play.

But Romania, playing their best match of the championship, equalised nine minutes later when Gheorghe Hagi and Marius Lacatus split open the Argentina defence with a brilliant one-two.

Lacatus burst free on the right and crossed to the far post where Ioan Sabau headed the ball back across the goal to Gavrila Balint, who rose above the defence and headed past a diving Sergio Goycochea.

BARI (JUNE 18) - The Soviet Union struck twice in each half to beat Cameroon 4-0 here Monday but the win came too late to keep them in the World Cup.

It was Cameroon's first ever World Cup defeat but they still finished top of Group B, ahead of Romania and Argentina who drew 1-1 in Naples.

The Soviets finished last with two points and are eliminated.

Oleg Protassov opened the score after 20 minutes when he raced in at the near post to slide home a low right wing cross from Gennadi Litovchenko (Eds correct) who had been sent clear by Oleg Kuznetsov.

Eight minutes later Sergei Aleinikov shot against the bar and Andrei Zygmantovich rammed in the rebound.

Alexander Zavarov came on at the start of the second half for Igor Shalimov and ran onto Aleinikov's through ball to tuck his shot past Thomas NKono in the 52nd minute.

Ten minutes later Igor Dobrovolski scored the fourth from Sergei Gorlukovich's left wing cross.

Cameroon won their first two matches in this tournament and drew all three games in their only other appearance in the finals in Spain in 1982.

DWINDLING FOREIGN EXCHANGE RESERVES.

THIS WAS REPORTED BY LOCAL PRESS TODAY QUOTING PETROLEUM MINISTER M.S. GURUPADASWAMY WHILE HE WAS PARTICIPATING IN A "MEET THE PRESS" PROGRAM IN BANGALORE, SOUTH INDIA, ON SUNDAY.

HE SAID THAT THE GOVERNMENT HAD RESOLVED TO ADOPT A NEGATIVE GROWTH APPROACH IN RESPECT OF OIL IMPORTS RATHER THAN ENCOURAGING POSITIVE GROWTH.

THE GOVERNMENT'S THRUST WAS TO CREATE AWARENESS AMONG THE PUBLIC ON THE NEED TO CONSERVE OIL WITHOUT AFFECTING THE ECONOMY, HE ADDED.

INDIA HAS FAILED TO INCREASE THE DOMESTIC CRUDE OIL PRODUCTION TO COPE WITH THE DEMAND. INDIGENOUS PRODUCTION OF CRUDE OIL IN 1989-90 (BEGINNING APRIL 1989) WAS 34.07 MILLION TONS.

AT PRESENT, DOMESTIC CRUDE HELPS MEET 66 PERCENT OF THE DEMAND WITH IMPORTS OF CRUDE PLACED AT AROUND 18 TO 20 MILLION TONS PER ANNUM. DURING 1989-90 INDIA SPENT 64 BILLION RUPEES ON IMPORT OF CRUDE OIL AND PETROLEUM PRODUCTS.

HOWEVER, INDIA'S FOREIGN EXCHANGE RESERVES TOUCHING A LEVEL THAT IS BARELY SUFFICIENT TO COVER IMPORT REQUIREMENTS FOR TWO MONTHS. AS OF MARCH 30, 1990, THE EXCHANGE RESERVES, NET OF GOLD AND SPECIAL DRAWING RIGHTS, STOOD AT 59.22 BILLION RUPEES (3.48 BILLION U.S. DOLLARS).

GURUPADASWAMY APPEALED TO THE PUBLIC, INDUSTRIALISTS, FARMERS AND MERCHANTS TO SCALE DOWN THEIR DEMAND FOR OIL PRODUCTS TO HELP GOVERNMENT CUT IMPORTS.

NEW DELHI (JUNE 18) XINHUA -- INDIAN LEATHER INDUSTRY HAS TO CHANGE ITS EXPORTS PROFILE TO FALL IN LINE WITH THE GLOBAL IMPORTS PROFILE TO ACHIEVE AN EXPORT TARGET OF 35 BILLION RUPEES (2.05 BILLION U.S.DOLLAR) BY 1994-95 LOCAL PRESS REPORTED TODAY.

THIS WAS SUGGESTED BY THE FEDERATION OF INDIAN CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY (FICCI) IN ITS STATUE PAPER ON "LEATHER AND LEATHER PRODUCTS".

FICCI NOTED THAT AS THE SHARE OF GLOBAL IMPORTS OF FINISHED ITEMS, PARTICULARLY GARMENTS AND FOOTWEAR COMPONENTS, ARE INCREASING AT A FAST RATE DURING 1983-87, WORLD IMPORTS OF LEATHER ITEMS ROSE BY 20 PERCENT ANNUM AND IMPORTS OF LEATHER MANUFACTURES BY 18 PERCENT.

WHILE SOME OF THE LEADING PRODUCERS TO THE WORLD MARKET SUCH AS SOUTH KOREA, TAIWAN, HONG KONG AND ITALY ARE FACING INCREASING COST AND LOSING GROUND SLOWLY, INDIA HAS A GREAT POTENTIAL TO AUGMENT THE EXPORTS CAB TAP GROWING MARKET FOR THESE ITEMS, THE STATUE PAPER SAID.

INDIA'S EXPORTS OF LEATHER AND LEATHER PRODUCTS HAVE SHOWN AN IMPRESSIVE GROWTH DURING THE PAST FIVE YEARS, AND LEATHER EXPORTS HAVE GONE UP FROM 5.85 BILLION RUPEES (344 MILLION U.S. DOLLAR) IN 1984-85, TO 22 BILLION RUPEES (1.3 BILLION U.S. DOLLARS) IN 1989-90,

MOREOVER, THE PHYSICAL MIX OF LEATHER AND LEATHER PRODUCTS HAVE SHOWN A CHANGE. EXPORTS OF SEMI-FINISHED LEATHER HAVE COME DOWN SHARPLY WHILE FINISHED LEATHER EXPORTS HAVE REGISTERED AT 6,500 MILLION RUPEES (382 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS) IN 1988-89, COMPARED TO 2,880 MILLION RUPEES IN 1985-86 LEATHER GARMENTS EXPORTS GREW TO 1,660 MILLION RUPEES (97 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS) COMPARED TO 170 MILLION RUPEES IN 1985-86.

WELLINGTON (JUNE 18) XINHUA -- THE RESERVE BANK'S DECISION TODAY TO LEAVE MORE MONEY IN THE BANKING SYSTEM HAS TRIGGERED WHOLESALE INTEREST RATES TO FALL.

THE 90-DAY COMMERCIAL BILL FELL FROM 13.92 PERCENT TO 13.78 PERCENT, BUT STILL SHORT OF THIS YEAR'S LOW IN MAY OF 13.35 PERCENT.

THE BANK'S ACTION WAS TAKEN AGAINST THE BACKGROUND THAT TWO OF NEW ZEALAND'S FOUR LARGE TRADING BANKS -- THE ANZ (AUSTRALIA NEW ZEALAND) BANKING GROUP (NEW ZEALAND) LIMITED AND THE NATIONAL BANK -- RAISED THEIR MORTGAGE RATES TO THEIR HIGHEST LEVEL FOR MORE THAN A YEAR LAST WEDNESDAY, BY 0.5 PERCENT AND 0.6 PERCENT RESPECTIVELY TO 15.4 PERCENT.

THOSE RISES FOLLOWED THE RESERVE BANK'S TIGHTENING OF ITS MONETARY POLICY TWO WEEKS AGO AS A SIGNAL TO MONEY MARKETS THAT WHOLESALE INTEREST RATES WERE DROPPING TOO QUICKLY AS WELL AS OVER CONCERN THAT INFLATION WAS EXPECTED TO RISE 1.7 PERCENT FOR THE THREE MONTHS TO JUNE, COMPARED WITH A RISE OF ONLY 0.9 PERCENT IN MARCH.

SPECULATIONS ARE THAT OTHER MAINSTREAM BANKS ARE LIKELY TO JOIN ANZ AND NATIONAL AT THE HIGHER RATE DESPITE GOVERNMENT PLEAS TO KEEP RATES DOWN.

THE GOVERNMENT HAS ACCUSED ANZ AND NATIONAL OF OVERREACTING, AND FINANCE MINISTER DAVID CAYGILL TODAY PROMPTED THEM TO RECONSIDER IN THE WAKE OF THE RESERVE BANK'S LATEST ACTION.

LONDON (JUNE 18) XINHUA - CANADIAN SCIENTISTS HAVE FOUND THAT ANTI-INFLAMMATORY DRUGS SUCH AS ASPIRIN MAY BE ABLE TO PREVENT ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE, ACCORDING TO THE LATEST ISSUE OF "NEW SCIENTIST" MAGAZINE.

PATRICK MCGEER AT THE UNIVERSITY OF BRITISH COLUMBIA AND HIS TEAM STUDIED PEOPLE WITH RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS WHO HAD BEEN TAKING LARGE DOSES OX ANTI-INFLAMMATORY DRUGS FOR MANY YEARS. THEY FOUND THAT THE INCIDENCE OF THE ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE WAS EXTREMELY LOW AMONG THESE PATIENTS.

ALZHEIMER'S IS AN INCURABLE AND FATAL DISEASE WHICH CAUSES LOSS OF MEMORY, MENTAL DETERIORATION AND SEVERE EMOTIONAL DISTURBANCES.

IN 1988, TOGETHER WITH JAPANESE SCIENTISTS, MCGEER STUDIED THE EFFECT OF INFLAMMATION IN BRAIN TISSUE. THEY FOUND THAT A LOW-GRADE INFLAMMATION TRIGGERS THE DAMAGE AND DEATH OF NEURONS WHICH IS CHARACTERISTIC OF ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE.

ARTHRITIS SUFFERERS CAN REBUIE THEIR JOINT INFLAMMATION BY USING UP TO EN 325-MILLPGRAM DOSES OF ASPIRIN DAILY FOR MANY YEARS.

MCGEER HAS WORKED WITH A SECOND TEAM OF RESEARCHERS TO DISCOVER WHETHER ANTI-INFLAMMATORY DRUGS MIGHT SIMILARLY REDUCE BRAIN INFLAMMATION IN ALZHEIMER'S PATIENTS IF TAKEN WELL BEFORE THE AGE OF ONSET OF THE DISEASE.

HAVING ANALYSED THE RECORDS OF 7,490 PEOPLE WITH RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS, THE TEAM FOUND THAT ONLY 0.39 PERCENT OF THEM DEVELOPED ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE.

MCGEER ESTIMATED THE INCIDENCE OF ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE AT 2.7 PERCENT OF ALL PEOPLE OVER 64.

HE AND HIS COLLEAGUES ARE EXCITED ABOUT THE POTENTIAL OF ANTI-INFLAMMATORY THERAPY FOR ALZHEIMER'S PATIENTS. BUT THEY ARE NOT RECOMMENDING THAT PEOPLE TO TAKE ASPIRIN IN ORDER TO PREVENT THE DISEASE.

MCGEER SAYS: "SO FAR, ALL OF THIS IS JUST SPECULATION. THE REAL PROOF WILL COME WHEN CONTROLLED CLINICAL TRIALS ARE DONE USING ANTI-INFLAMMATORY THERAPY."

MANILA (JUNE 18) XINHUA -- THE ASIAN DEVELOPMENT BANK HAS APPROVED A REGIONAL TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE GRANT FOR A COMPARATIVE ADVANTAGE STUDY OF SELECTED INDUSTRIAL CROPS IN ASIA, THE BANK SAID HERE TODAY.

THE STUDY INCLUDES SEVEN CROPS, NAMELY COCOA, COCONUT, COFFEE, OIL PALM, RUBBER, SUGAR AND TEA IN INDONESIA, MALAYSIA, PAPUA NEW GUINEA, THE PHILIPPINES AND SRI LANKA.

ASIAN PRODUCERS OF ALMOST ALL THESE CROPS ARE EITHER THE DOMINANT SOURCE OF WORLD SUPPLY OR PROVIDE AN INCREASING PROPORTION OF WORLD PRODUCTION. THESE CROPS ARE IMPORTANT SOURCES OF RURAL INCOME, EMPLOYMENT AND EXPORT EARNINGS.

INVESTMENT PLANNING IN THESE SUB-SECTORS IS HINDERED BY A LACK OF RELIABLE DATA AND ANALYSES ON THE COMPARATIVE ADVANTAGE AND EFFICIENCY OF CROP PRODUCTION, BOTH WITHIN INDIVIDUAL COUNTRIES AND BETWEEN COUNTRIES INSIDE AND OUTSIDE THE REGION. AS A RESULT, COMPARATIVE ANALYSIS OF PRODUCTION COSTS IS OFTEN DONE ON AN AD HOC BASIS AND WITHOUT A CONSISTENT METHODOLOGY.

THE ADB STUDY WILL MEET A NEED TO ANALYZE COST STRUCTURES TO DETERMINE HOW PRODUCERS MIGHT BE ABLE TO IMPROVE COST COMPETITIVENESS.

AS WELL AS EXAMINING THE POTENTIAL FOR FURTHER INVESTMENT AND GROWTH, THE STUDY WILL LOOK AT PRICING AND MARKETING STRUCTURES TO DETERMINE HOW POLICY MEASURES, INCENTIVES AND OTHER INTERVENTIONS INFLUENCE COMPETITIVENESS, PARTICULARLY THE FINANCIAL RETURNS ON THE CROPS.

AMMAN (JUNE 18) XINHUA - KING HUSSEIN OF JORDAN HAS AGAIN CALLED FOR BOTH FINANCIAL AND MILITARY AID FROM ARAB COUNTRIES SO THAT THE KINGDOM MAY "DEFEND THE REGION AGAINST ISRAELI AGGRESSION."

SPEAKING SUNDAY NIGHT WITH UNITED ARAB EMIRATES (UAE) TELEVISION AND EDITORS OF ARABIC LANGUAGE NEWSPAPERS IN THE UAE, THE KING EXPRESSED THE HOPE THAT "OUR ARAB BROTHERS WILL PROVIDE US WITH THE SAME ASSISTANCE AS JEWS (THE WORLD OVER) TO ISRAEL."

"ABANDONING JORDAN AND PALESTINE WOULD EXPOSE THE ARAB STATES TO VARIOUS DANGERS, AS JORDAN'S COLLAPSE MEANS THE DANGER WOULD MOVE DEEP INTO THE ARAB STATES," KING HUSSEIN WARNED.

THE ARABS "SHOULD ARM US WITH THE MEANS NECESSARY FOR US TO REPULSE THE FIRST BLOW UNTIL ARAB BROTHERS CAN REACH US ON OUR LONG CONFRONTATION LINE " THE KING SAID WHEN COMMENTING ON THE POSSIBILITY OF AN ISRAELI STRIKE.

THE KING'S LATEST CALL FOLLOWED INSTALLATION LAST WEEK IN ISRAEL A RIGHT-WING COALITION HEADED BY LIKUD CHIEF YITZHAK SHAMIR, CONDEMNED BY ARABS AS A "WAR CABINET," THE "WORST GOVERNMENT IN ISRAELI HISTORY."

CHANGES IN ISRAEL ARE PARTICULARLY SENSITIVE TO JORDAN, WHICH FACES THE WEST BANK ACROSS THE JORDAN RIVER. HALF OF ITS 3 MILLION RESIDENTS ARE PALESTINIANS WHO LOST THEIR HOMES IN THE 1967 MIDDLE EAST WAR DURING WHICH ISRAEL CAPTURED THE WEST BANK AND GAZA STRIP.

HE PLEDGED TO COUNTER THE CHALLENGE FROM THE SHAMIR CABINET WITH ALL JORDAN'S MIGHT AND RESOURCES. MEANWHILE, HE SAID, JORDAN FACES "HEAVY ECONOMIC CRISIS" AND THE "CRISIS IS FELT BY EVERYBODY IN JORDAN," HENCE THE NEED FOR FRESH ARAB AID.

THE 1978 ARAB SUMMIT IN BAGHDAD PROMISED AN ANNUAL AVERAGE OF 1.25 BILLION U.S. DOLLARS IN FINANCIAL CONTRIBUTIONS TO JORDAN FROM 1979 TO 1988, FROM SAUDI ARABIA, KUWAIT, LIBYA, IRAQ, THE UAE, ALGERIA AND QATAR.

THE KINGDOM RECEIVED ONLY HALF OF THE AMOUNT, MAINLY FROM SAUDI ARABIA AND KUWAIT, AND WHAT WORRIES IT STILL MORE IS THAT SO FAR THIS YEAR, IT HAS RECEIVED ONLY 75 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS IN ARAB AID.

THE KINGDOM, LADDEN WITH FOREIGN DEBTS OF 8.3 BILLION DOLLARS AND IN THE AFTERMATH OF A THREE-YEAR LANDSLIDE FROM 2,000 TO 800 DOLLARS IN PER CAPITA GROSS NATIONAL PRODUCT, NEEDS AT LEAST 1 BILLION DOLLARS IN AID TO BALANCE DEVELOPMENT AND DEFENSE EXPENDITURES, ACCORDING TO OFFICIAL ESTIMATES.

ON THE CURRENT MIDDLE EAST SITUATION, HE SAID, "THERE ARE EXTREMISTS WAITING TO DO THEIR UTMOST TO DESTROY ANY CHANCE FOR A BETTER FUTURE IN THE AREA ... THIS IS WHAT WE SEE WITH REGARD TO THE DECLARED POLICIES OF THE NEW ISRAELI GOVERNMENT."

THE KING WAS REAFFIRMING HIS EARLIER PREDICTION THAT THE HARDLINE POLICIES OF ISRAEL'S NEW CABINET MAY PROVOKE A NEW WAVE OF EXTREMISM IN THE MIDDLE EAST.

THE SHAMIR CABINET HAS VOWED TO "UPROOT" THE PALESTINIAN UPRISING IN THE OCCUPIED TERRITORIES AND "STRENGTHEN, DEVELOP AND EXPAND" JEWISH SETTLEMENTS THERE, REFUSED TO DISCUSS ESTABLISHMENT OF A PALESTINIAN STATE AND REJECTED U.S. SECRETARY OF STATE JAMES BAKER'S PLANS WHICH CALL FOR ISRAELI-PALESTINIAN TALKS IN CAIRO.

A LOCAL NEWSPAPER TODAY QUOTED AN OFFICIAL FROM THE NIGERIAN NATIONAL PETROLEUM CORPORATION AS SAYING THAT ONLY THE FIRMS WHICH UTILISED AND CONSERVED ABOUT 75 PERCENT OF TOTAL PRODUCED GAS IN THEIR OIL FIELDS WERE NOT PENALISED.

INVESTIGATIONS REVEALED THAT THE ABOVE FOREIGN COMPANIES HAVE NOT YET FOUND PRODUCTIVE USES FOR GAS IN SPITE OF THE LEGISLATIVE MEASURES TAKEN TO END FLARING GAS IN THE COUNTRY.

DURING THE SAME PERIOD LAST YEAR, THE NIGERIAN GOVERNMENT FINED THESE COMPANIES SOME 80,000 U.S. DOLLARS FOR BURNING 314,490 MILLION CUBIC METRES OF GAS.

NIGERIA, AFRICA'S LARGEST OIL PRODUCER, PROMULGATED A DECREE IN 1979 BARRING GAS FLARING IN THE COUNTRY. THE DECREE WAS AMENDED IN 1984 TO INCLUDE STIFFER PENALTIES FOR ANY OIL PRODU- CING COMPANY STILL BURNING GAS PRODUCED IN ASSOCIATION WITH CRUDE OIL.

NIGERIA REPORTEDLY RANKS AMONG THE 13 TOP COUNTRIES IN THE WORLD WITH PROVEN GAS RESERVES AMOUNTING TO 1,300 BILLION CUBIC METRES, WHICH REPRESENTS 1.5 PERCENT OF THE WORLD TOTAL.

LAGOS (JUNE 18) XINHUA - AN OPINION POLL HAS SHOWN THAT NIGERIANS ARE STILL DIVIDED ON THE PROPOSED USE OF LOCAL LANGUAGES IN THE FIRST THREE YEARS AT PRIMARY SCHOOL.

THE POLL, CONDUCTED NATIONWIDE AND PUBLISHED TODAY BY THE NEWS AGENCY OF NIGERIA, INDICATES THAT 181 PEOPLE OR 40.3 PER- CENT OF THE 449 RESPONDENTS SUPPORTED THE IDEA OF MOTHER TONGUE SCHOOLING WHILE 244 PERSONS OR 54.3 PERCENT OF THE RESPONDENTS DISAGREED WITH IT.

NIGERIAN EDUCATION MINISTER BABS FAFUNWA PROPOSED ON FEBRUARY 27 THAT THE COUNTRY'S PRIMARY SCHOOLS SHOULD USE LOCAL LANGUAGES IN THE FIRST THREE YEARS OF TEACHING DESPITE THE FACT THAT THE OFFICIAL LANGUAGE OF THE NATION IS ENGLISH.

A COMMUNIQUE ISSUED TWO DAYS LATER AT THE END OF THE NATIONAL CONFERENCE ON EDUCATION-FOR-ALL ARGUED THAT THE USE OF MOTHER TONGUE IN EARLY YEARS OF PRIMARY EDUCATION WOULD SPEED UP THE LITERACY PROGRAM IN A COUNTRY WHERE MORE THAN 60 PERCENT OF THE POPULATION ARE ILLITERATES.

THE SUPPORTERS SAID THAT THE USE OF MOTHER TONGUE WOULD ENHANCE NATIONAL UNITY, ENABLE PUPILS TO UNDERSTAND THEIR LESSONS EASILY, PROVIDE CHILDREN WITH A VAST LINGUISTIC BACKGROUND AND HELP PROMOTE CULTURAL INDENTITY.

THOSE WHO DISAGREE WITH THE IDEA ARGUED THAT THE USE OF LOCAL LANGUAGES WOULD WASTE NATIONAL RESOURCES, SLOW THE PUPILS' LEARNING PROCESS, LIMIT THEIR KNOWLEDGE TO LOCAL LANGUAGES AND ENDANGER THE PROVISION OF A FOUNDATION FOR WESTERN EDUCATION IN FUTURE.

Without Reason / Self-Abusers? : In 1985, a double murder was committed, the victims, parents of a beautiful, intelligent student at the University of Virginia. It was later discovered that she and her boyfriend were responsible for the murders. There are many questions surrounding the sanity of the couple, the nature of their relationship and how they could have committed the murders. Ken Englade's book "Beyond Reason" explores these issues and claims that the woman manipulated her lover into doing it contrary to her testimony. Mr. King's second guests this evening are both self-abusers, a malady just now being recognized by the medical community. As the guests explain, although they may feel pain when they cut, burn or otherwise physically harm themselves, they feel satisfaction rather than discomfort because of their underlying psychological problems. There is a possibility that some behaviors may be due to a chemical imbalance akin to that producing obsessive-compulsive behavior. (Show #67)

One manufacturer of sophisticated machinery has found a way to virtually eliminate paperwork from the factory floor. It's the nerve center of one of the nation's most advanced assembly lines, a $49 million computer system that Martin Marietta calls ''the paperless factory''; the American Astronomical Society met in Albuquerque this week and scientists were treated to some remarkable pictures of our galaxy. Astronomers, using a network of radio telescopes in New Mexico, have been able to get a glimpse of what's at the Milky Way's core; why do many people find it so easy to gain weight and so difficult to lose it? One team of researchers is looking for an answer by studying the hibernating mechanism of a curious rodent, the marmot; it began as a complex theory for computer programmers, but fuzzy logic is now being used in new consumer goods that practically run themselves. New household consumer products from Japan, using microcomputer technology called fuzzy logic, allowing the operator to press the start button and let the sensor-equipped machine do the rest; how do plants grow? Why do some grow faster than others? Farmers and home gardeners would love to know the answers and scientists are trying to provide them; at Florida State University, students learn how to find and analyze artifacts and fossils deep under water. The class takes place at Warm Mineral Springs, near Sarasota, a popular spot with tourists as well as archaeologists; scientists, wildlife officials and environmentalists don't always agree on the best strategy to save an endangered species. In California, a controversial plan has been in effect for several years to preserve a rare bird and it seems to be working. (Show #19)

Does the age of a patient make a difference when it comes to selecting treatment for high blood pressure or high cholesterol? That's a question for which doctors urgently need an answer; "The Third Epidemic" is the title of a new report on the fear and prejudice that travels with AIDS. There are concerns that AIDS discrimination may hamper efforts to fight the disease; infants born prematurely are now saved more often than ever. But even when the crisis passes, developmental hurdles remain. Special attention and support can help prevent problems as these children grow; older golfers sometimes try to shoot their age, but how about lifting it? A report in the Journal of the American Medical Association concludes you're never too old to pump iron; farming is tough, physically demanding and sometimes dangerous work. A disabling accident can end a farming career, but it doesn't have to. (Show #19)

TOKYO, JUNE 18 KYODO - BANK OF JAPAN GOVERNOR YASUSHI MIENO URGED MONDAY THAT JAPAN'S FINANCIAL AND CAPITAL MARKET SYSTEMS BE FURTHER TAILORED TO INTERNATIONAL STANDARDS AMID INCREASING MOVES TOWARD GLOBALIZATION WORLDWIDE.

IN A SPEECH TO FINANCIAL INDUSTRY LEADERS, MIENO REITERATED THE IMPORTANCE OF FURTHER ENHANCING MARKET OPENNESS THROUGH CONTINUED EFFORTS FOR BROAD-BASED FINANCIAL REFORMS.

MIENO DESCRIBED THE TOKYO MARKET AS STILL "INAPPROPRIATE" TO QUALIFY AS A LEADING INTERNATIONAL MARKET.

TRANSFORMING JAPAN'S FINANCIAL PRACTICES, OFTEN PERCEIVED AS PECULIAR TO THE COUNTRY, INTO ONES CONSISTENT WITH THE RULES PREVAILING IN OTHER MAJOR NATIONS IS INDISPENSABLE IF JAPAN IS TO CONTRIBUTE TO STABILIZING TRADING IN GLOBAL MARKETS, HE SAID.

WITHOUT MAKING DIRECT REFERENCE TO ONGOING FINANCIAL REFORMS, MIENO EXPRESSED THE HOPE THAT ALL MARKET PARTICIPANTS WOULD CONTINUE EFFORTS TO MAKE JAPANESE MARKETS MORE EFFICIENT AND STABLE IN THE EVENT OF VOLATILITY.

TO THIS END, SOME ADVISORY PANELS TO FINANCE MINISTER RYUTARO HASHIMOTO

HAVE BEEN WORKING OUT A SET OF ADMINISTRATIVE MEASURES FOR THE PROJECTED REFORMS, WITH AN EYE TO HAVING THEM PASS THE DIET DURING 1992, MIENO SAID.

BUT FINANCIAL INDUSTRY SOURCES EXPECT THE MINISTRY TO FACE DIFFICULTIES IN PRODUCING ACCEPTABLE BILLS GIVEN THE CONFLICTING VIEWS AND PROBLEMS AMONG BANKS, BROKERAGE HOUSES, AND OTHER FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS.

IN A RELATED COMMENT, THE CENTRAL BANK CHIEF CALLED ON FINANCIAL LEADERS TO IMPROVE THEIR RISK MANAGEMENT CAPABILITIES AMID THE LIBERALIZATION OF FINANCIAL TRADING.

IF JAPAN LAGS BEHIND THE MODERNIZATION OF FINANCIAL STRUCTURES, IT WOULD RESULT IN A WITHDRAWAL OF MONEY FROM THE TOKYO MARKETS TO MORE INTERNATIONALIZED MARKETS, MIENO WARNED.

NAGOYA (JUNE 18) KYODO - THE PRESIDENT OF TOYOTA MOTOR CORP. STRUCK A NEGATIVE NOTE MONDAY TOWARD THE EARLY START OF PRODUCTION IN EASTERN EUROPE.

SHOICHIRO TOYODA TOLD A NEWS CONFERENCE THAT THE TOP JAPANESE AUTOMAKER ''IS NOT CONSIDERING LAUNCHING PRODUCTION SOON'' IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA, WHERE IT RECENTLY SENT A FACT-FINDING MISSION.

"WE THINK IT IS STILL TOO EARLY TO MOVE INTO EASTERN EUROPE (FOR LOCAL PRODUCTION)," HE SAID.

TOYODA ALSO SAID THE COMPANY'S AUTO PARTS IMPORTS, MAINLY FROM THE UNITED STATES, ROSE 27 PERCENT TO 1.16 MILLION DOLLARS IN FISCAL 1989 ENDED MARCH 31 AND EXPECTS A SIMILAR INCREASE IN FISCAL 1990.

TURNING TO THE DOMESTIC MARKET OUTLOOK, HE SAID TOYOTA WILL SEEK TO SELL MORE THAN 2.5 MILLION CARS, TRUCKS, AND BUSES THIS YEAR, UP SLIGHTLY FROM THE 2.48 MILLION TARGET UNVEILED LATE LAST YEAR.

HE ATTRIBUTED THE OPTIMISM TO EXPECTATIONS THAT THE DOMESTIC MARKET WILL GROW TO MORE THAN SIX MILLION VEHICLES RATHER THAN THE COMPANY'S EARLIER PROJECTION OF 5.8 MILLION.

TOYODA DENIED INDUSTRY SPECULATION THAT A MAJOR RESHUFFLE OF THE COMPANY'S LEADERSHIP MIGHT BE IMMINENT, SAYING HE WOULD NOT QUIT IN AUGUST, WHEN TOYODA'S SENIOR OFFICERS WILL SEE THEIR TWO-YEAR TERM OF OFFICE EXPIRE.

TOYOTA'S CHAIRMAN, EIJI TOYODA, WHO WAS ALSO PRESENT AT THE PRESS CONFERENCE, ECHOED HIM, SAYING HE WOULD NOT RESIGN EITHER. TOKYO (JUNE 18) KYODO - THREE JAPANESE COMPANIES ADMITTED MONDAY HAVING PURCHASED HIGH-TECHNOLOGY SOFTWARE FROM AN ALLEGED AMERICAN SMUGGLER, BUT INSISTED THE PURCHASES DID NOT VIOLATE JAPANESE LAW.

OFFICIALS AT MITSUBISHI HEAVY INDUSTRIES LTD., ISHIKAWAJIMA-HARIMA HEAVY INDUSTRIES CO., AND NISSAN MOTOR CO. SAID THE PURCHASES OF CONTAM, A SOFTWARE SYSTEM DESIGNED FOR ROCKET ENGINES, WERE MADE UPON APPROVAL FROM RELATED GOVERNMENT AGENCIES. THE AMERICAN MAN INVOLVED HAS BEEN ARRESTED FOR ALLEGEDLY SENDING THE TECHNOLOGY WITHOUT A LICENSE.

THE STATEMENT CAME TWO DAYS AFTER THE COMPANIES DENIED REPORTS THAT THEY HAD BOUGHT CONTAM FROM RONALD HOFFMAN, WHO WAS ARRESTED IN LOS ANGELES FOR ALLEGEDLY SMUGGLING THAT TECHNOLOGY WITHOUT APPROVAL FROM THE U.S. STATE DEPARTMENT.

"IT'S A TECHNOLOGY WE CAN BUY EASILY WITH U.S. GOVERNMENT APPROVAL," SAID AN OFFICIAL AT MITSUBISHI HEAVY INDUSTRIES ON CONDITION OF ANONYMITY.

THE OFFICIAL AND OTHERS SAID THE PURCHASE WAS DONE LEGALLY, BUT NOTED THAT THEY DID NOT KNOW WHETHER THE SELLER HAD OBTAINED THE REQUISITE APPROVAL FROM THE U.S. GOVERNMENT.

"IN MANY CASES, WE CANNOT CONFIRM WHETHER SUCH APPROVAL HAS BEEN OBTAINED -- AND WE USUALLY DON'T CHECK ABOUT IT," SAID AN OFFICIAL AT ONE OF THE THREE COMPANIES, REQUESTING ANONYMITY.

CONTAM IS REPORTEDLY LINKED TO THE SO-CALLED STRATEGIC DEFENSE INITIATIVE (SDI), A U.S. DEFENSE PLAN KNOWN AS THE ''STAR WARS'' PROGRAM.

TOKYO (JUNE 19) KYODO - THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT PLANS TO INTRODUCE A NEW CHECKING SYSTEM TO PREVENT ILLEGAL RED SALMON IMPORTS FROM NORTH KOREA, GOVERNMENT SOURCES SAID MONDAY.

THE SOURCES SAID THE NEW MEASURE, CALLING ON IMPORTERS TO OBTAIN PRIOR APPROVAL FROM THE GOVERNMENT, WILL BE TAKEN TO COPE WITH A CASE IN WHICH NORTH KOREAN-REGISTERED JAPANESE FISHING BOATS AND JAPANESE CREW MEMBERS WERE SEIZED BY SOVIET AUTHORITIES FOR ALLEGEDLY POACHING SALMON LAST MONTH.

ACCORDING TO JAPAN'S FISHERIES AGENCY, THE SYSTEM WILL NOT BE APPLIED TO IMPORTS OF DOG SALMON AND TROUT CAUGHT IN NORTH KOREA'S TERRITORIAL WATERS.

NORTH KOREAN BOATS REGULARLY FISH FOR RED SALMON IN OPEN WATERS, BUT THE COUNTRY DOES NOT HAVE AGREEMENTS WITH OTHER COUNTRIES LIKE THE SOVIET UNION WHICH SHARE AN INTEREST IN MAINTAINING FISH STOCKS.

JAPAN HAS APPLIED A SIMILAR SYSTEM TO TAIWAN SINCE 1984. NORTH KOREA EXPORTED 639 TONS OF SALMON TO JAPAN LAST YEAR OUT OF A TOTAL CATCH OF 148,983 TONS.

FALLS CHURCH, VA (JUNE 18) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2)MONEY & ECONOMY.

IN THE NEWS:

In quiet Tokyo trading, the Nikkei loses 161.60. ... London stocks are lower. ... The U.S. trade deficit shrank 17% to $6.96 billion in April, the COMMERCE DEPARTMENT reports. ... Auto and truck production rebounded in May, pushing industrial production up 0.6% over April, the FEDERAL RESERVE says. ... BELL ATLANTIC and U S WEST have been selected to build a cellular telephone system in Czechoslovakia. ... FEDERAL EXPRESS says it has acquired the French courier company TRANSPORTS TRANSVENDEENS CHRONOSERVICE and inaugurated Boeing 747 service connecting Asia, the Middle East, Europe and the United States. ... MARTIN SEIGEL, formerly of KIDDER, PEABODY & CO., draws a two-month prison sentence for illegally trading inside tips with IVAN BOESKY.

WHAT'S AHEAD:

The major economic reports out this week are housing starts on Tuesday, final first-quarter revisions of GNP and corporate profits on Thursday and durable goods orders and personal income on Friday. COMMUNICATIONS another week. ... HONDA agrees to sell 2,000 of CHRYSLER's 1991 Jeep Cherokees and Wranglers through its dealers in Japan.

FROM THE BULLS:

PETER CANELO of BEAR, STEARNS says the Dow could rise as high as 3350 before the end of the year. He foresees a surge in the industrial sector and believes conditions could be right for the Fed to ease interest rates, possibly as early as this summer. (WSJ, 6/18)

"The market is behaving very well," says FRED GORDON, editor of the "Plain Talk Investor" market letter in Northbrook, Ill. "The action is such that it's making it hard for an investor to get an entry point. I consider that a good sign. I think it's important to note we are in a bull market. The "Investor's Daily" 6000 index is over its 200-day moving average line and that is a clear sign the trend is up. ... I wouldn't be disturbed to see a 5% to 10% pull back. However, I do think the Dow will go through 3000 this year. If it were to get to 3300 or higher, though, I would reach for the oxygen mask and parachute at the same time because valuations would be very high." ("Investor's Daily", 6/18)

COCHRANE FRANK of INVESTMENT TIMING CONSULTANTS portrays a very bullish scenario for the next several months. "In the short term we have some resistance in the 2950 to 3000 area. However, I think once this barrier is overcome you're going to see the market go well above 3000. I'm looking for the market to move to somewhere in the 3100 to 3400 range over the next four months." ("Nightly Business Report", 6/15)

FROM THE BEARS:

ABBY JOSEPH COHEN of ZOETE, WEDD RESEARCH sees a potential 25% drop in the stock market in the near term, assuming interest rates do not decline further. "There is no measurement in my usual took kit which tells me this market is cheap," she says. "On a variety of measures, this market is approaching the kind of valuation levels you had in the summer of 1987. That's something that doesn't give me great comfort." (WSJ, 6/18)

"This thing [the market rally] is going higher, but bear markets always go down with full elevators and they are loading the elevators," says CHUCK ALLMON, editor of "Growth Stock Outlook." "This may turn out to be one of the biggest bull traps of all times." JOE GRANVILLE, who turned bullish right after the crash of 1987, went bearish again last August and now says: "I've never felt on more certain ground in my life. I feel as certain as I was when I came out with a buy signal in October 1987. The signals are just so clear." Still, he is not recommending short selling at the moment, saying he is "awaiting the next rally which will be a failing rally, a sucker rally." Another strong bear in a section devoted to bears in this week's "Barron's" is BOB PRECHTER, who says the dominoes are lined up for a big fall. He doesn't say when the fall will start, but that before it is over "we are going to see a net loss in blue chip stock values - never mind in low priced stocks - that will be the greatest since 1929-32." ("Barron's", 6/18)

STOCK MARKET:

Friday's gains were due to options expirations and "not something you can hang your hat on," says MONTE GORDON of DREYFUS CORP. "But the underlying suggestion and bias is still on the upside. This market obviously does not want to go down. Basically, it's counting on the economy rolling along and inflation staying in check." (CNBC "World Business", 6/18)

"We're still in a bull market, but some of these bigger stocks have to rest," says FRANK CAPPIELLO. He says the market trend is still up, but some blue chip stocks are overbought and notes that the Value Line 1,700-stock index is down for the year. ("Wall Street Week", 6/15)

"The market's ascent in spite of current weak economic conditions makes about as much sense as a jump in the price of raisins would because Raisin Bran started using three scoops," writes columnist JOHN CRUDELE. He lists the odds on several scenarios that could prompt what he sees an inevitable market decline. Among them: 10 to 1 that the reason will be a bad economy 5 to 1 a rise in inflation and 10 to 1 a banking crisis. ("The Washington Post", 6/17)

"The good news is that everybody is concerned about the market being too high and looking for a correction," says HARVEY EISEN. "I'm so positive on secondary stocks. Twenty years ago ... the Dow Jones peaked in 1966, went sideways for two years and we made incredible returns on small stocks. I think the stage is set for that [again]." ("Wall Street Week", 6/15)

"I think we're in the late stages of a bull market that began back in late 1987," says LOUIS HOLLAND. "I think the advance, though, is likely to be constrained because we do have a slowing economy, we do have poor corporate earnings, we do have a restrained credit situation and I think it is possible we could already be in a credit crunch. ... I think there are some cheap stocks, if you are looking at some of the secondary stocks, because many of them are still down for the year." ("Wall Street Week", 6/15)

STOCK TIPS:

COMPAQ may be getting pricey, says EUGENE PERONI at JANNEY MONTGOMERY SCOTT. "I think the better situations are going to be in the niche tech stocks like VISHAY. I think you'll have a much better percentage reward potential over the next six months." Peroni says Vishay has built a formidable bottom in the 22-21 area and has an upside of 28 or more over the next six months. Overall, Peroni is unimpressed by Friday's new high. While stocks may head up in the short term, Peroni says the market is setting up for a "very constructive" correction of 3%-4%. (FNN "World Business Update", 6/18)

DOW CHEMICAL is featured in the "Heard on the Street" column in "The Wall Street Journal" this morning. The company says earnings are ready to rebound and that analysts who are down on the stock have been overreacting to a cyclical downturn in commodity prices. The company also says some analysts have ignored its shift toward high- profit specialty chemicals, drugs and consumer products. ALLEN SIMPSON, owner of SIMPSON CAPITAL MANAGEMENT in Philadelphia, is one who likes the stock. He says it is "significantly undervalued" at Friday's close of 63 and could top 90 within a year. Most analysts still disagree. "There has been a perception that Dow could lead the industry in 1990 and 1991, but the outlook still isn't good," says LEONARD BOGNER of PRUDENTIAL-BACHE SECURITIES. "We think the stock is still only an average performer." He recently downgraded it from a buy to a hold. (WSJ, 6/18)

"Barron's" devotes a section to bears this week, including articles on two stock pickers and their favorite short stocks. MICHAEL KATZ, who runs REYNARD ASSET MANAGEMENT, lists his three favorite shorts as CABLEVISION SYSTEMS, GLOBAL MARINE and STONE CONTAINER. MICHAEL MURPHY, who manages $35 million and is editor of the "Overpriced Stock Service" advised subscribers to sister publication "California Technology Stock Letter" to move to 100% cash on May 11. For Barron's, he lists 48 stocks to short, including COCA-COLA, PHILIP MORRIS and AT&T. ("Barron's", 6/18)

The financial health of DUQUESNE POWER has improved markedly says ARGUS RESEARCH which likes the stock and looks for its price to appreciate 10%-12% annually. The group also recommends McCAW - "The most attractive pure play in the cellular telephone industry." - and TRANSCO which is seeing strong performance from its two pipeline operating subsidiaries. Argus says sell GENENTECH because the stock's price will come under pressure after ROCHE completes a 60% acquisition. (CNBC "World Business", 6/18)

"We still have a bullish stance right now," says SAM STOVALL, editor of STANDARD & POOR'S "Industry Reports". Stovall is concentrating on pollution control stocks and the energy sector. Because of their intermediate and long-term value, he says it's still not too late to participate in these sectors. He recommends SLUMBERGER, TEXACO and MOBILE in the energy group, and BROWNING FERRIS, WASTE MANAGEMENT, and WHEELABRATOR TECHNOLOGIES as strong pollution control issues. (CNBC "Business View", 6/15)

GEORGE NOBLE, portfolio manager of the FIDELITY OVERSEAS FUND, now has 18% of his fund's holdings in West German stocks, triple the amount last year, and 15% in France. He says the Japanese bull market is over for now because of high interest rates there and has trimmed his fund's holdings from 30% to 3%. "Long-term the outlook [in Europe] is sensational, short-run there are going to be some problems," says Noble. "I think investors maybe have gotten a little bit too enthusiastic - witness the rise of the German mark since the [Berlin] Wall fell." He is now trimming European holdings somewhat for the short-term. He says U.S. investors probably should have about 25% of their holdings in foreign investments. ("Wall Street Week", 6/15)

CHARLES MAXELL, senior energy strategist at C.J. LAWRENCE, MORGAN GRENFELL INC., sees the current fall in oil prices as a "down cycle within a huge up cycle" and says the best oil industry market plays are in service companies. His favorite three are SCHLUMBERGER, HALLIBURTON and BAKER. He likes them because they are positioned to do big business in the Soviet Union and elsewhere overseas. He says they should be able to grow 15% to 20% for the next three decades and that about three years worth of growth is all that is currently factored into share prices. He also likes some energy/construction companies, especially FOSTER WHEELER. ("Barron's", 6/18)

COCHRANE FRANK of INVESTMENT TIMING CONSULTANTS says this rally should last through the summer and a few months beyond. He recommends: SEARS, GM and PERRY DRUG STORES, as a special situation. He also likes IBM which he believes will top $200. He did not say when he expects that price for the computer stock. ("Nightly Business Report", 6/15)

FALLS CHURCH, VA (JUNE 18) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY. MONEY & CREDIT:

"The New York Times" reports this morning that DONALD TRUMP's effort to obtain $60 million in new loans became mired in disputes among his largest bankers. The paper says the developer is having a hard time selling some assets to raise cash within a 10-day grace period to pay about $73 million to banks and bondholders that was due Friday. The report raises the possibility of some potential buyers being scared away by a possible bankruptcy filing by Trump. (NYT, 6/18)

"A month would not be a bad guess" on the time frame for a third party buying some of DONALD TRUMP's troubled business ventures, says BILL WOLMAN chief economist for CNBC and "BusinessWeek." He says Trump's business failings may impact New York real estate as a whole in terms of lowering prices. (CNBC "Business View", 6/15)

"The inflation numbers were generally favorable, but I don't think they are good enough to trigger an easing of Fed policy," says NORMAN ROBERTSON chief economist at MELLON BANK CORP. He says the latest economic reports "seem to be saying that the worst is over in manufacturing and activity is stabilizing." (WSJ, 6/18)

"I'm betting that in the next four to eight weeks the Federal Reserve will lower the discount rate to avoid a recession and we probably will get a drop in the prime immediately after that," says FRANK CAPPIELLO. ("Wall Street Week", 6/18)

"We've been in an extended period of no [banking] reserve growth, slow M2 and M3 growth and a slowdown of credit," says SCOTT PARDEE, vice chairman of YAMAICHI INTERNATIONAL and a former Fed economist. "By traditional standards, the Fed has a very, very tight policy right now." ("Investor's Daily", 6/18)

"My own bias would be for the Fed to ease a little bit more, but in this environment I don't think it would change things very much," says LAWRENCE CHIMERINE, an independent economic consultant in Bala- Cynwyd, Pa. "A half-point drop in rates is not going to prod companies to borrow more, or prompt construction companies to build faster." At best, he sees the economy stuck in a range of 1% to 2% growth for the rest of the year. (NYT, 6/18)

"I just don't know why the pundits interpreted the bond market [decline Friday] as having responded to the industrial production number," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist for "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC." "It may have. I doubt that. I think the bond market had had a big rally and was looking for sort of an excuse to take it easy." He says the surge in auto output was a temporary phenomenon that skewed the industrial production number upward. (CNBC "Market Wrap- Up", 6/15)

"U.S. bond yields briefly breached a four-month-old trading range earlier last week amid reemerging recession fears," says SUSAN HERIG, a senior economist at SALOMON BROTHERS. "The economic data remain inconclusive, however, and we doubt that the Federal Reserve fully shares in the market's recession concerns." She says the lack of much compelling economic news this week "will limit the bond market rally and the absence of foreign investors will reinforce that ceiling." ("Investor's Daily", 6/18)

Analysts say a heavy flow of new Treasury issues this week will supersede what remains a basically positive fundamental outlook on bonds. "With no major economic indicators [out this week], supply will be a bit of a worry and cause a backup in market rates," says STEVEN SLIFER of SHEARSON LEHMAN

GOVERNMENT SECURITIES. (NYT, 6/18)

THE ECONOMY:

JOHN CONNOLLY, chief investment strategist for DEAN WITTER, says Friday's consumer price and trade deficit figures were "two decent numbers' in line with expectations that over time will "encourage the thought that we're on track, that the inflation rate is in fact coming down. The economy is slow, but the trade deficit is improving. It is on a fairly consistent improving track here. I think they're good numbers." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 6/15)

"There has been no curtailment of inflation in the final sense at the consumer level," says ROBERT DEDERICK, an economist with NORTHERN TRUST BANK in Chicago. "The payoff from the [economic] slowdown is extraordinarily difficult to find." ("Investor's Daily", 6/18)

JAMES FRALICK of MORGAN STANLEY says Friday's industrialization numbers eased fears of a laggard economy and credit crunch. "There had been a feeling growing in the markets that the economy was turning very weak and that this was not going to give the Fed leeway to ease interest rates. I think the industrialization numbers took some of the steam out of that." (CNN "Moneyline", 6/15)

"I just don't see any sign whatever that the real estate market has turned around yet," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist for "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC." "It might turn around very soon, but I happen to think that the second half of this year is going to be very slow in terms of GNP. There might even be a minor recession. ... I do not believe the problem is inflation." (CNBC "Market-Wrap-Up", 6/15)

"These are the worst numbers you'll see [on inflation] for the next six months to a year," says STAN SHIPLEY, an economist with SHEARSON LEHMAN HUTTON. "Construction is very soft. Retail sales are soft. It's unlikely you'll have an inflation problem in a weak economy." ("Investor's Daily", 6/18)

ROBERT CHANDROSS of LLOYDS BANK says analysts will have to "wait and see" before they can confidently say inflationary pressures are behind us. "The very high rates of inflation that occurred early in the year were not sustainable. Some of the things that hurt are starting to come back and provide some benefit now, such as a decline in clothing prices. Looking at it over six months or a year, the CPI reports are telling us that inflation is still around 4% to 4 1/2% and,while we might be doing better than that in the short run, it's too early to signal a victory. ("Nightly Business Report", 6/15)

"[Auto] production that normally would have taken place [over the year] is being compressed into the current time period as a defense mechanism [against potential strikes]," says WARD McCARTHY, managing director of STONE & McCARTHY RESEARCH ASSOCIATES in Princeton, N.J. "To take the data as a sign that industry has revived would imply an interpretation that we're seeing an auto-led rebound in activity and anyone who has followed the auto sales or gone to an auto dealership in the last six months realizes that is out of the question." ("Investor's Daily", 6/18)

Although the trade deficit numbers mark a nice improvement, DAVID JONES of AUBREY G. LANSTON says overall trade is down and that could lead to recession. "The trade numbers were extremely favorable, particularly in the sense that we're moving in the second quarter with further declines in the [trade] deficit. That's a stimulus for the economy. I think the die is cast for the U.S. economy now and at the very least we're going to have a brush with recession as we move through the later months of 1990 and early 1991." MOODY'S JOHN LONSKI concurs, "We are much closer to a downturn than we would care to be at this time." (CNBC "Business View", 6/15)

IN WASHINGTON:

DAN DORFMAN reports in "USA Today" that the The SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION has opened in inquiry into JANNEY MONTGOMERY SCOTT's firing of analyst MARVIN ROFFMAN after he crossed swords with DONALD TRUMP. ("USA Today", 6/18)

SALT LAKE CITY (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Bonneville Pacific Corp. (NASDAQ: BPCO) one of the nation's leading independent power producers, today announced its earnings for the fiscal year ended April 30, 1990. Revenues for the year totalled $81,244,000 and resulted in net income of $5,026,000 or 39 cents per share based on 12,884,000 weighted average shares outstanding during the year.

Total revenues for the previous year ended April 30, 1989 were $42,897,000 which resulted in net income of $10,010,000 or 79 cents per share based on 12,733,000 weighted average shares outstanding during the period.

Bonneville chairman, Robert L. Wood noted that, "this year's earnings level, while less than last year's record year, is reflective of management's aggressive actions to accelerate attainment of our long-term goals of predictable, recurring revenue and earnings. By these actions, Bonneville is positioning itself to benefit from future anticipated shortages in electric generating capacity."

Bonneville has successfully developed 29 electric generating projects including the 28.5 megawatt cogeneration facility in Watsonville, Calif. which was placed in commercial operation in early June of this year.

PARAMUS, NJ (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - A major breakthrough in brain receptor technology has resulted in a powerful tool to speed development of a broad range of new neurological drugs, including those for migraine headaches, a condition that afflicts some 17 million Americans.

Neurogenetic Corporation said it has identified and cloned the elusive human serotonin neuroreceptor 5HT 1D, widely believed by many scientists to be the brain protein chiefly responsible for controlling migraines, certain eating disorders, and possibly some forms of anxiety.

The 5HT 1D receptor will be used to screen for new drug leads and is expected to quickly replace crude animal tissue assays which, up to now, were the only in vitro way to assess the activity of drugs for migraines.

The limitations of animal tissue assays have led to human clinical disappointments and greatly extended the drug development cycle. What's more, they have been largely ineffective in ruling out compounds with adverse side effects. Neurogenetic Corporation said its screens, using cloned human receptors, accurately indicate how experimental drugs interact with target neurotransmitter receptors and, in many cases, will provide early clues about possible side effects.

The 5HT 1D screen, scheduled to be presented at the 2nd Annual IUPHAR Satellite Meeting on Serotonin in Basel, Switzerland (July 11-13), results from more than three years of painstaking work by Neurogenetic Corporation scientists to isolate and clone genes for a wide variety of the brain's receptor proteins and to make them in large quantities.

Ultimately, Neurogenetic Corporation expects to produce a complete library of all the brain's significant neurotransmitter receptors for in vitro discovery of new drug compounds.

The 5HT 1D receptor was one of initial focus because earlier research with animal models lead scientists to suspect that receptors of this type existed and could play a major role in controlling migraines. These findings led to the development of sumatriptan, a widely touted drug for migraines which Glaxo Holdings, plc expects to submit soon for U.S. FDA approval. Industry experts project the drug's annual sales will be $400-500 million.

Neurogenetic Corporation thus far has cloned 21 receptor subtypes and discovered nine which were previously not known to exist in man or animals. Several of the subtypes belong to the serotonin family of receptors, one of which is 5HT 1D.

MIAMI (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Prospective buyers of 1990 Sterling 827S, 827SL and 827SLi luxury European sedans can now choose between a three-year free-maintenance lease or zero-percent financing as part of Sterling Motor Cars new program.

The package, good on all versions of the firm's vehicles except the flagship limited-production Oxford Edition, includes a full range of both leasing and purchase options.

According to Sterling President Graham Morris, "The programs are designed to provide ample choice and excellent value for our customers; the same characteristics our vehicles offer them.

"We believe this is the most comprehensive and flexible set of financing and leasing options offered in the luxury-car sector," he added.

For as little as $398 per month, a customer can lease a Sterling 827S for 36 months and have all normally required maintenance, as well as costs of repairing normal wear and tear items, paid for by Sterling Motor Cars.

In addition to the three-year/36,000-mile free-maintenance lease program, Sterling, in conjunction with Chase Manhattan (partners in the entire program), will offer four- and five-year lease programs without maintenance.

Customers preferring to purchase their Sterlings will have the choice of a variety of options, beginning with a zero-percent interest rate for a two- or three-year loan.

Both the lease and purchase programs offer a variety of down-payment options to go with the flexibility in program length, Morris explained.

"As with the lease programs, customers can tailor the finance programs to meet their needs," he said.

Based here, Sterling is the United States automobile marketing arm of Rover Group, Great Britain's largest automotive manufacturer. Among the nearly 500,000 vehicles (about the same as BMW) the company produces are the five Sterling luxury sedans.

HOLLAND, MICH. (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Donnelly Corporation (AMEX: DON) of Holland and Optical Coating Laboratory, Inc. (OTC: OCLI) of Santa Rosa, Calif., announced agreement to form a joint venture to complete commercialization of high technology, thin film, solid-state, electrochromic coatings. Products produced by the venture will serve the needs of new markets as well as opportunities in existing markets for each parent company.

Electrochromic coatings are thin film coatings on glass which are only a few millionths of an inch thick and can be changed from light to dark by subjecting the coating to an electric current. The coating darkness will be variable and controllable to meet the preferences of the user. Solid-state thin film electrochromic coatings are particularly well-suited to products requiring large areas of glass (both flat and curved). For many applications, they are superior in function and less expensive compared to other electro-optic light control devices currently available in the world. The market size for solid-state electrochromic coatings is estimated to be more than $1 billion annually.

J. Dwane Baumgardner, chairman of the board for Donnelly Corporation, stated:

"We are very excited about the major opportunities represented by a strategic alliance with OCLI which has, without a doubt, one of the most sophisticated thin film coatings development and manufacturing capabilities in the world, along with an excellent, long-standing business reputation. Some of the advanced new products that could result from this collaboration include variable reflective mirrors for vehicles, variable light transmission windows for homes and offices, vehicle windows and sunroofs, sunglasses, photographic equipment, variable screens for computers, office furniture ... the possibilities are enormous."

OCLI is the world's largest independent manufacturer of thin film coated products. The company also markets its processing technology and thin film coating equipment for specialized applications. Optical and electro-optical systems, such as computer displays, photocopiers, medical equipment, satellites, lighting systems and designer sunglasses depend on OCLI's precision coatings for accuracy and performance. Corporate headquarters are located at Santa Rosa, Calif. Another facility is located near Edinburgh, Scotland.

LAS VEGAS, NEVADA (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - American Pacific Corp. (NASDAQ: APFC; PSE: APFP) and Dynamit Nobel AG, Federal Republic of Germany, the leading manufacturer of sodium azide, announced today that they have reached agreement in principle to form a joint venture for the use of Dynamit Nobel's most advanced technology and knowhow for the design, construction and operation of a plant for the production of sodium azide in the United States. The estimated capital cost of the project is in the range of $20 million. The plant is expected to be in production by the last quarter of 1991.

Sodium azide is the main chemical used in the gas generators for automotive air bag systems. Dynamit Nobel, which has produced sodium azide for commercial applications for 80 years, has developed modern, safe and efficient processes for manufacture of the chemical. American Pacific anticipates construction of the sodium azide plant in Iron County, Utah, near the ammonium perchlorate facility completed in 1989 by the company's Western Electrochemical Company subsidiary.

Fred D. Gibson, Jr., chairman and president of American Pacific, noted that "this announcement is the product of several months of discussions concerning various potential arrangements that would meet the rapidly growing demand for sodium azide resulting from increasing sales of automotive air bag systems. This preliminary agreement is subject to the final negotiation of definitive agreements, and to the company's ability to secure financing for the sodium azide plant. Although there can be no assurance that such final agreements will be concluded, we are pleased with the progress of our discussions, and are optimistic that this venture will represent a major step for American Pacific.

American Pacific's principal business activities consist of the production of ammonium perchlorate, the oxidizer utilized in composite solid rocket propellants employed in a large number of space and military systems. Through direct and indirect subsidiaries, the company is engaged in the manufacture of chlorate and perchlorate chemicals, the design and manufacture of electrolytic systems and electrodes, the design and manufacture of pollution abatement systems, and industrial real estate development.

BAKERSFIELD, CA (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Nahama & Weagant Energy Company (NASDAQ: NAWE) has signed a farmout agreement with ARCO for natural gas drilling in Oregon, in partnership with Oregon Natural Gas Development Corp., Rodney Nahama, president and chief executive officer, announced today.

The agreement covers more than 70,000 acres around ARCO's Mist gas field in Columbia and Clatsop counties in the northwest corner of Oregon. The area contains Oregon's only commercial hydrocarbon production. A minimum of 25 wells are planned for drilling by Dec. 31, 1993. ARCO currently has 17 producing natural gas wells in the field and seven awaiting pipeline hookup. The field, which has produced 39 billion cubic feet of gas to date, is now producing approximately seven million cubic feet of gas per day.

Nahama & Weagant, and its financial partner John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company in limited partnership, will each have a one-third interest in the project, and Oregon Natural Gas Development Corp. will take one third, after payment of certain royalties to ARCO. The agreement provides that the joint venture partners will have access to ARCO's well and exploration data for the field.

Nahama said: "The new agreement fits well with our strategy of emphasizing natural gas exploration and development. As geologists, we are very familiar with the field and are optimistic about its potential. In addition, working in partnership with Oregon Natural Gas, a subsidiary of a major utility in the state, we have an assured purchaser for the gas which we expect to find and produce.

"Our company has a proven record of success in its drilling ventures. Working together with strong partners, we intend to build on that record and thereby expand our reserves, cash flow and earnings."

The Bakersfield independent engages in oil and gas exploration and production, primarily in California.

WALTHAM, MASS. (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - IMC Systems Group, Inc., the only company to provide fully integrated international trade software systems, today introduced a multiuser, multiplatform version of its IMC-PLUS software that allows organizations to integrate the import process on midrange and mainframe computers, in addition to personal computers.

The company also signed a worldwide licensing agreement with J.C. Penney Company, Inc. (NYSE: JCP) -- one of the nation's largest department store retailers -- to provide it with the multiplatform version of IMC-PLUS throughout its worldwide import departments.

With IMC-PLUS importers perform the financial, logistical and operational functions of international trade. In addition to the new multiplatform package, IMC Systems Group offers a DOS-based IMC-PLUS for users of IBM PCs and compatibles. Both products provide multiuser capabilities for importers sharing information among groups of users.

IMC Systems Group developed the multiplatform version of IMC-PLUS using Oracle Corporation's application development environment. The new version of IMC-PLUS enables importers to harness the power of midrange and mainframe computers while running international trade applications under advanced operating systems, such as UNIX and OS/2.

Under terms of the agreement with J.C. Penney, IMC Systems Group will provide the retailer with a license for an unlimited number of IMC-PLUS systems. Operating on UNIX-based Reduced Instruction Set Computing (RISC) workstations, J.C. Penney will use IMC-PLUS throughout its 12 international buying offices in the United States, Europe and Asia to manage the acquisition of imports and bank letters of credit, as well as for managing processes with U.S. Customs and service vendors such as freight forwarders and consolidators.

J.C. Penney, based in Dallas, is the fourth largest department store retailer nationwide, with 1330 stores throughout the U.S., and second largest catalogue retailer, in addition to its Thrift Drug Store operations.

IMC Systems Group's integrated family of import/export software systems automates the financial, logistical, operational and U.S. Customs-related functions of international trade. The company sells its systems directly to key clients worldwide.

HOUSTON (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Compaq Computer Corporation (NYSE: CPQ) today announced its most powerful laptop personal computer and its highest performance 386SX desktop personal computer, both featuring the Intel 20-MHz 386SX microprocessor and an innovative cache memory design.

The COMPAQ SLT 386s/20, the first laptop personal computer with a 20-MHz Intel 386SX and a unique cache memory design, offers mobile professionals an ideal combination of performance and functionality in a rugged, easy-to-carry package. The new laptop PC processes information up to 50 percent faster than 16-MHz 386SX-based systems, such as the desktop IBM PS/2 Model 55 SX, and nearly twice as fast as 12-MHz 286-based systems.

Similar in design to the COMPAQ SLT/286, the battery-powered COMPAQ SLT 386s/20 weighs 14 pounds, measures about 4-inches high by 13 1/2-inches wide by 8 1/2-inches deep, and provides for more than three hours of battery life. The new laptop is available in two models: Model 120, which includes a 120-Megabyte Fixed Disk Drive; and Model 60, which includes a 60-Megabyte Fixed Disk Drive. Both come standard with a 3 1/2-Inch 1.44-Megabyte Diskette Drive, two megabytes of system memory, and a one-year limited warranty.

Suggested resale prices for the COMPAQ SLT 386s/20 Model 120 and Model 60 are $7,499 (U.S.) and $6,799 (U.S.), respectively. Shipments will begin this week to Authorized COMPAQ Computer Dealers worldwide.

For the desktop user, the new COMPAQ DESKPRO 386s/20 Personal Computer also features the 20-MHz version of the 386SX microprocessor combined with a highly efficient cache memory design, and offers an exceptional combination of performance, features and expandability.

Designed for a wide variety of business environments, the COMPAQ DESKPRO 386s/20 sets a new performance standard for 386SX-based desktop PCs, delivering up to 50 percent faster system performance than non-cached 16-MHz 386SX products, such as the IBM PS/2 Model 55 SX. The COMPAQ DESKPRO 386s/20 is ideal for a broad range of applications such as spreadsheets, desktop publishing, database management, word processing and electronic mail.

Compaq Computer Corporation is a world leader in the manufacture of PC systems, and desktop, portable and laptop personal computers.

Founded in February 1982, Compaq is a Fortune 200 company with 1989 worldwide sales of $2.9 billion. COMPAQ products are sold in 63 countries through a network of more than 3,000 Authorized COMPAQ Computer Dealers.

BOSTON (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Healthco International, Inc. (NASDAQ: HLCO), announced today that its board of directors determined to explore all possible alternatives available to the company, including a possible merger or other transaction. Healthco stated that its objectives are to maximize values for all shareholders, to protect its employees and to continue to service its cutomers and the dental profession. Lazard Freres & Co., Healthco's investment banker and financial advisor, and Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz, Healthco's special legal counsel, will be working together with Healthco to facilitate this process. Additionally, Healthco stated that there have been recent expresssions of interest in a transaction involving the company.

Healthco also stated that its board of directors set Sept. 6, 1990, as the date for the 1990 annual meeting of stockholders and July 27, 1990, as the record date for the annual meeting. The board also set June 25, 1990, as the record date for any consent solicitation which might be made by Gemini Partners, L.P.

The Healthco board stated that it made its decision in the expectation that shareholders would not execute consents but would permit the process undertaken by the board to be concluded as expeditiously as possible. The board noted that all Healthco shareholders will have a full and informed opportunity to assess the results of the board's efforts to maximize values at the annual meeting in early September. Healthco stated that there is no assurance that a transaction proposal will be developed or, if such a proposal is developed, that it can be recommended by the Healthco board in accordance with its fiduciary obligations to the company and shareholders.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Human clinical trials will begin shortly on insulinotropin, an insulin releasing hormone, for the control of blood glucose levels in Type II diabetics. The drug was developed under a collaborative research and development agreement between Pfizer Inc. (NYSE: PFE) and Metabolic Biosystems Inc. (Meta Bio), a subsidiary of California Biotechnology Inc. (NASDAQ: CBIO). The trials will be conducted by Pfizer.

Type II diabetics do not release enough insulin from the pancreas when blood glucose rises in response to eating a meal. The American Diabetes Association estimates that about one-half of the 11 million Type II diabetics in the U.S. are currently being treated. Present therapies include insulin injections, oral hypoglycemic agents, and diet and exercise. Insulinotropin is a natural hormone which promotes insulin release and may represent a novel therapeutic approach to this disease.

Pfizer is investigating an injectable form of the product and a nasal form utilizing Cal Bio's Nazdel(R) nasal delivery technology.

Insulinotropin was discovered four years ago by Joel F. Habener, M.D., an Investigator in the Howard Hughes Medical Institute at Massachusetts General Hospital (Mass General) and Professor of Medicine at Harvard Medical School. Several Mass General patents have been filed in the United States and abroad and Meta Bio is the exclusive licensee. In mid-1988, Meta Bio signed a broad collaborative research and product development agreement with Pfizer in the area of diabetes and obesity.

"The collaboration with Pfizer began only two years ago," noted Richard L. Casey, Cal Bio president and chief executive officer, "and already a product is entering the clinic. This demonstrates the synergies achieved in the Pfizer-Meta Bio relationship. We are pleased with the progress Pfizer and Meta Bio have made working together and look forward to continued research and product development achievements."

Pfizer is a worldwide research-based company with business in health care, consumer products, animal health, specialty chemicals, and specialty minerals. The company has developed major drugs to treat diabetes and its complications, cardiovascular disease, arthritis and infectious diseases. Pfizer employs more than 40,000 people and will spend about $620 million worldwide on research and development in 1990.

Metabolic Biosystems Inc. is a research and development company focusing on significant new therapeutics to treat diabetes and obesity. The company was founded jointly by Cal Bio and three leading scientific and medical collaborators affiliated with Harvard University: Jeffrey S. Flier, M.D., Beth Israel Hospital, C. Ronald Kahn, M.D., Joslin Diabetes Center and Bruce M. Spiegelman, Ph.D., Dana-Farber Cancer Research Institute.

California Biotechnology Inc. is a biopharmaceutical company engaged in the development of a number of novel human therapeutics on its own behalf and through collaborative arrangements with other pharmaceutical and biotechnology companies.

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Isramco, Inc. (NASDAQ: ISRL) announced today, on behalf of the partners in the Negev Venture 2 that the production tests in the 17,400 foot formation in the Yam 2 well were stopped on June 17, owing to mechanical difficulties. The mechanical problems were caused by high temperatures (358 degrees Fahrenheit) and very high pressure (approximately 13,000 API) which prevail in this formation.

At the operator's meeting, which took place on June 17, the following report on the results of the test of the 17,400 foot level was issued: "During the test there was a flow of oil and high quality (47 degrees API) without sulfur at an initial rate of 800 barrels of oil a day through a 20/64ths-inch choke and under 967 psi (pounds per square inch) surface flowing tubing pressure at the well head. This flow rate occurred without any stimulation through acidizing which is usual in limestone reservoirs, and should have taken place during the test, but did not because the test was stopped. The technical experts estimated that the stimulating action could have improved the oil's flow rate.

"The partners are encouraged by the information gained from having discovered high quality oil and consider it early at this stage to estimate or evaluate production capability from the reservoir at the 17,400-foot depth. It would appear that further confirmation wells will be required to complete the test at this depth."

In the meantime procedures for conducting production tests at 12,900 feet where gas was encountered during drilling have been started. At the conclusion of the test a release will be made.

DEARBORN, MICH. (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - CMS Energy Corporation (NYSE: CMS) today announced that the Midland Cogeneration Venture (MCV), of which it is a 49-percent owner, has completed the largest sale/leaseback transaction in U.S. history, totaling $2.3 billion. Twelve-year permanent debt financing, totaling $536 million, was also arranged with 30 lenders.

The 25-year sale/leaseback transaction was completed with a consortium of institutional investors. As a result, CMS Energy subsidiaries now own: a 49-percent MCV partner interest with an investment value of $57 million; a 35-percent lessor interest with an investment value of $207 million; and four series of MCV notes, totaling $1.2 billion with rights to an additional $300 million contingent upon successful appeals of certain regulatory decisions.

Also, the MCV partners announced creation of a second partnership (MCV II) with the existing seven equity partners, including a CMS Energy subsidiary as a 49-percent partner, to expand the generating capacity at the MCV site as the need for more electricity develops throughout the midwestern U.S. and Canada.

"The sale/leaseback transaction completes a four-year effort by CMS Energy and its partners in structuring the MCV project, securing long- term natural gas supplies, constructing the plant and obtaining permanent financing for the facility," said William T. McCormick Jr., CMS Energy Corporation's chairman and chief executive officer.

"The MCV project has developed 1,370 megawatts of badly needed electric generating capacity, and 1.35 million pounds per hour of industrial process steam, while creating $1.8 billion of value from the previously abandoned Midland nuclear plant," said McCormick.

McCormick stressed that "CMS Energy's strategy to seek conversion opportunities of other abandoned nuclear plants throughout the U.S. is an attempt to utilize our management expertise and knowledge gained in the MCV conversion to create additional value for our shareholders."

CMS Energy Corporation is a $3 billion (sales) diversified energy company with businesses engaged in the distribution of electricity and natural gas interstate storage and transmission of natural gas, oil and gas exploration and production, independent power generation and utility services. CMS Energy Corporation's principal subsidiary is Consumers Power Company, Michigan's largest utility and the nation's fourth- largest combination utility.

VANCOUVER, CANADA (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Royal Oak Resources Ltd. announces that it has signed a letter agreement with the principal lenders to Giant Resources Limited of Australia to purchase the Canadian gold assets of Giant Resources.

These assets, which were offered for sale by Giant Resources, include:

1. 8,010,892 shares of Pamour Inc., representing 67.08 percent of its outstanding shares;

2. 1,400,000 shares of Giant Yellowknife Mines Limited, representing 16.65 percent of its outstanding shares; and

3. debt in the amount of approximately $15 million owing from Pamour to Giant Resources, secured by a pledge of Pamour's investment portfolio.

The agreement calls for the assets to be acquired for a purchase price of $33 million and is subject to, among other things, successful negotiations of an agreement of purchase and sale, regulatory approval, and financing. The agreement excludes the shares and assets of ERG Resources Inc. The principal asset of ERG Resources is a tailings retreatment plant in Timmins, Ontario.

The acquisition is expected to close on or before Sept. 27, 1990. Pamour Inc. is a holding company for several resource based investments in Canada collectively referred to as the Pamour Group of Companies. Through its control of Pamour Inc., and through its direct holdings in Giant Yellowknife Mines, Royal Oak will gain effective control of the following companies: Pamour Inc., Giant Yellowknife Mines Limited, Pamorex Minerals, Arctic Precious Metals Inc., Akaitcho Yellowknife Gold Mines Limited, Supercrest Mines Limited and Mate Yellowknife Gold Mines Limited.

With this acquisition, Royal Oak will control approximately 200,000 ounces per year of annual gold production from gold mining operations in Timmins, Ontario and Yellowknife, Northwest Territories, and will control an extensive collection of exploration properties surrounding these two operations. The current land holdings which are being acquired have accounted for 48 million ounces of historical gold production.

Royal Oak's president and chief executive officer, Margaret K. Witte, stated "Royal Oak's well balanced group of experienced mining professionals are ideally suited to manage these assets in a cost effective manner. The plan we have developed will facilitate a turn around in what have historically been high cost mining operations."

FOXBORO, MA PR NEWSWIRE - The Foxboro Company (NYSE: FOX) today announced that its board of directors has amended its Stockholder Rights Plan.

Under the terms of the Stockholder Rights Plan, originally adopted in April of 1988, each full right entitles the holder to buy one- hundreth of a share of Foxboro Series A Junior Participating Cumulative Preferred Stock for $125. Upon the occurrence of certain events, the Rights will entitle the holder to acquire this preferred Foxboro stock at half of its market value or, in certain situtations, to buy stock in the acquiring company at half its market value.

With the amended plan, a holder of a right will be entitled to acquire the preferred stock at one-half its market vale if someone acquires 15 percent of Foxboro's outstanding common stock or if the directors declare a person to be an "adverse person" after a determination that such person has acquired at least 10 percent of Foxboro's outstanding common stock and such ownership is likely to cause certain specified adverse effects. Under the original plan, a stockholder would not be entitled to acquire the preferred stock at such price until a person acquired at least 30 percent of Foxboro's outstanding common stock. The amendments also incorporate into the Rights Plan certain provisions included in the Rights Plans of a significant number of other companies.

These amendments are intended to enhance the Rights Plan's deterrent effect against coercive takeover tactics generally, particularly "Street Sweeps" and market accumulation programs.

A copy of the amended Rights Plans will be filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission shortly.

LAWRENCEVILLE, NJ (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Imo Industries Inc. (NYSE: IMD) today announced two transactions that will extend its Power Products and Services aftermarket business and will enhance its Electro-Optical Systems business.

IMO has agreed to acquire certain assets of Quabbin Industries Inc., a privately held supplier of aftermarket parts and service. Separately, IMO signed a definitive agreement to acquire Optic-Electronic Corp. (OEC), a wholly owned subsidiary of United Scientific Holdings PLC and a producer of electro-optical components and systems.

The acquisition of Quabbin is expected to be completed on July 2. The purchase price is approximately $24 million in cash. Completion of the OEC transaction, for approximately $38 million in cash, requires approval by the Federal Trade Commission and approval by the shareholders of United Scientific Holdings. The FTC approval procedure is expected to take about 90 days. These acquisitions will be paid for from IMO's cash on hand and cash flow.

Quabbin, headquartered in Chicopee, Mass., and with additional locations in Jacksonville, Fla., Los Angeles and St. Louis, had revenue of approximately $26 million and income before interest and taxes of approximately $4 million in 1989. The company provides replacement parts and maintenance and repair service for seals, diaphragms, nozzles and blades for large steam turbines used by public utilities and petrochemical facilities.

OEC, based in Garland, Texas, within blocks of IMO's Varo operation, had sales of $67.6 million and pretax income of $5 million in its fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1989. It has a current backlog of approximately $83 million. OEC's product line includes night vision systems, laser systems and other related electro-optical components and systems. It also has advanced technical competence in optical coating and fiber optic fabrication.

IMO had an agreement in September 1989 to acquire OEC for $65 million. That transaction was blocked by the FTC on the grounds that it could substantially reduce competition in the production of second generation 25 millimeter image intensifier tubes. Under the terms of a consent agreement, IMO must seek prior FTC approval before acquiring any company that has manufactured and sold 25 millimeter second generation image intensifier tubes in the United States.

IMO supplies analytical and optical instruments, electronic and mechanical controls, engineered power products and their support services to industrial and defense customers worldwide.

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - In a move that further establishes Ramtron as a dominant force in the development of advanced semiconductor memory devices, Ramtron Australia Ltd. (ADRs - NASDAQ: MEMRY) today announced a broad expansion of its U.S. subsidiary's strategic alliance with NMB Semiconductors, Ltd. ("NMBS"). NMBS is one of the world's fastest growing semiconductor memory manufacturers and is a subsidiary of the Minebea Company, Ltd., a $3.0 billion Japanese industrial company.

Ramtron/NMBS Joint Venture Company

Ramtron said that its majority-owned microelectronics subsidiary, Ramtron Corporation, and NMBS have jointly formed a separate company to design and develop advanced generations of high-speed Dynamic Random Access Memories (DRAMs) with densities of 16-megabits (16 million bits per chip) and above, as well as other specialty memory products for broad consumer, commercial and industrial applications. The new company's design group is the same team that designed the world's first 40 nanosecond four-megabit CMOS DRAM.

The new venture, which will begin operations on July 1, 1990, will serve as a research, design and development resource for both Ramtron and NMBS. The president of the new company is Sheffield Eaton, former DRAM design manager of Ramtron Corporation. The chairman of the board is Shosuke Sinoda, also executive vice president of NMBS.

Brian Harcourt, chairman of Ramtron Australia, said, "Ramtron's further expansion into the development of advanced 16-megabit and specialty DRAM products represents significant new revenue potential for Ramtron." He added, "The new joint venture company together with our alliances with Seiko-Epson of Japan and ITT Semiconductors of West Germany increases our manufacturing capabilities to more than $300 million without the need for capital investment on Ramtron's part."

Takumi Tamura, president of NMBS, added, "We are very pleased to join Ramtron in this cooperative venture. The partnership will bring a new generation of memory technology and products to the market."

DRAM Production Update

Separately, Ramtron said that the 1-megabit and 4-megabit DRAMs already developed jointly by Ramtron and NMBS are currently entering production at NMBS' two existing manufacturing facilities, and will enter production at NMBS' new $350 million wafer fabrication facility in September 1990. Commercial sales and royalty revenues from these products are expected to commence in the first half of 1991.

Ramtron Corporation, founded in 1984, also develops leading edge semiconductor memory products based on proprietary ferroelectric materials advanced processing and design technologies. Ramtron is the world's leader in Ferroelectronic Random Access Memories (FRAMs).

ROCHESTER, NY (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - ACC Long Distance Ltd. will install the first DEX 400 switch in Toronto and the first signaling system 7 (SS 7) network between the United States and Canada.

The switch, manufactured by DSC Communications Corporation, is planned for installation during the third quarter of 1990. This was announced today by Richard T. Aab, chairman and chief executive officer of parent company ACC Corp. (NASDAQ: ACCC)

"We are proud to have ACC as a customer and thankful for the opportunity to place the first DEX switch in the rapidly deregulating Canadian IXC (Interexchange) market," remarked Robert E. Hurd, regional director for DSC.

ACC has been operating in Toronto since 1985 using leased facilities from Bell Canada and UniTel (CNCP). To date, the company has exclusively provided private line customers with U.S. destined long-distance service.

Recent CRTC resale rulings will enable ACC to provide Intra-Canada and international service in addition to U.S. destined service. Switching capabilities will enable ACC to target over 20,000 additional Toronto customers.

"ACC intends to be a major player in the Canadian resale long-distance industry," remarked Aab. As further evidence of this conviction, the company plans to expand into Montreal and Ottawa by the third quarter of 1990.

ACC Corp. is the parent company of ACC Long Distance Ltd., ACC Long Distance Corp., ACC Network Corp., ACC Global Corp., ACC Local Fiber Corp. and Danbury Cellular Telephone Company. The company provides long-distance telephone service throughout northeastern United States and eastern Canada. The company's stock is listed on the National Market (OTC) under the NASDAQ symbol ACCC.

OMAHA (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Northern Border Pipeline Company announced today that it has filed an optional certificate application with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) to expand and extend the Northern Border system. In support of its application, Northern Border began a preliminary request period on June 1 for the purpose of receiving requests for firm transportation service associated with the proposal. On the first day of the proposal, the company received requests for approximately 2 billion cubic feet per day (Bcf/d) of capacity in the extension.

Under the expansion and extension proposal, Northern Border will construct five additional compressor stations on the existing 822-mile, 42-inch pipeline system and construct 368 miles of 30-inch pipeline to extend the line from Ventura, Iowa, to interconnect with Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Company at Tuscola, Ill. Two compressor stations will be constructed on the new 30-inch line. The project is estimated to cost $373 million and can be ready for service as early as November 1991.

The expanded/extended system will have a capacity of 1.7 Bcf/d for transporting natural gas from Canada, the Williston Basin and the Great Plains Coal Gasification Project. Of that volume, 450 million cubic feet per day (MMcf/d) will be able to flow through the extension to Tuscola. The extended pipeline route would intersect five existing interstate systems including ANR Pipeline Company, Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America, Northern Natural Gas Company, Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Company and Trunkline Gas Company.

"We have always believed that this project provides the best alternatives and opportunities to the marketplace and ensures competitive benefits to a wide range of customers," said Larry L. DeRoin, chairman of the Northern Border Management Committee. " The route provides supply diversity and operational flexibility to all pipelines and local distribution companies near Northern Border's existing and proposed facilities. The June 1 response from the marketplace seems to bear this out."

Other beneficiaries include Williston Basin and Midcontinent producers who will have access to transportation opportunities either directly on Northern Border or through displacement on other pipeline systems, DeRoin said.

Northern Border is a general partnership which includes subsidiaries of four major energy companies: Enron Corp. (NYSE: ENE), Houston; TransCanada PipeLines, Limited (NYSE: TRP), Calgary; Panhandle Eastern Corporation (NYSE: PEL), Houston; and The Williams Companies, Inc. (NYSE: WMB), Tulsa.

LONDON (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - A consortium of companies headed by GE Information Services has been selected by the European Commission to carry out one of the projects in the EC IMPACT Road Transport field.

The EC IMPACT program supports the development of information technology initiatives.

GE Information Services will lead its partners - SARITEL (formerly SEAT) of Italy, a subsidiary of STET, and Transpotel of the Federal Republic of Germany, in the development of a two-year project called OSIRIS - Open Systems Integrated Roadfreight Information Services.

The project will take advantage of the networking and systems integration strengths of GE Information Services, the well-established freight offer-demand database from Transpotel, and the electronic publishing skills of SARITEL.

The development of a common software platform and workstation will allow harmonized access to the partners' national and international freight exchange services, thus allowing improved Europe-wide access to data on available truck capacity by destination and goods required to be transported.

At a later date, further development will allow the addition of new interfaces or bridges to other freight services, private systems and technical platforms.

Based on existing standards, including EDIFACT/X400 and OSI/communications the design emphasis will be on compatibility and enhancement of current industry situations rather than on the introduction of new standards.

The system will use open architecture which is portable and powerful enough to provide easy use, efficient throughput and performance, as well as supplying all the functions to meet present and future data processing needs. Other major design criteria will be system security, in order to maintain commercial integrity, and the ability to meet multi-lingual requirements.

Aimed at road hauliers, the principal benefit will be the possibility of increasing truck utilization by accurately matching supply to demand. Additional benefits will arise from the reduction of paperwork and multiple re-keying of information. Further services such as weather reports, traffic conditions and hotel information may subsequently be incorporated, depending on industry requirements.

For shippers wishing to move goods, the benefits are equally attractive. These will include improved operational efficiency as a result of better availability of trucking services, cost reductions and greater control of schedules and transport routes. The service closely matches the demands of Just-In-Time manufacturing.

These facilities are of strategic importance to the Road Freight industry and to the European information services market as a whole. They fully integrate with GE Information Services' recently announced CARGO LINK Services specifically designed for the trade and transportation sector.

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Datapoint Corporation (NYSE: DPT) today announced the availability of ORACLE 6 relational database software on Datapoint's 7000 line of 80386 and 80486 single and multi-processor network servers, offering a powerful, transparent growth path for PC-networked ORACLE users.

"With the new Datapoint-ORACLE combination, users of NETBIOS PC networks who need to support ORACLE users with a single common database can do so with the addition of one machine -- a Datapoint 7000 Series Server," explained John Perkins, Datapoint product marketing manager. "And, from the user's point of view, the addition changes nothing -- except for enhancing database response time and increasing capacity. To achieve those improvements, all the user needs to do is plug the new system into the existing network."

A Datapoint 7000 Series server can be added to an existing NETBIOS network (using either the ARCNET, Token Ring or Ethernet protocols) without modifying the environment, operating in both client-server and server-server modes.

The 7000 Series includes Datapoint's line of powerful, tightly- coupled, symmetric multi-processor systems, optimized for use as PC network database servers. The latest member is the Datapoint 7850, which boasts two 25 MHZ 80486 processors. Thanks to symmetric multi- processing (which gives all tasks executing on the system unrestricted access to all processors) the Datapoint 7850 offers the highest performance of any network database server available today. And upgrading within the 7000 Series requires no conversions, no software changes, and no user retaining.

ORACLE 6 is the most recent version of the ORACLE relational database management system from the Oracle Corp. of Belmont, Calif.

While other PC network database servers may support up to 16 concurrent ORACLE users, a 7850 can support up to 64. ORACLE software "user banding" is available with the system, giving the buyer tremendous flexibility in matching needs with capability.

Datapoint Corporation, headquartered in San Antonio, is a worldwide manufacturer, marketer and leading developer of local area network-based computer and communications products and systems.

BRIDGEPORT, CT (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Citytrust announced today that it has sold its MasterCard, Visa and American Express credit card portfolios to First Omni Bank, N.A. of Millsboro, Del., a wholly owned subsidiary of First Maryland Bancorp.

"The portfolios were sold as part of Citytrust's plan to strengthen its capital position by selling certain assets," said George F. Taylor, chairman and chief executive officer.

First Omni was selected to purchase and service Citytrust's credit card portfolios because it is a large provider of credit card services with a reputation for delivering a high level of service.

"The credit card business is being taken over by very large banks that enjoy economies of scale," Taylor noted. "As a result, our competitive edge was being eroded and it became attractive to sell the portfolio at this time."

Citytrust will continue to provide a credit card service to its customers and will function as a sales agent for First Omni, Taylor added. "This is an important service for our customers and an attractive source of fee income for Citytrust," he said.

DAYTON, OH (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Robbins & Myers, Inc. (NASDAQ: ROBN) today reported an increase in income for the third quarter of fiscal 1990 and for the nine month period ending May 31, 1990.

After recognizing a $390,000 gain on the sale of unused property, net income rose 33 percent to $1.5 million, from $1.1 million in last year's third quarter. Net income for the nine month period was $4.2 million, an increase of 48 percent from the $2.8 million for the same period in 1989.

Earnings per share were $.60 for the quarter, and $1.65 year-to-date, up from $.47 for the third quarter last year and $1.17 reported for the nine month period of 1989.

Sales were down 5.5 percent for the quarter to $26.6 million from the $28.1 million for the third quarter of 1989. Year-to-date sales, however, were $81.2 million, up 2.4 percent over the same period last year.

The company's sales decline this quarter was due to the first half weak order rate in the Motion Control Group, which was reported earlier. However, the group has seen an improving trend in the incoming order rate for this period, the strongest in several quarters. Backlog for the company increased 21 percent from the second quarter and stands at $36.6 million.

Daniel W. Duval, president and CEO stated, "This positive trend should continue through the balance of the fiscal year. We remain optimistic about our brushless products for the factory automation markets supported by the high level of inquiries we are experiencing."

The Fluids Handling Group remains the strong performer for the company. This quarter the group reported continued progress in several markets including replacement parts, municipal waste water treatment and the oil recovery industry.

Robbins & Myers, Inc. designs, manufactures and markets an array of fluids handling and motion control products for markets around the world. The Fluids Handling Group manufactures progressing cavity pumps for a variety of industrial and municipal applications.

The Motion Control Group manufactures AC motors and DC servosystems and optical encoders for office and industrial automation applications. The company is traded on the NASDAQ-NMS under the symbol ROBN.

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Wertheim Schroder & Co. Incorporated, the New York-based, global investment bank, announced today that it has established a real estate department, to be involved in advisory, principal and agency work for Wertheim itself and for its clients. Bradford Klatt has joined the firm in its New York office as a managing director and head of the department.

The announcement was made by James A. Harmon, chairman and chief executive officer of Wertheim Schroder.

Klatt, an attorney, established his own firm, Metropolis Equities, Inc. in 1988 to develop investment programs in real estate and real estate securities. Metropolis' activities and personnel will merge into Wertheim Schroder to establish the real estate department. Previously, Klatt was at Goldman, Sachs & Co. where he established a department which took principal positions in a variety of investments for the firm's account.

Wertheim Schroder's real estate department will support the firm and its clients by developing investment programs to achieve long-term growth of capital and current income, through selective investments in real estate, real estate securities and retail companies that can benefit from financial restructuring. It will also take an active advisory role helping major investors determine asset values and restructuring opportunities in the public and private securities markets.

Klatt states that "the current real estate financing climate is one which provides an excellent opportunity for a creative, dynamic firm like Wertheim Schroder to build a broad real estate presence. The firm is well poised, talent is available and the business cycle is at a point where a committed firm will attract more than its fair share of quality business."

Klatt will be joined by his associate from Metropolis Equities, Aaron Mack.

Klatt received a B.A. degree from Skidmore College in 1974 and graduated from Albany Law School in 1977. After law school, he was associated with the law firm of Schulte, Roth & Zabel. Klatt maintains an active interest in his family's residential real estate business and he is currently on the board of directors of E.& B. Marine, Marathon Communications and The American Cancer Society (New York City division).

CHARLESTON, WV (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Key Centurion Bancshares Inc. (NASDAQ: KEYC) announced today that it has modified a stock repurchase program it announced in February 1990. The February announcement indicated Key Centurion's board had authorized the repurchase of up to $12 million of the company's common stock.

Marshall T. Reynolds, chairman of Key Centurion said, "Our original intent with the repurchase program was to buy approximately $1 million a month over the course of 1990. Subsequently we have announced three merger proposals involving more than $550 million in commercial bank assets.

"Two of the proposed mergers are structured as cash transactions totaling $38 million in a combined purchase price. The third transaction has a market value of $53.6 million and will be accounted for as a pooling of interests."

"Accordingly," he concluded, "because of the pooling we have decided to reduce the level of the buyback to approximately $300,000 monthly, subject to the regulatory requirements of our mergers, until at least 30 days after the completion of these transactions, probably sometime in this year's fourth quarter.

"However, we would anticipate thereafter a resumption of the repurchase program along the lines of our original program - that is, we intend to repurchase a total of $12 million in market value of our common stock."

A. Michael Perry, president and chief executive officer, commented, "We have not deviated from our original purposes in initiating the repurchase program. Key Centurion's strengths - its strong equity position and profitability - allowed us the discretion to initiate the buyback.

"We believe that a buyback ultimately will enhance and strengthen the investment characteristics of our stock, given its potential for increasing earnings per share and return on equity.

"Since a repurchase program is a very effective way of utilizing our strengths, we are accordingly still committed to it as the timing and regulatory requirements of our merger activity dictates."

Key Centurion has previously announced definitive merger agreements with the boards of Southern Bankshares Inc. and Spectrum Financial Corp. Southern is a $300 million asset two bank holding company with bank subsidiaries located in Beckley, Raleigh County and Oak Hill, in adjacent Fayette County, West Virginia.

Spectrum is also a two bank holding company with bank subsidiaries located in Wheeling, Ohio County and New Martinsville, Wetzel County, W.Va., with $264 million in assets. Key Centurion would close on $3 billion in commercial bank assets and almost $2 billion in total trust assets on a combined pro forma basis assuming completion of the proposed mergers.

Key Centurion, West Virginia's largest bank holding company, currently has banking subsidiaries with 45 offices in West Virginia and Kentucky.

KANSAS CITY, MO (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The music industry is now entering the world of information conversion as SAZTEC International, Inc. (NASDAQ: SAZZ), a world leader in information technology, and the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC) today announced the signing of an agreement to use SAZTEC services to electronically capture the BBC Gramophone Library catalogue index. The index will then be converted into CD-ROM.

The BBC Gramophone Library is the largest collection of fully indexed music information in the world, holding nearly 1.5 million records in cylinder, shellac, vinyl and digital formats. The transfer of the index into CD-ROM will allow the information that had previously been accessible only to personal callers and authorized BBC personnel now to be available to anyone in the United Kingdom who owns a CD player plugged into a personal computer.

According to Thomas L. Reed, chairman and chief executive officer of SAZTEC, this agreement allows SAZTEC to diversify its services into another area of information conversion.

"This latest contract is significant because it gives SAZTEC an opportunity to use its information conversion expertise in an area such as music. With our services, the BBC, which was running out of room to store its library, will soon be able to put the entire contents of the gramophone library on just three compact disks," said Reed.

According to Reed, the process to electronically capture the Gramophone Library's nearly 1.5 million collection will take approximately one year.

This contract follows the company's success in providing conversion services for the British Library card catalogue system, which is over four million titles and two billion keystrokes.

SAZTEC, an international leader in the use of computer technology, provides comprehensive services to convert information for use on new or existing computer systems.

CLIFTON, NJ (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Vertex Industries, Inc. (NASDAQ: VETX) today announced results for the third quarter and nine months ended April 30, 1990.

"Our sales for the nine months showed a small gain over last year's nine-month period, but most encouraging was the sharp reduction in net loss down to $14,000 compared to a loss of $237,000 for the first nine months of fiscal 1989. We anticipate improved financial performance based on increasing sales of our maturing products coupled with reduced expenditures," James Q. Maloy, president, said.

Sales for the quarter ended April 30, 1990 were $880,848 against $947,247 in the same three-month period last year. The company had a net loss of $21,776, or one cent per share, as compared to a net loss of $31,339, or 2 cents per share, in the same quarter last year.

For the first nine months of fiscal 1990 net sales were $2,752,941 compared to $2,708,766 for the comparable period last year. There was a net loss of $14,330, or one cent per share, for the period against a net loss of $237,070, or 14 cents per share, for the same period in the prior year. The company's working capital increased by $159,335 in the first nine months of fiscal 1989.

Vertex completed installation of its Security Access/Attendance Systems in five New York City high schools, and delivered systems for 10 additional schools. The company also said it received orders for 1,625 Debit Card Systems from a major food service company and supplier of airport baggage cart services.

Vertex Industries manufactures and markets automated card readers, encoders, writers and encoders for credit and debit cards and identification badges; bar code scanners and data-collection terminals, and prevision weighing equipment.

FORT WAYNE, IND. (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Norfolk Southern's (NYSE: NSC) Triple Crown Services subsidiary has opened a RoadRailer(R) terminal at Dalton, Ga., to provide rail-highway freight service to six markets in the Northeast and Midwest.

"Norfolk Southern's intermodal terminal at Dalton is now doubling as the eleventh terminal for handling RoadRailer trailers," said Daniel Cushman, senior vice president-general manager of Triple Crown Services.

"RoadRailer equipment can quickly be transferred from highway to rail and back to highway," Cushman said. "Our drivers will be picking up trailers within 150 miles of Dalton and then we'll put them on the rail for Buffalo Cleveland, Detroit, Fort Wayne, Kansas City or St. Louis. Within two days our drivers will deliver these trailers to industries within 150 miles of these six markets."

Norfolk Southern will have RoadRailer service to Dalton Monday through Friday. In addition to RoadRailer, the Dalton Terminal will continue to handle containers and trailers in intermodal service.

ST. PETERSBURG, FL (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Home Shopping Network, Inc. (AMEX: HSN), the nation's largest electronic retailer, today announced record sales for the third quarter and first nine months of fiscal 1990, ending May 31, 1990. Net sales for the third quarter increased $67.8 million, or 37.9 percent to $246.5 million from the $178.7 million reported in the same period last year. HSN's year-to-date sales rose $176.8 million to a record $763.7 million, up 30.1 percent from the $586.9 million achieved last year.

Income before extraordinary item for the third quarter reached $4.0 million, or $.04 per share, compared with a loss of $(7.7) million, or $(.09) per share, in 1989's third quarter. The current year's third quarter did not include any extraordinary gain from the repurchase of long-term obligations compared to a gain of $1.8 million, or $.02 per share, in the same period last year. As a result, net income for the third quarter of 1990 was $4.0 million, or $.04 per share, compared with a loss of $(5.9) million, or $(.07) per share in 1989.

Fiscal 1990 year-to-date income before extraordinary item increased more than 648 percent to $31.1 million, or $.33 per share, from $4.2 million, or $.04 per share, in fiscal 1989.

For the first nine months of fiscal 1990, the extraordinary after tax gain from debt repurchases was $6.0 million, or $.06 per share, compared with $7.0 million, or $.08 per share, in fiscal 1989. Fiscal 1990 year-to-date net income increased 232 percent to a record $37.1 million, or $.39 per share, from $11.2 million, or $.12 per share, in fiscal 1989.

Roy M. Speer, chairman and chief executive officer said, "Our record results reaffirm the strength of the electronic retailing industry and HSN's position as the industry's leader."

SACRAMENTO, CALIF. (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Merck Sharp & Dohme (MSD) and the state of California today announced an agreement whereby MSD will provide its single -- source prescription medicines to the State's Medi-Cal Program at MSD's lowest price.

The agreement will help ensure that California's Medicaid recipients can receive the full range of MSD medicines available to the general public.

"This agreement will bring the benefits of the best medicines to less advantaged citizens at a favorable cost to hard-pressed taxpayers," said Dr. John L. Zabriskie, president of MSD. "Everyone benefits: Medi- Cal patients will have better access to valuable MSD medicines; the cost of over a dozen of our products will be reduced; and the ability of physicians to prescribe the best drug for each patient will be enhanced."

Under the MSD Equal Access to Medicines Plan, the company will extend to Medi-Cal its best price for outpatient medications and physicians will have enhanced access to current and future MSD single- source products. The savings will be given to the state as quarterly equalization payments based on the difference between the MSD price to wholesalers, and any lower price extended to any customer including the federal government. MSD said it estimates the payments to California will amount to $2 million or more each year. The agreement takes effect July 1. Similar agreements have been reached between MSD and other states.

Zabriskie said the agreement will add four of MSD's major products, including its cholesterol lowering drug MEVACOR(R), to the list of medicines for Medi-Cal patients. He credited several California health administrators and legislators for their efforts in making the program available to Medi-Cal patients.

"America's health care cost problems have been felt acutely in the nation's Medicaid program," Zabriskie said. "Our new plan will help ensure that poor people in California and other states will be able to obtain the most appropriate MSD medicine for their health problems, while at the same time providing the states assistance through favorable pricing. In the debate over health care costs, it is important to remember that disease creates the cost. When high-value medicines have been discovered and made available, they have reduced the toll of human suffering and the overall cost of health care."

SANTA CLARA (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - What do beauty imaging, 3-D design software and a wholesale distribution system that can help identify hot new trends have in common?

Besides their promise for making the workplace of the 1990s more efficient they're part of the many business solutions for companies of all sizes that will be demonstrated at the IBM Application Show set for June 18 and June 19 at the Santa Clara Convention Center, 5001 Great America Parkway.

Santa Clara-based high-tech companies will join national firms in demonstrating their latest software developments, including one that enables hair stylists to visually communicate with their clients in a revolutionary way, another provides an effective way of identifying hot new items before a competitor does. The show, part of a tour by IBM of more than 20 cities, will be held on Monday, June 18 from 9:00 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. and on Tuesday, June 19 from 7:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. Admission is free.

One IBM Business Partner, Computer Design Inc. of Grand Rapids, Mich. will demonstrate how new car customers will soon be able to visit a showroom and choose interior and exterior color combinations by viewing television-quality pictures of their selections on a computer monitor. The six-year-old firm has developed industrial design software that simulates fabrics for car seats and for use in home furnishings and apparel manufacturing.

Roe Van Fossen, chairman of the company, says that "literally 16.7 million colors can be simulated onto an unlimited number of fabrics for upholstered furniture, automobile interiors or interior design items such as draperies."

Another IBM business partner, New Image, will demonstrate its Salon System. The system works this way: from a "before" picture, the computer analyzes face shape, coloring and hair type. Various options are then superimposed over the on-screen image so that an individual can select from hundreds of hairstyles and thousands of hair color and perm possibilities. The Salon System is also capable of adding jewelry or eyewear, doing a cosmetic makeover or calling up a complete wardrobe color palette. A printed "after" photograph shows the client the best image options available. The System can also address specific needs like minimizing flaws, projecting the right image for age, lifestyle or professional standing and turning problem areas into pluses with illusory styling "tricks."

Engineering Mechanics Research Corporation (EMRC) will demonstrate its family of engineering programs that is revolutionizing the industry. "Using only EMRC's family of programs, an engineer can model his product, analyze the shape, size, stresses, etc. and produce printouts evaluating the structure, predicting the life expectancy and failure points without spending time and money to build an actual model," said Dr. Kant S. Kothawala, president of EMRC. "For example, the software will tell the engineer how to alter his design, reduce or increase the thickness of the materials, and so on to increase the product's strength while decreasing the cost."

International Customer Solutions, Inc. will also be at the Show, demonstrating its distribution system designed for the 90s. This software DS/90, not only offers wholesalers an advanced method of handling order entry and invoicing, inventory control and purchasing, sales analysis and reporting and accounts receivable, but also gives users a competitive edge because it can identify hot new trends in a specific item class. A company can use that information to negotiate better buys on hot items and market those items before the competition.

Other software applications on display offer business solutions for a wide range of industries including manufacturing, engineering, real estate, construction, insurance, publishing, legal, agribusiness and public sector.

Another feature of the show will be a series of demonstrations that will illustrate how companies using multiple systems--IBM and non-IBM-- can convert to and connect with IBM systems. "In this competitive business environment, we realize that companies continue to use products manufactured by a variety of companies," said Bernard Bowler, IBM director of new business marketing. "With new enabling technology created by both IBM and its Business Partners it is now possible for businesses to upgrade their current computer systems without discarding older systems. They can connect their systems with advanced technology at a greatly reduced cost."

The IBM Application Show is traveling to more than 20 cities across the nation. Last year more than 33,000 people saw hundreds of AS/400 solutions designed to help their businesses. This year's show will feature demonstrations of IBM's latest multi-user computer systems and advanced work stations: the Application System/400(TM), the Enterprise System/9370(TM), and the RISC System/6000(R), plus a complete array of printers.

SAN FRANCISCO (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Visa U.S.A. today announced the first strategic alliance between a bankcard association and a regional automated teller machine (ATM) network to expand the processing services available to network members.

In a novel arrangement which uses the strengths of both organizations, Visa has signed a three-year marketing and processing agreement with Internet, owner and operator of the MOST ATM network. Internet is the country's fourth largest regional network, with 420 member financial institutions.

"We're delighted Internet chose us to help bolster the processing services it offers its members," said Roger Peirce, Visa's executive vice president for VisaNet Delivery Systems. "Our alliance builds on each organization's strengths: Visa's for volume, scale and long-term point-of-sale success; Internet's for the value of its strong relationships with financial institutions and its knowledge of the regional market. It enhances Visa's position as the preeminent consumer payment system, affording local and regional attention combined with national and international strength," he added.

Peirce noted that the alliance will undoubtedly enlarge the Visa ATM Network, already the world's largest, with more than 48,000 ATMs. In addition, the agreement encourages MOST members to place Visa logos on their 3,970 ATMs throughout the mid-Atlantic and mid-South regions.

The partnership enables Internet to offer its members a complete range of funds transfer and transaction processing services, using the capabilities and efficiencies of VisaNet, the world's largest consumer electronic payments system.

Internet President and CEO David O'Connor said that the decision to partner with Visa was based on Visa's leadership position in the transaction processing business. "Visa has established the reputation of a top-quality performer as well as THE lowest-cost provider," he said.

Visa U.S.A., with more than 124 million cards in circulation, is the nation's largest consumer payments system.

SEATTLE (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Washington Roundtable named a top Weyerhaeuser executive to be its new president, effective Sept. 1. Walter C. Howe, Jr., vice president, environmental, energy and government affairs at the Weyerhaeuser Co., will replace Richard S. Page who has resigned to accept a position with Davis Wright Tremaine.

Roundtable Chairman and chief executive officer of Safeco Corp., Bruce Maines said, "We are excited to have someone with Walt's experience in business and government assume the president's position at the Roundtable. We have made great progress under the leadership of Dick Page and we see that growing under Walt's direction."

In addition to 16 years with the Weyerhaeuser Co., Howe has a distinguished public service career. He served as both the legal assistant and director of the Office of Program Planning and Fiscal Management for Gov. Dan Evans. He also was the deputy director of the federal ACTION agency in Washington, D.C.

How is also active in several state and local organizations. He is a board member and past chairman of the Association of Washington Business, and is a member of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce Executive Committee.

Howe also served as the chairman of the Washington State Council for Post-Secondary Education and as a member of the Temporary Committee on Educational Policies, Structure and Management 1983-85.

Page is leaving the Roundtable after seven years as its first and only president. He joins the Davis Wright Tremaine law firm as managing director and chief operating officer, a newly-created position.

The Washington Roundtable is a non-profit, non-partisan organization of chief executive officers of the state's major corporations. Its purpose is to study and make recommendations on critical public policy issues facing the state.

LOUISVILLE, KY (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The last of Ford Motor Company's C-Series heavy trucks, featuring the longest continuously produced truck body style in North America, will roll from the assembly line of Ford's Kentucky Truck Plant (KTP) today, ending a production run of more than 250,000 vehicles since 1955.

The C-Series will be replaced in October at the Chamberlain Lane plant by the Cargo truck, built at a Ford plant in Brazil since 1985 and imported into the United States.

George Kormanis, KTP assistant manager, said the vehicle will be the center of attention at a brief drive-off event today. "The pug-faced C-Series was the first high-volume, low-cost, tilt-cab medium truck when it entered the market in 1955," he said. "With its set-back rear axle and low profile, the C-Series for decades dominated markets for city delivery trucks, fire engines, and waste trucks."

Kenneth F. Smith, Ford heavy truck general operations manager, said: "While demand for the C-Series remains significant, the design is simply too old for the demands of today's trucking industry. The modern Cargo is a more sophisticated truck which has proven to be a popular replacement for the venerable C-Series."

Attending the drive-off of the final C-Series truck will be the buyer, Ron L. Ewers, executive vice president - production, of Emergency One, an Ocala, Fla. company which adapts trucks for fire-engine and other rescue-equipment use. Also present will be George W. Clague, heavy truck sales manager of Ford's Heavy Truck Orlando, Fla. district.

Driving the last C-Series from the assembly line will be the same person who drove the first off the line in 1955, Whayne Wyatt, now a quality control supervisor.

"The Cargo already has proven itself as a more sophisticated replacement of the C-Series," said Smith. "Yet, with increasing demands for new designs in the future, I doubt if any truck will every again achieve the longevity of the venerable C-Series. It served the American public more than twice as long as the Model-T truck, which created the American trucking industry."

Ford's C-Series design was so admired that, over the years, several other manufacturers, including Mack and FWD, purchased the cabs for their own vehicles from Budd Company, which produced the cab from Ford's design and dies.

PITTSBURGH (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad Co. (P&LE) announced today that is was promulgating new work rules to cover all of its union employees to be effective Thursday, June 21, 1990.

Implementation of these new rules would ultimately lead to a streamlined P&LE with substantially fewer employees. Many non-union employees have already been advised by P&LE that their positions would be abolished effective June 20.

P&LE had been in mediation with its unions over the last two years under the auspices of the National Mediation Board over the need to dramatically reduce its labor force to reflect the P&LE's current low level of freight activity. Last month the National Mediation Board concluded that the issues separating P&LE and its unions were incapable of being resolved by negotiation and released both parties to pursue their economic remedies. Promulgation of revised work rules is the remedy available to a railroad after the completion of the mediation process. If P&LE's unions reject the new work rules, there may be a strike against the railroad.

Since the fall of 1989, P&LE has been attempting to sell its rail assets to Railroad Development Corp. (RDC) of Pittsburgh. On Wednesday, June 13, 1990, RDC announced that it would be unable to close the purchase within the time available to P&LE due to RDC's inability to conclude negotiations with P&LE's unions.

P&LE had been attempting to sell its rail properties since 1987, when union opposition frustrated a sale to Chicago West Pullman Corp. That transaction ultimately resulted in a U.S. Supreme Court victory for P&LE, but the court decision came too late to save the deal.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The Children's Defense Fund (CDF) and Primerica Corporation (NYSE: PA) announced today a nationwide effort to raise awareness of the highly successful Head Start program of early education, healthcare and nutrition. This collaborative effort urges all Primerica employees and customers, as well as members of the social service, educational and business communities, to petition their federal legislative representatives to re-authorize and increase funding of the national Head Start program.

Head Start, which celebrates its 25th birthday this year, helps economically disadvantaged children reach their full potential. Head Start pioneered the development of a unique approach to helping children, emphasizing strong parental involvement and the delivery of comprehensive child development services.

Although Head Start has been proven effective, at present funding levels only one of every five children eligible for the program can participate. In addition, the number of children in the United States below the poverty level -- one of every three nationwide in 1989 -- is growing at an alarming rate. Currently, only 452,300 children are enrolled in full academic year programs at an annual cost of $1.4 billion.

Primerica has developed an information outreach strategy targeting its employees and customers. Information about Head Start is being distributed nationwide, and Head Start "action kits" are being directed to the heads of major corporations to stimulate support throughout their organizations.

The Children's Defense Fund has distributed Head Start public service announcements, produced in association with Primerica, to over 600 television stations nationally. CDF has also produced a special Head Start anniversary commemorative poster and a joint advertisement urging Congress to go on record in support of Head Start. Both Primerica and CDF will continue to work with, and support the efforts of, members of Congress who are committed to full funding of Head Start.

Head Start's broad objectives include providing preventive health services to children; aiding their emotional, social, and institutional development; improving and expanding their ability to think, reason, and speak clearly; and helping both children and their families to gain greater confidence, self-respect and dignity.

TROY, MI (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Energy Conversion Devices, Inc. ("ECD") (OTC: ENER) said it is pleased to announce that its subsidiary, Ovonic Battery Company, Inc. ("OBC"), has been awarded a 1990 Michigan New Product Award for its high-performance, environmentally safe, rechargeable Ovonic battery. Ovonic batteries respond to the urgent need to eliminate toxic and hazardous materials present in conventional battery technology.

The Michigan New Product Awards Program, sponsored by the Michigan Chamber of Commerce, honored OBC's "exemplary achievement" by noting "that the Ovonic Battery Company is on the leading edge of product development."

Ovonic batteries, based on proprietary materials technology developed by ECD and OBC, store approximately twice the energy of conventional nickel-cadmium and lead acid batteries of the same size and, unlike nickel-cadmium batteries, do not suffer from the serious memory-effect deficiency.

Moreover, Ovonic batteries do not contain toxic materials such as lead, cadmium or mercury which pose serious environmental problems. Recently, an evaluation of OBC's technology by an independent national laboratory demonstrated the unique advantages of the technology for much-needed electric vehicles.

ECD, based in Troy, is the pioneer in amorphous materials technology. The company and its subsidiaries form joint ventures, license technology and manufacture and sell products in the fields of energy, information and synthetic materials based upon technology ECD and its subsidiaries have developed in these areas.

ECD's photovoltaic and battery products are environmentally safe and address such environmental problems as atmospheric pollution, protecting the ozone layer, reducing hazardous waste and the greenhouse effect.

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Keishi Fujii (51) has been elected president of The Bank of Tokyo Trust Company N.Y., effective immediately, it was announced today by The Bank of Tokyo New York Group. Later this month it is expected that he will also be elected to the board of directors of the parent company, The Bank of Tokyo, Ltd.

Fujii, who was named general manager, corporate advisory division of The Bank of Tokyo, Ltd., last year, brings to his position a broad and keen knowledge of investment banking, a highly specialized and complex financial field. He succeeds Hiroshi Hayashi, who returned to Japan to a new post.

Fujii is no stranger to the American commune, having served for 13 years in the United States in different executive bank positions -- for eight years when he assumed the post of vice president with California First Bank, S.F.,a majority-owned subsidiary of The Bank of Tokyo, Ltd.; and for five years when he served as deputy general manager, in New York, with the New York Agency.

Fluent in English, Fujii just completed the Advanced Management Program (AMP) at Harvard University with an eye towards heightening The Bank of Tokyo Trust Company's role in the highly competitive banking industry.

Fujii's banking career began in 1962 immediately upon graduation from Kyoto University, Faculty of Law, when he joined The Bank of Tokyo, Ltd. In 1986 he was named loan officer in the Tokyo office, and two years later he was elected vice president with the California First Bank, S.F.

In 1978, returning to Tokyo, he served as senior managing officer in the international investment division. From 1980 until 1985 he was assigned to the position of Deputy General Manger, in the New York Agency. For two years, until 1987, Fujii continued as senior deputy general manager, the project finance division in Tokyo.

Fujii, an avid reader and golfer, undertakes his role as president when the Trust Company is realizing its greatest growth. He envisions further growth for the 110-year old banking institution. He states:

Today, The Bank of Tokyo is recognized as the largest foreign bank in the United States. The Bank of Tokyo, with assets of more than $228 billion and Japan's sole specialized foreign exchange bank, maintains an international network of over 300 offices, including those of its 24 overseas subsidiaries and associated institutions. The Trust company maintains its main office and headquarters at 100 Broadway and branch offices throughout New York City.

The Bank of Tokyo Trust Company observes its 35th anniversary this year as a banking institution in New York City. A member of the FDIC, the Trust Company is the first U.S. subsidiary of The Bank of Tokyo, Ltd., founded here in 1955 and chartered under the banking law of the State of New York. Over a decade ago, the Bank of Tokyo's California operations became the California First Bank, which recently acquired the Union Bank, California, with the new institution retaining the Union Bank name. Union Bank is one of the West Coast's leading banking institutions.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Judge Abraham D. Sofaer, who completed five years of service as the Legal Adviser to the United States Department of State on June 15, today joined Hughes Hubbard & Reed as the partner in charge of its Washington office and the co- chairman of its litigation department.

Before going to the State Department in 1985, Judge Sofaer was a United States District Judge for the Southern District of New York form 1979 to 1985. He was professor of law at Columbia University School of Law from 1969 to 1979, and an assistant United States Attorney in the Southern District of New York from 1967 to 1969.

"Abe Sofaer is an extraordinary person with unique credentials," said Charles H. Scherer, managing partner of Hughes Hubbard & Reed. "His joining our firm is exciting for all of us. Abe's years of experience in international litigation, diplomacy, negotiation and arbitration, his stature in the international community, the respect he commanded in the courtroom as a federal judge, and the learning and expertise he displayed as a professor of law and federal prosecutor all promise a great career as a practicing lawyer. We are extremely pleased that he is joining us."

Judge Sofaer has extensive experience in litigation and arbitration, most recently before the International Court of Justice and the Hague Tribunal. He is particularly prominent in the fields of international, constitutional and environmental law.

At Columbia, Judge Sofaer taught constitutional law, environmental and toxic waste regulation, administrative law and property.

While on the federal bench, Judge Sofaer handled important cases in many areas, including Ariel Sharon's libel case against Time magazine.

Judge Sofaer, 52, graduated magna cum laude from Yeshiva College, after serving three years in the Air Force. He then attended New York University Law School, where he was the Outstanding Graduate in 1965, and editor-in chief of the Law Review.

After law school, Judge Sofaer served as law clerk to Judge J. Skelly Wright of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit, and then as law clerk to Justice William J. Brennan at the United States Supreme Court.

As legal adviser to the State Department, Judge Sofaer has played a key role in most major foreign policy initiatives of the last five years. He served as lead negotiator for the United States in such matters as the settlement of the Taba dispute between Israel and Egypt, the negotiations with Iran over the Iran-U.S. Claims Tribunal and the Leterlier claim against Chile.

CHICAGO (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Second quarter domestic petroleum earnings are expected to decline over 25 percent from the 1989 period -- to $1.1 billion compared with $1.5 billion -- says an analyst with Duff & Phelps Inc., the investment research and financial consulting firm headquartered here.

Thomas R. Samuelson, who follows the industry, said the predicted lower earnings of the Duff & Phelps domestic petroleum universe reflect poorer results from the exploration and production segment of the business due to lower oil and gas prices.

He added: "Earnings from the industry's chemical segment are expected to compare unfavorably. However, refining and marketing earnings should be strong since several companies have noted that current refining margins are the best experienced in several quarters."

For the full year 1990, Samuelson looks for a nine percent decline in overall earnings to $4.9 billion due mainly to the year-over-year fall-off in chemical earnings. For 1991, Duff & Phelps expects an 11 percent increase in earnings to $5.4 billion reflecting better chemical earnings plus the positive impact of higher crude oil and natural gas price realizations.

"One of the major risk factors for the industry -- energy prices - has become further complicated by the buildup of domestic crude oil and product inventories," Samuelson said. "Crude oil stocks stood at 384 million barrels at the beginning of June -- their highest levels in over 10 years. Additionally, sluggish refined product demand and higher inventories will adversely impact refined product prices."

OPEC production appears to have been reduced, although the Cartel may fall short if its agreed-upon 1.5 million barrel per day reduction. Duff & Phelps' anticipated a degree of weakening in crude oil prices in the second quarter of 1990 and is continuing to expect a five percent increase for the full year 1990 posted price of West Texas Intermediate crude oil to $19.50 per barrel.

"Duff & Phelps lowered its full year 1990 natural gas price projection to $1.75 per thousand cubic foot (Mcf) from $1.90 per Mcf due to the impact of the warm winter," Samuelson added.

MILAN, ILL. (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Eagle Food Centers, Inc., (NASDAQ: EGLE) today announced that Gerald Barber has been appointed president of the 106-store supermarket chain, effective July 16, 1990. He will report to Pat Petitti, who remains as chief executive officer.

Barber, formerly vice president of marketing for Nash-Finch Company, was selected to succeed Petitti after a nine-month search, the company said. "Barber is being brought in at this time to concentrate on day-to-day activities, while I focus on long-term goals and objectives," said Petitti.

"Eagle Foods is fortunate to have Gerald Barber join its ranks," Petitti stated. "Gerry brings exceptional marketing, operational and warehousing expertise to the company as it moves into its 1990s expansion and growth programs. He 24 years of experience at Safeway Safeway Stores and the last five years at Nash-Finch, where he was responsible for the corporate marketing programs for its 94 stores and six wholesale divisions, are a great foundation from which he can direct Eagle Foods as it grows toward its goal of being a dominant part of the supermarket business in its region," Petitti declared.

Barber, 43, began his business career as a store manager for Safeway Stores in Washington State in 1968 after graduation from the University of Washington, where he received bachelor of science degrees in Psychology and in Business Administration. "He became zone manager in Alaska, achieving number one in market share among the chains operating there, and concluded his tenure with Safeway as marketing operations manager for the 152-store Denver division, again capturing the largest market share in that area," said Petitti.

He joined Nash-Finsh of Minneapolis in 1985 and was responsible for the firm's entire corporate marketing program, including 94 corporate stores and six wholesale divisions served out of 17 distribution centers. Barber is married with three children. He will be relocating to the Quad Cities area from his current residence in a suburb of Minneapolis.

ANAHEIM, CA (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Citing accounting treatment of an inventory transaction by prior management, the president of Scientific NRG Inc. announced today that its shares would no longer be traded on the NASDAQ system.

Auditors for the company informed the board that an inventory repurchase by the company last January must be carried on its books at a value less than former president Mark Morris had carried it. This resulted in a failure to meet the asset maintenance requirement for maintaining listing on NASDAQ.

Last month, three members of the board of directors purchased $150,000 of common stock at $.30 per share in order to bolster the asset and net worth of the company and maintain the listing. Board chairman Malcolm Fickel, also serving as interim president of the company said that the accounting treatment was recognized by auditors during preparation for the annual audit for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1990.

Former president Morris resigned March 28. Chairman Fickel stepped in April 1 to increase sagging sales and low margins.

"Progress has been steady towards putting the company in a strong position. While we are disappointed that the NASDAQ listing could not be maintained, it will not have an impact on the outlook for the company's financial well being or future profitability," said Fickel.

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Allied-Signal, Inc. (NYSE: ALD) has announced a multi-million-dollar expansion, currently underway at its facilities in Petersburg, Va., to increase capacity of Spectra(R) high performance fiber.

The extended chain polyethylene fiber, first introduced in 1985 for the cordage and sailcloth markets, has found rapid acceptance as well for composites, ballistics and cut resistant applications, according to James Dunbar, director-high performance fibers.

The new capacity will allow for projected market expansion and permit the development of new Spectra variants for a wide range of end use applications from radomes, surgical gloves and parachute cords to geotextiles, bicycle frames and mountain climbing gear.

The expansion, which will more than double Allied's Spectra capacity, is scheduled for completion by the first quarter of 1991.

Allied-Signal, Inc. is an advanced technology company with businesses in automotive and aerospace products and engineered materials. Sales of Allied-Signal in 1989 were about $12 billion.

BILLERICA, MA (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - CSP Inc. (NASDAQ: CSPI) released its unaudited financial results for the third quarter ended May 31, 1990. The company president, Samuel Ochlis, reported that sales for the quarter had decreased by 18 percent to $2,537,000, as compared to the same period of the previous fiscal year.

Revenues were also down by 16 percent over the prior quarter (second quarter of fiscal 1990) of the current fiscal year. Sales for the nine month period were down by $216,000 or 2.5 percent over the previous fiscal year.

The sales decline reflected a transition of product mix from the older higher per unit sales price of the MiniMAP and MAP-4000 to the lower per unit price of the new SuperCard. Ochlis indicated that the company does not anticipate a significant change in fourth quarter revenues compared to the third quarter.

Ochlis pointed out that the decline in revenue resulted in an operating loss during the third quarter ended May 31, 1990. The company had an operating profit for the nine month period ended May 31, 1990.

The company had net income for the three month period ended May 31, 1990 of $20,000 or one cent per share, due primarily to investment income. The company had net income of $677,000 or 25 cents per share of net income for the nine month period ended May 31, 1990.

CSPI was founded in 1968 with specific strengths in signal processing and computer technology. Today, CSPI is recognized as a leading manufacturer of vector processors, also referred to as array processors, to enhance a computer's ability to perform high-speed arithmetic.

Markets served include science and engineering applications in signal processing, sonar/radar/ASW, image processsing, seismic research, medical imaging, electronic publishing and others.

In addition to its vector processors products, CSPI recently formed a new division called Scanalytics for the development and marketing of turnkey image analysis systems (workstation). CSPI is a public company with stock traded over-the-counter via NASDAQ.

MINNEAPOLIS (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Medtronic, Inc (NYSE: MDT), expressed continuing commitment to the tachyarrhythmia business after a decision today by the Supreme Court of the United States that supported a fundamental company position in its patent dispute with Eli Lilly and Co.

In a 6-2 decision, the high court affirmed a ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit which, in effect, held that applicable patent law allows Medtronic to engage in limited clinical testing of its implantable device to treat tachyarrhythmias (too-rapid heartbeat) during the term of an extended Lilly patent that expires Oct. 26, 1990.

"We are extremely gratified by the Supreme Court's decision and will proceed on schedule to supply this device to physicians and patients who need it as soon as practicable after the Lilly patent expires and regulatory approvals are obtained," said Winston R. Wallin, Medtronic chairman and chief executive officer.

The high court returned the case to the lower court where Medtronic will continue to pursue motions concerning other issues in the case.

An ongoing modified injunction by the trial court has permitted clinical evaluation of the Medtronic device for the purpose of gathering information for the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. But the order prohibits communication about the device by the company to the medical community or the public.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Host International, a division of Marriott Corporation (NYSE: MHS), and Paramount Pictures today announced an agreement giving Host exclusive licensing rights to develop CHEERS bars and lounges and sell unique CHEERS merchandise at airports throughout the United States. Terms were not disclosed.

Under the agreement, Marriott plans to develop 46 CHEERS bars and lounges over the next five years. The new CHEERS concept is modeled after the fictional Boston tavern from the top-rated television comedy series "Cheers." It will be introduced at major metropolitan airports, with the first scheduled to open in November at the Minneapolis/St. Paul International Airport. The agreement also provides the rights to develop CHEERS at Marriott Hotels in the United States.

"The 'Cheers' tavern in the television series has a wonderfully warm and friendly feeling about it. That's exactly the atmosphere we want to create for the traveling public in these new bars and lounges," said F. W. Cash, president of the Marriott Service Group. "We believe CHEERS will have great appeal to our clientele, particularly those who have spent the last eight years enjoying the popular sitcom. CHEERS will be a familiar place where people immediately feel at home."

Host is developing a complete line of CHEERS merchandise, including clothing, gifts, and souvenirs that will be available at each CHEERS location.

"We are thrilled that Marriott will be recreating the atmosphere found on the 'Cheers' television program in its airport bars and lounges and in hotels throughout the country," said Barry London, president, Motion Picture Group Paramount Pictures. "It adds a whole new dimension to the 'Cheers' concept."

Soon entering its ninth season on NBC- TV, "Cheers", is a Charles/Burrows/Charles Production in association with the Network Television Division of Paramount Pictures Corporation. The highly acclaimed comedy series is filmed before a live studio audience in Hollywood at Paramount Studios. Paramount Pictures is a Paramount Communications (NYSE: PCI) company.

Serving the traveling public since 1897, Host International was acquired by Marriott Corporation in 1982. It currently has food, beverage and merchandise operations at 52 U.S. and foreign airports. It operates over 250 bars and lounges at 44 airports in the United States. Based in Washington, Marriott Corporation is a diversified hospitality company with primary interests in lodging and contract services. Sales exceeded $7.5 billion in 1989.

DEARBORN, MI (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - CMS Energy Corporation's independent power production subsidiary, CMS Generation Company, today announced that the Filer City Station cogeneration plant, located near Manistee, Mich., has begun commercial operation.

The coal and waste wood-fueled plant commenced commercial operation Sunday June 17, 1990, generating 50 megawatts of electricity for sale to the Consumers Power Company electric grid under a long-term contract.

"This is an important milestone in CMS Generation's independent power development activities," said Ashish D. Sarkar, vice president of project management. "To have the Filer City Station completed several weeks ahead of schedule -- and within budget -- is an accomplishment on which to build future opportunities," Sarkar said.

The $87 million Filer City Station, Michigan's largest coal-fired cogeneration facility, will provide approximately 100,000 pounds per hour of industrial process steam to an adjacent Packaging Corporation of America paper mill. CMS Generation and Tondu Energy Systems, Inc. each hold a 50-percent ownership interest in the project.

The plant's entire electric output is being sold to Consumers Power at an avoided cost rate approved by the Michigan Public Service Commission. A CMS Generation subsidiary is operating the cogeneration facility with a permanent work force of approximately 30 employees.

The Filer City Station's 50-megawatt output is enough electricity to serve a community of 40,000 people. The plant was built and designed by a joint venture of Southern Electric International, Inc., and Fluor Constructors, Inc. Ground was broken for construction of the project in September 1988.

CMS Energy Corporation (NYSE: CMS) is a $3 billion (sales) diversified energy company with businesses engaged in the distribution of electricity and natural gas, interstate storage and transmission of natural gas, oil and gas exploration and production, independent power generation and utility services. CMS Energy Corporation's principal subsidiary is Consumers Power Company, Michigan's largest utility and the nation's fourth-largest combination utility.

SALT LAKE CITY (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - American International Medical Supply Co. ("AIMSCO"), announced today that its board of directors have entered into a letter of intent with a Virginia-based corporation, wherein AIMSCO will receive approximately $3,800,000 of bookable real estate assets in exchange for 6,000,000 shares of AIMSCO common investment stock.

In addition, AIMSCO will authorize the issuance of a promissory note in the amount of $600,000, payable with interest of 10 percent per annum, and payable out of 10 percent of the net profits of AIMSCO, before taxes each year with the final balloon payment at the end of the third year. AIMSCO will grant an option to convert the above $600,000 note to common investment stock, based at 50 percent of the bid price on the date that the option is exercised. The option will be valid only through the end of the third year.

The assets consist of multiple developed building lots in various locations throughout major metropolitan western cities. The individual building lots can be used as colateral against inventory orders, and can also be sold at any time to generate working capital.

The above information is the essence of the letter of intent at this time, and both parties anticipate that the transfer of the assets and consumation of the contract will take place as rapidly as possible, with completion on or about the 15th of July 1990.

AIMSCO is in the business of distributing a 1cc and 1/2cc diabetic syringe to many of the major mass merchandisers and drug chains in the United States under the AIMSCO label. The syringe product is manufactured in Korea and distributed under an exclusive contract. AIMSCO, through its wholly owned subsidiary Medical Design Products Inc., is the first to distribute a multi-colored, French designer, environmentally friendly, disposable baby diaper, into the American marketplace. The product is distributed through an exclusive marketing contract which gives AIMSCO the rights of distribution for the United States and a right of first refusal for other areas. AIMSCO also distributes other products including previously viewed movies, which are marketed through Oasis Video Inc., another subsidiary of AIMSCO, the previously viewed movies are sold through mass merchandisers, and drug chains to the public from $9.99 to $13.95.

AIMSCO is a public corporation trading under a 504 exemption and is presently listed on the new "BILLBOARD" exchange under the call letters of "3 AMIS." At the completion of the transfer AIMSCO intends to update its financial audits, and as soon as possible file a form 10 with the Securities and Exchange Commission to become a fully reporting company. After the proper filings, AIMSCO will pursue a listing with NASDAQ.

Shareholders and investors are cautioned against making any investment decision based on rumors or speculation. Additional information concerning this acquisition of assets will be made available in writing by the company as soon as the transactions are completed.

LOS ANGELES (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Caesars World Inc. (NYSE: CAW) today said it has signed an agreement with Cosmo World, a multinational developer, under which a Caesars subsidiary will manage a 350-room luxury resort hotel as part of Cosmo's previously announced 1,288-acre master planned community near Henderson, Nev.

Caesars will be responsible for the management, marketing and operations of the non-casino hotel - to be called Caesars Canyon Resort - which will include a full complement of dining, entertainment, and meeting and convention facilities. The resort hotel is expected to be completed in mid-1992.

The Cosmo project, located ten miles from Las Vegas' McCarran Airport, will include residential homes plus world-class recreational facilities. These will include a 27-hole Caesars Canyon Golf Course designed by Jack Nicklaus. A tennis complex managed by the Association of Tennis Professionals will include a 2,000-seat stadium.

Henry Gluck, chairman and chief executive officer of Caesars World, said the venture is the first for his company's newly created subsidiary - Caesars World Resorts. "While this is a non-casino facility, Caesars Canyon Resort will feature the quality of lodging, dining, entertainment, services and amenities that have made Caesars resorts renowned throughout the world," Gluck said.

"We are confident that this resort, just minutes away from the Las Vegas strip, can benefit from the millions of visitors to the area. It provides a great complement to the gaming alternatives available in Las Vegas."

Gluck said Caesars has created its new subsidiary - Caesars World Resorts - to capitalize on non-casino resort opportunities throughout the world, primarily through management agreements.

TOYOTA CITY, JAPAN (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Toyota Motor Corporation (NASDAQ: TOYOY) announced today that its overseas service shops will soon begin installing equipment to recover and recycle ozone-damaging chlorofluorocarbon (CFC) refrigerants from vehicle air-conditioner systems during servicing. This move follows similar action already under way in Japan.

Toyota and its distributors worldwide plan to have CFC recovery and recycling equipment in place by the summer of 1991 in all of the 2,620 Toyota service shops where car air-conditioner servicing is possible.

During air-conditioner servicing, the equipment will be used to collect CFC gas in a recovery tank where it can be recycled for reuse by removing contaminants such as water, oil and dirt. Currently, the gas is vented directly into the atmosphere, a practice that has been found to damage the earth's stratospheric ozone layer.

By recycling CFC refrigerants, Toyota hopes the need for further production of the harmful compounds will be significantly reduced.

In April 1989, Toyota established an internal "CFC Action Committee" headed by company Managing Director Masaaki Ohashi to formulate company policy and establish measures aimed at eliminating CFC use in the future. Under their guidance, CFC recovery equipment has already been installed in 1,400 service outlets throughout Japan and will eventually spread to all of Toyota's approximately 4,500 domestic service shops.

The committee is also actively pursuing, among others, the following activities:

-- Increased testing both in Japan and abroad through more monitor vehicles this year equipped with air conditioners that employ a substitute refrigerant believed not to harm the earth's ozone layer;

-- Expanding the scope of CFC recovery beginning in August of this year, which will include automobiles to be junked, as well as monitoring of recycling processes, and

-- Studying the gradual replacement of CFC foaming agents used at plants with air- and water-foaming technologies, and seeking the complete removal of these agents by the end of 1991.

BURNSVILLE, MN (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - World Container Corp. (NASDAQ: WRLD) today announced unaudited results of operations for the first quarter ended May 31, 1990, and record backlog going into the second quarter.

First-quarter sales increased 500 percent over the first-quarter last year. Sales were $272,996 for the first quarter this year, compared to $45,445 for the same quarter last year. First-quarter sales were 233-percent greater than fourth-quarter sales of $82,013.

The first quarter resulted in a net loss of $(189,803), or $(0.02) per share, compared to a net loss of $(139,239), or $(0.02) per share, for the same quarter last year.

The company also announced record backlog of $212,000 entering the second quarter. This is primarily the result of a purchase order in May from a major U.S. automaker for Keeper(TM) IV reusable shipping containers. Manufacturing and shipping of the new, redesigned Keeper IV container is expected to commence this month, setting the stage for what management believes is likely to be a growing revenue base in the second quarter, according to company spokesman Floyd A. Hart.

World Container Corp. manufactures reusable plastic shipping containers.

TROY, MI (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Standard Federal Bank (NYSE: SFB) was the leading single-family residential mortgage lender for the month of April. According to Lawyer's Title Insurance Company, the bank recorded 1,404 loans of $250,000 or less for a total of $76,904,134 in the southeastern Michigan market of Wayne, Oakland, Macomb and Washtenaw counties.

As a result of this activity, Standard Federal continued to be the leading home lender for the first four months of the year. Total recordings for the bank for the first four months amounted to more than the combined total of the next two closest competitors.

"Our extensive network of branch offices and loan originators, combined with our on-line computer systems, helps us to maintain our competitive edge," stated Thomas R. Ricketts, chairman and president of Standard Federal. "Our customers know that they can depend upon Standard Federal for competitive interest rates and prompt, professional service."

Standard Federal Bank operates 113 branch offices throughout Michigan and Indiana and has been the leading home mortgage lender in Michigan for 13 of the last 16 years.

WASHINGTON (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - GTE Spacenet, McLean, Va., and Telecomunicaciones de Mexico (Telecomm) today signed an agreement that provides for transborder public telecommunications services, via satellite between the United States and Mexico.

The agreement, signed during a ceremony at the Mexican Cultural Institute here, represents the first agreement of its kind between a U.S. domestic satellite operator and Telecomm for the provision of two-way U.S./Mexico transborder services.

"The introduction of this transborder service is extremely timely in terms of recent trade developments between our two countries," said C.J. Waylan, president of GTE Spacenet. "The current free-trade atmosphere is expected to intertwine our national economies and businesses more closely together in this decade and beyond. Our agreement can serve to facilitate this commercial trend toward regional trade growth."

During the signing ceremony, C. P. Carlos Lara Sumano, general director of Telecomm, emphasized the importance of the signing of this agreement to expand the communications channels between both countries. He also mentioned the efforts that Telecomm and GTE Spacenet have made to provide more opportunities and alternatives to users in both countries, due to the increase in commercial exchange between Mexico and the United States, and the growing number of companies with strong inter-relations on both sides of the border.

As a result of this agreement, customers with domestic satellite networks in either country will be able to interconnect with remote locations in the other country using very small aperture terminal (VSAT) technology. Further, by enhancing the transborder communications capabilities available to these companies, the agreement facilitates the development of new or increased U.S./Mexico business opportunities.

The transborder services covered by this agreement consist of transmissions that originate in the United States and terminate in Mexico, or vice versa, and include applications such as interactive data-network services, voice and videoconferencing. All six of GTE Spacenet's operational satellites have been coordinated to provide INTELSAT-approved U.S./Mexico transborder satellite services. Likewise, the two Mexican Morelos satellites have full INTELSAT approval.

Telecomunicaciones de Mexico, as an organization, is not part of the Mexican government. Its functions are to provide public services such as voice, data, text, imaging and television signals through earth stations and a radio-communications satellite system, as well as microwave and optical fiber.

GTE Spacenet, one of GTE's six operating groups, is a world leader in satellite communications with nearly two decades of experience in the provision of telecommunications services and systems.

DETROIT (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Calling it the most complete auto security system yet devised, Code-Alarm, Inc. (OTC: CODL) announced it will begin marketing Intercept, an advanced stolen vehicle recovery system in the Detroit metropolitan area starting today through selected Code-Alarm dealers and authorized representatives.

It will be packaged with a top-of-the-line Novatel cellular telephone if a compatible phone is not already installed. National rollout will continue through 1991 on a market-by-market basis.

"Intercept has a number of unique features that place it ahead of any similar product," said Peter Stouffer, vice president of engineering. "If a thief is not deterred by Intercept's integrated, top-of-the-line alarm system, and there is an unauthorized vehicle start or tow, Intercept immediately communicates the vehicle's location via cellular phone to Code-Alarm's monitoring station. Code-Alarm will track the car as long as necessary and notify the police of the street location before the owner even knows it's gone. As a last resort," Stouffer noted, "Code-Alarm will disengage the engine by remote control once the police have visual contact with the vehicle and request it. This, we feel, will help eliminate dangerous high-speed chases, a cause of many needless deaths in the U.S. today."

According to 1989 preliminary Uniform Crime Reporting Statistics made public by Federal Bureau of Investigation Director William S. Sessions, motor vehicle theft increased 9 percent and larceny from vehicles rose 2 percent. Auto theft has increased rapidly since 1983, presumably because auto theft carries such low risks and high profit is involved, many auto theft experts believe. In 1988, 1.4 million vehicles were stolen, 11.2 percent more than in 1987, for a national loss of $7 billion. In 1988, a motor vehicle was stolen every 22 seconds.

With Intercept, Code-Alarm uses existing cellular telephone and Loran C navigational technology for its recovery system. There is no need for police departments to install special equipment in patrol cars; therefore, there is no cost burden on the state, county or municipal government. Beyond the initial cost of $1,495 installed with a Novatel cellular telephone, or $995 if a compatible cellular phone is purchased separately, the only cost to the vehicle owner is a monthly monitoring fee of $19.95. During the first 60 days, June 18-Aug. 18, Code-Alarm will offer a 50-percent discount on the monthly monitoring fee.

Intercept is the first stolen vehicle recovery system to include a complete security package. Its top-of-the-line alarm system features include: remote arm/disarm, remote panic, starter kill, remote two car, or one car and home security operation, remote door lock/unlock, flashing light output, dome light supervision, remote trunk release, flashing LED indicator, audible status, trip identification, valet mode, emergency override, Lite-Touch shock sensor, Code-Learning, Micro Vision interior protection, perimeter protection, four transmitters, and 4 billion possible transmitter codes.

Code-Alarm began operations in 1980, and is now the world's largest manufacturer of vehicle security systems. In 1989, the company entered the home security field with a do-it-yourself product. Code-Alarm also has private-label agreements with General Motors Corporation, Ford Motor Company, and Chrysler Motors Corporation. In the May 21, 1990, issue of Business Week Magazine, the company was ranked 75th among the nation's 100 Best Small Business Corporations.

HOUSTON (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Seagull Energy Corp. (NYSE: SGO) today announced two new discoveries of natural gas and crude oil at wells it operates offshore in the Gulf of Mexico and onshore in South Texas.

The offshore discovery is Seagull's Brazos 399G-3 well, OCS-7218, 15 miles south of Freeport, Texas, in 60 feet of water, where the company and its partners encountered two productive gas zones. A test on one of the zones yielded 4.6 million cubic feet (mmcf) of gas per day through a 19/64-inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 1,884 pounds per square inch (psi). The other zone will be completed as an alternate and is capable of production rates equal to or greater than the tested zone.

The South Texas discovery is in Karnes County, where Seagull's Steen-Mixon No. 1 tested at a daily rate of 1.6 mmcf of gas and 89 barrels of oil in a lower Wilcox sand at a perforated interval between 9,060 and 9,074 feet. The test results were obtained through a 10/64-inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 3,325 psi.

Seagull's exploration and production subsidiary holds a 37.5 percent working interest at Brazos 399G, where its partners are Ashland Exploration Inc. and Southwestern Energy Co., with interests of 37.5 percent and 25.0 percent, respectively.

Seagull and its partners completed another multi-zone discovery at Brazos 399G earlier in 1990 in a separate fault block. They are now finalizing plans to install production facilities so that those two wells, plus a third drilled in 1989 that is currently being completed, can begin delivering gas in late 1990 or early 1991.

The company has a 30.15 percent working interest at Steen-Mixon No. 1. Resource Reserve Co. has a 30 percent working interest, Bellwether Exploration a 20 percent interest and other parties hold the remaining 19.85 percent. Production plans are still being formulated.

In addition to its exploration and production activity, Houston-based Seagull is engaged in the transportation, distribution and marketing of natural gas, liquids products and petrochemicals, and natural gas processing.

WESTBORO, MASS. (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Banyan Systems today reemphasized its commitment to industry standards by announcing VINES support for the new Intel 386(tm)-based IBM(R) Personal System/2 platforms with integral SCSI (Small Computer Systems Interface) adaptors. Supported systems include the three new IBM PS/2 Models 8565 (16 MHz, 386SX), 8580 (20 MHz, 386), and 8580-A (25 MHz, 386 with cache). VINES support was previously available for IBM PS/2 platforms which use ESDI and 3rd party SCSI devices.

"The ability to run VINES, Version 4.0 ... and all VINES certified applications ... on the new PS/2 platforms enables Banyan customers to take full advantage of the high performance and ease of expansion of the SCSI architecture, especially when running disk-intensive applications on their network," explained Banyan Vice President James Allchin. "The fast disk access and large disk capacity of the new platforms, coupled with the networking ability and virtual management capabilities of VINES, yield a powerful turn-key networking solution of great appeal to users of Banyan's corporate-wide PC networks."

VINES, Version 4.0, supports SCSI peripherals which adhere to the Common Command Set, approved by the American National Standards Institute. IBM's design of the SCSI fixed disk includes a 3 1/2", 3320 MB drive with a 12.5 ms data access time ... the fastest in the industry. Banyan itself adopted the SCSI architecture in its CNS and earlier BNS network server platforms.

As of June 25, VINES Support for IBM PS/2 SCSI Systems will be included -- at no extra charge -- on three new release diskettes being furnished with the 3 1/2" media version of VINES 4.0. Customers will be able to load VINES on either ESDI- or SCSI-based PS/2 platforms. Also available from Banyan, in the same time frame, for use with the new IBM PS/2 systems is the Model EXT415 150 MB External Tape Backup Drive with SCSI cable, which has a U.S. list price of $2,295.

WESTBORO, MASS. (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Banyan Systems, the leader in corporate-wide PC networking, today announced a new program to facilitate the certification of personal computers as VINES network servers. The Banyan Platform Certification Program enhances and accelerates the qualification process, letting vendors evaluate their own systems as VINES servers by means of Banyan-developed test suites. Vendors return test results to Banyan for validation and approval. The program also allows for a cooperative marketing effort to help vendors promote their hardware for use with VINES.

According to Banyan Vice President James Allchin, "Certification is a customer's assurance that individual types and models of personal computers are fully compatible with -- and capable of being used as network servers for -- VINES. Thanks to our new certification program, hardware vendors will find the task of qualifying their equipment for VINES considerably easier and faster than in the past. Consequently, Banyan customers will have a wider assortment of server platforms to choose for their VINES networks than ever before."

The Banyan Platform Certification Program is now open to all manufacturers of Intel 386(tm)- and 1486(tm)-based hardware systems. Subsequent phases of the program will expand it to include multiprocessor systems. The first hardware platform to be certified as a VINES server under the new program is the NEC PowerMate(tm) 386/25, from NEC Technologies, Inc. of Boxborough, Mass., which participated as a Beta Test Site for the program.

Since the introduction in 1988 of VINES support for 386 systems... the first 32-bit native mode network operating system for the 386... Banyan has been conducting an internal program to certify an increasing number and variety of 386- and 1486-based PCs as VINES servers.

PORTLAND, OR (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Fred Meyer Inc. (NASDAQ: MEYR) announced today its sales and net income results for its 1990 first quarter (16 weeks) ended May 26, 1990.

Net sales for the 1990 first quarter rose 13.3 percent to $702.7 million over the $620.1 million reported in the first quarter of last year. Comparable store sales increased 7.2 percent for the quarter.

Income from operations for the 1990 first quarter was $15.0 million, a 14.5 percent increase over the $13.1 million reported in the prior year's first quarter.

Net income increased 7.1 percent to $6.1 million in the first quarter of 1990, compared to $5.7 million reported in 1989's first quarter. The increase in net income is after reflecting an increase in interest expense of 31.6 percent in the quarter. Interest expense amounted to $5.2 million in 1990's first quarter, versus $4.0 million in 1989. Net earnings per share were 25 cents for the first quarter of 1990 based on 24,536,000 shares outstanding, compared with 23 cents for the prior year's quarter based on 24,818,000 shares outstanding.

Frederick M. Stevens, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, said, "We are pleased with our stronger sales and earnings for the quarter especially considering the strong comparable store sales we had in the first quarter of 1989. Our strong sales give us confidence that many of the new programs we've started over the past two years as a result of our strategic planning process will continue to provide long-term benefits and help us face the new competitors in our markets.

"The increase in income from operations from quarter to quarter reflects stronger sales and gross margins in both our food and nonfood operations, partially offset by higher store labor costs and costs associated with the grand opening of the new Chico store, our first multidepartment store in California. We also closed six poorly performning stores during the quarter.

"Interest expense in the first quarter increased primarily as a result of the acceleration of our new store and remodeling schedule, and to a lesser extent, the purchase of land parcels being held for future development. The tax rate of 37 percent was the same as 1989's first quarter tax rate.

"For the balance of 1990, we plan to open four large multidepartment stores, located in Bremerton and Puyallup, Wash., and in Portland and Bend Ore. We completed one major store remodel in the first quarter, and expect to complete approximately 10 remodels for the full year. In addition, our Management Information Systems conversion of both hardware and software is moving along well, with the conversion scheduled for completion in 1992," Stevens said.

As previously announced on June 14, the company has renegotiated its credit agreement with 10 major banks for a revolving line of credit of up to $335 million. The new credit agreement will facilitate the company's growth and Management Information Systems development.

Fred Meyer Inc., headquartered in Portland, Ore., is a leading regional retailer of a wide range of general merchandise, food, apparel, fine jewelry and home improvement products. The company currently operates 120 stores, including 91 large multidepartment stores in Oregon, Washington, Utah, Idaho, Alaska, California and Montana.

FORT WORTH, TEXAS (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Snyder Oil Corp. (NYSE: SNY) (SOCO), today announced that a definitive agreement with Oryx Energy Co. (NYSE: ORX) (Oryx) covering SOCO's 38,500 net acre position in the Austin Chalk trend of South Texas had been reached. SOCO is the largest working interest owner in an 88,000 acre block known as the Halsell Ranch located in Maverick and Dimmit Counties, Texas. Under the agreement, Oryx has become the operator of the project and can earn a 50 percent interest in the acreage through payment of certain project costs including seismic and drilling expenditures. The project was previously operated by Wolverine Exploration. It is currently expected that seismic work will commence shortly and that additional drilling on the acreage will begin in the fourth quarter of 1990 or in early 1991. John Snyder, the chairman of SOCO, said, "We have extremely high hopes for the Halsell Ranch project and are encouraged by Oryx's commitment to participate in it. Oryx's unparalleled experience in horizontal Austin Chalk drilling substantially enhances the project's potential. In addition, through working closely with Oryx and Wolverine in the Chalk, we can increase our expertise in horizontal drilling technology for application in other areas."

SOCO also announced that it was in active discussions regarding the formation of a joint venture to exploit its substantial acreage position in the Niobrara Trend of Northern Colorado and Southeastern Wyoming. The Niobrara is a vertically fractured chalk formation that is widely believed to be highly prospective for horizontal drilling. SOCO has one of the largest acreage positions in the area with over 220,000 net acres. The approximately 145,000 net acres which are the subject of the discussions are directly south of Cowan Oil's recently reported horizontal drilling success in the Niobrara formation of the Silo Field. Subsequent to the formation of a joint venture, SOCO expects to operate the project. Drilling on the acreage should be initiated in late 1990.

SOCO is engaged in acquisitions and in the production, development and exploration of domestic oil and gas properties as well as the transportation, processing and marketing of natural gas. SOCO's common stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol SNY.

HUNT VALLEY, MD (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of PHH Corporation (NYSE: PHH) today announced that the company's quarterly cash dividend has been increased to 30 cents a share for an annual rate of $1.20 a share.

The dividend is payable July 31, 1990, to stockholders of record July 6, 1990.

In announcing the dividend increase, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Robert D. Kunisch said that the board's action "marks PHH's 31st year of continuous dividend increases, and places PHH Corporation among a handful of companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange that can boast of similar achievement, and reflects PHH's strong financial condition."

Kunisch added, "As we enter the 1990s, we remain confident that our businesses will support future dividend increases within our stated objectives and allow us to make significant investments to position our company for growth."

PAOLI, PA (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Ametek Inc. (NYSE: AME) reported today that it had completed its previously announced cash purchase of the Du Pont Co.'s (NYSE: DD) Process Instrument business and its Air and Noise Monitoring Instrument business, with combined annual sales of more than $20 million.

In this transaction, Ametek has acquired the technology, production equipment and inventories of Du Pont's Process Instrument business, the manufacturer of a number of moisture and photometric analyzers which are marketed worldwide to identify and monitor liquids and gases in process streams and exhaust stack emissions. These product lines complement Ametek's Thermox, Dycor and other gas detection and measurement instrument lines headquartered in Pittsburgh. Process Instruments will remain in Delaware where most of its current employees are joining Ametek.

The second business, Du Pont's Air and Noise Monitoring Instruments, makes small electronic units designed to be locally mounted or worn by workers to record their personal exposure to levels of noise and air contamination. The business will be integrated into Ametek's Mansfield and Green division in Largo, Fla., where similar portable and hand-held electronic instruments are produced.

As a leading instrument producer, Ametek indicated that the increased need for air and emission monitoring required under the new Clean Air Act should expand market opportunities for these instrument lines. A Fortune 500 industrial manufacturer, Ametek reported 1989 earnings of $38.3 million with instruments representing nearly 40 percent of its $587.8 million sales.

PALM COAST, FL (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Cardiac Control Systems, Inc. (NASDAQ: CCSC) announced today that the Circulatory System Devices Advisory Panel ("Panel") of the Food and Drug Administration ("FDA") recommended the approval of the company's premarket approval application ("PMA") for the CCS Maestro (R) SAVVI TM, a single-lead atrial rate-responsive ventricular (VDD) pacing system.

The SAVVI system is unique in that it uses a single ventricular lead with a pair of sophisticated atrial sensing electrodes which lie in the artrial blood pool to detect atrial signals. No atrial wall contact is required, and therefore, the problems frequently associates with placement of a separate atrial lead are avoided.

The clinical study demonstrated that the SAVVI, indicated for patients with a heart conduction problem, provides clear and reliable atrial sensing for optimal ventricular tracking of the patient's natural heart rhythm. The advantage of the SAVVI over any other system currently commercially available is that now the dual-chamber sensing and atrio-ventricular synchrony can be provided to appropriately selected patients with the simplicity of a single-lead implant procedure.

The SAVVI system has been undergoing clinical trials for over three years. To date, approximately 500 units have been implanted worldwide, nearly half of which were in the United States. The Panel's approval recommendation for the PMA was based solely on U.S. implants and constitutes a major step toward commercial release of the system. Upon final FDA clearance, which is expected within a matter of weeks, the SAVVI will be the only approved single-lead VDD pacing system commercially available in the U.S.

Cardiac Control Systems, Inc., headquartered in Palm Coast, Fla., develops manufacturers and markets a full line of implantable cardiac pacemakers and ancillary equipment. For the fiscal year ended March 31, 1990, Cardiac Control Systems, Inc. reported sales of $3.67 million and a net loss of $1.67 million.

MASSILLON, OH (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Republic Engineered Steels, Inc., announced that its board of directors has approved the first phase of a major modernization plan, and has declared a 42 cents per share cash dividend on its oustanding common stock. The actions took place at the board's most recent meeting held last week.

The board approved a capital budget totalling in excess of $73 million for Republic's fiscal year beginning July 1, 1990. This marks the beginning of the implementation of its previously announced major investment plan which will maintain Republic's leadership position in the special bar quality business.

The board specifically authorized $2 million to commence the development engineering for a totally new bar mill, which, if fully approved, would have an estimated cost of $180 million. A second specific authorization involved a $3.2 million modernization of the Massillon 18-inch rolling mill's reheat furnaces, scheduled for later this year. The balance of the plan is dedicated to improvements in quality and costs in facilities located throughout the company.

Specifics of the remaining projects planned for fiscal year 1991 were not disclosed, pending presentation to Republic's board of requests for detailed project appropriation authorizations.

The board's other major action was the declaration of a common stock cash dividend of 42 cents per share for shareholders of record as of June 15, 1990, payable to the ESOP Trust, on or before, June 30, 1990. Each of the approximately 5,000 employee-owners who participates in Republic's ESOP will receive a dividend based on the number of shares allocated to his or her account for year ending Dec. 31, 1989. (The year for this purpose began Nov. 28, 1989, the date of their purchase of the former LTV Steel's Bar Division.)

Republic Engineered Steels, Inc., an employee-owned company, is the leading domestic producer of high-quality bar and specialty steels designed to meet the world's most demanding applications.

Headquartered in Massillon, Ohio, Republic Engineered Steels, has plants in Canton and Massillon, Ohio; Beaver Falls, Pa.; Gary, Ind.; Willimantic, Conn.; and Chicago.

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Bankers Trust Company (NYSE: BT) announced today that it has reduced and redirected the staff resources of its corporate finance department.

"The actions recognize that the volume and form of corporate finance transactions will be driven primarily by strategic rather than financial considerations in the decade of the '90s," said Ralph L. MacDonald Jr., managing director and head of the corporate finance department.

"Nevertheless, global competition will continue to force corporate restructuring in the United States and Europe, with the requisite need for both debt and equity financing. Financial institutions that will be successful in this new environment will be characterized by both leaner staffing and a greater emphasis on relationships with senior corporate managements," he added.

Responding to this environment, Bankers Trust Company has reduced by 75 its professional corporate finance staff, and is forming a new unit that will work with the senior managements of corporate clients and will be managed directly by MacDonald.

The staff reduction amounts to approximately ten percent of the bank's domestic corporate finance professional staff of more than 700, and will produce an annual expense reduction in excess of $10 million, which will be realized fully for the first time in 1991. The reduction is broadly based across the corporate finance department's business lines and its New York and regional offices.

The new unit that MacDonald will head - the corporate finance group - will be staffed by approximately 25 professionals who will work with corporate senior managements to develop transaction opportunities for each of the five corporate finance department business lines.

These will include advisory assignments and transactions to raise debt and equity for clients, with Bankers Trust acting both as an intermediary and a provider of funds.

"The mission of the corporate finance group will be to participate with corporate senior managements in the development of their strategic options with a view toward playing a key role in transactions that implement clients' corporate strategies," said MacDonald.

The bank also announced the creation of a banking and finance group within the corporate finance department to provide non-structured credit products to the corporate market.

This group, headed by Andrew H. Forrester, managing director, will assist corporate clients in identifying the most efficient forms of financing. In addition, it will provide the full range of bank financing, from floating rate senior debt to back-up lines of credit.

PAMPA, TX (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Service Fracturing Co. (NASDAQ: SERF) has successfully connected a horizontal drain hold well with an existing vertical well bore in the West Panhandle Carson Field of Texas.

The well, the No. 14S, connected with the No. 14 well and casing has been set, according to Jerry H. Guinn, Serfco president. He noted that liner was set through 94 feet of brown dolomite and 871 feet of the horizontal drain hole.

This horizontal completion will use a new concept for completion in low pressure reservoirs that are produced by what are commonly called stripper wells. The technique was developed by Guinn and will be marketed as Low Pressure Reservoir Alternative Completion Technology (LPRACT).

Guinn said that selective acidizing, fracing, and testing of the new well will take some time and that it will be about 90 days before results can be released. The well was spudded May 15 and drilling was finished June 17.

The horizontal drain hole well is the first attempt in the Texas Panhandle Field to drill horizontally for an oil well completion into an existing well. The well is on property purchased by Serfco in April 1989 which included 181 stripper oil wells. After selectively acidizing and hydraulic fracturing on some of the wells, production on the property has more than doubled.

In March of this year Serfco acquired another package of West Panhandle Field property consisting of 3,250 developed and 6,000 proved undeveloped acres. The developed acres contained 325 wells of which 177 were producing oil.

According to Guinn the LPRACT technique uses horizontal drilling technology to connect with the No. 14 existing vertical well bore.

"In stripper well reservoirs with low or substantially depleted pressures, existing horitzontal well completion methodology has little practical application," notes Guinn. "In wells where the formation pressure is not adequate to lift the oil into the vertical portion of the horizontal well bore, oil is difficult to produce economically."

Guinn said the new technique, LPRACT, will improve control of the stimulation treatments and enhance placement and monitoring during and after the treatment phase of the completion. This can be done through either the original vertical well bore or through the new horizontal bore, or through both bores at the same time, he added.

SAN FRANCISCO (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - First Nationwide Bank is moving its headquarters staff to a new office building here, and consolidating administrative staff in a new office campus to be built in West Sacramento.

The moves will complete a previously announced, two-year plan to improve employees' ability to work with one another, create operational efficiencies and reduce costs by consolidating facilities and locations in San Francisco and Sacramento, according to Robert E. Lackovic, chairman and chief executive officer of First Nationwide.

"First Nationwide has called San Francisco home for more than a century, and we intend to keep our headquarters here," Lackovic said.

Some 975 employees now work in four different locations in the Bay Area -- three buildings in downtown San Francisco and one in Daly City. The company expects to begin moving staff in the first half of 1991 to 97,000 square feet of leased space at 135 Main Street, where First Nationwide will be the principal tenant.

First Nationwide plans to sell its 12-story building at Market and Kearny Streets as well as its administrative building on Hickey Boulevard in Daly City. The move will not affect any of First Nationwide's 10 retail branch locations in the Bay Area, including the main branch at 700 Market. The bank's San Francisco residential lending branch will remain at 33 New Montgomery.

First Nationwide Bank is the principal subsidiary of First Nationwide Financial Corp., which operates three other thrift subsidiaries: Columbia Savings, Denver; pathway Financial F.A., Chicago; and Cardinal Federal Savings Bank, Cleveland. Together, First Nationwide Financial subsidiaries operate 287 retail branches in 12 states. First Nationwide, a wholly owned subsidiary of Ford Motor Co., is part of the Ford Financial Services Group.

ALLENTOWN, PA (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Pennsylvania Power & Light Co.'s (NYSE: PPL) board of directors, during a specially convened telephone conference call meeting Monday (June 18), elected John T. Kauffman chairman, president, and chief executive officer of the Allentown-based utility.

Kauffman succeeds Robert K. Campbell, chairman, president and, chief executive officer, who died Saturday, June 16, after a short illness. He had successfully led the company for 13 years.

Kauffman, executive vice president and chief operating officer, and Charles E. Russoli, executive vice president and chief financial officer, have been in charge of the day-to-day operations of the company since June 11 at the request of Campbell.

In a letter to the company's board of directors which he signed on June 15 the day before he died, Campbell announced his intent to retire effective

July 1, 1990. In that letter, he wrote: "It is with deep regret that severe health problems, which have recently afflicted me, make it necessary for me to retire July 1, 1990."

In a separate letter to employees, also signed June 15, Campbell said: "I have recommended that the board of directors elect John T. Kauffman to succeed me in all capacities. John has played a key role in the company's operations during his career and has helped shape the decisions that have brought PP&L to the top of the electric utility industry.

"I am confident that John, as chairman, president and chief executive officer, will have the complete support of our strong management team in carrying forward the strategic direction of our company. I deeply appreciate all the support you have extended to me over the years, and I ask for the same measure of allegiance for John Kauffman and the rest of PP&L's management team.

"In the 13 years that I have been with PP&L, I have been fortunate to have worked with the finest, most talented people anywhere in the electric utility industry. Because of your dedication to excellence, we have made enormous strides in every phase of our operations. We have established strategies that truly will meet the essence of our corporate mission for many years to come," Campbell's letter said.

Kauffman has been executive vice president and chief operating officer since Oct. 1, 1989. He began his career in the electric utility industry as a test engineer with the former Pennsylvania Water & Power Co. at Holtwood Steam Electric Station in 1950. (Penn Water was merged with PP&L in 1955.) He became a results engineer in 1952 at Holtwood and three years later was promoted to supervisor Holtwood Operations.

FAIRFIELD, NJ (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Selectatech, Inc. announced today that on June 15 it had closed on the agreement effective April 1, 1990 to acquire Nutritional Metabolic Support Associates (NMSA) of West

Springfield, Mass.

The NMSA companies, located in West Springfield, Dallas and Puerto Rico and the recently opened branch in San Francisco had sales in excess of $3 million in 1989 and have reported losses for 1989. Selectatech management will consolidate overlapping functions with those of its Clinical Homecare Corp. subsidiary and expects to have the losses under control by the end of the third quarter.

Terms of the acquisition include $192,000 in cash, assumption of liabilities and slightly less than 2.5 percent of the outstanding stock when the Clinical Homecare Corp. merger is completed by Selectatech.

Future payments include up to $100,000 in cash and stock options related to profits and annual sales increases respectively. The completion of this acquisition will represent a step in achieving its goal of becoming one of the top ten companies in the home infusion industry.

Clinical Homecare Corp., founded in 1983, is a direct provider of infusion services to patients in the home. It was among the first home infusion therapy companies in the nation to receive accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations (JCAHO).

DALLAS (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - NCNB Corp. (NYSE: NCB) said today it plans to purchase a mortgage servicing portfolio that will triple the size of NCNB Mortgage Corp., making it one of the 15 largest mortgage companies in the country.

The expanded portfolio and the accompanying loan servicing facility -- located in Kentucky -- position NCNB to be a nationwide competitor in both mortgage lending and morgage servicing, company officials said.

The transaction is outlined in a letter of intent NCNB has entered into with Fundamental Mortgage Corp. of Dallas. It calls for NCNB to purchase Fundamental's mortgage servicing agreements with an outstanding principal balance of up to $10.4 billion and Fundamental's approximately 300-employee loan servicing facility in Louisville, Ky.

NCNB Mortgage currently manages $4.8 billion in mortgage servicing agreements. It has loan servicing centers in Charlotte, N.C., and Lubbock Texas. Fundamental is a subsidiary of Houston-based San Jacinto Savings Association.

The purchase, which is subject to due diligence by both companies and approval by directors of both firms and regulators, is expected to be completed by the end of the third quarter. Neither company disclosed the purchase price.

Christopher T. Gilson, chairman of NCNB Mortgage, described the acquisition of the Fundamental Mortgage assets as consistent with NCNB Mortgages long-term strategy for growth.

"This acquisition is important to NCNB for two reasons," Gilson said. "First, the significant increase in our servicing portfolio enhances our ability to increase loan originations in NCNB banking markets.

Frank Poole, chairman and chief executive officer of Fundamental, said the sale to NCNB would broaden the horizons of Fundamental's employees at the servicing facility.

"Since we are buying an on-going loan servicing business, we are excited about both its capabilities and the addition of the capable and experienced Fundamental employees to the NCNB team," Gilson added.

NCNB Mortgage is an affiliate of NCNB Corp., the seventh largest bank holding company in the country with $63.7 billion in assets and more than 850 branches in seven states.

LOUISVILLE, KY (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The last of Ford Motor Co.'s C-Series heavy trucks, featuring the longest continuously produced truck body style in North America, will roll from the assembly line of Ford's Kentucky Truck Plant (KTP) today, ending a production run of more than 250,000 vehicles since 1955.

The C-Series will be replaced in October at the Chamberlain Lane plant by the Cargo truck, built at a Ford plant in Brazil since 1985 and imported into the United States.

C-SERIES TRUCKS DOMINATED THEIR MARKETS George Kormanis, KTP assistant manager, said the vehicle will be the center of attention at a brief drive-off event today. "The pug-faced C-Series was the first high-volume low-cost, tilt-cab medium truck when it entered the market in 1955," he said. "With its set-back rear axle and low profile, the C-Series for decades dominated markets for city delivery trucks, fire engines and waste trucks."

Kenneth F. Smith, Ford heavy truck general operations manager, said: "While demand for the C-Series remains significant, the design is simply too old for the demands of today's trucking industry. The modern Cargo is a more sophisticated truck which has proven to be a popular replacement for the venerable C-Series."

Attending the drive-off of the final C-Series truck will be the buyer, Ron L. Ewers, executive vice president - Production, of Emergency One, an Ocala, Fla., company which adapts trucks for fire-engine and other rescue-equipment use. Also present will be George W. Clague, heavy truck sales manager of Ford's Heavy Truck Orlando, Fla., district.

Driving the last C-Series from the assembly line will be the same person who drove the first off the line in 1955, Whayne Wyatt, now a quality control supervisor.

"The Cargo already has proven itself as a more sophisticated replacement of the C-Series," said Smith. "Yet, with increasing demands for new designs in the future, I doubt if any truck will ever again achieve the longevity of the venerable C-Series. It served the American public more than twice as long as the Model-T truck, which created the American trucking industry."

Ford's C-Series design was so admired that, over the years, several other manufacturers, including Mack and FWD, purchased the cabs for their own vehicles from Budd Company, which produced the cab from Ford's design and dies.

UNIVERSAL CITY, CA (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Universal Pictures has entered into a three-year agreement with "Field of Dreams" writer-director Phil Alden Robinson to write, direct, and produce motion pictures for theatrical release, it was announced by Tom Pollock, chairman of the MCA Motion Picture Group, and Casey Silver, president of production for Universal Pictures.

"As the writer and director of one of the most acclaimed films of 1989, Phil Robinson touched the hearts of millions of people the world over," says Pollock. "He is an extremely talented filmmaker, and we welcome him to the Universal family."

The agreement terms give Universal first look at all feature films developed by Robinson, who will be based on the Universal lot.

Robinson received a Writers Guild of America nomination and an Academy Award nomination for his screenplay for "Field of Dreams," which also was nominated for best picture. The film appeared on 56 year-end Top Ten lists from film critics around the country, and Robinson also received a Directors of America nomination.

"When I finished 'Field of Dreams,' I decided that I would take a year off to have a life," said Robinson. "Well, the year is now up, and I couldn't be happier about jumping back into the fray with Universal Pictures. My first produced screenplay, 'All of Me,' was for Universal, and my first directing assignments were for Universal Television, so this feels like a homecoming. I also feel tremendous loyalty and warmth for Tom Pollock and Casey Silver who were so supportive of 'Field of Dreams.' In addition, the Distribution and Marketing Divisions are first rate. I'm very fond of the Chinese chicken salad at the Commissary, and I'm really looking forward to taking the tour."

After garnering critical acclaim for his screenplay for "All of Me," Robinson made his directorial debut on "In the Mood." He was represented in the negotiations with Universal by Peter Turner of the William Morris Agency and Kenneth Browning of the law firm, Wyman, Bautzer, Kuchel & Silbert.

STAMFORD, CT (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - In one of the longest programming commitments in Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) history, GTE Corp. (NYSE: GTE) has announced an $11 million, five-year agreement to be the sole series underwriter for "Scientific American Frontiers," a new hour-long, magazine-style science television series, to be broadcast once a month for five consecutive months each year beginning in October 1990.

The series will be produced by The Chedd-Angier Production Co. in association with Scientific American magazine and presented on PBS by Connecticut Public Television.

"GTE's underwriting grant continues the company's long-standing commitment to improving the quality of mathematics and science education in the United States," said James L. "Rocky" Johnson, chairman and chief executive officer of GTE.

"We hope that by stimulating students' interest in science today, we are helping to ensure that technology-driven companies like GTE will have an adequate labor pool of engineers, scientists, and technicians to draw from in the future."

"Scientific American Frontiers" classroom aids will be made available free of charge to a primary mailing of 50,000 junior and senior high school science and math teachers in all 50 states. GTE estimates that 150,000 teachers and almost 14 million students will use the materials.

The host for "Scientific American Frontiers" will be Woodie C. Flowers, internationally renowned MIT Professor of Engineering, who was responsible for bringing to MIT one of its most famous courses, "Introduction to Design."

Flowers also instituted MIT's world-famous design competition, in which engineering students are issued a challenge and vie in one-on-one contests in an auditorium filled with wildly partisan audiences.

Producers Graham Chedd and John Angier said, "Our new affiliation with Scientific American, the prestigious science magazine, opens up many exciting paths for science on public television. We are delighted that GTE is maintaining its commitment to science television in its five-year support of 'Scientific American Frontiers.'

"Woodie Flowers is the perfect host for this exciting new series. A charismatic and staunch supporter of science education, he is indeed fascinated as a continuing student of science, and is absolutely fascinating as a presenter of science's secrets. He will bring to our audiences his infectious sense of curiosity about science, conveyed with a folksy, light-hearted enthusiasm," noted Chedd and Angier.

ATLANTA (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Contel Corp. (NYSE: CTC) today announced that, as a result of its continuing strategic review of operations, it will sell Contel Office Communications.

Contel has engaged Atlanta-based Focus Associates Inc. to seek a buyer for Contel Office Communications. Contel Office Communications, which serves more than 1,100 customers with more than 50,000 lines in 14 major metropolitan areas, is the nation's largest provider of shared telecommunications services to tenants of high-rise office buildings and is also a leading manager of customer-owned telecommunications systems.

Financial results for Contel Office Communications, previously reported in the Information Systems Sector results, will be reported as discontinued operations beginning in the second quarter of this year. No material effect on Contel's consolidated financial results is expected.

Contel President and Chief Executive Officer Donald W. Weber said: "As part of our long-term strategy for growth, Contel must invest in technologies and businesses that fit strategically with our three core sectors, or have the capability to make a meaningful impact on consolidated financial results.

"In the case of Office Communications, management and the board of directors decided that there was not a long-term strategic or financial fit and that Contel Office Communications' resources could be more effectively developed by a new owner."

Contel, a company with more than $3 billion in revenues and sales, provides a broad range of telecommunications products and services.

BOSTON (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Bank of New England Corporation (NYSE: NEB) today announced that it has sold two real estate owned properties for approximately $31 million. The properties include four apartment complexes, totaling 1,093 units, located in Phoenix, Ariz., as well as 47 condominiums in Boston's North End. The properties were sold by Barnside Realty Corporation, a wholly owned subsidiary of the bank.

Robert Sheridan & Partners, a Chicago-based owner and developer of industrial properties, purchased the Phoenix properties, indicating that the acquisition represented a re-entry into the residential market. The Boston condominiums, which are located at Fulton and Richmond Streets, were sold individually at an auction attended by some 650 people. LFC Real Estate Marketing Services conducted the auction on behalf of BNEC.

"The proceeds of these sales are an additional boost to our recovery" said Richard Stover, executive vice president in charge of controlled loan activities. "Together, this represents our largest sale of real estate assets to date, as we continue to manage, improve and prepare similar dispositions from our portfolio."

WASHINGTON (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The government of Namibia has filed an application for membership in the International Monetary Fund.

In accordance with prescribed procedures, the application will be considered, first, by the IMF's executive board. After its consideration, the executive board will submit a report, with recommendation, to the board of governors of the IMF in the form of a "Membership Resolution." These recommendations cover the amount of quota in the fund, the form and payment of the subscription, and other customary terms and conditions of membership.

After the board of governors has adopted the "Membership Resolution," Namibia would need to take the legal steps required under its law to enable it to sign the IMF's Articles of Agreement and to fulfill the obligations of membership in the fund.

CITY OF INDUSTRY, CA (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - STOR Furnishings

International Inc. (NASDAQ: STOR) achieved higher sales and narrowed its losses for the fourth quarter and fiscal year, Harvey G. Knell, chairman and chief executive officer, announced today.

For the 12 weeks ended March 30, 1990, STOR's net sales increased to $14,944,000 from $9,097,000 in the like period a year ago. A loss of $1,010,000 or 25 cents per share, was reported, compared to last year's fourth quarter loss of $1,324,000 or 35 cents per share.

For the fiscal year, sales climbed to $65,653,000 from $33,132,000 in the prior year. A loss of $4,946,000 for the year, or $1.23 per share, was sustained, as against a loss of $6,871,000, or $2.69 per share, in fiscal 1989.

Results for both fiscal 1990 and 1989 reflect STOR's operations as a private company. STOR completed an initial public offering of 2,250,000 common shares on April 27, 1990, which generated net proceeds to the company of $15,740,000.

Knell commented: "We are pleased with the progress STOR made during its second full year of operations. The success of our goal of making it easy enjoyable and economical to give a home style at STOR is reflected in our sales gains. We are also seeing growing acceptance of STOR's combination of broad selection, immediate pick- up of merchandise and home-assembly furniture.

"We opened our third supercenter during the first quarter of fiscal 1990 and it was a major factor in our sales gains for both the quarter and fiscal year. Results were also aided by the fact that our second supercenter was open for the full year, compared to only six months in fiscal 1989. Our original unit in the City of Industry also reported modest sales gains for the year.

"With the added resources from our initial public offering and our strengthened balance sheet, we intend to continue to establish STOR as a new force in the home furniture industry. We plan to open two additional supercenters during fiscal 1991."

STOR Furnishings International Inc. operates high volume supercenters offering a large selection of high quality, affordable home furniture and furnishings, as well as housewares and accessories, available in-stock for customers to take home the same day. It currently operates three 150,000-square-foot supercenters in Southern California.

CLEVELAND (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Monday's high humidity and warm weather prompted more and more CEI customers to turn on fans and air conditioners to keep cool.

From 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. today, CEI customers set a year-to-date record for electricity use -- 3,574,000 kilowatt hours of electricity.

Today's record beat the previous peak electricity demand of 3,319,000 kilowatt hours set on Thursday of last week.

CEI's all-time peak demand record of 4,067,000 kilowatt hours of electricity was set on Aug. 17, 1988.

Contributing strongly to today's year-to-date peak electricity usage was the ever-growing demand of CEI's commercial customers and moderate demand by industrial customers.

CEI serves 740,000 customers in a 1,700-square-mile area encompassing Cleveland-Northeast Ohio.

CEI officials said the pattern of electricity usage by commercial and industrial customers shows our area's economy remains healthy.

SMITHTOWN, NY (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Quantronix Corporation (NASDAQ: QUAN) today reported its results for the fourth quarter and fiscal year ended March 31, 1990.

Revenues for the year ended March 31, 1990, increased 13.6 percent to $31,747,000 from $27,944,000 in the previous fiscal year. A loss of $1,361,000, or $.36 per share, was incurred in fiscal 1990, contrasted to net earnings of $1,035,000, or $.28 per share, in fiscal 1989.

For the fourth quarter ended March 31, 1990, revenues were $6,969,000, a decrease of 15 percent from the corresponding quarter in fiscal 1989. A loss of $2,041,000 for the quarter compared to net earnings of $29,000 in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1989.

Commenting on the results, Donald Mitchell, president and chief executive officer, said, "The disappointing performance for fiscal 1990 came from three factors. First, customer deferrals for our semiconductor photomask repair equipment significantly affected planned revenue. While other segments, notably the Control Laser subsidiary, exceeded plan, the semiconductor shortfall had a major impact on our profits.

"Second, Quantronix settled a patent litigation issue with Hughes Aircraft resulting in a one-time pre-tax charge to earnings of $280,000 for past infringement. Acceptance of the Hughes patent's validity has now become common in our industry.

"Third and most significant, Quantronix elected to restructure its product offerings by closing out several low-volume, unprofitable product lines in several business segments.

"Given the rapid rate of technology change in the laser industry, we felt it appropriate to more conservatively reflect the value of these elements of our product range. This decision led to one-time charges for inventory and other assets associated with these product lines.

"Looking forward to fiscal 1991, the outlook is brighter. We see a strengthening in semiconductor equipment sales, particularly in the export market. Our industrial laser marketing business continues strong and our new product development program, spread over the laser, semiconductor, medical and industrial markets, is on schedule."

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Procermex Inc. today announced the transfer of sales and marketing responsibilities for Pacifico Beer from Consolidated Pacific Brands Inc. to Barton Beers, Ltd. and Gambrinus Importing Co., Importers of Corona Extra. Pacifico Beer was introducted in the western United States in early 1985. The brand is now available in 34 states with volume exceeding 500,000 cases in 1989.

"Consolidated Pacific Brands Inc. has done an excellent job positioning Pacifico in the competitive U.S. Imported beer market," said Roberto Viejo president, Procermex Inc. "In spite of declining volume for imports in 1988 and 1989, the Pacifico brand grew by two percent under the capable direction of Consolidated Pacific Brands Inc."

Pacifico Beer is brewed by Cerveceria Del Pacifico in Mazatlan, Mexico, a member of Modelo Brewing Group, brewer of Corona Extra, Mexico's leading beer and the leading Mexican beer in the United States.

Procermex Inc., the U.S. representative of Grupo Modelo, is coordinating the transfer of responsibilities among Consolidated Pacific Brands Inc., Gambrinus Importing Co. and Barton Beers, Ltd. to ensure a smooth transition. Barton Beers will have sales and marketing responsibilities for Pacifico Beer in 25 western states and Gambrinus Importing Co. will have the same responsibilities for 25 eastern states.

Cerveceria Modelo S.A. de C.V., according to 1989 sales figures, is Mexico's leading brewer with a market share exceeding 50 percent in the Republic of Mexico. Cerveceria Modelo products represented more than 70 percent of all beer exported from Mexico.

Corona Extra, America's second-leading imported beer, and Corona Light are brewed and bottled by Cerveceria Modelo, S.A. de C.V. Barton Beers, Ltd. is responsible for the importation, sales and marketing of Corona Extra and Corona Light in 25 western states. Gambrinus Importing Co. is responsible for the importation, sales and marketing of Corona Extra and Corona Light in 25 eastern states.

WILSON, NC (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Standard Commercial Corporation (NYSE: STW) today announced that sales for its 1990 fiscal year were $931.0 million compared with $935.8 million the previous year. A loss from continuing operations of $3.3 million was sustained in 1990 compared with a profit of 5.2 million in 1989. For the year just ended, a net loss of $4.9 million, or $0.59 per share, was incurred in comparison with net income of $1.6 million, or $0.20 per share, a year earlier.

For the fourth quarter, 1990 sales of $277.9 million were up from $272.2 million. In 1990, income from continuing operations for the quarter was $1.7 million down from $2.5 million. Net income for the 1990 quarter was $67,000, or $0.01 per share, down from $151,000, or $0.02 per share.

Tobacco sales for the 1990 year and fourth quarter totaled $539.5 million and $186.5 million, respectively, compared with $447.7 million and $140.4 million a year ago. Tobacco comprised 58 percent of total sales for the year and 67 percent of fourth quarter revenues for fiscal 1990. However, operating profit of $13.4 million for the year was down approximately one-third, primarily because the mix of sales was such that margins were lower.

Wool sales were down for the year and last quarter respectively from $477.1 million to $379.8 million and from $130.1 million to $89.1 million. The volume of sales for the year was down approximately 5 percent and prices were sharply lower. The increased operating loss for the wool division from $4.0 million to $10.2 million was attributed to stock provisions earlier in the year and lower margins because of generally weak world market conditions. Furthermore, no current tax relief was available on losses incurred in certain wool companies so that taxes for the year exceeded pretax income.

Although we recorded a loss of $3.9 million in fiscal 1989 under discontinued operations upon disposal of Kraemer Mercantile Corporation the transaction was not treated as a sale for financial accounting purposes. For fiscal 1990, Kraemer paid down its note to the Company on schedule, plus interest; however, it was considered prudent to make a provision of $1.6 million under discontinued operations because of certain past due receivables Kraemer has on its books.

Because of the seasonal nature and unpredictable shipping patterns of our two main businesses, quarter-to-quarter comparisons may be of little value in assessing the trend of earnings, and quarterly results may not be indicative of results for the year as a whole. In fiscal 1991 we expect earnings to be strong in the December and March quarters following what we anticiapte will be comparatively weak quarters in June and September.

The Board of Directors has voted to maintain the dividend payable in September 1990 at $0.13 per share.

Orphan Drug status, which applies to diseases affecting less than 200,000 persons, confers special tax advantages, accelerated regulatory review by the FDA and a minimum of seven years of marketing exclusivity following

FDA approval to market the product.

Herpes simplex encephalitis is an opportunistic viral infection which occurs in the brains of AIDS patients and in other individuals and can be fatal or produce permanent neurological damage.

The herpes encephalitis virus, like other herpes viruses, infects brain and nerve cells behind the blood-brain barrier, a tightly packed layer of cells which separates the brain from the rest of the body.

Animal testing has shown that combining acyclovir with Pharmatec's patented carrier enables the combination to more effectively penetrate the blood-brain barrier and reach the brain.

By markedly increasing the level of acyclovir in the brain, it may now be possible to more successfully treat this disease and other viral infections in the brain, such as CMV retinitis, a cause of blindness in AIDS patients.

The company estimates the worldwide market for its new form of acyclovir for treating herpes simplex encephalitis in AIDS patients, if approved for sale by the FDA and similar regulatory authorities of foreign countries, would be approximately $10 million annually and will grow as the number of AIDS cases increases.

Several years of clinical testing and approval of the FDA will be required before the company's new form of acyclovir could be marketed for the treatment of viral infections in the brain.

Acyclovir is presently sold by Burroughs Wellcome under the trademark "Zovirax" for the treatment of herpes genitalis (genital herpes). The company plans to conduct laboratory tests to determine if its new form of acyclovir can also be used to treat genital herpes, which affects more than 10 million people in the United States.

Pharmatec is a research-based pharmaceutical company specializing in the development of two novel technologies - a carrier system for increasing the delivery of drugs to the brain and MOLECUSOL(R) brand cyclodextrins for increasing the solubility and stability of drugs.

ST. LOUIS (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Ten Southwestern Bell Telephone (SWBT) customers in Texas and Oklahoma are the first to buy ISDN under the company's "experimental starter package" tariff.

The tariff has been implemented on a temporary basis and lets customers use ISDN without making a large capital investment. Customers can buy eight, 16, 24 or 32 lines.

The tariffs will be in effect for up to two years. The Texas tariff was approved in October 1989. Oklahoma's received commission okay in March 1990.

SWBT, the only Bell operating company to offer such a service, developed it because of customer requests, said Mark Christian, SWBT's basic rate interface/access ISDN product manager.

"The package gives customers the flexibility to run trial applications and make an evaluation about how ISDN can help their businesses," he explained.

The rate for the service is $21.50 per ISDN line plus the cost of a business line. Customers may purchase the service if they are outside the geographical serving area of the central office, but an additional charge applies.

SWBT plans to file a similar starter package tariff in Kansas. Southwestern Bell Telephone is a wholly owned subsidiary of Southwestern Bell Corp. and provides network exchange service to nearly 9 million customers in Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas and Missouri.

DALLAS (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - MorningStar Foods Inc. announced today that it has entered into an Amendment to its Credit Agreement that extends the payment date for a principal reduction of its debt from June 15, 1990, to June 25, 1990. In December 1989, MorningStar restructured the payments due under its bank Credit Agreement to provide a schedule that corresponds to the divestiture of certain regional and other dairy operations.

MorningStar entered into an agreement for the sale of its Texas dairy operations on Mar. 16, 1990. The closing of the sale has met with delays relating to information request from the U.S. Department of Justice in connection with the filings made under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Act.

Jim Bach, president of MorningStar, commented that "this Amendment allows additional time for us to continue our efforts to close the HSR waiting periods. Although we have been in regular contact with the staff of the Justice Department, it is uncertain when the required waiting periods will expire. In this interim period, we will continue to work without banks to develop an appropriate amendment that will be based on the status of the divestiture program and other factors."

MorningStar operates regional dairy plants in California, Florida, Maryland and Texas and several specialty dairy plants. MorningStar markets refrigerated and frozen dairy products nationwide, including Barricini Ice Cream, Second Nature Egg Product and International Delight flavored coffee cream.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of California Biotechnology Inc. (NASDAQ: CBIO) today adopted a Common Share Purchase Rights Plan under which stockholders will receive one right to purchase a share of common stock for each outstanding share of Cal Bio common stock of record held at the close of business on July 31, 1990.

The rights, which will initially trade with the common stock, become exercisable, at $55.00 per right, when someone acquires 20 percent or more of the company's common stock or announces a tender offer which could result in such person owning 20 percent or more of the common stock. Prior to someone acquiring 20 percent, and in certain circumstances thereafter, the rights can be redeemed for one cent each by action of the Board. Under certain circumstances, if someone acquires 20 percent or more of the common stock, the rights permit the holders to purchase Cal Bio common stock at a 50 percent discount. In addition, in the event of a business combination, the rights permit purchase of the common stock of an acquiror at a 50 percent discount.

The rights expire on July 31, 2000. The rights distribution will not be taxable to stockholders and will be payable on July 31, 1990. A summary of the rights plan follows.

The plan is designed to enable all Cal Bio stockholders to realize the full value of their investment and to provide for fair and equal treatment for all Cal Bio stockholders in the event that an unsolicited attempt is made to acquire the company. The adoption of the plan is intended as a means to guard against abusive takeover tactics and is not in response to any proposal to acquire Cal Bio.

DENVER, COLO (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Robert J. Zavaglia, chief, Criminal Investigation Division of the Internal Revenue Service, Denver District Office, and Michael J. Norton U.S. Attorney, jointly announce that today, June 18, 1990, in United States District Court, U.S. District Judge Zita Weinschienk sentenced David A. Dashney to serve two years in prison and three years of supervised probation for structuring and attempting to structure transactions with domestic financial institutions for the purpose of evading currency transaction reporting requirements.

Dashney was indicted on Jan. 11, 1990 and was arrested at his home at 13252 White Marsh Lane, No. 22, Ft. Myers, Fla., by Special Agents of the Internal Revenue Service, Denver District Criminal Investigation, on Jan. 20, 1990. A federal jury convicted him on May 3, 1990 after a three day jury trial. The indictment charged that Dashney, for the purpose of evading the reporting requirements on Form 4789, Currency transaction report did knowingly and willingly purchase on the same business day, 11 separate cashier's checks totaling in excess of $99,000 at one or more domestic financial institutions in the Denver metropolitan area. The cashier's checks did not meet the minimum reporting requirement, some by as little as one penny. According to officials, the money was won legitimately in a Las Vegas casino and the series of cashier's checks were purchased to evade the currency transaction reporting requirement. Form 4789, Currency Transaction Report, is required to be filed by banks with the Internal Revenue Service when a cash transaction involves currency of more than $10,000. In addition, multiple transactions must be treated as a single transaction if the financial institution has knowledge that they are by or on behalf of any person and they result in cash into or cash out of the financial institution totaling more than $10,000.

This case was investigated by Special Agents of the Internal Revenue Service, Criminal Investigation Division and presented to the court by Assistant U.S. Attorneys Robert Clark and William Welch.

SAN FRANCISCO (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) today rejected as unacceptable a response to EPA's unilateral order issued to five oil companies who may be responsible for the McColl Superfund site, Fullerton, Calif. As a result, EPA will conduct the work with the California Department of Health Services and will refer the case to the U.S. Department of Justice for further enforcement action.

"I cannot understand the oil companies refusal to conduct work which is clearly in the best interest of the McColl community," said Jeff Zelikson, director of EPA's regional hazardous waste management division. "It is clear the companies do not intend to comply with our order and we are now prepared to pursue this matter in the courts."

In their response, Shell Oil Co. Inc., Union Oil Co. of California Inc., Atlantic Richfield Co. Inc., Texaco Inc., and Phillips Petroleum Inc. refused to conduct the groundwater study and other work necessary at the site, but offered up to $4.8 million to fund work contingent on conditions which EPA finds unacceptable -- conditions which put restrictions on the scope of the project, the length of the time involved, and the funds available.

"To accept this money under the terms of their offer would severely restrict EPA's ability to perform a complete and thorough study of the groundwater contamination problem at the site," said Zelikson.

EPA issued a unilateral order on May 30 requiring the companies to begin a groundwater investigation and routine groundwater monitoring of the site. The oil companies are also required to provide for site maintenance and security. The landowner, McAuley LCX Inc., has agreed to provide access to the site as required by the order.

ELWHA, WASHINGTON (JUNE 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The Treaty Indian Tribes have applauded a statement issued today by the National Park Service supporting the removal of two dams on the Elwha River near Port Angeles. Tribal spokesperson Rachel Kowalski called the statement by Park Service Regional Director Charles H. Odegaard a "gem of wisdom."

Odegaard said the Park Service is "calling for the restoration of all anadromous fish stocks to the Elwha River. Anadromous fish are a crucial element of the natural ecosystem of the Olympic National Park. We believe that full restoration of all fish stocks cannot occur with the Glines Canyon and Elwha Dams in place."

Prior to the construction of the first Elwha Dam in 1913, the river was famous for its salmon runs, which often included 100-pound chinook. The dam, located 5 miles from the river mouth on the Strait of Juan de Fuca, devastated the Elwha fishery, as well as the natural food chain throughout the river system. The Elwha Dam has never been licensed by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) and the Glines Canyon Dam's license expired in 1976.

James River Corp. owns the dams, which operate for the sole purpose of providing electrical power to the Japanese-owned Daishowa Pulp Mill in Port Angeles. The Park Service says it has no objection to FERC continuing its current preparation of an Environmental Impact Statement exploring alternatives for the dams. But, approximately 90 percent of the Glines Canyon project is located on federal lands within the Olympic National Park. The Park Service maintains that FERC has no authority to license the Glines River project.

The General Accounting Office (GAO) recently confirmed a Department of Interior position that FERC lacks jursidiction to license the Glines Canyon project. These agencies have called for the removal of both dams. Odegaard's statement today confirmed that this is also the position of the Park Service.

Kowalksi, who is Fisheries Director for the Lower Elwha Tribe, said, "This is great news. We are one step closer to removal of these dams and the rebirth of the great Elwha fishery. There are more than 75 miles of ideal fish habitat on the Elwha River and we have thousands of years of history interconnected with the fish that originate here. It won't be easy. We're fighting a battle that has never been won before. But we will continue to do what we must do to bring the great fish back. We commend the Park Service for its wisdom in making this decision, and we ask for its continued support. Together, we can make a difference."

SCHAUMBURG, IL (JUNE 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Motorola Inc. (NYSE: MOT) said that it is confident that it will continue to provide an uninterrupted supply of a key microprocessor to customers despite a decision by a federal judge that might temporarily prevent the company from selling its market-leading 68030 microprocessor. The judge has disclosed his intent to sign an order but has not yet signed it.

Motorola said it will immediately file an emergency appeal with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit (CAFC), following the decision by Judge Lucius D. Bunton of the U.S. District Court for the Western Division of Texas (Austin Division). Judge Bunton indicated today that he will lift his earlier stay on an injunction that prevents Hitachi and Motorola from selling their H8/532 and 68030 microprocessors, respectively. "We are confident that the CAFC will promptly stay the lower court's decision, pending appeal," Motorola said.

Reacting to the judge's ruling, Motorola said in a statement today: "We are dismayed that Judge Bunton made this decision knowing full well that the two parties have been engaged in earnest attempts to settle this matter. Furthermore, the judge was made aware recently of a U.S. Patent Office finding that a substantial new question about an Hitachi patent has been raised, which has a direct bearing on the outcome of this case."

Motorola said that the U.S. Patent Office, on June 15, granted its request for reexamination of Hitachi's 271 patent, which had been asserted against Motorola's 68030 microprocessor, but which Motorola said is invalid based on a patent issued in 1966.

In the meantime, Motorola said negotiations to settle this dispute are continuing. "Each company remains dedicated to resolving this issue," Motorola said.

SINGAPORE (JUNE 18) UPI - Narcotics agents have cracked an India-based drug syndicate which tried to smuggle a huge haul of opium and heroin into Singapore in cans that purportedly contained pickles, pastries and milk, officials said Monday.

Narcotics officers arrested five men and seized 66 pounds of opium and 2.6 pounds of heroin in the biggest seizure of opium so far this year. The suspects could face the death penalty.

Hardial Singh, deputy director of the Central Narcotics Bureau, said the drugs were hidden in 41 sealed cans, all with labels for such foods such as pickled vegetables, milk and cakes.

It was the first time drug traffickers used such a method to bring drugs into the island republic.

The names of those arrested were not immediately revealed, pending formal charges. Under an amended drug law, the death penalty is mandatory for those convicted of trafficking, manufacturing, importing or exporting more than 2.6 pounds of opium.

Hardial said the CNB received information two months ago that the syndicate was bringing in opium and heroin from New Delhi by air. Investigators learned the syndicate leader and three couriers arrived last Thursday.

Narcotics agents arrested the syndicate leader and his local distributor at a coffee house. Later, they raided two homes and three more Indian nationals, identified as the couriers, were arrested.

Opium smugglers have been looking for new markets for their drugs during a year in which India and Pakistan have had bumper poppy crops.

LIGONIER, PA (JUNE 18) UPI - A real-life Little Red Riding Hood ran into a big, bad bear but the clash of fairy tales finished with a happy ending.

State Game Commission officials Friday came to the aid of Tammy Bohine, who plays the role of Riding Hood at the Story Book Forest theme park in Ligonier, after she spotted the bear while strolling in her yard.

Officials shot a tranquilizer into the female bear as Bohine sat in a tree. The bear fell about 25 feet. It was unharmed and taken to Laurel Mountain, where it was released.

Game officials said the bear was the same one that wandered through a neighborhood in nearby Greensburg two weeks ago.

Game Warden Dennis Jones said no theme park visitors were in danger.

''Bears don't bother people unless they're cornered,'' he said.

(JUNE 18) UPI - After squaring off with the upstart Chicago White Sox in a four-game weekend series, the Oakland Athletics emerged with their championship reputation fully intact.

Chicago entered the four-game series trailing the division-leading A's by just two games, and with hopes of moving closer to the World Champions.

It looked promising for the White Sox Thursday night when they took the opening-game of the series. But Chicago stumbled and dropped the next three, capped by Sunday's 5-2 loss to the Athletics.

Although the precocious White Sox lost a game in the standings to the A's, they did earn the respect of Oakland's Rickey Henderson.

''They're real competitive,'' said the leftfielder, who may miss a few games with a hip pointer that nagged him all weekend. ''Chicago has got a young ballclub. They're very hungry.''

Mark McGwire hit a solo homer and pinch hitter Felix Jose added a tie-breaking RBI single in the eighth inning for the A's.

Mike Moore, 5-6, ended a personal three-game losing streak to post only his second win in his last seven decisions. He gave up six hits over seven innings, walking two and striking out two. Dennis Eckersley mopped up for his 22nd save.

''He really ended up pitching courageously,'' Athletics Manager Tony LaRussa said, refering to Moore operating in the exhausting 88 degree heat.

''He battled very, very well,'' catcher Terry Steinbach said of Moore. ''He showed his forkball and his slider enough to stay honest.''

LaRussa downplayed early talk of a pennant race with the White Sox.

''It's June. There's no way you can say it's a two-team race,'' LaRussa said.

Despite Sunday's loss, Chicago Manager Jeff Torborg was proud of the way his team performed and bounced back from Saturday night's 12-3 drubbing.

''(Donn) Pall and (starter Adam) Peterson did a super job for us today,'' White Sox Manager Jeff Torborg said. ''We played our tails off. It was a good comeback from last night.

''This series was one that slipped away,'' Torborg said. ''We let two (games) get away. I believe we'll come back.''

Pall, 0-2, took the loss in 3 1-3 innings of relief as the Athletics won their second game of the series with an eighth inning rally.

Elsewhere in the American League, Toronto trashed New York 8-1, California crushed Detroit 7-3, Boston chopped Baltimore 6-5, Cleveland trounced Milwaukee 12-4, Minnesota topped Kansas City 4-1, Oakland clubbed Chicago 5-2 and Seattle downed Texas 6-3.

In the NL, it was: Los Angeles 6, San Diego 3; San Francisco 9, Atlanta 7; New York 4, Pittsburgh 3; Cincinnati 7, Houston 1, St. Louis 7, Montreal 1 and Chicago 5, Philadelphia 3.

-- AROUND THE AL --

Blue Jays 8, Yankees 1

At New York, Todd Stottlemyre scattered seven hits and Fred McGriff belted a three-run homer to give Toronto and a sweep of their three-game series. Stottlemyre, 7-6, struck out one and walked two. Dave LaPoint, 4-6, suffered the loss.

Angels 7, Tigers 3

At Detroit, Lance Parrish hit the seventh grand slam of his career and Chuck Finley won his seventh game in his last eight decisions to lead California. Finley, 10-3, was in complete control before yielding Cecil Fielder's 25th home run and Jim Lindeman's second. Brian DuBois, 3-5, allowed seven runs and four hits.

Red Sox 6, Orioles 5

At Baltimore, Carlos Quintana drilled a three-run home run and Jody Reed added a three-run double lifting Boston to its third straight win and 11th in the last 15 games. Baltimore has dropped five straight games. Greg Harris, 6-3, earned the win allowing four runs and six hits in 6 1-3 innings and Rob Murphy notched his second save. Jeff Ballard fell to 1-7.

Indians 12, Brewers 4

At Cleveland, Cory Snyder homered twice, including the final of three in a row by Cleveland batters in the seventh inning to crush Milwaukee. Candy Maldonado, Brook Jacoby and Carlos Baerga also homered for the Indians, making a winner of Bud Black, 6-3. Ron Robinson, 0-1, took the loss.

Twins 4, Royals 1

At Kansas City, Kevin Tapani pitched a six-hitter over seven innings and Brian Harper drove home two runs, helping Minnesota snap a nine-game losing streak. Tapani, 7-4, yielded Bo Jackson's seventh home run of the season in the fourth inning, but hung on for the victory and Rick Aguilera earned his 16th save. Bret Saberhagen, 5-6, lost his third consecutive start.

Mariners 6, Rangers 3

At Seattle, Darnell Coles and Ken Griffy Jr. drove in two runs each and Randy Johnson notched his fourth straight victory. Johnson, 7-3, allowed two runs and eight hits over eight innings. Bobby Witt, 3-8, gave up six runs eight hits over seven innings in taking the loss. He walked three and struck out six.

(JUNE 18) UPI - Black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela says the long struggle against apartheid in South Africa may end soon. He made the statement Sunday after arriving in Ottawa on the first stop of his Canadian tour. He's to address the Canadian parliament on Monday, before flying to Toronto and Montreal.

European Community leaders are to meet in Dublin next week, and E-C foreign ministers meet in Luxembourg Monday to prepare for the Dublin summit. Among issues to be discussed at the Luxembourg session is the question of whether to retain economic sanctions against South Africa. Britain wants them lifted.

Federal officials say they've spotted at least five turtles dirtied by oil spilled from the tanker Mega Borg in the Gulf of Mexico off Texas. An estimated three-point-nine-Million gallons of oil leaked from the ship, but officials say much of the oil evaporated or was burned off by the fire that swept the tanker.

Fuel was drained from the cruise ship Bermuda Star Sunday, and the ship was patched up so it can be towed to a New York shipyard for further repairs. It was one week ago that the cruise ship ran aground in heavy fog off Cape Cod, Massachusetts... spilling 75-hundred gallons of oil.

One person was killed and at least 25 others were hurt when a minivan smashed into a girder supporting a Bronx elevated train Sunday night. New York authorities say the van was packed with members of a Korean church group when the accident occurred. Witnesses say the van swerved to avoid a car.

Also in New York City, five children were pulled safely from a burning van that was parked on a Brooklyn street. The youngsters were rescued Sunday by three men who spotted the flames and rushed to the scene. Police say the fire was started by one of the children who was playing with matches.

MOSCOW (JUNE 18) UPI - Radicals threatened to leave the Soviet Communist Party unless it renounces communism, changes its name, gives away its property and severs its links with the KGB secret police.

Members of the Democratic Platform group, which had previously fought for reform inside the Communist Party, said Sunday they would start their own party if the demands are rejected as expected at the 28th Party Congress in two weeks.

It would be the first split within the Communist Party since it rode to power under Vladimir Lenin in the Russian revolution of November 1917.

''The party is a monolith that cannot be reformed from within,'' said Mikhail Boikov, a member of the Democratic Platform group. ''I've lost patience.''

Members of the group denied the split at the critical July congress would undermine Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev in his struggle with party conservatives such as Politburo member Yegor Ligachev.

''We have no practical effect on the processes taking place in the party leadership,'' said Vasily Shaknovsky, a leader of the group.

The group, in a resolution passed at a conference in Moscow, called for the abolition of the nomenklatura patronage system that gives communists control of all vital government and economic posts.

The resolution also demanded the party dismantle its organizations in the army and KGB security police. It said that the party should ''voluntarily give up the property it has taken illegally from the people.''

The Democratic Platform said the Communist Party must ''renounce communism as its objective, changing simultaneously the party's name.''

Only about 100 of the more than 5,000 delegates to the party congress are expected to support the group's demands, its leaders said, conceding their program faced almost certain defeat.

''We are not children and we understand that the theoretical chance of the fulfillment of our demands is essentially zero,'' said Stephen Sulakshin, a member of the group's coordinating council.

It is unclear how many communists would leave the party in a split. Democratic Platform leaders say up to 40 percent of the estimated 20 million party members support them, though they said the number willing to leave was much lower.

A new party formed from the Democratic Platform group would join more than a dozen other parties that have sprung up since the Communist Party renounced its monopoly on power in February.

The Democratic Platform demands came amid a massive exodus from the Communist Party.

The Soviet weekly Arguments and Facts reported Sunday that about 130,000 members of the Communist Party had already quit this year, about the total that left in all of 1989.

The Komsomol, or Young Communist League, has also suffered unprecedented defections, and the circulation of the party's official paper, Pravda, has plummeted.

WARSAW, POLAND (JUNE 18) UPI - The government won initial support from Solidarity citizens committees to establish a political power base for its bold reforms despite opposition by Solidarity union founder Lech Walesa.

Representatives of the committees, meeting Sunday to discuss the political future of the movement, agreed to convene again July 1 to decide on formation of a national federation.

Such a federation, which Walesa opposes, could lead to formation of a party-like structure that would back the government's sweeping political and economic reforms.

''Poland needs certain structures of social and political life on which support for the government could be strengthened,'' Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki told reporters after an all-day meeting of local committee representatives.

Asked if he thought such a federation would be established, he said, ''This is a matter of the committees themselves, but I think the next meeting will go in this direction.''

Local Solidarity-backed citizens committees were established following the trade movement's overwhelming victory in the June 1989 parliamentary elections that put a Solidarity government in charge of Poland. The committees captured more than 40 percent of the vote in local elections last month, with the next highest group taking only 6 percent.

Walesa, who founded the first civic committee from which the dozens of local committees evolved, did not attend the crucial meeting. Instead, he sent a letter warning against forming a political party, which he feared would dominate Polish politics.

''The committees should be open to different political views. They should not become one party,'' Walesa's letter said. ''Fighting against one (communist) monopoly threatens the establishment of another.''

Henryk Wujec, architect of the citizens committee plan and a former aide to Walesa who was fired for supporting the concept of maintaining the unity of the Solidarity movement, said the meeting represented a first step.

''It is not all that easy but it was a step in the right direction,'' he said. ''The gathering of political suppport for the government is beginning.''

Mazowiecki opened the meeting by arguing that his reforms need broad support.

''In order to implement the political reforms, the government needs a strong and broad political base,'' he said. ''I call upon you to be a political foundation for this government.''

The prime minister specified the tasks as establishing democratic structures and a market economy, and ensuring an appropriate place for Poland in the new European order.

While still attempting to avoid direct conflict with the Solidarity union leader, Mazowiecki said the government's reforms require stability and not ''upsetting everything should an opportunity arise.''

Mazowiecki was referring to Walesa's advisers, brothers Jaroslaw and Lech Kaczynski, who have formed Center Agreement, a group demanding swifter elimination of the remnants of the communist system and election this fall of Walesa as state president to succeed ex-communist Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski.

''They are wrong who believe that with attacks and hatred, piercing our common boat of Polish democracy, it is possible to speed its course,'' Mazowiecki said, drawing applause.

He drew more applause when he apparently referred to Walesa's presidential bid, saying, ''Personal choices should defer to democracy, and not democracy to personal choices.''

OTTAWA (JUNE 18) UPI - Black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela, beginning a North American tour that includes an address to Canada's Parliament Monday, promised that a more humane South Africa looms just beyond the horizon.

About 2,000 people, including hundreds of schoolchildren, were at Ottawa's military airport Sunday to greet Mandela. Chanting in Zulu and singing the black African national anthem, the crowd waved African National Congress flags and placards welcoming Mandela to Canada.

The 71-year-old vice president of the ANC said he would request that Western nations assume new tasks in the struggle against apartheid, the system of racial separation in South Africa, ''which continues to ravage our country.''

Mandela said the end of the ''hard and costly struggle'' was in sight. ''Beyond the horizon lies a South Africa that will be as glorious as it is humane,'' he said.

Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney described Mandela as a powerful symbol of the ''unbreakable spirit of man.'' He said Mandela's freedom from prison in February had rekindled hopes for a democratic South Africa.

Mandela, said to be deeply concerned about eroding support for sanctions in countries such as Britain, expected a sympathetic response from Canadian political leaders to his plea Monday that Ottawa maintain economic measures against the white-ruled South African government.

He was scheduled to address Parliament Monday - the only non-head of state to do so in more than four decades - before going to Toronto and Montreal.

Mandela's schedule includes a visit the United Nations in New York this week before heading to Washington next week to meet President Bush and address a joint session of Congress.

Senior Canadian government officials, speaking on the condition of anonymity, told reporters Mandela's pleas for continued sanctions against the white minority government would likely be aimed more at European leaders than those in Canada.

The European Community, which adopted sanctions five years ago, will discuss the issue at a meeting next week in Dublin, Ireland. The community is under strong pressure from Britain to either end or ease sanctions.

Mandela's North American visit is part of a whirlwind six-week, 13-nation tour that followed his release in February from prison, where he spent 27 years. Mandela is traveling with his wife, Winnie, senior officials of the ANC and his personal physician.

Speaking Saturday to a crowd of 8,000 on the 14th anniversary of an uprising in the black South African township of Soweto, Mandela told a Dutch crowd in Amsterdam that apartheid would be dismantled within five years.

During his North American visit, according to officials, Mandela hopes to raise funds to help resettle ANC political exiles and their families in South Africa. Canadian officials said there were no reliable figures on the number of exiles, but estimates range between 15,000 and 50,000.

As many as 3,000 of them may be in Canada, government officials said, adding exiles generally ''face a real crossroads decision'' on whether to return home.

Canadian officials view recent racial reforms in South Africa, among them this month's lifting of the state of emergency in three of four provinces, as ''very important,'' but insist they are only a first step toward comprehensive changes.

Until there is irreversible change in the apartheid system, Canada has pledged to maintain economic sanctions against the South African government. Sanctions already in place include an oil embargo, and a ban on sports contacts and imports of South African gold coins and fruit. Canada also bans investment and bank loans to South Africa.

In March, after Mandela urged nations to intensify sanctions, Canada's Conservative government quietly approved new restrictions on transfers of high technology to South Africa.

Canada has led the way among Commonwealth countries in applying sanctions, carrying on a running dispute with Britain over their effectiveness.

Canada's external affairs minister, Joe Clark, also heads a Commonwealth special committee on sanctions that last year recommended a freeze on existing sanctions.

(JUNE 18) UPI - Central American leaders say they're determined to unite in the battle against drug traffickers. The six presidents ended their two-day summit in Guatemala Sunday night with a statement saying they'll meet in Managua, Nicaragua, July 20th and 21st for a regional drug summit. The leaders also called on rebels in El Salvador to ''stop all offensives'' against the government. Attending the Guatemala meeting were the presidents of Costa Rica, Nicaragua, El Salvador, Honduras, Panama and Guatemala.

In Ohio, more than 600 National Guardsmen pushed ahead with search and cleanup efforts Sunday in areas devastated by last week's flooding. Emergency crews found three more bodies Sunday, raising the death toll to at least 19. 18 other people are UNaccounted for following the floods that hit the eastern Ohio region Thursday night. Shadyside Fire Chief Mark Badia says crews will search the area- quote- ''until we are convinced we have done all we can.''

Delegates from the United States and 79 other countries meet in London Wednesday to strengthen a treaty aimed at saving Earth's eroding ozone layer. President Bush and European leaders already are committed to speeding up the phase-out of ozone-depleting chemicals. That phase-out is the main business of the conference. New scientific studies show that ozone depletion is worse than previously thought, and there is widespread agreement that urgent action is needed.

The shuttle Atlantis began its slow, six-and-a-half-mile trip to the launch pad at Cape Canaveral Sunday night. Atlantis is being rolled out to launch pad 39-A in preparation for blastoff next month on a secret military mission. Details about the flight are classified, but sources say launch is planned for July 13th on a mission scheduled to last about four days.

LUXEMBOURG (JUNE 18) UPI - Unrest in Romania and economic sanctions against South Africa topped the agenda Monday at the start of a two-day meeting of European Community foreign ministers.

Preparations for next week's summit of EC leaders in Dublin was another key item up for discussion in Luxembourg.

Foreign ministers also planned to look at negotiations with the six-country European Free Trade Association over creating a ''European Economic Space,'' and will discuss proposed new ''association'' agreements between the EC and several countries of Eastern Europe.

Also likely agenda items were next month's Houston economic summit, German unification and the Uruguay Round of trade liberalization talks of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The EC foreign ministers met so many times in April and May, sometimes twice a week, that their scheduled sessions often ended early. This week's agenda looks so packed, however, that officials expect two full days of meetings.

Last week's violent suppression of anti-government demonstrations in Bucharest prompted the EC to reconsider a trade pact with Romania initialed June 8 but not yet signed. The foreign ministers were expected to decide whether to freeze further talks with the Romanian government, which has many former communists in key posts.

''I can give an absolute assurance that we will not proceed with that ratification procedure in the kind of circumstances that face us in Romania at the moment,'' Bruce Millan, EC commissioner for regional policy told the European Parliament Friday.

Similar trade and cooperation agreements have been signed in recent months with Poland, Hungary, East Germany, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria.

The foreign ministers also planned to discuss economic sanctions on South Africa imposed by the EC in 1986, which include a ban on new investments and a prohibition on imports of South African iron, steel and gold coins.

Britain has been pushing for months to lift the sanctions, and last week expressed surprise at EC President Charles Haughey, the Irish prime minister, for predicting ''a consensus, or as near a consensus as possible '' for retaining sanctions.

Britain says recent reforms by South African President Frederik de Klerk have persuaded several other EC countries that sanctions should be relaxed.

The European Parliament, which welcomed African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela last week, voted 177-47 Thursday in favor of a resolution to keep sanctions in place.

British officials say the sanctions are inconsistent with EC policy in Eastern Europe, which has rewarded partial reforms with EC aid. Haughey says sanctions on South Africa should remain until ''the process of demolishing apartheid becomes irreversible.''

Discussions on the June 25-26 Dublin summit will pick up those left off at a May 19 meeting of foreign ministers in Parknasilla, Ireland, in which talk of rapid ''political union'' were scuttled by reality.

''No country is yet ready to surrender sovereignty over foreign policy or security policy,'' French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas said at the conclusion of the Parknasilla session.

At an April 28 summit in Dublin, EC leaders instructed foreign ministers to explore what a political union should be. One EC diplomat said a working paper for the Luxembourg meeting ''raises more questions than it answers.''

Next week's Dublin summit will decide whether to call an intergovernmental conference on political union for late this year, to complement an already scheduled conference on economic and monetary union.

Haughey said he is ''reasonably certain'' the summit will decide to hold a conference on political union and also set a date, though the scope of the meeting seems significantly more narrow than envisaged just two months ago.

SOFIA, Bulgaria (JUNE 18) UPI - Results showing the former Communist Party winning an absolute majority in Parliament were anticipated Tuesday from the second of two rounds of voting in Bulgaria's first free elections in 44 years.

Voting was held Sunday in 81 constituencies where no candidate had won a majority in the first round June 10, the first multi-party balloting since 1946.

By 2 p.m., seven hours after the polls opened, 54.3 percent of eligible voters had cast their ballots, the Bulgarian news agency BTA said. Most polls closed by 6 p.m.

The second-round results were expected Tuesday, Electoral Commission Secretary Dimitar Popov said.

Bulgaria, the last of the Soviet Union's former satellites to hold contested elections since democratic upheaval swept Eastern Europe last year, is the only country in the region where the ruling communists appear likely to retain most of their power.

After the first round, the former Communist Party, which renamed itself and adopted a social-democratic platform after the November ouster of former leader Todor Zhivkov, held 172 seats in the 400-member Grand National Assembly, or Parliament.

The opposition Union of Democratic Forces held 107 seats after the first round, the Agrarian Union 16 and the Movement for Rights and Freedoms, which represents the large ethnic Turkish minority, 21. Three other groups each won one seat.

Reports from the capital and the countryside indicated polling went smoothly.

''Representatives of our association are all over the country,'' said Pavel Haitov of the nonpartisan Association for Fair Elections. ''I can say that both rounds of the elections were carried out peacefully, in an orderly manner and freely.''

International observers said after the first round that the polling was basically free of irregularities, despite protests by opposition groups the elections were rigged.

U.S. Ambassador to Bulgaria Sol Polanski and his wife visited a polling station in the Red Star housing complex in south Sofia. The two contenders there were Rumen Vodenicharov, leader of the Committee for the Defense of Human Rights, and Krastyo Goranov, the minister of culture and a member of the Bulgarian Socialist Party, the Communist Party's new name.

''I voted for Vodenicharov because he is a well-known fighter for human rights,'' said Ruben Ivanov, 33. ''He is the one who was the first to supply Sofia central prison with 100 copies of the Bible received from the United States.''

Nevena Vhelyazkova, a white-haired pensioner, said she voted for the Socialists although she is not a party member.

''Ever since (the rise of Soviet leader Mikhail) Gorbachev, I started believing that the Communist Party can be totally reformed,'' she said. ''All the evil deeds of the past must not be identified with the hundreds of thousands of party members.''

The assembly will sit for about 1 1/2 years. Its main task will be to formulate a new constitution.

Opposition groups had claimed the polls were rigged and held several mass rallies last week in protest.

The Socialists have carried out numerous reforms since Zhivkov was removed and its leadership is allowing many democratic rights.

Seventy of Sunday's races were direct contests between the Socialist Party and the opposition UDF. In five other constituencies, the Socialist candidates were standing against candidates for the Movement for Rights and Freedoms.

Prime Minister Andrei Lukanov was among those contesting a seat in the second round.

Half of the seats in Parliament were elected on party lists on a proportional representation basis. The other 200 seats were based on individual candidate races.

Socialist Party leader Alexander Lilov said his party was seeking a broad-based coalition government. The UDF and the Agrarian Party have said they will refuse to enter into a coalition with the Socialists and instead intend to form a strong parliamentary opposition.

UDF leader Zhelyu Zhelev has suggested possibly forming a government of competent experts that would enjoy support from the major political forces.

He said the main task of the new government should be to present a package of economic reforms no later than November, and prepare a local election law by October to remove the remaining bureaucratic structures of the former totalitarian regime.

The country, with a foreign debt of some $12 billion, is close to bankruptcy.

(JUNE 18) UPI - Around the world... around the clock... the latest news from U-P-I.

Officials in Ohio say the death count from last week's flooding has risen again... to 20. Officials say it could be days before they have a final count of the number of people who died in last week's flash flooding. A National Guard official says 16 other people are missing. Up to 100 homes were destroyed by the flooding.

New protests began in Romania last night. Anti-government demonstrators re-occupied the main square in Bucharest. But most of the protesters had left the square by midnight. The protesters chanted ''resign.'' Plus, they demanded that the government release more than one-thousand people arrested last week.

New York Cardinal John O'Connor denies threatening to excommunicate Catholic politicians who support abortion rights. O'Connor said yesterday his views have been widely misinterpreted. The cardinal says he never threatened to excommunicate anyone and is NOT threatening politicians in any way.

(JUNE 18) UPI - Strong thunderstorms accompanied by a tornado slammed into Indiana as nasty weather shook the Midwest overnight, bringing already swollen rivers closer to their banks or above flood stages.

Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Missouri all reported flooding after days of heavy rains while cleanup operations were pressed in other hard hit areas.

Indiana State Police said a tornado touched down late Sunday in Sullivan, about 20 miles south of Terre Haute, and strong thunderstorms flashed through the night sky in the southern half of the state.

Thunderstorms also were reported in southern Illinois and flood-ravaged southern Ohio.

Emergency crews in Ohio found four more bodies Sunday, bringing the death toll from flooding in the Buckeye state to 20 and the number of missing to 16. The weather in Ohio was hot, humid and hazy.

Officials said it could be days before a final Ohio death toll is reached.

A final surge of water was expected in the lower reaches of Maple Creek in eastern Nebraska, threatening the Elkhorn and Platte rivers where flood warnings were in effect. Further west up the Platte River, Colfax County Sheriff Richard Kruse said flooding was coming from Shell Creek.

''The rain every night has just raised the creek more every time,'' he said. ''It broke out real bad all over.''

Kruse said about six homes were evacuated in a rural part of the county and the whole town of Rogers, with a population of about 100, was evacuated. Water was 2 to 3 feet deep in some places. Sheriff's officers had to use air boats to reach Rogers to assist in the evacuations.

''It's been raining three nights in a row here,'' Kruse said. ''It's been getting continuously worse. This is the worst anybody's ever seen. Some of the old timers seen a flood in '41, but it was nothing like this.''

Midsummer heat with temperatures near 100 degrees was expected to continue Monday in parts of Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.

''We have a rather strong area of high pressure in the upper atmosphere that's keeping this system anchored here,'' said National Weather Service forecaster Jud Ladd in San Antonio, adding that slow-moving systems are typical for this time of year.

Because of high relative humidity coupled with hot afternoon temperatures, a heat advisory was posted for north Texas.

The heat index - which takes into account temperature, humidity and more than 20 other variables - reached 120 degrees in northeast Arkansas Sunday and exceeded 110 in much of the Southwest.

Summer weather also hit the Atlantic coast, where hazy, warm and humid air hung over Pennsylvania and showers and thunderstorms hit parts of West Virginia during the night.

The South also faced the heat with overnight temperatures in Florida, Georgia, South Carolina and Tennessee all in the 70s.

Sunshine warmed the West, where only a few scattered showers were reported. High pressure was expected to cling over the Pacific Northwest throughout the week.

BEIJING (JUNE 18) UPI - Members of China's rubber-stamp Parliament will discuss a proposed ban on desecration of the national flag this week and are likely to enact the law with little of the political fury exhibited in the United States, a spokesman said Monday.

In the United States, deep philosophical and constitutional uncertainty over a ban on flag desecration has forced advocates of a ban to propose amending the U.S. Constitution. China's National Flag Law faces no constitutional hurdles.

''I can say one thing for sure, the Chinese Constitution will need no amending with the propagation of the law on the national flag,'' said Zhang Husheng, a spokesman for the National People's Congress, China's nominal legislature.

The proposed flag law is scheduled for discussion Wednesday by the standing committee of the National People's Congress, whose approval of proposed laws is virtually automatic.

''Under the coming law, all those people who are involved in acts of burning, tarnishing, treading on and other acts of harming the national flag will be dealt with according to law,'' Zhang said at a news conference.

''Even with those who have committed only minor offenses, certain punishment will be made according to the rules and regulations concerning maintenance of national security,'' he said.

China's constitution nominally guarantees the right to free speech, but laws banning ''counterrevolutionary'' activities are commonly used to detain and silence government critics as well as those who desecrate national symbols.

Three men convicted of splattering black paint on the giant portrait of Mao Tse-tung in Tiananmen Square during last year's democracy movement were sentenced to long prison terms.

The flag law has been under consideration for years and its introduction this week is unrelated to the nationwide movement for greater freedom that was brutally suppressed by the army last June, Zhang said.

There were no reported instances of flag desecration during the demonstrations, whose student leaders swore their patriotism and proudly waved the five-starred, revolutionary-red national flag as a symbol of their movement.

The Chinese move to ban flag desecration has not prompted the kind of national debate that the issue has stirred in the United States, where the Supreme Court has ruled that flag burning is an expression of free speech and protected by the U.S. Constitution.

Zhang said the flag desecration law already has passed muster at all levels of the Communist government.

The draft law not only would ban desecration of the Chinese flag but would make it illegal to insult the flag, with penalties ranging up to 3 years in prison and loss of political rights, he said.

Zhang said the draft law would allow 15 days of administrative detention for minor instances of flag desecration and a maximum of 3 years in prison for serious cases, which he said could include various forms of insulting the Chinese flag.

The proposal to amend the U.S. Constitution introduced in Congress last week would not even go so far as to ban desecration of the Stars and Stripes, but merely would assign the right to enact a ban, reading, ''The Congress and states shall have the power to prohibit the physical desecration of the flag of the United States.''

The election-year move to amend the U.S. Constitution has inspired furious debate among politicians, legal scholars, war veterans and demonstrators who have publicly burned the U.S. flag. The amendment is supported by President Bush and gained new momentum last week after the Supreme Court struck down an anti-desecration law passed by Congress in 1989.

Amending the U.S. Constitution is a arduous procedure, and support of a proposed amendment by at least two-thirds of the members of each house of Congress is only the first step. Proposed amendments then must win support of the legislatures of at least three-fourths of the 50 states.

TOKYO (JUNE 18) UPI - Japan committed itself Monday to cutting the nation's carbon dioxide emissions by the year 2000 in hopes of slowing the warming of Earth's atmosphere, but the government's failure to set a target date cast doubt on the effectiveness of the program.

''This action program for the prevention of global warming is the first step for Japan toward solving the problem,'' Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu said at a meeting of Cabinet ministers and members of his ruling Liberal Democratic Party.

Carbon dioxide has been accumulating in Earth's atmosphere at an increasing rate since the mid-19th century because of industrialization and deforestation.

Though not a toxic gas, carbon dioxide is believed to trap heat that would otherwise escape Earth into space. Many scientists believe the carbon dioxide buildup is causing long-term global warming that could upset the balance of nature.

Japan's plan commits the government to foster technological and scientific progress to reduce the emissions, which come largely from automobiles and industry.

''It is important to improve technology as well as to raise consciousness '' Environment Agency Minister Ishimatsu Kitagawa said after the meeting. ''Then it will be possible to lower the (carbon dioxide) levels.''

But the government plan agreed to Monday calls only for trying to trim growth in carbon dioxide levels ''as much as possible'' by the year 2000.

The lack of a specific target is reportedly the result of differences between the Environment Agency and the Ministry of International Trade and Industry, which is responsible for promoting industrial growth.

Announcement of the plan before a target had been set appeared to be dictated by the timing of the Houston summit of leaders from industrialized nations, which convenes July 9.

Kaifu told his ministers the global environment will be taken up at the summit and Japan should be prepared to take initiative on the subject.

Japan has long had a reputation for sacrificing environmental quality for industrial growth. Since the 1970s though, it has substantially reduced air pollution within its borders.

But environmentalists now accuse Japan of exporting its dirtiest industries to developing nations in Southeast Asia and of contributing to deforestation by its massive lumber purchases.

NEW YORK (JUNE 18) UPI - David Opont, the 12-year-old Brooklyn boy burned in an attack by a neighborhood bully, will get some help in his rehabilitation from the ''doc'' - Mets pitcher Dwight Gooden.

Gooden will help with Opont's therapy Tuesday, the latest celebrity to visit the youngster whose story gained national attention, said Dr. Craig Rosenberg, chairman of the rehabilitation department at Jamaica Hospital.

''Dwight is a role model. He's larger than life to these kids,'' Rosenberg said. ''He's also someone who has been through rehabilitation. He wasn't able to use his shoulder and now here he is, pitching again.''

The pitcher's nickname is ''Doctor K,'' taken from the baseball notation for strikeouts.

Opont, a slight, soft-spoken Haitian immigrant, was burned by a 13-year-old who police said tried to force him to use drugs on March 7 on a Brooklyn street. He was transferred from the burn unit at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center to Jamaica Hospital on June 8.

The youngster has been visited by several celebrities, including former President Ronald Reagan and his wife, Nancy, Jesse Jackson and Mayor David Dinkins.

Since starting his rehabilitation program, Rosenberg said Opont has received daily physical and psychological therapy designed to help him return to his community and to school in September.

''He is remarkable,'' said Rosenberg. ''All we ask is for the patients to move forward. He's giving us 150 percent effort. He was withdrawn when he came here. Now he's becoming mischievous and showing his personality.''

Rosenberg also said a team from the Brooklyn district attorney's office visited Opont at the rehabilitation unit and said he believed his patient was being prepared to testify in the case.
